14 KILLED, REPLACING TENDER DERAILED BY SLIDE

LEAGUE AFFAIRS TO BE DEBATED IN HOUSE TODAY

Complete Fulfilment of Obligations Asked by C.C.F. Members

SET UP COMMISSIONS

Private Members' Day Will be Monday in Future

OTTAWA, March 2.—(CP)—Low-ering of the flag at the Peace Tower of the Commons is expected to take on an accelerated pace after today with the commencement of private members' day, for the first four spoke of the session are penciled in for the private members' sittings on Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Although the private members will retain their right of precedence today and on succeeding Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays hereafter will be devoted to Government business. Tuesdays and Fridays are always government days.

First private members' resolution on the agenda for today is that of Angus MacInnis, C.C.F. Winnipeg, urging on the government the necessity of complete fulfillment of all obligations assumed under the League of Nations Covenant. It will probably precipitate a long debate on Canada's relations to the League, which has been subject to considerable publicity in recent months. Opposition leaders have criticized the efficacy of the new trading arrangement with Italy, which remained in force Tuesday. No other major government business has been placed on the order paper.

Text of King's Address

It is understood legislation requested to set up a National Commission of unemployment and health insurance, mentioned in amalgamation of the labor department, will be introduced and announced, and appointment of further House Committees, particularly Civil Service and Miscellaneous Bills and Railway Committees, will be made.

Rt. Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, who returned to the House of Commons Monday after a month's illness, will be the first minister to speak in the questions and notices of motion for production of papers to be taken on today. The first will be the introduction of a privately-owned electric railway measure which will give Three Rivers is the subject of a question by Hon. C. G. (Chubby) Power (Quebec East), he will move also for production of correspondence and other documents relating to these negotiations.

Jean Francois Pouliot (Lib. Temiscouata) will ask for information on the effect which the new unemployment and Social Insurance Commission set up by the late government. The Commission has not yet started operations, pending decision of the Supreme Court on the validity of the Act. Hon. G. S. Harrington, former minister of labor, Toronto, recently resigned as chairman of the board and his successor has been appointed.

May Revoke Agreement

Mr. Bennett late last week had the distinction of sponsoring the first bill to pass this session. A bill to re-assemble Council and Legislation—also has given notice of a motion to revoke the Canada-India Agreements of 1932.

Hon. H. H. Stewart, (Lib. Leeds) has given notice of motion for production of all documents and correspondence with the Government regarding the Ontario Legislature's "Power Commission Act of 1935."

W. R. HOWSON TO BECOME JUDGE

Liberal Leader in Alberta Once Bank Manager at Stirling, Ont.

Ottawa, March 2.—(CP)—W. R. Howson, leader of the Liberal party in Alberta, and a former international light to have been appointed a judge of the Alberta Supreme Court on succession to Justice J. R. Boyle who died here a fortnight ago.

Unofficially, Mr. Howson's appointment was expected to-morrow after the Governor-General in Chief Justice Sir Lyman Duff has signed an order-in-Council naming him a justice.

Mr. Howson, one-time bank manager at Stirling, Ont., is a past president of the Alberta Bar Association and is associated with a widely-known Edmonton legal firm Parlee, Freeman and Howson.

Confirmation of the appointment would create a vacancy in the Alberta bench for Edmonton.

Justice Boyle died in Ottawa, Feb. 16 of bronchial pneumonia. He had been here two months after becoming ill while en route east for a voyage to the West Indies.

King Same Man as Prince Monarch Says Over Radio

DUTY OF SOVEREIGN

King Promises Reign of Service to Fellowmen

London, March 2 (CP)—The tradition which binds the King of Britain's message to the people of the British Empire shortly after his accession was revered today.

Not the smallest of King Edward VIII heard the King's voice as he delivered the message yesterday. In former reigns it had been customary for the message to be written.

From a studio in the headquarters of the British Broadcasting Corporation His Majesty spoke and his voice was broadcast throughout the United Kingdom, the Dominions and the entire Empire and in many foreign countries.

In firm, clear tones King Edward uttered his message and many of the millions who heard it noted the resemblance to the voice and to that of King George, familiar to his people through Christmas Day Empire-wide broadcasts.

Reference to King George

The King spoke in high terms of the qualities of his father. "It is," he said, "a comfort to me that he will be reigned in the hearts of his people."

"It falls upon me to succeed him and to carry on his work. I am Prince Edward, son of King George, the Prince of Wales, as a man, who during his reign has had the opportunity of getting to know the needs of nearly every part of the world under all conditions and circumstances. And although I cannot promise now to do everything I am still that same man who has tried and striven to serve you and will strive to the utmost of my power. I shall strive it will be to continue the progress, the well-being of his fellow-men."

His Majesty extended a special greeting to the people of India. He concluded his 16-minute address by expressing hope for peace and understanding in the world, prosperity and happiness for British people "and may we be worthy of the heritage which is ours."

The King arrived at the B. B. C. headquarters shortly before 4 p.m. (11 a.m. E.S.T.) and was received by R. C. Norman, president, and John Reith, director-general of the corporation.

The announcer said: "London calling all the British peoples and nations beyond the seas."

Radio Conditions Good

Then the King spoke. Afterwards he joined Mr. Norman and Mr. Reith and took tea with broadcasting officials. While tea was being served, messages from the Queen, Queen Mary, Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose were broadcast to the Empire.

Reception was excellent. Even in the Arctic, Hon. G. S. Harrington, former minister of labor, Toronto, recently resigned as chairman of the board and his successor has been appointed.

Manchester, March 2 (CP)—Gruesome exhibits will mark the murder trial of Dr. Buck Ruxton, 36 year-old Indian surgeon, which is expected to start in Manchester assizes today.

One of them will be a full-sized fish. According to police the fish was used in draining blood from the veins of Dr. Ruxton's two alleged victims, his wife and wife, Isabella Ruxton, and their nurse-maid, Mary Rogerson, 20.

Other exhibits include photographs of the bodies after Dr. Buxton called "The Devil's Bedfords," where the mutilated bodies were discovered wrapped up in more than a score of parcels.

Interest in the sensational case was heightened by reports Sir Bernard Spilsbury, distinguished pathologist, may join the battery of medico-legal experts appearing for the defence.

Brain Tumors Now Located by Sense Of Smell of Two Special Odors

Detroit, Mich., March 2—(AP)—Physicians can tell the location of the brain quickly and easily by smelling a patient's breath odors of coffee and lemons.

Dr. Wilder Penfield said the sense of smell to locate growths which formerly have been difficult to find was reported today to the annual meeting of the American College of Physicians by Dr. Charles A. Elsberg of Columbia University, New York.

By carefully injecting these odors into the patient's nostrils while the breath is held, Dr. Elsberg declared it is possible to tell from the amount of air given, the length of time it takes for the patient to recognize the odor in question, and the particular nostril into which it is injected just where the tumor is growing.

Ordinarily, he explained, odors cannot be detected unless a person inhales. However, it was found if a patient holds his breath and a minute amount of odor-laden air is forced into one or both nostrils, it is not reached where the odor can be identified. That point, he explained, is key for identifying the location of brain tumors.

REBELS COMMIT HARI-KARI IN ANCIENT FASHION

Wife of One Rebel Dies With Her Husband in Home

SEEK POWERFUL MAN

Premier Okada to Remain Until Successor Appointed

By GLENN BABB

Associated Press Foreign Staff

Tokyo, March 2 (AP)—Three distinguished neo-rioters (army lawmakers in Tokyo's short-lived army insurrection met at the Imperial Palace today with other leaders of the empire and agreed a man powerful enough to head the government.

Premier Keisuke Okada, whose police before he was shot down at his home by his brother-in-law, Prince Hyashi, remains in office until statesman who fled safely from an attack and Genro Kinmochi, 96-year-old former lord keeper of the privy seal, who escaped unhurt from an attack on his villa, attended by a council of state.

Their principal task, with Okada remaining as premier until his successor may be named, is to bring to more national unity, courage and confidence, shaken by the tragedies of last week, which left dozens of leaders slew four persons and held government quarters in the capital for days before capitulating to the imperial army.

The Metropolitan police board announced five policemen were killed or otherwise wounded in the rebel attacks last Wednesday.

Three Commit Suicide

The rebels committed suicide, the wife of one died with her husband.

The "official permitted" account said gendarmes found the bodies of Lieut. Kenichi Asahina and his wife fluttering flamingo in the gaudy room of their Tokyo home.

The lieutenant committed hari-kari in the traditional Samurai method, slitting his abdomen with a sword and then stabbing his throat twice. His wife, using her husband's sword, stabbed herself.

Asahina went to his home Friday night and told his wife of his decision to die. She, the daughter of an army officer, insisted on following him in the manner of heroines of Samurai times.

The other rebels who announced officially to have committed suicide were Capt. Yasuhiro Nonaka, leader of the insurrection who shot himself in the head, and Capt. Shiro Nanaka.

EARLY ARREST OF BANDITS HOPED

Father And Son Wounded in Hold-up Still in Critical Condition

Toronto, Ont., March 2 (CP)—A province-wide search for gangsters, who shot and seriously wounded a Markham garage proprietor and his son, during a holdup early Saturday, was underway today. Inspector Mitchell of the Provincial Force led officers, who hoped for an early arrest.

Meanwhile Edward Glenshowe and his son James, lie in hospital beds, still in critical conditions. The father was shot through the head, above the left eye. James was wounded in the hand during struggle with the bandits.

The father and son were met by the thugs' bullets as they attempted to stop the theft of their car. They had rushed to their garage on the ringing of a burglar alarm and stepped on the accelerator as the car was at it started along the highway. They stalled the car and were about to grab the bandit from the front seat, when his two companions drove alongside in another machine.

YOUNG LIVERMORE TO JOIN MOTHER

Will Say Shooting Affray Was An Accident

SANTA BARBARA, Calif., Mar. 2 — Jesse Livermore, Jr., told an investigator he was going to his home with the sweetest mother in the world.

Young Livermore, son of the famous Wall Street speculator, returned to his mother's bedside at a hospital where he had been since Wednesday night, when Mrs. Dorothea Longpre, is accused of shooting him during a drunken quarrel.

Attorney W. P. Butcher, representing Mrs. Longpre, quoted the youth's praise of his parent and announced Mrs. Livermore will bonfire with him shortly concerning his mother's preliminary hearing. He said he was convinced that he will testify the shooting was an accident.

HYDROAGREEMENT GIVEN TO HOUSE

Attorney-General Roebuck Will Likely Speak For Two Days

Toronto, March 2 (CP)—Royal assent to Ontario's first province-wide Hydro Bill was given Monday afternoon by Lieutenant-Governor Herbert A. Bruce when he attended to open the Legislative Buildings at the opening of the sitting and assent to the bills. Earlier in the day the Hydro bill, giving the province rather than municipalities the right to tax incomes, then will be law.

Two bills complementary to the Income Tax measure were up for discussion today. One amends the Municipal Act to make necessary changes due to the province assuming the income tax and the other amends the Hydro-Electric Power Commission Act to permit municipalities for revenue lost because the province collects the tax.

The Throne Speech debate will resume tomorrow with Goldwin C. Ross, conservative member for Toronto Woodbine starting the debate. It will be followed by Attorney-General Roebuck who will begin a lengthy Hydro address. It likely will take two days.

Mr. Roebuck is expected to announce the government decision on Hydro Commission and the Gatineau and Maclaren-Quebec Power Company contracts, which are now in tracts. He will also discuss Hydro finances.

SMALLEST BABY WEIGHS 34 OZ

12 Ounce Infant Born in Chicago Jan. 14 is Doing Nicely

Chicago, Mar. (AP) — The birth of a baby which Dr. Edward P. King said he believed was the smallest ever born prematurely, yesterday, 46 days after the event.

The baby, a girl, was put to weigh on its arrival in St. Anne's Hospital, Chicago, on January 14, the day she was born, and estimated, by birth weight at 12 ounces. The today weighed 34 ounces, two ounces.

The child is now getting along "very fine," the doctor declared. The parents are Mr. and Mrs. Lester Bennett.

If Dr. King was right in his 12 ounce estimate, the baby was the tiniest ever recorded, records at the American Medical Association indicated. The previously reported holder was an English child who weighed 13 ounces.

The Bennett baby was still in an incubator today, but Dr. King expressed confidence it would live because of its steady weight gain.

BRITAIN FAVORS FURTHER OIL BAN IF LEAGUE ACTS

Nations' Council of "13" Ordered to Discuss Conciliation

"13" MEET TUESDAY

Eden Makes Clear That Britain is Ready With Sanctions.

(By Joseph E. Sharkey)
(Copyright 1936, The Associated Press)

Geneva, March 2.—Great Britain offered today to place an embargo against further oil shipments to Italy provided 50 additional states of the League do the same and the League of Nations Council's committee of 13" was ordered to discuss the possibility of conciliating the Italo-Ethiopian War.

The committee of 13" is really the League's Council of Action, originally excluded. It will be convoked on request.

Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary, made the British offer in a dramatic meeting of the "Committee of 13" entrusted with the responsibility of bringing peace to Italy for her war with Ethiopia.

The resolution attached to the offer was that members of the League which produce oil take similar action to Britain.

Quick Action Sought

He read the resolution which created the "Committee of 13" and declined its conciliation functions. Eden answered that he had no objection to such a meeting or to new efforts at conciliation, but that he wanted to make it clear Great Britain was ready to proceed with sanctions.

BRITAIN HANDS OVER

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
LONDON, March 2—(Cable)—Anthony Eden, Britain's youthful Foreign Minister, opened negotiations at Geneva today which may well affect the whole course of European policy.

In big headlines the News-Chronicle—which is a strong League supporter— proclaims alike the League's very life at stake and Britain's career is in the balance.

12-YR-OLD SAVES BROTHER'S LIFE

Part of Hand Blown Away by Accidental Discharge of Gun

PICTON, March 2.—(Special)—Doctors credited twelve-year-old Trevor Greene of Greenwood, three miles south of Picton, with probably saving the life of his seven-year-old brother, Bernard, late Saturday afternoon. The boys were out hunting on their mother's farm, at a distance of one mile from the house. They will be followed by Attorney-General Roebuck who will begin a lengthy Hydro address. It will be followed by Allen-Mitchell of the Provincial Force led officers, who hoped for an early arrest.

Meanwhile Edward Glenshowe and his son James, lie in hospital beds, still in critical conditions. The father was shot through the head, above the left eye. James was wounded in the hand during struggle with the bandits.

The father and son were met by the thugs' bullets as they attempted to stop the theft of their car. They had rushed to their garage on the ringing of a burglar alarm and stepped on the accelerator as the car was at it started along the highway. They stalled the car and were about to grab the bandit from the front seat, when his two companions drove alongside in another machine.

Tied String on Wrist

With great presence or mind, the little fellow took string from his pocket and tied it tightly at the wrist stopping the terrible bleeding. Had he not done this doctors declared if he had reached home from shock and loss of blood could have been fatal. The long trek home through the snow covered fields and cold, Bernard was rushed to the Picton hospital where Dr. Walmsley, Philp and Lightfall found the wounded boy unconscious from the wrist and the greater part of the right hand.

Clever Student

The injured boy is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Greene. He is in the late Mr. Power. He is a senior matriculation student at P.C.V.I., where he is highly thought of by his teachers and fellow pupils. Athletic and by his fellow pupils for his prowess in sports. He has acquired an education through his enabling energy, walking six miles daily in order to attend classes. He has matriculated last June. The youngster is in the Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital.

Separated From Engine Tender Rolls Back and Pins Workmen in Debris

Slides on C. P. R. Believed Caused by Chinook Winds

OFFICIALS INJURED

Tragedy is Worst in B. C. Since Slide of 1906

Winnipeg, March 2 (CP)—Between 12 and 16 men were killed when a tender broke away from an engine and crashed a camp of workers on the Canadian Pacific Railway 22 miles west of Revelstoke, B.C., said a dispatch received at the Railway's headquarters here this afternoon.

The toll of seven dead and eight injured, said the dispatch, was increased when five other bodies were found in the debris. Each District, says he has found the world's tallest tree, a fir measuring 364 feet in the air.

Provincial Police Headquarters announcing from its Kamloops detachment that 14 were killed and 12 injured, said the accident occurred at 3.20 a.m., just east of Downie, about 30 miles west of here, on the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The dead were telegraph operator Jack Roland and trainman H. L. Haug, four Chinese and one unknown, whose names are not available. One of them was believed to have been burned to death in the stoke.

The injured were C. B. Alexander, division engineer; R. D. Conner, division master mechanic; F. A. Shaver, engineer, and five others, aside Sixten Trahn.

A slide had struck a work train earlier and the tender of the locomotive was derailed. The crew was on the track under the slide tracks when it went out of control and rolled onto the men, crushing them against the locomotive.

The scene of the accident is halfway between Ferguson and Albert Canyon in the High Rocky Mountains, 300 miles east of Vancouver.

Statement Issued

An official statement by the Canadian Pacific Railway said:

"Word has been received of the mountain regions of British Columbia, that as the result of a landslide, the main line and Kootenay division of the Canadian Pacific Railway 22 miles west of Revelstoke, a number of snow slides causing derailment of engine and tender.

"The engineer, fireman and Chinese boy lost their lives at 3.30 a.m. today. The accident was a work train which had been derailed by a snowslide at mileage 100, mountain sub-division. Two of the Dowdle, gauge shotgun, which be placed between them, and their rifles. When he picked up the gun again, a shocker against the stock of the wood of the fence and discharged, blowing off a large part of the boy's right hand and temporarily blinding him.

Reception Conditions Are Good at Radios Fill Churches, Homes

In places of worship and in homes of the city and district the message of King Edward VIII. was heard on Sunday morning at eleven o'clock. Many hundreds of Belleville church congregations heard the address as they sat in their churches, the congregations being larger than usual, and arrangements by the radio committees furnishing the necessary radio sets for the occasion and members of the staff guaranteeing reception as perfect as possible.

The reception was more than normally good and the short wave broadcast came with remarkable clearness. Every listener noticed the similarity between the quality of the voice and the manner of speaking of King Edward and that of his late father King George to the latter of whom the world had grown accustomed at Christmas time and at the time of the jubilee two months ago.

Reception in the home was good as might be expected but the radios in the churches succeeded in giving the largest of them and bringing the full-toned words to the ear.

In three churches in which radios had been installed the King's message was made an integral part of the services. Indeed it dominated the service as the principal feature was taken up in hymn, anthem, and in sermons. The service was entirely patriotic in the churches for his Majesty's words filled the minds of all who heard.

The monarchy, its place in modern British democracy, the reign of law and order, the duty of each man in working out the destinies of Providence's gift to mankind, some of the suggestions brought to the congregations of the churches.

The program preparing for the King's message was in the nature of a concert of Beethoven's Symphony Pathetique. On the announcement of London calling and the playing of the National Anthem by a band, the congregations stood. At the time the King began to speak. At the chorus heard by radio began the singing of National Anthem at the close, the congregation again stood. Until the broadcast congregations then themselves sang the National Anthem.

Again in the home in the evening the message was repeated in English from a record transcription of the speech taken by the Canadian Radio Commission.

SONG FESTIVAL AT S. A. CITADEL

Local Talent Assists Local Songster Brigade

The Salvation Army Hall was the scene of a very enjoyable festival in Praise and Song, when the Belleville Songster Brigade, assisted by other talent presented a very fine program of vocal and instrumental music. The Citadel Band under the direction of Bandmaster D. Hicks, also contributed some of their fine selections to the programme.

The chair was capably filled by Mr. D. Rusdon of Trenton, who in his very jovial manner piloted the proceedings.

"The Program"

The opening number on the programme was a selection by the Songster Brigade entitled: "I Will Seek Thee." This was followed by a cornet duet, "Ida and Dot" by Bandsmen Jack Chester and Bandsman Wardle. Mr. James Cordes then sang a very fine bass solo: "Asleep in the Deep." This was followed by a stirring march by the Citadel Band: "Pershing Crusaders." Mr. J. Cordes and S. Lessels favored the audience with a vocal duet: "Watchman, What of the Night." This was followed by a very lar.

"Wonderful Healer, Touch Me Again," was rendered by the Songster Brigade, after which Scripture. Mrs. D. Wardle read the Scripture.

The second half of the program was then presented, and opened with another bass solo by Mr. J. Cordes: "Open the Gates of the Temple." Bandsmen J. Green and O. Wardle gave another cornet duet, "Ah'wan Cheerful." Mr. J. Cordes gave a very interesting reading: "The Cow and the Bull."

Miss Nellie Collins sang a soprano solo, one of the last two compositions to be published from the Army Publishing House in London, Eng., entitled: "The Cross Roads." The Band played a lovely old hymn tune: "Angelus". The quality of the band's playing is certainly realized in the rendition of this very beautiful piece of music.

"Vote of Thanks"

At this part of the programme a vote of thanks was expressed by Songster-Leader Adams, and was seconded by Major Jordan to all those who helped make the festival a success. "Open Ye the Gates" was the concluding number given by the Songster Brigade. The "Doxology" was then sung by the congregation present and the Commanding Officer closed in prayer.

The band and songsters are making fatily good progress, and are practicing for a grand festival on Bandmaster D. Wardle will welcome engagements for his band. He is ever and always pleased to secure new players. The Salvation Army Band unlike other bands have strict rules governing the playing of bands in this combination unless they belong to the organization and are members of the corps. The average number of players keep up and the local Salvation Army Band is at your service not only for enjoyment but to fill your engagements, and by no means is the least Salvation Army Band in the Dominion. Any one and all are always willing to do its best as it always has been and always will be. When we need advice spiritually or otherwise consult the Salvation Army. Assistance from other local member of the corps, and they are always willing to do their best for you, and give valuable advice.

Y's Men's Club to Present New Comedy

A three-act comedy to be presented at the Collegiate Auditorium on March 21st and 22nd by the cast of Y's Men's Club by fifty of Belleville's artists. The Club held a meeting Friday night and selected the various committees which will have charge of the production. Last night's meeting was devoted towards their desired goal—make the Circus a success on May 24th.

Miss Joan Welsh of the Amateur Theatre Club, Toronto, is coaching and reports she is well pleased with the way everyone is responding; she has provided the show in a number of towns in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick with great success and says she feels the Belleville show will no doubt be her best of all.

The proceeds are to be used for the fund for the Underprivileged boys through the Y.M.O.A. and School principals.

POLICE COURT

A transient giving his name as John Gillis, and giving address as Nova Scotia" pleaded guilty to a charge of vagrancy, when he was sentenced to serve ten days in jail, after he intimated he could not pay a fine of $10 and costs that he preferred before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., in today's local police court.

Gillis was arrested by the local police on Sunday afternoon following an alleged disturbance in the neighborhood of the C.N.R. station. It is said he was endeavoring to procure free transportation on the railway. Later he was apprehended by authorities trying to catch a freight train at the local station, where he was charged with intoxication. Gillis' statement to the incident heard at the police station, where he was given a night's lodging at the local police, police officials revealed today.

A local resident fattened the city's coffers to the extent of $15.80 after pleading guilty to a charge of intoxication. Gordon Taylor, John St., who was arrested on a charge of drunkenness one week ago, found his case further enlarged for one week, when he appeared before His Worship this morning. The court informed Taylor, that owing to special observations that were needed, it would be necessary to detain him another seven days.

Three local youths were question-ed at the police station on Saturday relative to the disappearance of three watches that had been stolen from the locker room at the R.O.L.V.S. early last autumn. Following a thorough investigation by Chief Kidd and Plainclothes Constable Fred Laird, in conjunction with Mr. Lester Shiels of the Collegiate staff, the youths admitted taking the watches, each. The matter will be concluded in a subsequent hearing, it was stated by Collegiate Kidd revealed today.

Twenty six transients slumbered in the local cells over the week end, ten on Sunday night and 16 on Monday night, according to the register at the sergeant's desk.

ITALIANS CLEAR TEMBIEN SECTOR OFFICIAL REPORT

10,000 Ethiopians Lose Lives in Latest Drive

WAY IS OPENED

Believe Italian Troops Can March Into Heart of Ethiopia

(By Stanley J. Hall)
(Copyright 1936, by the Associated Press)

With the Italian army on the Northern Front, March 2.—A series of severe encounters, carrying the Italian army on to Amba Alji and clearing out the Tembien sector with an estimated Ethiopian loss of 10,000 dead, achieved virtually all northern resistance ended and opened the way into the heart of Ethiopia.

The last remnants of any Ethiopian organization left in the Tembien mountains are 5,000 men, absolutely surrounded but still holding Abbi Addi, 20 miles west of Makale, in the face of exterminating fire or surrender to the Italians.

The third army corps of White Italian soldiers and the Eritrean Army Corps of natives are pouring artillery fire into the town. Planes are thundering the stronghold with bombs.

This last Ethiopian stand in the Tembien sector is being commanded by Ras Seyoum, holding fortress at Abbi Addi, his birthplace, which he has declared he never will relinquish alive.

It is impossible to question the bravery of the Ethiopian troops. Italian bands are flexing in all directions. Their columns are following the retreating columns across the Takazze and Gheva Rivers to the west boundary of Lake Ashangi and Pietro Badoglio is making careful preparations for attacks in the Lake sector. The only question seems to be how far the Italians can continue to push their present penetration—want to go before the spring rainy season sets in.

The Italian high command estimates about 10,000 Ethiopians have been killed in the fighting which began last Wednesday night, to not more than 1,000 Italians.

Ras Kassa's army, estimated to have numbered between 30,000 and 40,000 men, when the engagement started in the Tembien region, was virtually destroyed.

A picked battalion of Alpine Troops and Eritrean Corps took the brunt of the all-day Work Mountain battle, with 2,000 Italians alone estimated at 3,000 Ethiopians and 500 Italians.

The Blackshirts turned their fire down on the Ethiopians at dawn Thursday while the Eritrean attacked the slopes of the mountain in a frontal assault.

Taken by surprise, the Ethiopians retreated immediately, reformed their lines and launched counter attacks throughout the day, but were unable to regain the mountain.

They turned away at dusk, leaving many arms and ammunition in addition to their 3,000 dead—adding them Dedjazmach Hirene, a prominent northern Ethiopian chieftain, and his sub-chief.

MILITARY FASCISM BLAMED FOR BLOODY JAP REBELLION—Military Fascism, which has spread rapidly in Japan's army is stated to be the moving spirit behind the coup which resulted in bloody rebellion and assassination of several high government officials in Tokio. Working behind the political scenes of the island empire is the Jap Fascist party known as the Kokumin Domei or Social Nationalists. They are reportedly headed by Ennin Adachi, former minister of home affairs, and are highly militaristic. In the lower photo one of the party leaders, Seigo Nazano, is shown between the two flags of the organization, surrounded by cheering members. Note, the Fascist-style salute. Units of the powerful Jap fleets like those at left top, have been stashed in the harbors of Tokio and Osaka to stand by in case of further disorders. Meanwhile with martial law in force in the Nipponese capital, Gen. Toshiyuki Kawashini (top right) minister of war in the late cabinet, is charged with duty of restoring order, if necessary with full power of the loyal army, in Tokio.

THREE CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH

Mother Trying to Save Family in Grave Condition

Hearst, Ont., March 2 (CP)—Severely burned in futile attempts to rescue her three children from fire that razed her home here last night, 70 miles east of here, Mrs. Joseph Belanger was in a critical condition in hospital today.

Suffering from exposure, her one-year-old son, Leon, the only one of their four children she and her husband managed to save, was also in hospital, where his condition was reported as "uncertain."

Also burned when flames destroyed their little home, trapping Francois, 4, Rebecca, 3, and Louise, four years old, in a bedroom, the father, Joseph Belanger, was doing fairly well, and was expected to recover. All three children were burned to death.

The fire broke out early Saturday when Mr. Belanger started the kitchen stove.

NO MORE Stomach Trouble!

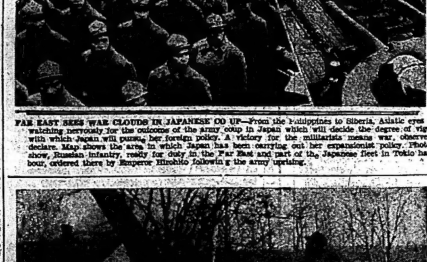
Indigestion, Heartburn, Gas, Sour Stomach, Nausea, Dizziness and Headaches without any of the old effects



"For a long time I suffered badly from indigestion. I tried many remedies but got no relief until I used Fruit-a-tives. Then it was not long before I was entirely well and could eat anything without pain or after effects"—so says MRS. G. SAMSON, Tordenia, Sask.

Fruit-a-tives are a famous doctor's prescription. They contain concentrated extracts of APPLES, ORANGES, FIGS, PRUNES and HERBS. Results of why Fruit-a-tives act naturally to bring all the organs of elimination to healthy action—and that's why they bring, not temporary, but lasting relief.

FAR EAST SEES WAR CLOUDS IN JAPANESE CO UP—From the Philippines to Siberia, Asiatic eyes are watching nervously for the outcome of the army coup in Japan which will decide the degree of vigor with which Japan will pursue her foreign policy. A victory for the militarists means war, observers declare. Map shows the area in which Japan has been carrying out her expansionist policy. Photos show, Russian infantry, ready for duty in the Far East and part of the Japanese fleet in Tokio harbor, ordered there by Emperor Hirohito following the army uprising.

DRAMATIC SCENE AS DEATH BEATS RESCUERS—This dramatic photo was taken a moment after the body of Mrs. Thomas Penn, 43, was torn from the grasp of three survivors trapped on an ice floe in a flooded Logan port. Ind., street. John Penn, 17-year-old father-in-law of Mrs. Penn, is prostrated on the ice as Ralph Baugerhaus, LEFT and Carl Lee, RIGHT, call for help. The four were marooned upon th ice floe when ice blocked the Big river, flooding the entire northeast end of the city.

41 CANDIDATES ARE CONFIRMED AT CHRIST CHURCH

SPECIAL ANTHEM

Confirmation by the Lord Bishop of Ontario, Rt. Rev. John Lyons, was performed at Christ Church Sunday evening when 41 candidates were received by the "laying on of hands." The body of the large church was filled to capacity for this special and unique service during which the Lord Bishop delivered a special address to both the Confirmation candidates and the parish in general.

Bishop Lyons first directed his words to the 41 candidates speaking to them personally on the meaning of Confirmation and the duty which was expected of them in their relation to the Church in their daily life, pointing out to them the obligations they had entered upon and the much needed assistance they should render the church. In speaking to the congregation in general, the Lord Bishop chose for his message, "The message of the Church to the people of the present day." The message of the past is the equal to the conditions of the present time.

Of the 41 candidates prepared for Confirmation at Christ Church by Rev. C. G. Wright (1 to 12) were presented by him, 23 were girls and young women while 19 were young men. Group 13 were presented by Rev. Canon Garnish, where five candidates were confirmed and were accepted into the church as communicants.

All Available Police Are Placed on 24 Hour Duty

New York, March 2 (AP)—Fighting to forestall violence in Manhattan's strike-crippled skyscraper area, the Police Department today ordered all available patrolmen on 24-hour duty, as union leaders called out building employees over the city in ever spreading waves.

From the tip of the battery to Washington Heights, the strike call affected more than 150,000 workers in 11,000 buildings said James J. Bambrick, president of the Building Service Employees International Union.

From that nucleus, sealed orders called for the strike to spread today to such diverse sections as Wall Street, financial canyons, the fashionable East-Side Park Avenue residence area, the interning business district and Harlem.

MAY MOVE BASES TO N. ENGLAND

This Will Guard Against Air Attacks From Continent

By PAUL-LOUIS BRET

(Copyright 1936 By The Havas News Agency)

London, March 2 (CP-Havas)—Transfer of military and naval bases to western and northern parts of the United Kingdom as a precaution against possible air attacks from the continent is being considered by the Government, usually well-informed quarters said today.

These quarters understood a large tract of land had been acquired by the Government at Milford Haven in Wales where a land-locked inlet 15 miles long would provide a suitable location for a base.

Naval experts were said to be advocating a base at the Firth of Clyde and a canal connecting Glasgow and Edinburgh, which would accommodate Britain's first-line battleships.

Advocates of establishing bases on the west coast claimed this would make it possible for warning of impending air attacks to be given. They said a chain of listening posts on the east coast could signal the approach of hostile planes and antiaircraft defences would consequently be ready for them.

HIS MAJESTY'S FIRST BROADCAST

His Majesty King Edward Eighth's voice was heard by the Empire on Sunday for the first time since his accession to the throne and it was a message which was also heard by every part of the Empire. The voice is no stranger in the far-flung ends of the earth for His Majesty as Prince of Wales has visited and spoken in many lands but it was his first Empire broadcast. And although I now speak to you as the King, I am still the same man who has had that experience, and whose constant effort it will be to continue to promote the welfare of his fellowmen," King said.

With that British respect for the late King, his son referred in his Sunday address largely to the place which his Father had held in the Empire and world and to the national and international grief on his death. It was fitting in his first message that the King should devote almost his entire attention to the late King George.

His late Majesty inaugurated a new method of approach to and a new tie with the Empire as he utilized the radio broadcast for his messages of the past two years. British subjects and admirers of King George in every clime are very grateful that there was in his time so great an agency as the broadcast to bring the late King George to the firesides of the world. King Edward Eighth was following in his footsteps not only in the broadcast but also in the great imperial performance of duty to which the late King gave himself.

It was a difficult task for the young monarch to speak where his father had been the first speaker. He was he who was the first to give his speech as sovereign on this occasion through the agency of radio. It was difficult for he had to speak as the successor of his father. Naturally his heart was full of grief for the sorrows of parting have not yet softened and the cloud of mourning still hangs over the royal family and Empire.

It was a message delivered with that simplicity which such an occasion sets. His words were brief and dignified and the references to his late father indicated the sense of sorrow in which his family and his Empire is wrapped. His reference to Her Majesty, Queen Mary, his mother, and to the royal family was as fine as might be expected from this thoughtful young ruler. He spoke to the Dominions, India, and the colonies and dependencies of the Crown and of the links which bind the Empire one of the greatest institutions of history. His promise to follow out the example of his father in serving the Empire and his call to follow men and his prayer that the future bring peace and understanding throughout the world, prosperity and happiness to the British people and may we be worthy of the heritage which is ours," make it clear the course the young sovereign is going to follow.

WILD LIFE VALUED

Those who pay little attention to the efforts put forth to preserve wild life, may be surprised to learn that the value of wild life in the United States is estimated at one million dollars a year to the nation. Furs and meats alone bring in $190,000,000 to the U.S. Besides satisfaction of the motive of sportsmanship and the appeal to tourists, "incalculable value" is placed upon birds as destroyers of insect pests, which prey on crops and forests.

Today it is felt that public and private game preserves, woodlots of land and water areas in national forests should be stimulated. It is good to know that there are 800,000 acres in 27 of the states of the Union and Alaska as "wild life" refuges. Within the national forests are 25 million acres. Canada likewise has large game preserves and wisely stresses the preservation of wild life.

The work of preservation is even being taken up by some cities. They cannot do things on a large scale though they can set up sanctuaries near their outskirts, but in other things they are expecting to take a big part.

It is even suggested that the cat, the foe of the singing birds should be belled, so that the little tink-tink-tink of the bell will sound much louder than the silent pussyfoot which do such terrific havoc among the bird life. There is an old adage of the little mouse which suggested that the household cat be belled as a means of safety to the mice, but he was promptly snubbed by a wise old mouse, which said the cat could cat ravages, asking "who will bell the cat?" But now those who favor bells on cats' necks don't ask the birds to do it. They will do it themselves and try to have a municipal bylaw covering the belling of the cats of the town or city. In default of the owner belling his cat, of course a bell inserted at the end of the cat under public condemnation or that the policemen would have to tie the bells on. This may seem funny but it shows how people are thinking more and more of the need of the preservation of the game.

YOUTH

In tender witchery of the Springtime,
Youth ventures forth so ignorant
Of darkest storms she may encounter
The tempests fierce and virulent.

If charm of beauty doth envelop her
Be very sure of this I ween,
The Green-eyed monster will molest her
In all its fierce and irate spleen.

Should sorrow come in garb symbolical
With melancholy durance vile,
Youth feels the stab in quise Ironical,
Altho' its efforts would beguile.

But if perchance joy should allure her
In varied colors' bright array,
Ah! Then what happiness attend her
From early morn to close of day.

IT'S NOT FROM THE BOTTLE, THAT BIG NOSE OF MINE, claims W. C. Fields, said to be the highest paid comedian in pictures. Says he, my nose was enlarged from frequent punching as a kid on the East Side of New York City. I tried to be rough and didn't dodge any fights and prec ious few punches. Folks think that booze built that beautiful nose but Fields will tell you it's so. Not that he would refuse the odd snort if offered but to keep the record clear on the side of accuracy. To prove that he is a very temperate man Fields has a new fourth reel to his current trailer so that when he travels for rest and recreation he can take it or leave it alone. Fields started on the stage as a juggler and as his clothes were ragged he billed himself as the "Tramp Juggler" and got by. Folks who remember him in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" acquired a perpetual chuckle, and his "Micawber" in David Copperfield, waiting for something to turn up, just emphasized the character as Dickens' visualized it, in the minds of all lovers of Dickens. W. C. Fields ran away from a tenement home on the lower East Side of New York when he was ten, boarded at free lunch counters across the continent for some years, then saw most of the world from behind the footlights and finally stormed Hollywood and made the cinema moguls sit up and welcome a new box office bonk. Like Charlie Chaplin's cane and undersize derby, W. C. Fields mask prized properties are that bulbous nose, a half smoked cigar, and that white derby hat, also an old-fashioned coat, small at the waist and trousers which sticketh closer than a brother and always on the climb.

ORGANIZED CRIME SEEMS TO BE WELL REPRESENTED in the legislatures of the United States. An effort to pass a drastic law making it harder for the criminal to escape punishment and easier for the peace officers to prosecute and obtain just convictions was halted in the New York State legislature at Albany, and Governor Lehman was so incensed that he spoke as follows:

"There are forces which apparently are much more interested in keeping crime safe for the criminal, than in protecting law-abiding citizens. The Legislature, in effect, says to the policemen 'We will not help you by giving you laws that will permit y:.u to catch and convict criminals. It says to the District Attorneys and the courts 'We will not remove the mass of technical, legal obstructions that so tangle up the trial of a criminal, that make it so difficult for society to convict a criminal and send him to prison where he belongs instead of allowing him to go free again to molest innocent and law-abiding men and women."

"THEY DO SOME THINGS DIFFERENTLY IN ENGLAND" says a New York newspaper, editorially. The enormously wealthy and successful John Howeson, British, built a vast fortune by manipulating tin prices, increasing them 500 per cent. Then he reached out, with others, to control paper, linen and various things. Now he is in prison, just an ordinary English prison, no frills, no "private bath room". In this country he would have gone to Palm Beach, Monte Carlo or Paris, after granting a brief interview to the press."

TOO ROUND

The "Fat Lady" of the circus was taking a walk one day, and, hesitating in the middle of a road, was knocked down by a taxi. Luckily she was not hurt, and, getting up, she stormed at the Cockney driver.

"Why did you run into me, you fool. Couldn't you have gone round me?" she screamed.

"Sorry, Ldy," was the reply, "I didn't think I 'ad enough gasoline left."

It's a sad, sad story, but we will have to tell it just the same. The Aura Lee team came here with their reputation preceding them and they certainly lived up to advance notices. Some team is right. A big, strong and fast combination. There was a big crowd at Dick's arena and my! what a happy crowd would have left the rink had we put it over them about 5 dozen goals. But when the final gong sounded and the score was 11 to 2 in favor of the visitors, and the crowd wended its way from the rink, well it wasn't the same gang in spirit that left for home after the St. Andrew's game. There was just about as much hilarity in the crowd as was in the Lindsay bunch not long ago in Lindsay when we trimmed them there. The Belleville fans are game, however, and we must admit that the better team won. Now, gentle reader we are proud of our Juniors and have been all year. The kids have fought gamely and well and did so in this game right up to the finish. We will have to take our hats off to our kids on their season's playing. Although our machine was wrong. Well, still the Aura Lee players were more finished. The game was so fast that it is hard for us to pick any outstanding player, but we think that for Belleville, Lynn was the most sensational and effective, and Whalen, Gunner, Armis and Green put up a whale of a game. Don't pass over Car Arnott; he's a whale and he has now found his position. The boys will go to Toronto soon to meet the same team and here's hoping that they bring home the bacon. It certainly was no disgrace to be beaten by a fast outfit like the Aura Lees. A certain man on Front Street, after the beginning of the second period went into his ticket office and stayed there. "Why don't you go out and see the game?" he was asked. "I can't stand the strain—too exciting for me," replied the adoring fan. "Sure would give you heart failure from start to finish."

A horse attached to a cutter from Mr. Harvey Crook's livery stable ran away on West Bridge street Sunday afternoon. The occupants of the sleigh were turned out on the walk in front of the Windsor Hotel and the horse continued without restraint up Murney's Hill, hotly pursued by the former driver. The horse was eventually found near the river head bridge stuck fast in a snow-bank.

REPORT ITALY IS READY FOR PEACE

Threat of War in Europe Has Reached Turning Point

(By Charles H. Cuptill)

(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

Rome, March 2.— (AP)— The troubled European situation, with its threat of war over the Italo-Ethiopian conflict, reached a turning point today, informed Italian sources said.

While the League of Nations Committee of 18 met at Geneva to consider imposition of further sanctions, a spokesman for informed quarters said Italy was ready to certain peace proposals—but their reception would depend upon their adequacy.

If the European tension turned to coalition of an oil embargo to the present war penalties, informed sources said, Italy's reaction would arise from a possible program including retirement from the League, denunciation of some clauses of the Versailles Treaty, withdrawal from the Locarno Pact and denunciation or suspension of some international conventions.

Spectacular Saving of "Forgotten" Islanders Brings Them Civilization's Benefits at Last

By PAT FRANK.

Washington, Feb. 29.—It took "the second worst storm in history" to open to modern civilization the strange race of fishermen who live on the Tangier Islands in Chesapeake Bay, practically only 30 miles from the mainland of Maryland and Virginia, but in almost every other circumstance a hundred years behind our times.

It was not until the 2,800 men, women and children of Tangier and Smith Islands were starving, and dozens of them were dying of exposure, that most of the world knew that these quaint communities existed.

On these islands there are no telephones and no radios. There are no automobiles, and there are many inhabitants who never have left the islands, and consequently never have seen an automobile.

Seen Aeroplane For First Time.

Until rescue expeditions arrived, few, if any, of the islanders had ever seen a dirigible or aeroplane.

Fifteen generations ago the islands were settled by Sandy Cornish fishermen, who ventured out calling in a new world. Naturally isolated, they became even more self-isolated on their island domains. There was considerable in-breeding, until now almost everybody on the islands is a relative of everybody else.

They become almost a forgotten race. While their brothers on the mainland swept ahead with the remainder of the nation, they moved back. Such "new-fangled" ideas as steam and modern plumbing they viewed with suspicion.

"Tar" Self-Sufficient.

And because they were so self-sufficient, because they had the hardihood to survive and prosper under almost the worst conditions, no one tried to help them until this winter.

Every year their oyster boats piled Chesapeake Bay oysters high, and their fish and oysters drew big prices in the metropolitan markets. Some years were prosperous ones on the islands. But the islanders had to prosper last year. As a result, when winter came, the stocks of food in the homes of the islanders were very low normal.

Then there set in the most terrible freeze within the memory of the oldest inhabitant. Commerce on Tangier Island. It became impossible to reach the mainland, and no one could reach the islands. Only a doctor who usually made his rounds of the islands by boat came. Only 130 miles from Washington as the aeroplane flies, and not that distance from Baltimore, they were isolated as if they lived on the Antarctic ice floes.

Supplies Dwindle.

Days and weeks passed. The slim stocks of food disappeared. Fuel grew low. On the islands there are no coal mines. Wood is expensive. It is light and heat. In the old days it was whale oil. Now, of course, there is unknown.

After two weeks had passed, rumors of what was taking place on the islands seeped through to Washington. Coast Guard cutters established contact 10 Tangier. The American Red Cross came to the rescue. Planes were loaded with 1,000 pounds of flour. No one, at that time, knew the islanders were starving; but the Red Cross sent the flour—just in case.

The blimp Enterprise appeared, hugging cold, winter breezes. Frostlocked Tangier. Bewildered and frightened, the inhabitants ran from their homes and gathered—1,800 of them—all who were not sick, behind the little schoolhouse. Of course they had never seen a dirigible previously.

More Aid Needed.

Captain Lange sent the blimp to earth, and the hands grabbed the ropes. Other hands eagerly unloaded the flour. The dirigible came back to Washington with word that 3 tons go to Tangier immediately.

That day the aeroplane flew again, snow and sleet added to the discomfort and danger on the island, and made immediate rescue impossible. On Smith Island hundreds slept beneath their rugs, when insufficient blankets failed to give them necessary warmth. On Tangier Island a woman was badly burned when some mere kindled her clothing —and there was no doctor. On Tangier, half dozen children had pneumonia.

Saccor Comes.

Finally an aeroplane, piloted by George Whitehurst, reached the islands, and made a perilous landing on the ice. A reporter, James Cullinane, walked ashore. He found the fishermen, and especially their wives and children, strangely shy. It took quite a while for him to learn the reason. They had never seen an aeroplane before, and did not know whether Cullinane, wrapped in a huge flying suit, was man or beast. They needed food. They told the reporter that almost all of them needed medicine—and doctors. Three times that day the aeroplane landed between the islands and the mainland, bringing medicine.

The following day other aeroplanes were sent. They carried doctors and nurses and emergency hospital in Washington. They carried medical supplies. They carried terribly needed food—especially milk for the babies and children. One of the aeroplanes brought back the woman who was near death from unattended burns. She didn't want to get into the ship. But they flew her to the hospital anyway.

Another aeroplane reached the islands with an oxygen tank, and the children who were ill were helped from pneumonia were saved—every one of them.

All the Children Saved.

Four days later a Maryland state trooper, trying to cross the ice on a rescue expedition to the islands, was frozen to death. But, recently, the consignment cutters managed to batter their way through the ice-packs and bring all the food necessary to the beleaguered islands.

Never again will the isolated fishing colonies be tortured by winter's terrors. Governor Harry Nice of Maryland has decreed that they be opened to the outside world.

Radio stations will be established on both islands by the Maryland state police. And a seaplane will be kept convenient.

The state health authorities of Virginia and Maryland are planning constant inspection on the islands.

But the islanders themselves (now that they are safe) think it is all pretty foolish. They got along for 200 years without aeroplanes and radios, and they can get along for 200 more, they say.

Trenton Man is Found Guilty Of Assaulting Wife and Friend

Stuart Grant's Sentence Remanded Over 3 Months to go to Hospital

Trenton, March 2—(Special)—Stuart Grant appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler Friday charged with assaulting his wife, Mrs. Alice Roque on the night of February the 8th, and with assaulting his own wife on February the 12th. Grant pleaded not guilty on both charges. LaRoque the complainant was the first to testify. He said that he lived on Dundas St. on the morning of February the 8th, and that Mr. Grant had asked him to come over to his home on Dundas St. at eight o'clock that evening he went to the house, knocked and was let in the door and walked in. On his arrival inside the living room of Mrs. Grant home he saw Mr. Grant and his wife and Mr. Goodwin, a friend of Mrs. Grant's. Mr. Grant and Mr. Goodwin were in the kitchen drinking beer and when he entered into a conversation with Mr. Grant, He said that Mr. Grant if his fall had done him any good and as a reply Mr. Grant said that he was none of his business". He said to Mr. Grant, that he thought he had, came over and struck him and that in falling he fell over a coffee table, cut his face, and hurt his arm. After he got to the side walk in front of the Grant home he said "that he called back to Mr. Goodwin, who was in the doorway, that he would see that Grant was taken care of." He walked home, washed up, then went to the Police station and laid a charge against Grant. After laying the charge he proceeded to the offices of Dr. J. W. Farley, and there he found that in the fight he had received a broken nose, and under the skin, facial bruises and bruises on his left side.

Mr. D. Graham, K. C., attorney acting for Grant, in his cross examination of LaRoque said that Roque had been in the Grant home on several occasions drinking with the accused's wife and that Mr. Roque had been drinking before coming to the Grant home and that Graham asked LaRoque if he called Grant a "faithful".

"Positively no", was LaRoque's answer.

"Were you been in the Grand home since the night of February 8th?" questioned Mr. Graham.

"No sir," was the complainant's reply.

Dr. J. W. Farley the physician who attended LaRoque was the next on the stand and stated that in his examination he found LaRoque had received a fractured nose, cut in forehead, swelling over left jaw, skin off underneath his chin and a bruise on his left side. He said, that he sent LaRoque to Kingston General Hospital, where he was interned for eight days.

Accused on Stand

The accused was the next on the stand. Mr. Grant said that he returned home from Belleville just on the night of February 8th, spoke with smith, and that he went down town his next morning and meeting LaRoque, did not speak. He was asked why he did not speak to LaRoque and he said "that he never liked the parties that LaRoque brought to his home. He said he was away for the three months. He said that LaRoque's friends were corrupting his home. In the story which Mr. Grant told, the court learned, that on the night of February the eighth around eight o'clock, Mrs. Grant's children, Mr. Goodwin and himself were sitting in their living room, a rap came to the door. Mrs. Grant got up to answer it and before she reached the door LaRoque had entered.

While Mrs. Grant (his wife) and Mr. Goodwin were in the kitchen, Mr. LaRoque came in, chased his wife side him and started to make up, to this conversation Mr. Grant said "that LaRoque asked him if he thought his stay in the Belleville jail had done him any good and that he said "that it was none of his business and at that he got up off the chesterfield and asked LaRoque to leave. He said to put his hand up, motioning him to go and that LaRoque struck at him, and said "You're nothing but a jail bird."

Never Kicked

Grant, enraged, struck him a blow in the face, and he fell over a coffee table. He said that he never kicked him, and "that after LaRoque retreated to the kitchen that he called back and said "Come on out here, and I'll show you where you belong."

Grant replied with "I don't want any part of you."

Joseph Goodwin, who was in the Grant home when the first part of the occurrence was the next on the stand. He stated that Mrs. Grant and he were not in the room while the fight was on but that he heard a little commotion going on in the front room. He said that Mrs. Grant had called to the police for help and found LaRoque standing, and that he did not know how anyone could be on the floor and kicked, such little time. He told the court that he heard Grant tell the Roque to leave and heard him say, "I will be would put Grant where he belonged". Mrs. Grant, the accused's wife was the next to be heard from. Mr. Grant's story was learned from her, that LaRoque came into the Grant home on several occasions while the accused was in Belleville jail. She said that she opened the door to let LaRoque in, but she did not see the fighting and that her husband was angry told LaRoque to get out. Mr. Graham questioned her as to why her story differed from the other three witnesses about the opening of the door. The Trenton Police Sergeant said "that he went to the Grant home at 8.30 that evening and going to the door met Mr. Grant.

He asked Mr. Grant the cause of the disturbance, that had been going on. Mr. Grant replied "there had been no disturbance whatever."

Pleaded Not Guilty

On the second charge of assaulting his wife Mrs. Florence Grant, Mr. Grant pleaded not guilty. The complainant was the first to testify. She told the court, that on the night of February 12th, between eight thirty and nine o'clock, that she left her home to look for a little girl who is in her neighborhood went around the block and into the Quinte Hotel and out in the lane by for; a little while, as her maid apparently stops in their to visit. On her return home she met Mr. Fred Asts at the corner of their home and asked him to come over to the house. She and Asts walked into the house and on their arrival Mr. Grant asked her if she had to have a bodyguard.

Her husband and Mr. Asts chatted for a while. Then Mr. Grant left the room to the store to get some cigarettes and while he was gone, beat her. Mr. Graham in his questioning of the wife of the accused took one hour to go six blocks. He also asked her to get a good drubbing for her maid at half past eight. She replied that she had not been accustomed to going in at that hour. The Trenton Police Sergeant was the next witness called in the case. His evidence he revealed, that when Mrs. Grant came around to the Police Station on the night of February 12th, that she was in a very nervous condition and that she had a cut over her left eye, cheek bone and so far as he could make out at the time a lump on the back of her head. He said "that she stated that her husband had done this by beating her.

Odor of Liquor

He told the court that Mrs. Grand had the odor of liquor on her breath. When cross examined the sergeant was asked if Mrs. Grant drank.

"No, but she was nervous and excited." Mr. Grant, the accused then told his story. He said, that his wife was intoxicated that night and that every time she got intoxicated she has an illusion of someone beating her. He said "that after drinking part of a twelve ounce bottle she went out to a neighbor's and on returning told him, that she had met a great friend of his father's while she was at the neighbors. He said, that he would like to meet the man so they proceeded to the neighbors. When he got a look at the man, he knew that his father never knew him. Besides he found, that there were two men and that they were both liquor agents. He said "that on the table there was a forty ounce bottle of whiskey and that it was nearly all gone. He stated, that Mrs. Grant left the house at eight thirty to look for the maid and on her return brought Mr. Asts. He asked her where the maid was and she said "she left because she was afraid of you". While he and Mr. Asts were conversing Mrs. Grand slipped out and twenty minutes later came back with the police. He also said that he never struck her. After summing up the evidence of both sides the Magistrate found Grant guilty of both charges. Grant's sentence was remanded for three months and in the meantime he will be in Hospital. He was bonded for two thousand dollars.

Other Cases Heard

Other cases to appear before the Magistrate were: A local woman was ordered to get her dog out of town within forty eight hours or she was found guilty of harbouring a vicious dog.

A local maid was fined one dollar and fifty cents for driving his motor vehicle without proper lighting. On default of payment will receive seven days in jail.

Another maid was found guilty of driving his vehicle without motor licenses and without a driver's license. On the first charge he was fined ten dollars. On default of payment fifteen days in Belleville jail. On the second charge he was fined five dollars and costs or fifteen and costs, on default, ten days in Belleville jail.

Origin of Dollar Is Explained

How the ordinary dollar, commonly called the piece of silver age as the most acceptable form of currency, originated, is clearly explained by Harvey Ulmann in the York City Ulmann in a letter to the New York Times.

Mr. Ulmann points out that there were coinages in existence in George Washington's time, but they were greatly known as Spanish-milled dollars."

The remainder of Mr. Ulmann's letter is reprinted in full:

During the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries there were many Spanish coinages in circulation in Central Europe, which was made up of a number of small principalities and ecclesiastical states. These principalities exercised the right to coin money, and there were all sorts of dubious quality, but these coinages, particularly those from the valley of Joachimi in Bohemia achieved distinction because of their purity and uniformity of weight. And so, the Joachimithaler, as they were first called and subsequently simply thaler became a standard for coins everywhere and are the predecessors of the word "dollar," "daler," the "dealder" of the Low Countries and the dollar of the United States.

Stirling and District

The members of St. Andrew's fore Church Young Men's Bible Class held their first social gathering since the class was organized on Thursday evening Feb. 27, when they were so. A large number of the evening, the members of the Kirk Session and the members of the Ladies' Aid were present. A programme was arranged which included an address to the first guests which was made possible through the kind co-operation of the ladies committee, consisting of its kind in the district, with an ever increasing membership of real enthusiastic young men.

During the dinner hour lively community singing was led and enjoyed under the leadership of Arthur Dunean with Mr. Lorne Anderson presiding at the piano. Following the toast to the King, Mr. Thomas Hard, the president of the class, who acted as Chairman throughout the evening gave a brief address of welcome to the members of the guests present.

The first number on the program was a selection on the harmonica by Norman Bell in response to popular demand Mr. Scott also exhibited his talents as a whistler by giving several imitations of bird songs.

Mr. Lorne Anderson offered a place solo which was well received. He introduced the speaker of the evening, Rev. F. A. Smith of St. George's Church, Trenton who gave a very appropriate address on "Ideals."

Rev. A. F. Smith

"Ideals" stated the speaker, "formulated early in the lives of men and the basis of starting into the rapid changes of times, economical-ly and socially. Ideals create an entirely new world for the young men of today and the setting up of a good ideal you have brought to a close with Rev. J. A. Koffend pronouncing the Benediction.

Little Benny's Note Book

My sister Gladdis and Harvey came around last nite and ma and Gladdis started to talk about what a swell guy Harvey is and Gladdis cared for her birthday. Gladdis saying, all I more is I wish somebody cared for, I fer I've passed the age of sweet sixteen long ago.

How about perfums? ma said, and Gladdis said, That's the very thing. I'm just used to my fair share of my precious bottle of Passion Flower.

Yes gods, something useful like soap, towels or socks, ma would said, They're a wonderful race of people.

Watching ladies, and Gladdis said, But I think I'll change my brand after a change. Here are so many marvellous new perfumes on the market I think all of my friends have Mystic Charm, it's quite the thing nowadays, but I don't know, I think I'll try some different perfume, I'm tired of the same old thing.

It's all a scam to you, she said.

How can I be so, I'm not a sucker by anybody' pap said. There's a world of difference between a public charge and an intoxicating whisper, he said and Harvey did of course, anybody knows that if they've been around a little.

Don't get anything for me till I finely decide because after all I've always had a hankering to have some Irresistible Appeal, she said, and pop said, It's no use, if you're not born with that sort of thing you can just whistle for it. Personly I think I'd like a nice manly perfume, something like the spirit of Bigger Scoops, how about you, Harvey? he said.

A good many of the boys are going in for Joe Louis Jab, Harvey said, but I'm not sold on it, don't know, that's a bit forceful and you gotta get tired of it, why dont you try Kiss Me Kid or Wild Lavender.

I'll decide nite now, I'll take Mid-night Romance, Gladdis said, and Harvey said, I'll take vanilla.

And they started to play bridge.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

SHALL HE TAKE THE RISK?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We've been engaged ever since we were "kids" in high school, and it isn't a case of puppy love, either. I'm in a good position and have a home, every cent I earn over to my fiancee, but I wait for it like lions looping to pounce on a kid.

They need it all right, but no one is more anxious to marry her than I, as I want to marry this girl who has been waiting for me. Shall I take a chance to marry her, or wait until I earn a little more money? While I've been in this camp, I have learned a useful trade, which promises fair results. We're both 22 years of age.

Gaston.

As you're certain this is not a case of "puppy love", I am forced to bend out to you the bitter dose that it will be more prudent to wait than to take a chance of marrying your sweetheart at the present time.

It may sound unsympathetic to you to recall the economic struggle of parents who wait like Rose for a child's pay envelope, but my dear boy, when parents know bitter poverty, they have not the magnificent compensation of youth. I'm glad you've learned a good trade and as your girl has been faithful since high school days, I'm sure she will be willing to wait a little longer.

She Was Lonely and Did Something Foolish.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I was so lonesome and blue that I believe I committed an unpardonable offence against good propriety. A certain couple that—I used to see everywhere, but hardly ever know well enough to speak to, became separated by death. I wrote the man a letter of sympathy although I suppose I did not know him well enough to do that. I was so foolish enough to ask him to come to see me, if he felt like seeing old friends.

And I set the day. His neither came nor answered my letter, and I see how that he has interpreted my intentions, not repeat this word of warning.

which were only friendly.

I feel terribly hurt at having made this mistake. I don't like to be misunderstood. What would you do in my place?

Bliss.

Well, my dear, I'd cheer up and stop feeling badly over having something which was inspired by a kindly impulse. When you meet the man again, just act as if nothing had happened. Some people are quick about answering letters of condolence, and some find them so painful that they don't answer them at all. Don't feel too badly about this.

Parents Want Her to Join a Correspondence Club

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My parents urge me to join a correspondence club and become acquainted by writing letters to strangers. They say that many of their friends have fallen in love and been married by this method.

I don't know why my friends are so frantic to marry me off, but they predict all kinds of dreadful fates, if I go out with "a mad crowd of youngsters." Instead of taking chances with some "serious man", who belongs to a correspondence club.

I'm a high school graduate, and do not like the idea of being married off in this fashion.

Mabelle.

You're quite right, my dear, in declining to join a correspondence club. Some of the most brutal murders in the past few years have resulted from these haphazard acquaintances. Only a few weeks ago the papers were full of the account of a man who had married twenty women, met through correspondence clubs, and made off with their savings.

Nothing could be more dangerous. It's like flying across the Atlantic. Some land, but many go down and while I would not advise a girl to go against the wishes of her parents, I shouldn't be faithful to this cohort if I did

Requisites For Ideal Mother

Health And a Love For Living Are Factors, Says Miss Grenelle

THERE IS a very successful social service unit that makes it a specialty to find ideal mothers for babies out for adoption.

All babies need home, however humble. And all women, apparently, want babies, for there are always many more would-be foster mothers than motherless babies.

This is very fortunate for the future of the babies and the success of the society, permitting as it does a choice of parent. Unfortunately, the babies themselves are not going to be consulted. But the society, with much experience, understanding and common sense behind it, is able to guard the babies' interests and choose for them those mothers who are likely to give them the best break for the future.

And what sort of a woman is she likely to be? Should she be intelligent, something of a child psychologist, an ex-school teacher, or perhaps a college graduate? "Very nice, very nice," says the society, "but not important."

Should she be a woman whose husband is financially secure, with a bit of social standing in the community, and able to give the child advantages here on college, a good job, the right sort of contacts? "Very nice, very nice," declares the society, "but not essential. Those are not the principal points at all."

Her Requirements

"Then what are the principal requirements of an ideal mother?" asked the society.

"Good health and a love of living," said the society, "are real assets but trimmings."

"Good health and a love of living!" I exclaimed, "is that all? How about training, education and financial security?"

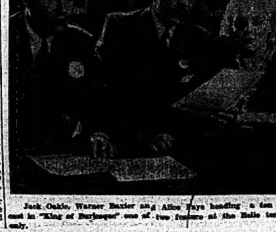
"Well, of course, the parents must have some guarantee of adequate food, shelter and healthy surroundings, but the final requirements of an ideal mother, foster or otherwise, is health and a belief and enjoyment of living.

"If the woman is healthy, she can stand the baby round cats without taxing her strength, be up with him nights if necessary, have him to play with, take him out for several hours a day after she has done her housework, and keep the mother should be a good, efficient housekeeper, but that is secondary.

So don't worry, if you haven't had a college education, don't despair because you haven't a job that you can't give Jimmie or Janie many hours of attention.

But take care of your health — it's a mother's gift. And keep alive that zest for living you had as a girl.

Colored Furs For Spring Wear



By RACHEL GAYMAN

Paris, March 3—(CP-Havas)—This Spring's furs are to be treated in a novel manner — dyed and cut but still retain the favorite shades for these original garments are pastel. Of course the pelts are all flat ones. Shaved lamb, beaver, solvants, pony, and summer ermine are best suited to the fine work of plaids and godets which characterizes this style.

Fox, although not used in the usual manner, is quite prominent in the latest showings. Pearl familiar fur is also dyed in delicate shades. Iris, amber, ash-grey and azure shades are the most popular.

The cut and line of the fur garments are very similar to cloth clothes of the same type. The same little three-quarter coat, with the round collars closed by clips or simply a cord knotted around the neck, are still very smart for town wear. Short jackets, fitted or loose, will also be worn by many, but the most popular of all is the bolero, with capes a close second.

For the evening, blue or silver fox and natural white ermine are favored for the long capes and redingotes.

Good Manners

THANK-YOU NOTE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband died a few months ago and about two weeks after his death my children's friends ordered flowers and a note of sympathy also asked if she could do anything for me. Is it correct for me to send her a thank-you note?

J.

Yes, this kind expression of sympathy you should acknowledge as well as you can. Parents of a bereaved child that you received this note some time ago should write a letter of understanding people don't expect prompt acknowledgments of their kindness, but of consideration. Here might read somewhat like this:

Dear Miss Atwater,

Your words of sympathy and friendliness and understanding touched my heart deeply, and I can't tell you how gratefully I am for you for them. Indeed the letter was a great comfort to me, and I cherish it. My children were always devoted to you, and your sweet letter showed one of the many reasons why they were.

Thank you too for your generous offer to help. And do know that, if the occasion arises, I shall appeal to you for advice and counsel. The readjustments are hard, but thanks to dear husband has been most difficult, but things are going better now, and it is the words of such wonderful friends as you that have made the struggle easier. Thank you, with all my heart, for your generous offer, and be assured that you will come to see us — we would so love to see you.

Most sincerely yours,

Mary Smith Brown.

No Formal Announcement Cards

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

There has been quite a dispute among my girls and myself as to whether it is good taste to announce one's engagement by means of engraved betrothal cards? I have always heard that it is not, but as several have been received lately from girls who would be expected to know the correct thing to do in a case of this sort, I am almost convinced that I am wrong.

F.

It has never been considered good taste, and still isn't considered good taste, to send formal announcements of a betrothal. Formal announcements are correct for a marriage, but not for an engagement.

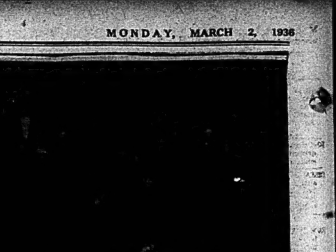
When a girl decides to announce her engagement, she tells her close relatives and close friends. Those who live near her she usually tells by word of mouth; to those who live at some distance, she writes a letter. The man does the same. There may be a special party to which the announcement is made, and the girl's parents may send a formal announcement of the engagement in the newspapers. But no engraved announcements should be sent.

Cesa Silverware

Dear Miss Beeckman:

A friend and I have been discussing silverware for a wedding present for one to wipe off its silverware before using it when eating in a restaurant. I can't understand that it was incorrect. Will you please enlighten me on this subject?

T.



Wiping the silverpieces before we use them in a restaurant may be to some people, necessary, but it's terribly poor taste and a reflection on ones to behold. It certainly isn't taking "much on faith"! It's never to be recommended, and it's usually not necessary and it's never done by a well-bred person. This is the important point about this: if one considers that a silverpiece is not clean, one has best summon the

LAD SEES MOTHER'S PYRE ABLAZE IN B.C. HINDOO CREMATION

Kamal has been separated from her husband, Karlar Singh, for 13 years. He hadn't even longed to come to Canada to join her husband and bring along her 13-year-old son, Bhag. Three months ago she started in Victoria, Sicksen with pneumonia, his wife died. Kamal's body was taken to a sheltered nook in the Royal Oak burial park, where it was placed on a pile of cordwood, with an orange for a head for a pillow. A bouquet of flowers was placed near the head. Her countrymen and countrywomen, gathered around. The husband stood at the head of the pyre with his son beside him, and was photographed (as ABOVE) at his request. More wood was piled around the body until it was hidden from view. When the Hindu women in the gathering retreated to a distance from the gathering of men around the pyre, Kabul Singh, elder of the Hindu colony, with a flaming patriarchal torch in his waist line, began the funeral chant of the Sikkar, the traditional lament of the race. As the prayers came to an end, the pile of cordwood enclosing the body was saturated with oil. Finally Bhag, the son, stepped forward and, with a lighted stick (BELOW) set his mother's pyre ablaze.

How to Help Keep Up Personal Appearance

By HELEN FOLLETT

JUST A FEW warnings to the dozen housekeepers who all too often keeps her home shining bright but neglects her own appearance. Oh, not you, gentle reader — the woman next door. We all know her.

For the sake of her hair, her complexion and her lungs, she should avoid clouds of dust. There should be no sweeping with brooms. The carpet sweeper and vacuum cleaner are a better job anyway. General Decrease in Transients Seen

A general decrease in the average number of transients to apply at the local police station for a night's lodging was noted during the month, during the month of February, police figures showed today. During the month 1,000 less transients were given warm and dry sleeping quarters, giving an average of over seven per night. The largest number to sign the register in any one night appeared on the twenty-first of the month, when in the year's early day, February 26th, sixteen transients slumbered peacefully in the cells. The smallest number to apply in any one night occurred on the second of February, when only two pui, in an appearance. Generally speaking, however, Chief Kidd intimated, the police establishments were soon passing through the "off" day. Either the weather is too cold for transients to travel, or they receive a general decline in "handouts, lately these days," added Chief Kidd.

DRAMA PRIZES WON BY OTTAWA

First and Second Places Awarded in East Ontario Regional Festival

Kingston, March 2.—(CP)—The Ottawa Drama League stood supreme in the play and pageant dramatic section Saturday night. The Ottawa group was awarded first and second places in the Eastern Ontario regional drama festival which closed in Kingston Saturday night.

Adam Wade, adjudicator, awarded Sydney Howard's "The Late Christopher Bean" first prize and second place in the pageant section. Wade's decision was received with cheers by the audience and was presented with the Brockville trophy for directing the prize-winning play of the festival.

The winning play was presented by the Ottawa Little Theatre Group from Mr. Wade. Nothing of value in the play had been added said Wade, and any criticism he made was of small parts. The play reflected credit on Mr. Marquis, director, and he congratulated them on their fine work.

Presentation Praised

In commenting on "Whiteness," the prize-winning play of Saturday night, Mr. Wade said he knew nothing of the play and as soon as the curtain went up had been staged he was puzzled to know what had happened. But in the fragment of the play the audience felt the players gave a magnificent performance. Mrs. Percy Julie Murphy, was praised for the characterization given as the cook. Credit was raised and all the principal players were marked for praise. The scene of the play was in the cook shop of a tenement house on the river front. The cast of the play was cut during a storm.

In awarding the award of third place to Queen's Dramatic Guild for their presentation of "Waiting for Lefty," another of the plays which had been given Friday evening, Mr. Wade said the company had tackled the play with sincerity and had given a very great force into it. The play was a sign of great life in the theatre, although personally he adjudicated that it was for propaganda plays. Usually he was not fond of them because the worse the art. The fact that all characters in the play were unemployed,—slightly from the weight of several characters, but the company got the atmosphere of the play in a most praiseworthy manner.

Saturday night, apart from "Whiteness," the plays presented were "The Great Dark," by the Albert Players of Belleville, directed by Neale B. Thompson, and "The Kingston Drama Group, directed by Mrs. Ferguson, in "The Marriage Proposal" by Queen's University Dramatic Guild and directed by Anne Sedgewick and Mrs. G. B. Bell.

On Saturday afternoon the plays were "The Hecker," by the Women's Institute of Ivy Lea, and "The Mainwaring. "Waylde War," by the Princess Elizabeth Dramatic Club, directed by R. W. Abraham, acted by A. R. Lemoil, Dorothy Sayers, R. W. Abraham, E. Rose and Gilbert E. Thomas. "The Last Man In" by Queen's University Dramatic Guild, directed by Lorne Green and Mrs. G. B. Bell, was acted by Anne McDonald, Aleli Osmond, James Cochrane, Lorne Green, Jack Rayner, lion of these are in China.

Frosty Weather Marks Advent of March 1st

A wooly hank, and a lion, who bared his teeth in a frosty grunt were the principal actors in the fields of the district today for the rites of determining the probable date of the weather that will be dished out month of March. Although early morning temperatures at the city pump house revealed an unusually frosty mark of ten below zero for the period, due, it is believed, to the influence of a bright sun some what warmer. Many thermometers were driven down during the night by a northwest wind which brought a shivering chilliness.

The groundhog, as is proverbial custom, saw his shadow on the early 3rd., which, according to an old Dowdy, indicates six more weeks of winter. On Sunday, March 1st. the fleecy hosiery of Mr. Lamb determines whether the month will the first few days are boisterous the end of the month will be mild and spring-like. But, according to old-time historians, the groundhog-weather superstition doesn't enter into the picture at all, as a general rule the "lion and the lamb" weather is more times correct than it is wrong.

Miss Grobb Speaks To Prayer Band

Miss Grobb once captured by Indians, and now Secretary of the Alliance Tabernacle on Friday, she is secretary of the Women's Prayer Band and Bible Training Class.

In the afternoon she spoke to the Women's Prayer Band, under the leadership of Mrs. Morgan. Her subject was "Prayer." There are three definite commands to the Christian, viz., "Go." That was a command to the young people. "Serve" to the workship. 3. "Prayer". All children of God can pray. Miss Grobb told of idols being at every corner in South China, and how the Christians could make up a ball of silks and satins, with a prayer request inside, and how they threw it at the idols. If the spit ball stick, the request would be granted. She also prayed for the women to pray much, because the children were out of doors and could not pray. The prayers of babes could move the hand that moves the world, and remove all obstacles from the paths of the missionaries. Her main object was to have a prayer vision with the women of the Prayer Band, for this was much enjoyed by all present.

In the evening she spoke on the "Sunshine Band." She showed slides to the children, and dressed dolls to represent the natives in the colorful costumes of the Chinese girls.

Following the meeting she addressed a meeting held under the Alliance under the leadership of Miss Stella Cretney. She opened with prayer and then said "G.O.W.S." calling all young people of the Christian and Missionary Alliance Tabernacle Station W.G. and W.M. stands for "Without Jesus" and "Without Hope." Do you know that one million people are without God and without Christ. Our million of these are in China.

Livestock

Toronto, March 2 (CP)—Trading was very dull in the cattle division in the opinion of Toronto Live-stock Market today. No early sales were registered on the heifer and Calf held about steady at the start. Hogs and lambs were unsettled with the former holding steady.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Live Stock Branch were: Cattle, 1,350; calves, 170; hogs, 690; sheep and lambs, 881.

Good butcher cows were steady at $3.50 to $4.50.

Choice calf market was weak in price at the opening with choice calves going at $10.00 with a few at $9.25. Light calves ranged from $5.00 to $6.00.

No market was established for hogs during early morning trading. No bids were offered on sheep and Lambs found no market but the new sheep offered sold steady to $8.50 with $9.00 a hundredweight.

Montreal, March 2 (CP)—A lower price trend was evident on Montreal Livestock Exchange today with prices were unsettled with calves and hogs lower. Lambs were steady. Receipts: Cattle, 1,100; calves, 634; sheep, 196; hogs, 1749.

On the cattle division there were not enough early sales to establish prices. Calves were 75 cents to $1 lower. Lambs were 25 cents lower. Medium quality sold at $8.00 and choice lambs down to $8.50 while prices ranged from $3.25-$4.

Hogs were steady, offered sold for $6.50-$7.50 with general price ranging from $7-$7.25. One small hog of 100 pounds went at $8.50 while hogs of 200 pounds ranged from $7.25-$7.75.

Trading in fairly brisk on the hog section although prices dropped slightly. Bacons, fed and watered, sold for $8.75 with the top at $9.00 mium on selects. Butchers, heavies and lights were $8.25 and extra weight $7.75. Sows ranged from $7.25-$7.75.

$100 IN JEWELRY FOUND IN POCKETS

Windsor, Ont., March 2.—(CP)—Kathleen Dalewood of Toronto arrested early Sunday after a brick had been thrown through the window of A. Horvath's jewelry shop, pleaded guilty to a charge of vagrancy and was remanded a week for sentence in court today.

In his pockets detectives found loot valued at approximately $100. It included one diamond ring, three gold signet rings, three wedding rings and three ladies wrist watches.

AVERAGE AGE OF FIVE IS 79 YEARS

All Are Children of The Late Mr. and Mrs. Levius

Family records are claimed all over the world, but right in this district a family of five children, all sons and daughters of the late Mr. and Mrs. Levius Empey of Madoc Township, are living and all within nearby, two of whom reside in Belleville. The ages total 397 years, or an averages of over 79 years.

On Friday last Mr. George Empey, of Madoc, celebrated his 73rd birthday and all living brothers and sisters, except one, gathered at the home of Mrs. Jane Ross, Holloway Street, to assist in celebrating the occasion, other members of the family also being present.

Of the Empey family there are living Mrs. Jane Ross, aged 85 years, residing at Belleville. Mrs. Catharine Fitzsimmons, a sister of 84 years residing in Belleville, and three brothers, George Empey, 73, of Madoc, Anthony Empey, 78 of Canden East and Simeon Empey, 82 years old of Roslin, Ontario. The three sons and two daughters were all born in Hastings County and are well known and respected throughout the community. Their total ages amounts to 397 years.

Greene Stabell

Keen mining interest is presently being manifested in the Greene Stabell operation as the crosscut which is being driven from the station on the 600-ft. level, new shaft area, is now in ore which is defined by former diamond drilling.

From the field The Quebec Minerals Exploration 25 feet crosscut has yet to go to reach the vein, and the indications probable that when the dead-line will be attained this week.

Although New York last week suffered a reaction, the local market continued to give a good account of itself. The main explanation for this, of course, is the steady increase in business conditions, with National Breweries, Wright-Hargreaves, Dom. Power-Transmission and Steel Co. of Canada all enjoying an extra or increasing the dividend. Other dividend payments go a long way in helping to retain buoyancy and confidence.

The character of stock market movements has undergone numerous changes during the past several years—as witness the almost unprecedented activity which has prevailed for nearly a year. Nevertheless, underlying conditions do not occur at any time and investors should be prepared for such developments. Their appearance, however, would present opportunities for the purchase of securities at promising stocks.

Considering monetary and industrial prospects for coming months are such as to warrant full retention of the list of high grade and sagously situated companies. On the basis of present indications the reactionary movement that may develop will likely be of limited extent, but it would furnish the opportunity for purchase of whatever additions to holdings may be desired to round out investment portfolios.

Man, After Dropping Dead, Allowed To Lie on Floor Two Days by Wife

Buffalo, N.Y., March 3 — Two days after her husband had dropped dead in the kitchen of their home, Mrs. Sophie Zielinski told a neighbor yesterday "something must be wrong with Andy", he has been asleep for two days."

Detective Chief John J. Whalen said today "she thought he was tired and fell off the kitchen chair while asleep, so rested him on the floor with a blanket and went about her household duties. She walked all around him for two days, from Friday night until yesterday afternoon, before she told a neighbor about it."

The neighbor called police. Mrs. Zielinski, 55, said her husband, Andrew, 56, had just returned from his job Friday night when he suddenly fell from his chair to the floor, that she thought he was tired and "let him sleep."

Football Players Cannot be Imported After That Date

RULES CHANGED

Interference And Forward Passing Rules Are Altered

Toronto, March 2 (CP)—A Canada-bound football player, if one was crowded on his mark, had six bonus, 45 minutes in which to cross the Border Saturday. Then the doors were closed. It was sudden and determined action by the Canadian Rugby Union.

At 5.15 p.m. the C.R.U. passed a resolution barring foreign players from the Canadian games unless they were resident in Canada on by March 1. It became law immediately. The C.R.U. merely did not want to pass a retroactive piece of legislation.

The governing body did not expect any clubs to make a last minute shopping tour of the United States and it appeared that its confidence was justified. No club did. The day of importing Canadian games ended dawned in 1931, when the forward pass was adopted had passed.

All players in Canada yesterday are eligible to play in the 1936 C.R.U. playdowns. Any Provincial or Interprovincial Union may permit imports, but the C.R.U. says that the players will be unable to take part in series sponsored by the C.R.U.

Some Rules Changed

For 1937 and succeeding years players must be resident of Canada a year before becoming eligible. Only western delegates opposed the C.R.U. rule, which was put by Jack Bannerman of Calgary, and Joe Ryan, of Winnipeg, adding that to have any legislation shelved for a year to allow western teams to strengthen up.

But the western delegates gained ground in the rules committee. The interference rule was altered to permit blocking behind the line of scrimmage, as well as in the three-yard-wide zone directly ahead of the scrimmage. This is a big concession, although the zone in front of scrimmage extends over yards.

The forward pass rule was broadened to pass may be thrown from any point on the field, without the attacking team losing possession of the ball, for failure to complete it, except on third down or if the ball crosses the opposing team's goal line.

Since 1931, the attacking team lost possession if a pass, thrown inside the defending team's 25-yard-line, was incomplete.

Another major change was in scoring up the value of a field goal. The team scored on will have a choice of kicking off from the 25-yard-line or scrimmaging the ball there.

COLLEGE HOCKEY ON BIG SCALE

Four Canadian And Four U. S. Colleges Form Circuit

Boston, March 3—(CP)—Professional hockey advanced just around the corner for college hockey in Eastern Canada and the United States.

Representatives of eight universities, three Ivied members and five from countries came out of a Saturday night huddle here with arrangements completed for operating an International College League next winter.

The circuit would embrace McGill, Universite De Montreal, University of Toronto and Queens, in Canada along with Harvard, Yale, Dartmouth and Princeton in the United States.

A proposed schedule will be presented to the various college athletic councils for formal approval. Under it teams would play home-and-home games with others on the circuit, with the Canadian and one international game with each of the other four league clubs.

The universities may have tilted with each other but International hockey authorities have been on an exhibition basis. The American teams showed marked improvement in their play this winter during the visits of McGill and U. of T.

Plans for the game on an open-ice floating holds a natural promise of heightened competition and interest in the colleges.

Busher Jackson Scores Twice To Break Two Months' Slump As Leafs Defeat Hawks 4-2

Toronto Remains One Point Ahead of The Maroons

MANY FIGHTS

Blake Draws Match Penalty For Striking at Goodfellow

(By "Elmer Ditmore, Canadian Press Staff Writer).

Four distinct and engaging feuds, arranged to a nicety after four months campaigning, provided the National Hockey League with what is known to the trade as a finish fight today. The finish fight will continue for three weeks, when all of the eight teams will engage in the playoff series.

The fight to the finish, already a bitter affair on its four fronts, involves serious cash and the elimination of two teams. Four teams have a chance to finish first, four entering the N.H.L. finals, and four have a chance to be booted out without taking part in the playoffs.

A five-game week-end had the effect of weakening the chances of Montreal Canadiens to reach the head-and-one spot, but as they phase the week-end failed to accomplish much.

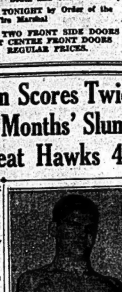
Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Maroons, with a chance to finish on top of the Canadian section, scored victories. Leafs defeated Chicago Black Hawks to complete the night 4-2 Harvey Jackson scored for the time since Dec. 23. The Busher broke the longest period of goal drought in his career. Maroons put over a 4-3 win on Canadiens to remain a single point behind.

New York Americans took a fairly firm grip on third place last night by upsetting Boston Bruins 5-3 at New York. Both Canadiens dropped their second decision in two nights. They were humbled 3-1 by Detroit Red Wings in a game that produced a three-goal finish.

Ebbie Goodfellow, Detroit defenceman and young Joe Blake, Canadien rookie, went at each other with fists and Blake made 13,000 fans thirst for blood by swinging his stick at Goodfellow as they skated towards the penalty box. Goodfellow knocked Blake down a second time for luck.

Canadiens, with eight games to play, were faced with the chore of making up three points on the third-place Americans. The double bill ended the week-end left the French team with only a fighting chance to pass Detroit's lead for the prize, primed for its first playoff campaign in years.

Baldy Northcott, Boston, tangled in a duel for third place in the American section, were unchanged, after Bruins took a beating from Americans and Rangers lead 3-1 in Chicago last night. Rangers were a point ahead but had played one more game than Boston.



With scarcely an exception each of the five games produced an outstanding marksman. Jimmy Ward, first Maroon wingman, put on the best show at Montreal, when he whipped in three goals in the third period. Maroons entered the last period trailing 3-1 and seemed destined for a beating, when Ward went to work.

Goodfellow Goals Featured

Busher Jackson's two goals featured the Toronto-Chicago game. Jackson's first came today of Sweeney Schriner, finishing his second Big League season. The New York American left winger scored a goal and assisted last night against Boston to give his point total to 41, six more than that of Art Chapman, Boston centre.

Paul Thompson and Doc Romnes played even honors in the matter of third period and clinching matters with a tally apiece. Romnes and Hooley Smith of Maroons also got only one assist.

STUDENTS GAIN FOUR GOAL LEAD OVER TWEED TEAM

Third Period Splurge Enough to Win Comfortably

MEET HERE TUESDAY

B. C. I. Defence Stood Out With Leal Best For Tweed

Tweed March 3 (Special)—Staging a third period rally, the Belleville Collegiate senior interscholastic hockey team defeated the Tweed High School, champion of the Trent Valley group, by the score of 5 to 1 here on Saturday night. The visitors from the Quinte Town were always leading in the scoring as the count stood, 1-0, and 3-1 by periods. A 3 goal splurge by the Shiels-coached sextette gave them a four goal lead to take into the second game of the C.O.S.S.A. series on Tuesday night. The winner of this series advances to the O.S.S.A. finals.

Showing too much speed, the B.C.I. puckisters played a splendid game on defence and were unselfish throughout, while the home team was outplayed by a collection of veteran and untried material. Laffman, Leal, Robinson and Courneyea all being members of last year's splendid Tweed High School team that the B.C.I. defeated by a superb defence in goalie Mosier, who was ably defended by Kennedy and Leal, to take their way blocking well throughout and leading their backmen on to many dangerous attacks into the enemy's territory. Johnston, Green and Laffman threatened in the scoring efforts for the winners while Ronsky and Hanna went well in the defensive role. Leal stood out as their star of the game with his clever checking and defence and his leadership on many prolific rushes. Tummon, Courneyea, and Long also played creditable games.

Morgan Opens Scoring

Bill Morgan opened the scoring for the visitors, when one of his shots from centre got Laffman's skate during the Tweed net. It was the only scoring of the first period. Derry made it 2-0 for B. C. I. early in the middle frame as he drifted a long shot past Ronsky. Then Leal elevated the hearts of a fair local crowd, when he scored on a beautiful low drive to make the score 3-1 as the last stanza opened. The visitors had a real attraction of the progress plays applied by the Tweed kids, to break away and score their quick goal in the last frame. Mc-Erath on a long shot, Johnston from Hanna and Newburn's pass to goal on Green's pass accounted for all of the scoring.

Despite the fact that the Tweed sextette are down four goals, they feel quite confident that they will be better showing on the larger ice surface at the Belleville Arena following the return game on Tuesday night.

The line-ups—B.C.I.—Goal, Mosier; defence, Derry and Legge; centre, Ronsky; wings, Green and Newburn; Hanna, Morgan, Hanna, Johnston and McErath.

Tweed—Goal, Robinson; defence, Laffman and Leal; centre, Tummon; wings, Courneyea and Long. Referee—Bill Cronkright, Buyck, Trumpour and Long.

Referee—McGrath, Belleville, and Quinn of Tweed.

Letters to the Sports Editor

Sporting Editor,
The Ontario Intelligencer,
City.

Dear Sir:

In your account of the Belleville-Whitby game between Jack Randle of Whitby was standing in the crease when he picked the puck into the Belleville net.

In fairness to our opponents and the official who failed to have their puck went in off a Belleville player's skate after Morton's superb stop. On two other occasions while Belleville were defending their own net which was the only place I was in a position to see) the home team's players were forced to have their own players score for the opponent. It is just a case of the Belleville players being too anxious to help their goalie. Would it not be advisable with a goalie of Morton's calibre to give him a little more credit for the clean shots.

I trust that you will be able to find room for this letter in your next issue.

Yours for a Belleville Championship
Jack Marshall.

GOAL SCORING RECORD BROKEN

Syracuse Already Notched 142 Markers With 8 Games to Play

(By The Canadian Press)

Syracuse Stars, with some day hops to twinkle in the National Hockey League as Toronto Maple Leafs, moved to new International Hockey league scoring records today. They have already broken one.

One of the youngest minor-league outfits in the game, Stars smashed the five-year mark for one season's scoring, when they trounced Buffalo Bisons, 6-1, last night. The victory made up for a 3-2 defeat from Rochester Cardinals Saturday.

It was the only Sunday-night game and left Syracuse five points ahead of Buffalo Bisons in the eastern section. Bisons vaulted into second place when Hod Lonsberry outscored with a 4-0 victory over Pittsburg Hornets. Lonsberry, Cleveland and Windsor completed the week-end duelling with a 70-point tie.

The surprising Cardinals moving closely though to take for the playoffs, got their victory on a late third-period goal by Rufina Smith after Syracuse had tied up a 2-2 deficit.

Bert Robinson had to give a superb goaltending display to hold Falcons even. The Windsor goalie turned out 42 shots to register his point, when Ron Moffatt scored a 4-4 draw in the Cleveland game.

Bisons salvaged two points from their two games with Hornets. They won, 4-3, in overtime. They got two goals in the second period and tied things up in the last, while Pittsburg hammered futilely at the Bison defence.

FINEST CURLERS MEET IN BRIER

Ten Rinks Will Play Nine Games Each Starting Today

Toronto, March 2 (CP)—Canada's finest curlers, from every province in the Dominion, started play today in the Macdonald's Brier, emblematic of Canadian curling supremacy. The ten rinks will play games each, one this afternoon, two Tuesday and three Wednesday and Thursday.

J. K. Watson and his Winnipeg four last night made slight favorites to capture the trophy Manitoba has won twice in the last nine years. Arrayed against the opposition for the first time will be Saskatchewan started will be rinks from Prince Edward Island to British Columbia.

A new champion is to be crowned. Gordon Campbell and his Hamilton Thistles, who won the Brier in 1935, were eliminated in the Ontario playdowns and their place as Ontario representatives taken by Hector Cowan and his Sarnia quartet.

The rinks and their skips are:

British Columbia (Vancouver), W. H. Priddis; Alberta (Edmonton), O. Wanless; Saskatchewan (Regina), L. Youngson; Manitoba (Winnipeg), J. K. Watson; Ontario (Sarnia), H. Cowan; Northern Ontario (Haileybury), R. Lee; Quebec (Quebec), C. B. Bignell; New Brunswick (Campbellton), R. E. Brunswick (Campbellton), R. E. Brunswick (Moncton); Nova Scotia (Halifax), M. MacNeil; Prince Edward Island (Montague), J. A. McIntyre.

FLYERS EVEN SERIES

Ottawa, March 2 (CP)—Royal Canadian Air Force, facing elimination, played one of its most aggressive games Saturday to outscore Labelle 7-4 and pull up on even terms with the latter in the Ottawa Senior City Hockey League semi-final series. The third game is scheduled for today.

TWEED MOVES UP ON LOOP LEADERS

Stirling Downed 3-0, But Still Leading League by Two Points

Playing under conditions that were conducive to anything but good hockey, Tweed Intermediates defeated Stirling by a score of 3 to 0 on Wednesday. The mild weather of the past few days resulted in sticky ice and good hockey was out of the question. The visitors are still out in front of the race with 21 points. Tweed is second with 20, Stirling third, 4 game in hand, having to play in Marmora on Friday night, while Stirling has completed the schedule. The outcome of the Tweed-Marmora battle will decide the league winners.

By scoring a win over Stirling on Wednesday the locals concluded the series with the former with two wins and one loss. Stirling was without the services of Ingram and Bonisteel, while Morton was called on to stop more rubber than he had seen in two ordinary games as the latter kept to the visitors' end of the rink for three quarters of the game.

Combination play was impossible as the puck could not be passed half a dozen feet without it being lifted off the ice. The locals pressed from the opening face-off, and hotted up the Red and White defence holds their own. Courneyea corralled the first goal, on a pass from Rebbory at the half-way mark. Rebbory added the second counter several minutes later on a pretty solo effort. Thompson was only four stops in this frame.

Robinson, smart operator for the visitors, scored at his own end of the arena when attempting to clear, following a dangerous scramble. A puck lay a few inches from the goal-mouth with Robinson out of position and two or three Tweed players around. Robinson tried trying to take a slap at the disc. The made his count 2 to 0 and concluded the scoring for the period. Tweed players gave exhibitions of goaling, one being Rebbory's effort over the rubber behave, they attempted to lift the puck over the goalie.

The game was remarkably clean, only two penalties being handed out by Referee Quinn. Both were practically nothing to do but call the penalties. Rebbory, Tweed centre, and Bill Leal, Tweed defenceman, were the guilty ones.

Tweed: Thompson, goal; Buck-Leal and Robinson, defence; Courneyea, centre; Morse and Maguire, wings; H. Leal, W. Leal, Courneyea, Rebbory, subs.

Four Given Chance to Make Good in Big Time

Montreal, March 2 (CP)—Four rookie hockeyists from a band of thirty will be notified today of a chance to make good in the big time next season with Montreal Canadiens, Scene of training for the Flying Frenchmen in 1936 will find this quartet, chosen by sports writers, batting it out for places with veterans of the Canadiens, Montha Brothers and other famous names.

Owners of Canadiens arranged an exhibition tilt here last night with players from scattered parts of the Province taking part. The lucky four will be picked from this group today. Names were allotted to sides with one team, the Rangers, wearing red jerseys and the other team was called the Blues. Plenty of time was allowed the players to display their wares in the game lasting four 20-minute periods and the Blues winning 5-3.

RECORD CROWD IS EXPECTED

Belleville And Whitby Renew Their Battle Tonight

It will be just little starting all over again when the Whitby Red Wings and the Belleville Redmen clash in the third game of the third round of the Intermediate O.H.A. playdowns at the Belleville Arena tonight. The Red Wings and the Redmen battled to a six-all draw in two previous games and are now limited to play a second home-and-home series, each to count on the round by the O.H.A.

When the series opens at the arena tonight, however, Eddie Thomas' charges have the golden opportunity of securing a goal lead and will not be confronted with the gigantic task of pulling down a three-goal lead as was the case on Friday. As the Redmen swept the Red Wings before them the Thomasites were so anxious to tie the round score that numerous chances to score were muffled due to overanxiousness but that element does not enter into tonight's struggle as both teams are starting out on an even footing.

The Whitby Red Wings boast of a few well-tried and proven pucksters, as "Peg" Hurst well demonstrated on Friday night as he rendered a miniature hockey game in the western town's pet. Conlin is a cool, steady player and needs attention at all times. The Sleightholm brothers, Wilfred and Harold, are dangerous, while Heard and Randle are their scoring threats and to be truthful the entire squad needs constant checking. Manager Thomas stated this morning he would start the same team against Whitby that he used on Friday. "All of my boys came out of the last series in fairly good condition and we feel confident that we can take Whitby this time. You must admit that the boys did remarkably well in overcoming a three goal lead on a team like Whitby," added the manager. The referee for tonight's game is to be Bert Hodges of Toronto.

The names, position and numbers of the players on both teams as they will line up tonight are:

BUCKY WORRIES—The sad faced and worried looking basketballer is Stanley "Bucky" Harris, one time infield wonder of the Washington Senators, and now manager of Clark Griffith's hopefuls. Bucky is studying his 1936 material as they start training...and judging from his woeful appearance, he isn't pleased. However time may smooth out these wrinkles.

Dale Plays The Game

—BY—

Ann Forester

Brant gave a little dry laugh. "I suppose you and Eleanor had some fun of it, now."

The brown eyes suddenly narrowed at him. "Oh, Eleanor was there, was she? Well, there are times when I feel that Eleanor is beautiful!" This last word stung and left bitter sculpture.

A shade of impatience crept over Brant's face. "Good Lord, how super-sensitive you are, Dale! It's Eleanor now, is it? Well, never mind, she's out to do you dirt and there's no use in my arguing with you."

Something beaked Dale's heart. "You're thinking of Mimi!" she accused.

Brant turned back to the plate in silence and picked up his military brushes. Fell to slicking back his hair.

"I wish we could sometime have a conversation without Mimi coming into it!" Dale said in a stifled voice.

Brant shrugged but did not look around. "Don't suppose I can, my dear. I didn't."

"But I did you—" Dale bit her lip. Sighed from the bed and went into her own room to violently powder her nose.

When Brant was ready for dinner he called to Dale pleasantly. She answered amiably and they went downstairs. Past the long mirror in the hall, to admire the reflection of their well dressed figures. Smiles. Pleasant conversation. Covering up that gnawing wretchedness in her breast . . . At the dinner table Dale mentioned her dismissal from the tableaux. Might as well get it over with. "I don't have to know sometime."

"I think it's really wise—" long pleasant eyes fastened on the sugar bowl while she was carefully selecting two lumps. "Mimi's dancing was far too long."

Mrs. Kendall raised her brows slightly. She said nothing but Dale knew that behind that film of ice she had retreated still further.

Mimi was overly sympathetic. "Dale, dear, don't look so blue!" Her voice was shocked. "Oh—I am sorry—"

The very emphasis acknowledged the disgrace and whipped the resentful pink to Dale's cheeks.

Nance was flippant. "Not surprised!" she said with her head still. "I saw it coming ever since you copped Erma's boy friend!"

Brant's face was suddenly brooding. "Where do you pick up that line of talk, Nance?" he asked roughly.

"From you and your friends," his sister returned promptly. "Besides it's the truth; like Dale, you could get eyes only for our Dale! It's a scream to watch him. And Erma's out after the same thing; you can see what those old bats do, Dale! I think it's a hoot."

Nance's cruelty was unconscious. To her, the whole affair was unimportant. She never guessed the hurt to Dale's pride. Had the slight been offered to her, Nance herself would have shrugged her thin shoulders and laughed. She expected Dale to do the same.

But Nance was not fighting for something as dear to her as life. Nance was not struggling in the grip of under-currents which were surely, relentlessly sweeping her out beyond her depth!

CHAPTER 36

THE OLD TROUPER'S LAST STAND

Eleanor called up the next day. At the sound of her friendly voice, something furious leaped in Dale's heart. Pressure she got from somewhere checked her voice until she could barely speak.

"You don't sound natural," said Eleanor uneasily. "Anything happened?"

"Nothing at all," said Dale, after a silent struggle.

Don't let them know! Hang on to herself . . . don't give their slanderous voices anything further to say about.

As gracefully as she could manage, Dale refused to have tea with Eleanor. When she replaced the receiver the palms of her hands were wet and her heart was pounding. A steel floor she hated a snake! She mustn't see Eleanor again . . . she would betray her real feelings.

For once fate was kind. The Kendalls migrated for the summer to Erma's cottage, a picture-card place fronting a large lake. Other wealthy families adding this one formed a rich little summer colony.

When Dale had heard them discussing the lake home, Dale had felt her heart sink. It meant that Brant would be there constantly, for Brant would be able to run down from the city only over week-ends. But now it was a graceful way out of an unbearable situation. She would not have to see Eleanor for a time. The future could take care of itself.

Dale had a sudden feverish longing for the country. In the cool peace she and Brant would find their way back to each other. . . . Two days later, the telephone rang. Those days, Dale sent word that she was out. Eleanor. Or Phil . . . Mimi's not Phil again. It was better that way. And these tranquil summer days would smooth things out.

There was none of the sunless dignity of the Kendall city house about Pinelands, Sun porches, gay with striped awnings shading lime mats. Bright awnings shading the windows. A riot of flowers bordering the driveway. Verdi serpents. Garden umbrellas. A private bathing beach, dotted with bright beach umbrellas. A spring board and a float edged with gay canoes.

Friends of Mrs. Kendall, tinkling gaily at the bridge tables on the sun porch. Mannished and rustling old ladies, whose manner of raising lorgnettes would send approximate storms through a cast iron dog.

No friends for Dale. But here at least there was solace. Not in the gardens—the elaborate garden furniture and the network of hedges and sun dials oppressed her. Whenever she could Dale took Major for long runs in the pine woods.

Still, warm days under the silver

The general rout of Zverl's forces ended only when their last camp had been reached, and even then only for part of the command, for at night fell it was discovered that a quarter of the total number were missing; and among them were Zora and Romero.

Zverl questioned everyone, but no one had seen the girl. He tried to organize an expedition to go in search of her, but no one would accompany him. It was well after dark, when he had almost decided to go alone, that the two walked into the camp together.

At the sight of them Zverl was both relieved and angry. "Why did you not remain with me?" he snapped at Zora. "Because I cannot run as fast as you!" she replied, and Zverl said no more. From the darkness came the now familiar warning: "Desert the whites!"

A long silence followed, and then the chief spoke again. "The trails to your countries are closed. Throw away your uniforms and become as warrior strippers." Instantly other followed his example.

DAY BY DAY

Good weather over and over again for the Friday night hockey bouts at the Memorial arena, but it will not be a match on tonight's attendance. Neither club would stand for the Friday night bouts, but Whitby would be playing here tonight, and Trenton and Picton teams were also started on Saturday. In the first year Trenton reserve team has been in the league, and it was then were sold all day Friday for Friday's game, and yet there was any intention of attending tonight's game, got there early and avoid the rush at 7:30?. It disappointed.

There was a marvelous crowd at Friday night's game, we admit, but rather too crowded and suffering some regard by the Frosh, if the Frosh don't mind to remarks, last night, with there a remarking outdoor wrong place. We have been told by Bedder, Vancouver, that since the Arena stood at the corner of Church and Bridge streets, that we decide if any game played locally in many years, carried the thrills and excitement of the Intermediate game on Friday night. From the opening game until the final period, the crowd and the game like a spell and there appeared to be hundred fans the game and the "Whitby game" crowd is, upon the Whitby game like a blind wave.

If the "Redmen" apply the same tactics this evening and again get the Red Wings on the ball of their feet, it safe to betting that the Thomasites will not miss as many scoring possibilities as they did last time. Of course we still respect the "Red Wings" and firmly believe them to be a better team than they showed up on Friday. Of course individuals are usually bad and chances can be taken with such players as Art Handle, Linda Vipond, Dooley and Jimmy Thomas around. The "Red Wings" did not win the 1935 intermediate championship without proving their merits on the ice, so we agree with "Spooky" Mc-Leod and Don Morton, who said today—"Give us three goals the same as Whitby had and we'll win this round, so fear." Both teams will be at full strength on Friday to go, so, come early if you have any desire to sit down and watch a real thrilling game. We may have Mr. Bell we laid a wager of a "nickney" on that there would be Harry Jones in the Arena tonight and it's a match bet.

Interchangeable title game again, and tonight, "Hockey" McIlmoyl, Derry mate, will be the referee for the game for the G.C.I. Tuesday night, while Tom Lee, second Trenton's best umpire. The Trent league is composed of players from Sam Curry's Trenton outfit, the fact that pays in the Central League.

If Peg Bursa, diminutive goalie for the Whitby Red Wings, could stag flies in the outfield for Oshawa, G.O.S.L.L. team as successfully as he does between the posts Friday night's game here, he would be well on the job tonight. The major leagues. It is doubtful if Bursa ever saw so much rubber hurled in his direction in one night. It literally raised pucks around Bonnie, who was the busiest man in three counties on Friday and we hope he leaves his horse-shoe or rabbit's paw home tonight.

The blanket of smoke that overhung the playing surface at the Arena on Friday night was thicker less than disgraceful. In years past Fire Chief Bill Lynch and a delegation of his fire-fighters used to be on hand at the Arena to curb smoking in the building during hockey games. We understand Chief Lynch and his men will be called on the job to stamp out the increased smoking during local hockey games this year. Why not?

Local sport fans are getting a great kick out of the 20 Years Ago column in the paper these days. Dally accounts of Belleville's two great hockey teams of 1916 are being published, and the rise and development of local fans and players, from what small little junior team Belleville boasted of in '16, only "Daw" Whalen, "Boomer" Holway and Bill Green are still residents of the city. Of the intermediate team of that same year, Art Whalen, Harry Reynolds and Jeff Finkle are the only ones left in the city. Although the intermediates failed to get to the finals that year, we were always very much in favor with the 1916 junior team of Stan Rose, goal; Lynn, Holway and Carr Arnott, defence; Dave Whalen, Cy Grenier Arnott, centre, and Bill Green and a lad named Armitage on the wings. Eddie Elliott was one of the spare men used, but no subs were allowed. The year 1916 saw the first trial of three period hockey in the O.H.A. and what a boom it eventually proved to be.

We are sorry to report that Harry Robinson, Belleville's premier fight fan, was seriously injured when he fell while at work in the C.N.R. shops recently. Harry was quite badly shaken up and is convalescing in the Belleville General Hospital.

W. HUNTINGDON DEFEATS BETHEL

Secures Two Goal Lead in Playoff For Group Title

Stirling, March 2 (Special)—One of the largest crowds of the season gathered at the Stirling arena on Friday night for the first game in the play-off playdowns in the Centre Hockey League. West Huntingdon won a two goal lead in a game in which possessed everything to be desired from the fans' standpoint. Never at anytime throughout the game were the boys in black sure of victory though at one time they were three goals in front.

West Huntingdon started on the heat at the opening of the first period and ran in three goals before Bethel really got organized. During the first few minutes, was the only time when they were superior and the only department with greater strength was the defence. Mc-Gowan brothers turned in a great game for West Huntingdon, while Cranston and Culhane seemed unable to match the speed of the Black and White forwards. Kirby got the first goal of the game after about six minutes of play on a nice corner shot. A few minutes later, Bethel made it two on a nice pass from the corner by Mott. Rodgers got the third counter. Bethel began to play tighter defensively and their forward got organized for a really brilliant rush, which brought applause from their supporters, as Miller was benched for the defence and Bethel ran in two fast, one to tie the score, Simms rushed, flanked by Culhane and was skated into the corner but managed to centre to Culhane who was unscreened. A few minutes later Mott, who has been a fine job of rapping the puck, while one of his minutes was penalized, broke away and fell behind his own blueline. Ray Dickey sailed in to grab the puck from Culhane, but Mott was going great for the Bethel team was hit by a hard shot from the side of his teammate Culhane, and had to go off for repairs. Miller, tricky stick handler of the Bethel squad made several dangerous rushes.

But with Simms off West Huntingdon had a distinct edge and after a few minutes of play, Mott put his team one up, after taking a nasty spill at the Bethel blue line. Several fine rushes by both forward lines thrilled the fans and the second period ended with West Huntingdon one up. The score 4-3.

Third Period

The third period featured heavy body checking and plenty of penalties by both teams, which were strong under the terrific speed. West Huntingdon carefully nursed their one goal lead and resorted to long shots. Bethel sent every man up and gave the fans plenty of worry for a few minutes. Culhane sharp shooter of the Bethel squad was kept well covered throughout the evening and was unable to get away any of his effective shots. With all Bethel around the West Huntingdon nets, Todd McGowan, their defence star of the West Huntingdon crew broke loose to beat Dickey and put the game on ice. It was one of the most thrilling encounters seen in Stirling this winter and everyone present was well satisfied with the display of hockey put forth by the boys on both teams. Rodgers, Kirby and McGowan were the best for West Huntingdon while Simms, Miller, Lupkinette and the Dickey brothers were the stalwarts for Bethel. Culhane had an off night and was not up to his regular form. Stars were hard to pick out of the crowd for everyone gave their best.

Talk of Protest

There was talk of protest in the Bethel dressing room after the game, who question the eligibility of Todd McGowan, defence star for West Huntingdon line. Kirby, who is coaching the latter has not yet been decided and West Huntingdon are hoping to maintain that two goal lead.

Lineups:

West Huntingdon: Goal Saries; defence, George McGowan and Todd McGowan; centre, Mott; wings, Kirby and Rodgers. Alternates, Cook and Reid.

Bethel: Goal, Dickey; defence, Culhane and Cranston; centre, Lupkinette; wings, Lupkinette and Miller. Alternates, Ray Dickey, Calvert, and Ray Dickey.

Referee: Earl Wallace, Stirling.

The next game is scheduled for Tuesday night and unless the game is tied is granted West Huntingdon will have a two goal advantage. Ross Burr of Trenton has been secured to referee the Tuesday night contest, to be a real encounter.

High School Defeats Deseronto

A fair crowd of local supporters turned out to see Stirling High School defeat a smart team from Deseronto on Saturday afternoon. The Deseronto team was directed by their play by Mr. James Hough former player of Stirling. The Stirling boys turned in one of the finest games of the season and though the score was 4-1 for Stirling there wasn't that much difference in the play. West played a great game in the Stirling nets and was well supported by the defence team of Morton and Jones. One of the Stirling goals was scored by a Deseronto player in clearing.

Goals Scored

First period—

Stirling, Delnard (Morton) 10.23; Stirling, Reid (15.56); Deseronto, Harvey (Hough) (18.31).

Second period—

Lineups:

Deseronto: Goal M. Sharpe; defence, Thompson and Thetten; wings, Moon and Harvey; centre, Hough. Alternates, Vanaltine, Jackson, Dyer and Hughes.

Stirling: Goal West; defence, Rowland and Jones; centre, Morton; wings, Delnard and Reid. Alternates, Reid, Lummiss, and Ward. Referee Geo. Chisholm, Stirling.

KI-T LEAGUE

Four games of hockey were played in the local Ki-T League at the Arena on Saturday afternoon in the bantam series, the Nationals downed the Bruins by the score of 2 to 1 while the Lions scored the only goal in their game versus the Maple Leafs to win a play-off berth and then went on to battle the Nationals in a scoreless tie. The victorious Lions and Nationals are now required to meet in another game to decide the group winner. Minus the services of their regular goalkeeper, the Red Wings were defeated in the juvenile series by the score of 2 to 0 by the O.S.D. juveniles. All games were keenly contested and well played. Jim Powell refereed the games in the bantam series, while Alex Weir handled the juvenile games.

Kitchener, Ont., March 3 (CP)—Charged with selling incubator discards as fresh eggs, Joe Brown and Harry Klinger will appear in police court tomorrow. Dr. C. E. Mader, food and milk inspector, laid the charge after an inspection at the market.

ALL ARMAMENTS INCREASED BY GREAT BRITAIN

Billion and Half Dollar Outlay Estimated Cost to Cover 3 Years; Gov't Issues White Paper on Defence

Two Capital Ships Will be Laid Down Early in 1937 And Improvements Are Outlined in White Paper

REPLACEMENT PROGRAM

Number of Cruisers Raised to 70 of Which 60 will be Under 10 Years Old—Other Naval Propositions

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, March 3.—(CP Cable)—By sea, land and air Great Britain is to increase her armaments. A government white paper issued today reveals the general plan of a great defence scheme that has been under consideration of the cabinet and cabinet committees for many weeks past.

The white paper does not give the total cost of the scheme, although this has been unofficially estimated at around £300,000,000 (about $1,500,000,000) taken over a three-year period.

PROGRAM OUTLINED

The chief provisions of the program as outlined in the white paper are:

Navy: Two new capital ships to be laid down early in 1937; modernization of certain existing battleships to be continued. The two new battleships will constitute a "beginning" of the replacement program. The Washington naval treaty prohibits the building of new capital ships before its expiry on Dec. 31, 1936.

Cruisers: The aim is to increase the total number to 70, of which 60 would be under age and 10 over age. Five cruisers will be included in the 1936 program.

Destroyers and submarines: Steady replacement is contemplated in the case of sloops and small craft generally, the present rate of construction will be continued.

Air craft carriers of the small type will be laid down at an early date.

The first line fleet aircraft will be increased to substantially higher figures in the course of the next few years. The personnel of the navy will be increased by 6,000 men by March 31, 1937.

The army: Four new battalions of infantry will be raised for the regular army. Field artillery equipments will be thoroughly modernized.

TERRITORIAL ARMY

Owing to the present demands on the industrial capacity output, the territorial army will not be simultaneously reconditioned. But a beginning will be made at once in the task of improving its present inadequate equipment and training.

Coast defences: Modernization will proceed "at an accelerated pace. The reorganization of anti-aircraft defences in southeastern England, already authorized, will be extended with a view to covering the important industrial districts in the centre and north country. Housing conditions of the army will be immediately improved.

Air force: First line strength for the home defence will be increased to 1,750 aircraft, exclusive of the fleet air army. The program approved by parliament last year was designed to increase first line strength for the home defence to 1600 first line aircraft. The increase provided in the White Paper includes four new auxiliary squadrons to be formed for co-operation with the territorial army.

There will be 12 additional squadrons for Empire defence.

The five regular squadrons recently allotted for co-operation with the regular army will be reorganized to provide seven squadrons, each of 12 aircraft.

Plans for passive protection against air raids are approaching the stage when they can be put into operation.

INDUSTRY TO BE ORGANIZED

Industry is to be organized so that it can rapidly be changed from commercial to war production should the necessity arise. Government armament factories will be extended or duplicated. The field of production for the air force will be extended by placing orders with firms which do not ordinarily manufacture either for the air force or for civil aviation. This process of extension will be further enlarged to meet the program for the army and navy. "Even so," the White Paper continues, "something more is required. In order satisfactorily to provide for our needs both in peace and war His Majesty's government have decided to create a reserve source of supply which would be available in case of emergency."

The method of procedure contemplated is to select a number of firms who do not normally make warlike stores but who are suitable for the purpose by reason of their experience and their possession of a staff of skilled engineers and workmen. Arrangements would then be made with these firms for laying down the necessary plant machinery for a given output of selected articles.

Instant Readiness in Case of War Is British Object

DEPUTY CHAIRMAN

Large Profit From Re-armament, Munitions Industry

(By Charles P. Nutter, Copyright 1936, By The Associated Press)

London, March 3.—Great Britain's Government announced today an immediate expansion of her Army, Navy and Air Forces and industrial mobilization for instant readiness in case of war.

The United States, Germany, Belgium, France, Italy and Soviet Russia were listed as having embarked already on similar plans.

Stanley Baldwin, Premier

Citing "dangers of war" and proclaiming a necessity for means of defence in agreement with the enforcement of collective security, the white paper disclosed:

"A fresh examination of the position, made last summer and autumn, has led to the conclusion it will be necessary to make further changes in the Royal Air Force and speed up measures contemplated for modernization of the Army and Navy, in order to rapidly as is possible necessary reserves of stores of munitions, and to organize and organize industrial resources of the country in such a way as to give maximum elasticity of productive capacity in case of an emergency."

Parliament will debate the white paper next week.

Prime Minister Baldwin will name a new Cabinet Minister as Deputy Chairman of the Imperial Committee for Imperial Defence and control the home armament expenditure.

"The problem before us differs materially from that with which we were faced in the Great War," the Government announced, pointing out the Pale-Ethiopian conflict showed claims on Britain's defences in various parts of the world.

Profits Prevented

The urgency of Britain's rearmament was emphasized by the announcement the Government would prevent profiteering against profits to the munitions industry but "it will be necessary and however to see the work is not delayed by over-elaboration of financial safeguards."

The Government conceded virtual abrogation of naval limitations as regulated by the Washington and London Treaties, denounced by Japan, which will end at the end of this year.

"We still remain of this limitation after the conclusion of the present Naval Conference is not yet in force," the white paper added, "but agreement will not extend beyond the limited number of annual programs, an exchange of information and certain measures of qualitative limitation in the size of ships of their guns," the white paper said.

Ships Mentioned

The government report announced plans to lay down the first two new capital ships in 1937, addition of 6,000 men to the navy, 1,000 more officers and 70 new planes to the airforce.

Five cruisers will be included in the 1936 building program, in the scheme to bring up the total of Britain's cruisers to 70, of which 60 will be under 10 and 10 over age.

"A steady replacement program for destroyers and submarines is contemplated," the report said.

"A new aircraft carrier of a smaller type will be laid down early date. The growing naval importance of the Fleet's air arm will necessitate considerable expansion of its present strength."

The report stated the white paper said, would be increased by 6,000. Four new battalions of infantry will be raised. A battalion numbers 1,000 men. The present peacetime serving strength of army field units is now approximately 113,000.

209 More Planes

Two hundred and nine planes will be added to the Royal Air Force, bringing the first line strength of the force to 1,750 planes.

Reviewing the Italo-Ethiopian conflict, the white paper said circumstances arose which "compelled this country to take precautionary action in the Mediterranean and Red Sea."

One of these circumstances, the document asserted, was a "campaign of violent and menacing propaganda by Italy, largely directed against the United Kingdom as one of the foremost upholders of the covenant."

GENES MYSTERY HAS UNFOLDED BEFORE SCIENCE

Chemical Processes of Heredity Are Being Identified

GOVERN ORGANISMS

How Dwarfism Works on Life is Now Revealed

By Howard W. Blakeslee
Associated Press Science Editor
(Copyright 1936 the Associated Press)

Pasadena, Cal., March 3—The mysterious chemical processes of heredity are at last being identified by science.

One of the first found, disclosing chemical reactions by means of which a "gene" causes hereditary dwarfism in plants, was made public today at the laboratories of the California Institute of Technology, where the work was done recently.

"Genes are determiners of heredity. They control the shape, size and other characteristics of all organisms, both plant and animal. Each gene is an extremely small particle and is thought within the nucleus of every living cell.

How a minute gene, inside of the cell, can start chemicals doing the growth and form of the adult plant or animal has long been a baffling mystery.

Genes which cause dwarfism in plants have been found to be well known to geneticists. They are known as "dwarf genes." One gene which causes the corn plant to remain very small, even though its plant is otherwise normal.

How Gene is Affected

How the gene did this no one knew. A clue was found when Dr. F. W. Went, professor of plant physiology at the California Institute of Technology, removed that corn, as well as many other plants, grew only when a plant hormone, auxin, is present.

This hormone, which is produced by the buds and tips of shoots, is necessary for the growth of the stem. The auxin produced is increased the growth of the stem is also increased.

The missing link, between the gene causing dwarfism and the auxin necessary for growth has now been found by Dr. J. Van Overbeek, of the Carnichof Laboratories.

KRAMER HELD ON FRAUD COUNTS

Alleged to Have Committed Fraud in This City in 1932

Toronto, March 3.—(CP)—Edward Kramer, 34, public relations investigating the shooting of Edward and Frederick Kramer in their father's garage at Markham Saturday, today faced five charges of theft, fraud and forgery.

The charges were produced by police as they completed questioning Kramer and Augusta Jones, arrested with him near Agincourt yesterday.

Kramer is charged with stealing a truck from Harold J. Gow of Toronto in 1932; with fraud in York County in 1933 and in Belleville in 1933 and with fraud against the T. Eaton Company of Toronto.

A charge of theft was laid by Ivan Martin of Toronto who charged he was struck by Kramer, when he went to Kramer's home to repossess an automobile.

Income Taxes Jump 20 Million

Ottawa, March 3—(CP)— Income tax collections during the 11 months after the fiscal year ended March 31 showed a gain of nearly $20,000,000 compared with the corresponding period in the previous year, according to a statement issued today by Hollywood Newsreel Miniser Bury.

Collections in the 11 months amounted to $97,677,271 against $86,-677,271 in the 11 months ended March 28, 1935 while collections during February totalled $8,439,866, an increase of $247,434 over Feb. 1935.

Income collected in revenue with a total of $84,884,142 an increase of $6,277,296.

Collections in other districts with previous year's figures included: Kingston ... 1,763,51.23 (1,62,581.10); Belleville ... 393,810.30 (380,397.65); London ... 7,497,631.75 (4,803,617.31).

13 Nations Seek Peace, Give Italy and Ethiopia Week in Which to Reply

Italy Reported Prepared to Weigh Peace Offer

ITALY'S STAND

Appeal For Peace is Made by Unanimous Vote

By Joseph E. Sharkey.
(Copyright by The Associated Press)

Geneva, March 3.— The League of Nations' "Committee of 13," representing every member of the council except Italy, decided today to call on Italy and Ethiopia for peace and gave the two nations one week in which to reply.

The date was fixed specifically at 1 A.M. 10, at which time the committee will meet again.

Its draft was discussed earlier in the day at London between Foreign Secretary, and Pierre-Etienne Flandin, the French Foreign minister.

Informed Italian sources said Premier Mussolini is prepared to weigh carefully the peace offer, despite the thrust of sanctions, as the League's conciliation effort embarked on their most critical phase of the entire dispute.

The peace offer, however, must take into account the actual military situation and recognize the Italian claim Emperor Haile Selassie's armies have been crushed Italian armies.

This confidence was reflected in Italian quarters where the view held that all effort only added to Haile Selassie's difficulties.

16th Victim of Slide Dies in Hospital

Revelstoke, B. C., March 3.—(CP) —D. D. Cossar, District Master Mechanic of Revelstoke Division of the Canadian Pacific Railway, died today from burns and shock suffered when a train he was leading tender struck a work crew in a snow out near Downie, 326 miles east of here.

His death brought the toll of dead in the accident to 16 with five injured in hospital. Those still in hospital, however, are expected to recover.

Whistling Engine Runs Away Crashes Workmen in Dark

SHOUT TO MEN BELOW

Revelstoke, B.C., March 3 (CP)— The "whistling" charge of a runaway locomotive tender down a mile long grade, bringing death to 15 railway workmen, struck a tragic peril despite signals from the engine cab, it was revealed today in which the tender had broken loose, was described by eye witnesses today.

J. Bilonnast, F. Buford, P. Lazarenko and F. Bernard, extra gang workmen who were at work on the snowslide when the tender crashed down the grade, were all injured in a cut in the slide where they had been working on a derailed locomotive, told of the tragedy on their return here.

"The first intimation we had that something was amiss was when we heard the auxiliary engine whistle was over a mile up the grade, blowing distress signals," Bilonnast said. "we thought another slide had probably come down and trapped it.

Whistling Sound Like Siren

"Next we heard a sort of whistling sound like a slide. Then we saw through the darkness of the night a black darker object approaching on the tracks at terrific speed.

"We were up on a shelf of the slide about 30 feet east from the tracks and there were only above the track. We called to the men in the deep cut below and to those in the engine to jump; but they didn't have a chance.

"Instantly we heard, rather than saw, the crash. We went with other uninjured workers to get the men out of the cab. The men in the cut behind the engine were caught like rats in a trap, as were those in the engine cab.

Taking Out Victims

"The first man we got out of the cab was Engineer Percy Shafer, one of the two men who escaped alive, though with severe injuries. Next, in order, we took out District Master Mechanic D. D. Cossar, of Revelstoke; George Alexander, Division Engineer; Jack Hazard, fireman, and Dick Cossar, divisional engineer.

Holland died of his injuries and Alexander and Cossar were taken to hospital. Hazard and Hawkins' condition was not considered serious. Bowie was not injured seriously.

Workman A. A. Aitken had gone back to the track with the auxiliary outfit to get a bite to eat and so escaped the disaster unscathed.

"A moment before the crash, Cossar and Alexander had been down the track directing hand-swinging work and until we found them in the cab we thought they were pinned under the tender like a lot of the other poor fellows."

SHORT SESSION

Members Warn to Watch Expenditures of The City

Despite considerable time spent in the committee room on Monday evening, the meeting of the City Council was of short duration, once the members took their seats in the council chamber. The members filled into the council chamber at 8 o'clock and at 8 nine-forty all the business of the day had been disposed of and the House of Day called. Those present were Mayor Hill, Aldermen Wills, Bath, Thompson, Bateman, Jennings, Bavagar, Clapp, Cushing, Barlow, Armstrong and Ellis. Absent was Alderman Ellis was in the chair for the committee of the whole and for the committee on by-laws.

A committee of Aldermen Armstrong, Wills and Domenico was named to interview Floyd Martin with respect to the taking over of the city ambulance and report back to the council. This matter will be more fully discussed when the report is brought in by the committee. Alderman Thompson of the council adjourned notified the council that it was necessary to watch the expenditures for the year or else a higher tax rate would result. With the Auditor's report in front of him, the Alderman stated that in his neighborhood of $2,000 would have to be taken care of this year in addition to what was taken care of last year. There will be an increase of $3,000 in the school appropriation, $2,000 for relief and $10,000 for decrease in property assessment, he said, Wills.

Alderman Bateman "Why should the relief item be up this year over last year?"

To Lose on Relief

Alderman Wills—Although there were 370 less people on the relief list in January of this year compared to the corresponding month of last year, yet the cost is greater, he said.

Alderman Cushing "What about the license fee?"

Alderman Wills. "We will put the same amount as we would have collected last year. By-law put last year it was quite low and should be raised. I am sorry I am inclined to think that it will require about $10,000 less than what we would collect."

A petition signed by a number of ratepayers for an early closing by-law was presented to the council. The petition was referred to the City Solicitor with instructions to prepare the by-law. Before the necessary by-law, which will be discussed at the next meeting of the council, is ready for a deed between M. C. Hill and the City of Belleville, covering the purchase of a lot by Mr. Hill from the latter, was signed after some stages. The policy for liability, which was put on the City Hall, which the seal was under repair was allowed to lapse by a vote of the council, but will be renewed against purchasing a page ad in the Belleville Directory at a cost of $15.00. The cost of a patient in a western sanitarium will be $8.00 per day, which was the time of notice received from the hospital.

Circular Letter Authorized

In order to ascertain the number unemployed of the city, a circular letter will be sent out to the ratepayers by the City Engineer. By receiving them if they are in favor of having conveniences at the end of their property, to be paid for in twenty annual installments under the Local Improvement Act. Alderman Safe, who sponsored the movement stated, that the council was desirous of giving men employment if the work are going to me to be constructive," said the Alderman. "It will improve the streets and will make the road last longer." Seventy five percent of the ratepayers or anyone strongly must sign before the work can be undertaken. The council gave authority to the City Engineer to send out the letter.

A recommendation "that parts for the sweeper amounting to $103 be place it in working order for the season" was referred back to the committee for further consideration. Alderman Thompson was against putting the sweeper in operation this season, claiming there were many out of work and that the job should be given to the old way. "There is no reason, why a man should be employed on the sweeper, when no authority has been granted from this council" said Alderman Thompson.

Paid for Ratepayer

Alderman Bathey, "It is one of the property owners, who helped pay for the sweeper and I am perfectly satisfied with the work, that it is doing the sweeper will be paid for if property owners who have pavement or macadam road in front of their property."

The cost of sweeping has been materially reduced this year, but will vote against the laying up of the sweeper until next year. In some the coal yards, which were needed, have been patterned in the city and made for about half of what it would cost to get them from the United States. Unfortunately the parts, that have been over look have never been replaced in the machine and therefore the city has no pattern. I am willing, that the recommendation should go back but I am not in favor of not using the sweeper this year."

Alderman Safe: "I did not know we were so near an election. Property owners on streets where the sweeper works have paid for the machine, which was completed a long time ago and I think they should have the benefit of it. If much cheaper than hand labor and I think the other property owners would object if they had to pay part of the cost. I am just as anxious as any other member of this council to see the men have work but the proposition to put back hand labor is just fake economy."

Alderman Thompson: "I am still not convinced."

Recommendations Passed

Two recommendations affecting those on relief were passed by the council and speak for themselves. The first one "All men receiving unemployment relief allowance shall when required to do work for return for such relief and any part thereof be not paid in cash but credited at the rate of cents an hour on account or in count of such allowances received and the second "That if any man receiving or whose dependent family or any member thereof is receiving any allowance by way of unemployment relief shall refuse or fail without reasonable cause to work in return for such allowance when called upon by the City Engineer or some person authorized by him, such man or family be refused any further relief allowance by those administering such allowance as may be paid by the council without discussion. There being no further business the council adjourned.

DRIVER OF CAR EXONERATED IN BLACK'S DEATH

Brakes on Smith's Car Found to be "Perfect" Says Officer

MAN SLIGHTLY DEAF

Death by accident was the verdict returned by the Coroner's Jury at the inquest held this evening before Coroner Dr. R. W. Tennant to inquire into the death of Frederick Lorrene S. Black. Herchimer Avenue, which took place in the local hospital on Sunday, February 23, last, as the result of injuries received a few hours before on the highway near his home. Complete examination of Mr. G. B. Smith, local district Hydro superintendent, was given by the jury following the fatal accident, which took the aged man's actions on the road had often been noticed by him, that he appeared warned to avoid the highway traffic, and was slightly walking to and fro. Questioning was conducted by Ormonde P. Butler, K.C., counsel for the motorist, who testified, that the aged man had apparently run into the public by his car, while he had been proceeding east on the highway and that all precautions for safety had been taken.

Mr. Smith had been proceeding along the here years of the highway, the past Mr. Black had been standing on, going the same direction, testified witness. "He apparently heard me coming and ahead as if to go toward the left of the road, then to the right, when he was suddenly wheeled toward the right, directly in front of the car. I jerked the car over and heard a dull thud somewhere near the rear part of the car. I stopped immediately, and returned to find Mr. Black lying on the ground. He was immediately headed for the hospital."

"I don't believe that the man looked up," replied Mr. Smith in answer to the question, what in his opinion had caused the accident.

Later the car was examined but not by the brakes stuff on the pedal could be found to determine, where it stopped before striking. Added witness, giving testimony later was robocalled by Traffic Patrolman Diamond Kline.

Fractured Skull

Death was due to a fractured skull and a cranial hemorrhage, according to Dr. J. Morgan, who later attended the injured man while the hospital.

Evidence supplied by Mr. Smith was also corroborated by Miss E. Hendershot, who was one of the passengers in the car at the time. "Mr. Black swung to go away from the car, when the car struck him. We were coming, and then he walked right across the front of the car. We thought we had cleared him, when the car struck, pulled over," testified Miss Krudsen.

Mrs. Lena Reid, resident of Thurlow, near the city, testified that she occurred had often seen the deceased walking along the highway in front and commented upon the fact, that he invariably kept the centre of the road. Having known him practically all her life, Mrs. Reid described deceased as being a "very old gentleman". "It was also my impression, that he was rather deaf," she added. "Sometimes when walking upon the road his movements appeared erratic," she said.

A daughter of the deceased, Mrs. L. Corman, testified her father had often been overheard to be coming to and fro, those saying had often been dazed on account of his constant deafness. The witness she admitted, that although no accident had been reported that day there might have been other days, which such incidents would be felt.

Brakes Found Perfect

Describing the scene of the accident, Motor-Constable Ernest Lavial Irvine told of examining marks, which indicated that the car had been stopped in the customary fifty feet. The brakes of the standing were later tested, and found "perfect".

From his own observation Mr. Smith had done all in his power to avoid any accident, added the Patrolman. "I also question if the car did strike him. We examined the machine and the road and even find a 'bare' on the paint. The man might have just grazed the car and fallen to the road".

Witness described that from knowledge gained, by questioning those, who had known him, Mr. Black had apparently been deaf for years.

The verdict was given by the jury without delay.

FINE CONCERT HERE MARCH 10

John Deacon, Soloist, Will Sing With Men's Chorus

Following the announcement last week that the Belleville's Men Chorus would present the annual concert Tuesday evening, March 10, in Bridge Street Church, arrangements are now complete. John Deacon, the well-known lyric tenor, is appearing on the same program. It is five years since a Belleville audience has had the pleasure of hearing Mr. Deacon, who is a concert favorite here. That occasion is remembered with pleasure by those, who took advantage of the opportunity to hear a song recital so finished, so interesting, and so delightful.

Jack Deacon, as he is known to his many friends, has had wonderful experience and training on the concert platform, both in the United States and Canada, and his appearances have met with repeated success and return engagements are the rule for him. After singing for a ladies' music club in New York last spring, Mr. Deacon was engaged for five other concerts by people in the audience.

The men's Chorus, under the direction of Mr. Ross Hunter, has been practising steadily since the interesting group of selections. New voices have been added recently, and the balance of the ensemble and much improvement is noted this season

Obituary

LATE MRS. WILLIAM MITCHELL

Stirling, (Special)—The funeral of the late Mrs. William Mitchell who passed away on Saturday morning, February 29th, in her eighty-second year was held on the funeral parlours of J. G. Beacock and Secretary Ferguson, the first with Rev. J. A. Hoffend of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church officiating at the service. Death occurred after a lengthy illness and the funeral was largely attended by a wide circle of friends throughout the district.

The late Mrs. Mitchell who was formerly Miss Margaret Peden, was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Archie Peden of Denbeath, Scotland. She was a faithful member of the Presbyterian congregation in Stirling, where she attended service regularly as long as health permitted.

Let to mourn her passing are her husband, two sons, Robert and Mitchell and one daughter, Agnes Mary Mitchell, at home; Mrs. William Peden and Ebenezer Peden of Denbeath, Scotland. During the service a favorite hymn of the deceased was offered as a tenor solo by Mr. Arthur Duncan.

The pall-bearers were: Messrs. Arthur Gordonder, Harry Peacock, Duncan Montgomery, Ellis Lake, Ernest Wannamaker, Edgar Shannon, all members of the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L. of which Mr. Mitchell is a member. Interment was made in the Stirling cemetery.

RECITAL

Jubilee Singers Heard By Bridge Street Young People

Presenting an evening of delightful music the Jubilee Quartette Singers gave a recital in Bridge Street Church rooms under the auspices of the Young People's Association last night. The talented group was introduced by Mr. C. H. Seldon, who expressed the thanks of the Young People's Society to the old attendance.

The rich, beautiful voices of the singers brought out the true beauty of the songs of the Southland, the negro spirituals and favorite old songs.

During the first part of the program the eight members of the group were heard in spirituals, old-fashioned hymns, religious songs and well-known old-time popular songs. Solos, duets, male quartettes were heard and the harmony of voices in the stirring songs made a lasting impression.

In the second part of the program, a realistic plantation scene was enacted with the fast singing many favorite negro songs, beginning with "I'm Going South." The audience was particularly delighted with the solos by Mr. Russell the bass singer, whose rendition of "The Big Bass Viol," "The Bell in the Lighthouse," "Old Black Joe" and "Look Down Thou Lonely Road."

The program was concluded with the singing of "O Canada," concluded with "God Save the King."

SKATING CLUB NAMES OFFICERS

Mr. J. Finnegan of Frankford Succeeds S. W. Wilbur as President

The Quinte Skating Club of Belleville held their election of officers over the week-end for the new year of 1936 and 1937. Some fifty members attended.

The meeting was opened with a few introductory remarks by President Stanley W. Wilbur at which time he took the opportunity of thanking the members for their loyal support during the past season and he congratulated the figure skaters for the fine performances they displayed at the various ice carnivals they attended throughout the country. Special mention was made regarding the fine progress the junior members have made during this season and President Wilbur expressed his hope that more members would continue to live up to the fine name they were getting as figure skaters.

Mr. Wilbur in his closing remarks urged the new members to accept the office allotted them and to work in harmony with but one object in their minds that being, they were promoting one of the finest sports and it is one could to indulge in. He also pointed out that within three years the Quinte Skating Club will stage a programme to present to the citizens of Belleville that would equal the larger skating clubs of Ontario.

The report of the Secretary-Treasurer was brought in and found to be very satisfactory.

After the new officers were installed, a short meeting was held, by the new committees.

A vote of thanks and appreciation was tendered to Mr. Licence, Mr. Lacey, Mr. McGlashan and Mr. Wilbur for their faithfulness to the club during this season.

The new officers elected are:

CHASE TRANSIENT AFTER ACCIDENT

Man Hurt, Car Damaged, Before Murray Veliotis, Arrested

Trenton, March 3 (Special)—After a chase through Trenton streets and over back fences Murray Veliotis, 30, of Toronto, was captured by police with the help of citizens and lodged in the police cells late Monday night. He will appear today charged with the theft of a motor car and there is a possibility of another charge of "causing injury to persons driving cars" will be laid.

Veliotis who has no fixed address but give Toronto as his home, is alleged to have taken a car owned by D. T. Fraser, librarian, of Trenton, and after driving it for a short distance struck a pedestrian, Harry Hall, a resident of Trenton, in the police cells. He drove east from the library and in trying to make a right hand turn at the Royal Hotel struck a "stop sign" post. The car was upset over the sidewalk and hit Roy Sills and Miss Bessie Turcotlette, who were in close proximity to the accident. The male companion saved Miss Turcotlette from serious injury, when he jumped in front of the young lady as the car struck the pair. Sills received severe injury to his leg. The car, however, continued past the sign post and struck a pole, considerably damaging the car.

The driver left the vehicle and proceeded to run away but Harry Miller and Councillor Ernie Ellis chased the young man west on Holley Street to Ontario Street. Here Veliotis tried to climb a fence but became caught on the pickets and he was held by the two citizens until the police arrived, when he was placed under arrest and taken to the police cells.

HEENAN REBUKES LIBERAL MEMBER ON CHARGE MADE

Says He Should Have Been Informed Before House

EIGHT BILLS PASS

Although Sponsor of Bill, Strathcona Says He is Not in Favor

Toronto, March 3.—(CP)—Resumption of the Throne Speech debate occupies the Ontario Legislature today, Goldwin G. Eagle, Conservative member for Toronto Woodbine will be the first speaker. Sometime during the day or night sitting Attorney-General Roebuck will start his lengthy Hydro speech.

Eight bills received second reading at yesterday's brief session, providing municipalities instead of the provincial government could name a magistrate or judges to the police commission, was defeated.

Another, making the municipal board Act to transfer licensing of trucks and buses from the Highways Department to the municipal body was withdrawn by Arthur Ellis Conservative member for Ottawa South, following government disapproval of measure.

Dr. A. D. Roberts, Liberal member for South Ste. Marie, replied to the McNamara Construction Company's denial of his charges a worker on a Northern road had been underpaid, by reading a telegram from his brother, Elmer Cournesarche, and a letter from Cecil O. Owen, Chapleau Notary Public.

Owen said he had information from a McNamara Camp near White River that workmen "regularly and habitually demanded money from the foreman" He said: "A workmen had paid the foreman over a period of a few months $186—from items regularly due at $6 $8.

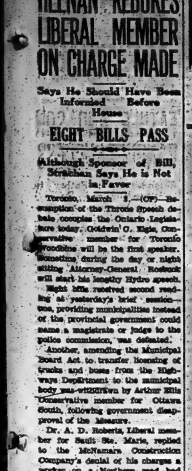
Conspiracy Denies Charges

The company in denying charges of underpaying the workers, had said to failed to return a pair of blankets. Dr. Roberts recalled, "It is a sad thing," he said, "that a powerful company should send over the province implications and insinuations that the men are unscrupulous appropriated, stole or failed to turn in a pair of blankets. Someone has to be his spokesman.

"I don't think that members of parliament, whether they be on that side or this side, should listen to a grievance before the prime minister know of it," said Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Northern Development.

Second reading was given two bills sponsored by W. H. Wright, (Lib., Ontario). One provided for changing the Town of Lisle Act so municipalities need not send ten copies of their bills to members of the parliament and the legislature and defeated candidates. The other concerns the expenses allowed for keeping plots in perpetuity.

Carnival Consideration



Urging abolition of "this iniquitous gambling racket known as Bingo," Major James Clark (Lib., Windsor Sandwich), asked what right has Bill appending the Wages Act so wages could not be garnisseed before the creditor's claim matured.

Attorney-General Roebuck stressed the need of careful consideration before taking action but Welland Conservative Col. Sharpe said the system of gambling before judgment should be used as a sort of legal blackmail by landlords and tax agents which, I think, in many cases they don't use."

Ian Strachan (Lib., Toronto St. George), asked for information respecting Police Commissions but the answer was not in favor of it.

Attorney-General Roebuck characterized it as "a piece of political manoeuvering with the desire to take control of police out of the hands of the government and into the hands of political cliques, that rule the (Toronto) City Hall."

Col. W. A. Weese, (Conservative Parkdale), declared the Attorney-General was "putting things in such shape, that people are beginning to wait to take them out of his hands."

Mystery Land of Mexico Described to Rotary Club

D. T. Jones Relates Experiences in Republic

MEXICAN GOV'T.

Mexico, land of mystery, romance and a vanished civilization of conquered Indians, was presented in stevic-eye view to Belleville Rotarians Monday by one who has lived in Mexico and becomes intimately acquainted with the many baffling contradictions of the strange land as well as the religious reverence the pleasure by those who have leisure and the wisdom to turn daytime into playtime and to "as a portion of the night. The guest speaker was D. T. Jones of the Bank of Montreal staff, a former resident of Mexico. He was introduced by J. A. McPeat.

In the letter time at his disposal Mr. Jones gave a very graphic description of some of the customs of Mexico, its historical background and the picturesque reasons for some of the things which appear in that country. Mexico boasts an ancient and vanished civilization created by the Aztecs, that wonderful race ruled over by the Emperor Montezuma and ruthlessly destroyed by Cortes, the conqueror. In spite of gold that was placed also from the Queen of Spain, Cortes' work was thorough for not little remains of the ancient Aztec civilization which was once renowned for its beautiful buildings and advanced knowledge of architecture.

Canadian's Fiances Kidnapped

Mexico is old and venerable, as an example the Cathedral in Mexico City is over 400 years old. Travelling by train to Mexico is comparatively safe and pleasant. Reaching the Rio Grande a change is noted in people and surrounding. An escort of from fifty to 100 men under a captain join the train and accompany it through the hostile infested country, then leave and return on the next train back.

A young lady, fiance of a member of the Bank of Montreal personnel in Mexico City, was a passenger on a train held up by bandits. When they found she was a nurse they took her with them into the mountains to attend their wounded. She was treated with respect and shortly returned to her fiance. In various parts of Mexico the high altitude affects visitors, 14,000 feet above sea level in some places, Mexico City, however, is much lower, and the climate is agreeable.

Mexico City Attractions

A description of Mexico City with its palaces, broad streets, gardens and parks was given by the speaker. The street present a gay appearance with well dressed women displaying the latest Paris styles, and everywhere an air of gayety and freedom. Transportation about the city is just as efficient as in Toronto with a Canadian owned and operated tram line. One has to be careful, however, in taking a taxi for there is a sprinkling of the criminal class in the taxi business and trips with them might prove very unpleasant.

Church Troubles

A description of the church troubles in Mexico was given briefly by Mr. Jones. Both Catholic and Protestant churches are controlled and the Mexican government is strictly anti-clerical. So scandalish what the Soviet government has accomplished, but in a different manner. No one except a native born Mexican can officiate at a religious ceremony. The ceremony must be obtained. Thus only Mexican born clerics can officiate at marriages and other religious ceremonies. Many churches have been closed and all are under the supervision of a committee. Dean Dobson Peacock is rector of the Cathedral in Mexico City, but he is not permitted to wear his vestments, not even a clerical collar. No canon for performing marriage. The Mayor has the monopoly of weddings.

British and American Fraternities

Life in the foreign section is very pleasant. The British and American have their own hospital, which is a fine place indeed, their own clubs and a splendid fraternal spirit is manifested. Sundays after church a buffet lunch is spread on ball and tennis, making life very pleasant. At times it is necessary to seek a lower altitude when visits are made to Vera Cruz and other places. Conditions in the Vera Cruz section where Communists are in control were described. Here no one pays rent or anything else or they are averse to so doing and no one can make them. The politicians are in control backed up by the army which is composed of Yaqui Indians in ragged uniforms and it is bad form and worse tact to argue with them.

The greatest crime in Mexico is to criticize or try to undermine the government. That is the only crime demanding capital punishment, and anyone casting a quick trip out of the world has just to interfere in politics against the party in power.

Pyramids and Volcanoes

Mexico has pyramids very much resembling those of Egypt and there are many similarities between Mexico and Egypt found in the remains of ancient civilization, a fact which interests scientists and which they are trying to follow back to origins.

Near Puebla, where the speaker lived for a time, lies a beautiful range of mountains with two volcanoes, one inactive and the other moderately active. Here is the famous mountain called Popocatepetl, mentioned by the earliest explorers.

Mexico as an ideal place for a winter holiday was recommended by the speaker, as easy to reach and containing more real places of interest than any other part of the continent for those at all interested in civilizations, ancient and modern —culture and savagery blended in an amazing manner in one country.

Appreciation of the address was voiced by Rotarian Hedley and President Bert Boyce.

STRIKERS BATTLE WITH THE GUARDS

Lightning Raids to Force Out Employees Made by Strikers

(By Taylor Henry)

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

New York, March 2.—(AP)—On a wave of violence, striking building service workers sought today to drive through a complete tie-up of the downtown apartment life of North America's largest city.

Flying squadrons of strikers, making lightning raids to force out employees, who refused to answer the walkout call, battled guards and non-striking workers.

From the Upper Bronx to Greenwich Village, police squads, answering night sight radio calls, found smashed doors, shattered windows and cut elevator cables.

Police recorded more than 200 cases of disorder; almost 100 arrests were made; a score of persons were injured and about a score more treated for scratches and bruises in fighting between pickets, police and workers who refused to strike.

Radio patrols in the exclusive Central Park West residential section sought thirty squadrons suspected of having opened boiler valves, thus flooding a 14-story apartment building basement with fire steam and scalding water.

With this and other apartment houses deprived of heat, a light snow fall and the weather became cold and damp.

Plans Cloaked in Secrecy

Strike plans for today were cloaked in secrecy. Only clue was the announcement of James J. Bambrick, International Building Service President, as he left a conference lasting into the early morning hours.

"We've got a startling surprise move for today."

His statement was interpreted to mean the wood-cutter workers out in the tallest buildings. The Empire State, the Chrysler and the Rockefeller Plaza Radio centre.

Bambrick previously had said he had a "special surprise" planned for these.

Mayor Lagnardia called a second conference of building operators and Labor leaders today, hoping to solve the situation.

Ottawa Air Force To Meet Magedomas

Ottawa, March 2.—(CP)—Royal Canadian Air Force last night advanced to the finals of the Ottawa Senior City Hockey League by an impressive 4-0 shutout over LaSalle. It was the third game of the two out-of-three series, the Frenchmen winning the first start. The Airmen engage Brockville in a two-game total today in the first game of the final series for the City Championship.

After a scoreless first period, R.C.A.F. tallied its first counter early in the second session and held LaSalle under complete control until the first penalty of the game was handed Sergt. Pete the Flyers shorthanded. LaSalle, however, failed to capitalize on the opportunity, stormed Goalie St. Denis' citadel on several dangerous rush plays.

R.C.A.F. went two up in the second minute of the final period when Corporal McCredy scored on a long shot, tallying twice more a little more than a minute apart to close the scoring of the game. Aurel Bourdeau, LaSalle goalie, received several stitches to close a cut in his chin after stopping a hard drive by Louis Lecompte.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

"Broadway Hostess"

A sparkling comedy drama, filled with rollicking laughter, delightful musical numbers, dazzling dance spectacles and spiced with thrills, will come to the Capitol theatre on Wednesday for 3 days.

The picture introduces a new and beautiful singing star to the screen in the person of Winifred Shaw in the title role. Miss Shaw has appeared in several pictures, notably "In Caliente," "Sweet Adeline," "Gold Diggers of 1933" and "Forty-Second Street," and also is famous in musical comedy on the stage. But this is her first starring role in films.

She plays the part of a small town girl who goes to the big city to make good and has a rough time of it until Lyle Talbot, in the role of a big shot gambler, takes her under his wing and makes her toast of the town. Sharing singing honors with Miss Shaw is Phil Regan, the "singing cop."

Regan sings alone and with Miss Shaw, having the role of her accompanist in her night club successes.

Allen Jenkins furnishes much of the comedy as the bodyguard of Talbot.

While the picture contains all of the elements of spectacle, as well as those of a musical, it is also a story of love and heavy tragedy and action, as well as laughter, music and romance in the well balanced plot.

"The Spanish Cape Mystery"

One mystery is usually sufficient for a full length mystery melodrama, but "The Spanish Cape Mystery" has four murders, and should be about four times as good as the average mystery picture. This entertaining Ellery Queen thriller, which comes to the Capitol Theatre on Wednesday, is said to live up to expectations.

The novel Republic photoplay boasts one of the most ingenious and suspense-filled plots seen on the local screen for many a day. And yet, with all its thrills and chills, it abounds with hilarious situations, with much of the comedy provided by such accomplished comedians as Berton Churchill, Harry Stubbs and Frank Sheridan, who portray humorous characters in addition to the production.

"21 Had To Happen"

Irresistible New Team, George Raft and Rosalind Russell

When a glamorous lady who is willing to marry a handsome man with a masterful way, things are bound to happen and they do in 20th Century-Fox's "21 Had To Happen" which co-stars George Raft and Rosalind Russell at the Belle for a two days engagement, starting on Thursday at 2.30 and twice each evening starting at 7.10 and again at 9.50.

Based on a sensational story by Rupert Hughes, the picture presents the team of Raft and Miss Russell as a team in a drama of a man who conquered money, power, position, but lacked the love of a lovely and alluring woman.

The picture follows the rise of Raft from a lowly position to the top of the financial world as an Eastern city. He is inspired by the beauty of Rosalind Russell, an heiress whom he once momentarily glimpsed.

But when Raft has achieved power she is already married to Alan Dinehart.

The battle of Raft and Dinehart cross when Dinehart in danger of imprisonment for embezzling funds from his bank, appeals to Raft to fix things. Raft, instead forces him to make restitution to the bank in order to save the thous. and of reputation.

When Miss Russell meets the man who has adored her all these years, Raft's admiration and a growing love for him. Contrast with her cowardly husband finally convinces her that Raft is the one worthy of her love.

But Dinehart has another ace up his sleeve and gives information to the District Attorney that makes it seem as though Raft has taken an enormous bribe. Raft knows that he is framed, prepares to flee during the investigation. Rosalind Russell sends him back to face his accusers and a slam bang climax brings the picture to its happy conclusion.

Guy Del Raye directed "21 Had To Happen", which presents Leo Carrillo, Arline Judge and Arthur Hohl in the cast of supporting players.

From an original screen play by Frances Hyland, famous short story writer comes the new Gloria Trevor picture, "My Marriage" which will be presented on the same program as Rosalind Russell and George Raft in the above feature "21 Had to Happen." Set in the glamorous, glittering haunts of New York society the picture features Kent Taylor, Jackson, Frederick and Paul Kelly at the head of a strong supporting cast.

It is a dramatic story of a girl who faces the guns of the underworld to shield a society that criticizes her. Capable and sensitive direction by George Archainbaud contributes to the power of this drama.

PLANET TAKES LOOK AT EARTH

This earth had a visitor, the closest in its history, on the night of Feb. 8, when what is called an asteroid or little planet, within one and a half million miles of earth. The only other bodies ever approaching more close than a heliporic are the planet Mercury, Venus and of course the satellite of earth, the moon. The little star is rushing away from earth at a rate of one million miles a day. It is the smallest of a thousand such asteroids as have been catalogued.

This little object was caught in a telescope a few weeks ago and startled the astronomical world. Objects are looked at this way. It is found to be not much larger than a good sized hill in the country, say one third of a mile in diameter. If one could imagine a tiny ball of Sidney township hill or a part of the Oak Hills flying around in space at the rate of a million miles a day, it is about what is and has been going on in space. Its period is calculated as 2.32 years or twenty-eight months. The object was nearest the sun on December 28rd.

Dr. Harlow Shapley, director of Harvard Observatory, says the planet some day may collide with the earth or another planet, but the chance for this is "exceedingly remote." The path of the tiny planet, with a diameter not as large as the diameter of a good sized farm in the Belleville district, is very much elongated, far exceeding the elevation of the path of any other asteroid. This gave ground for the first doubt as to whether it was not a comet. Nothing quite like it has ever been observed before. It is now definitely established as an asteroid or small planet.

GREAT SINGER PASSES

The man who sang with one of the finest baritone voices of all time, applauded by thousands in the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, Antonio Scotti, died at Naples on Wednesday and his death became known only on Friday as but few mourners went to bed on Friday with the body. Such is the glory of this world. Scotti's great name remains and will endure as long as one who heard him sing lives.

Though he died in poverty, he had been maintained by the charity of the Music Lovers' Foundation, Inc. Association, New York. That was one thing with the last days. Another was that he passed in his beloved Naples, Italy. He had been ill for a decade but surrendered the operatic stage only three years ago at the age of 67.

Scotti received all the honors of his art at the greatest time in their lives. He sang at the wedding of King Victor Emmanuel, then Prince of Naples and privately before the Czar.

MEDALS AND PAY

Strange things do happen. One of them is this, that sometimes nobody wants to pay for medals given in his name or in the name of a municipality. Who pays the jeweller? is a very pertinent question for the medals were long ago presented.

In New York they have just a quality. The city still owes a firm $178.86 for six medals presented to these great persons, several years ago, Amelia Earhart Putnam, Captain James A. Mollison, Wiley Post, General Italo Balbo and Captain and Mrs. James A. Mollison.

The jewelers ask the city to pay $185 but no appropriation was made for the medals. So a unanimous vote of the Board of Estimates will be required to pay the actual cost of manufacturing the medals, $178.86.

The city of course was not remiss in its duty in presenting medals to the great. But somebody slipped in not putting through the appropriation.

In some cases it is said that the donor of medals just forgets to pay the jeweler. How could he?

UPSIDE-DOWN ROADS

"Down in Missouri, whence the sceptics emigrate, they are building upside-down roads. They are not really upside-down roads. The phrase is only a Missourian's idea of a joke. They are merely the ordinary dirt road treated in a different way. Asphaltic oil is put under the surface instead of on the top," says Hamilton Spectator.

"The surface application of the oil is the usual process, but an engineer in that part of the world had a brain-wave. He thought it might help to put the oil under the surface, and the result was the invention of an oversized "corn planter," which plants asphaltic oil instead of corn.

"First the dirt road is graded and shaped; then the oil is planted loosened the soil to a depth of at least six inches, at the same time injecting the bituminous materials at the bottom of the loosened earth. Traffic is allowed to pack the soil through which the oil soaks to the surface, and in three weeks the road is re-shaped and completed.

"Upward dirt roads are therefore now being given an oil base instead of an oil surface, and according to the engineer for the state highway department the results of experiments on this sort of road are highly favorable. He will prove the value of this kind of roadbuilding, but it might not be amiss for our ministers of highways and road authorities generally to keep their eyes open for Missouri developments, though they feel that with regard to this matter they are from Missouri too."

SPRING

Spring sent me a note to this snowy land,
And signed it with a flowery hand;
Sent it to me on a soft, warm breeze,
That rustled through the half-numb trees.

She said, 'I thought I'd write to-day,
To tell you I'm not far away.
If you think I've forgotten and do not care,
Don't worry, I will soon be there.

I'm officially due on the twenty-third,
But you know that March can be so absurd
He likes to start storms like another do.
The Snake must have his new striped coat,
And the birds must practice their new spring note.

The snow and ice will have to melt,
Before my presence will be felt.
So I'll be long as can be,
As you can very plainly see.

So, if you don't hear from me again,
You'll know I'm too busy to write you then,
Good-bye, until the Robins sing,
Yours affectionately, Spring."

TO BE BORN ON FEBRUARY 29 is to become automatically affiliated with that very select order of Deferred Birthday Celebrators, one birthday in every fourth year being congratulations are due a member of the Sidelight Family of Readers, Miss Alice Ellis, 17 Benjamin street, born sixteen years ago on February 29.

AFTER DUE DELIBERATION, CONSIDERABLE RESEARCH, and close study of air currents and weather conditions, and ardent golfer has come to the conclusion that the dust storm of last week which plastered houses and automobiles with a fine red sand or dust was caused by the Belleville contingent of golfers in Florida who dug up so much sand on the links down there that the wind came and just naturally whisked it away up in the stratosphere or what have you, where it was gently wafted along until it arrived over Belleville where it encountered an area of moisture which brought it down to earth. It is suggested that word be sent to Jack McKeown, Fred Smith and the other Belleville strong arm golfers down south to stop digging up the sand.

A MESSAGE FROM SPRING WHICH TOPS THIS COLUMN is well worth reading breathing as it does the faith that is necessary to happy living, relying on the divine promise that there will always be springtime, seedtime and harvest, and the sun, wind and rain as needed.

POCAHONTAS, THE INDIAN PRINCESS, WHO SAVED THE SCALP OF CAPTAIN JOHN SMITH from adorning the roof pole of her father's tepee, did not love the doughty English adventurer, she just interavened for him out of love for all the whites. That is the conclusion arrived at by some of President Roosevelt's prize pets—one of his relief projects, compiling an official guide of the United States to give out of work writers a chance to earn their bread and butter. They have evidently been eating cake for having invaded the sovereign state of Virginia in search of data, historical and otherwise, these mistaken manikens stir up the whole state by trying to turn one of their proudest state historical legends into a mockery, and show that Princess Pocahontas Smith as all a man devoid of heroic qualities and mean enough to sell a white boy into slavery with the Indians. The data hunters passed over Pocahontas lighting any hint she was in love with all the whites, and not with Capt. John Smith particularly— but why destroy such a beautiful legend and replace it with meanness? No one is so dog-gone crazy as to turn the truth to try and rattle the bones of Pocahontas and Captain John Smith in such a manner. Let them sleep covered with the beautiful mantle of love which history has covered them with. Mud muckers generally get covered with muck themselves if they dig deep enough. We prefer to believe that Pocahontas saved Captain John Smith because she loved him, and that he was honorable enough to marry her and treat her with love and respect.

A MESSAGE to Employers

Many well-known firms throughout Canada have adopted The Mutual Life "Salary Savings Plan" and each finding that it improves the morale and creates a better spirit between employer and employee.

Most salaried employees find it difficult to carry adequate amounts of insurance where premiums must be paid once, twice, or at most, four times a year. With the Salary Savings Plan of The Mutual Life of Canada, employees are able to budget their "insurance savings" throughout the year in small monthly amounts, which are deducted from the pay cheques and remitted to The Mutual Life by the Employer. Any standard plan of life insurance may be chosen by the employee, who pays the entire sum.

The advantage to employers where employees are providing for the years when they will have passed their periods of usefulness is obvious. The Plan helps your employees and their families to realize "the glorious privilege of being independent."

Details of the simple plan and the assistance given by The Mutual Life in putting it into operation will be furnished without obligation by any Mutual Life representative or by our Head Office.

Replies to School Taxes Letter

Belleville, Feb. 29, 1936.

Editor Ontario Intelligencer:

Dear Sir:

In your issue of 26th inst., Mr. F. O. Cushing attempts to "answer" my letter re-corporation taxes and how to pick flaws in an attempt to draw the "proverbial red herring across the trail." The figures I gave were taken from the records at the city hall and Mr. Cushing may have checked them as to them at any time and can make his own tabulation which would be sure to be accurate. I gave him, as a matter of courtesy, the details from which I obtained them.

In my letter I gave only the totals and in his third paragraph he admits that they are so near to being correct that the amount of the rate in taxes for Separate Schools would be only slightly lower.

The point is that if the Quebec Penal System were introduced into Ontario, our system would have to be changed from the Public School System to a Sectarian one and that to the extent of over $3200 now paid by Protestants to the Public Schools would be diverted to the Roman Catholic Separate School. In other words the Protestants of Belleville would be compelled by law to contribute that annually to back the Roman Catholic religion as the late Archbishop McNeil stated when addressing the Canadian Club in Toronto a few years ago that "the reason for the existence of Separate Schools was to teach the Roman Catholic religion."

It is not my intention to continue the controversy further, but I feel that the ratepayers should have the same clearly understood.

Yours very truly,
H. B. Pettet.

STATEMENTS BY-MAN RECOUNTED

Brother of Dead Man Admits He Disliked Accused

Cornwall, Ont., March 3 (CP) — The Crown today continued presenting evidence in the second murder trial of Mrs. Viney Belle Volrey and Clarence Cameron, itinerant Nova Scotia lumberjack, charged with killing the woman's 56 year old farmer husband, Louis, so they might be free to marry.

The crown produced witnesses who alleged Cameron had admitted intimacy with Mrs. Volrey and said he could not get married "with the old man, we are dead yet."

Volrey, Bonville farmer, living in Indian north of here, died April 22. He was believed first to have died of pneumonia and broken his neck but the crown contends he was actually strangled to death.

John Volrey, brother of the dead man, said the accused were engaged in a love affair while Volrey was in hospital recovering from an operation some time before his death. He identified he clothed Cameron.

Horatio Dow, neighbor of Volreys, told the court Cameron had worked for him last March and had sold him a "lot of stuff" including "he had slept with Mrs. Volrey."

Mrs. Volrey and Cameron were tried last October for murder but the jury disagreed.

DRIVER CRUSHED BY LOAD OF LOGS

Believed Man Was Off Sleigh At Time of Accident

Woodstock, Ont., March 3 (CP) —Emmerson Otto, 26 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Otto of Thrasher, met his death yesterday when a sleigh load of logs he was driving crushed him against a wire fence a few miles from Tavistock.

Otto was driving heavy ship timber on a bobsleigh when, it is thought, the kingbolt came out of the sleigh. Persons who found his body believe the team, prize horses owned by his father, jerked the front runners away and back the sleigh, the heavy load then sliding forward and crushing the driver to death.

It was evident Otto had not been on the load at the time, apparently having got down to lead the team to the side of the road where there was more snow.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

March 3rd, 1916

Mr. C. B. Cuddy has been letter in the Standard Bank here for some time, has been transferred to Wingham where he will be manager for that city shortly. Mr. Otes, by the way, Minister, has made many friends here who will regret to learn of his departure from Belleville.

Belleville Intermediates were defeated in Millbrook last night by the team of that town, the score being 12 to 5. The following composed the Belleville team: Conley, Whitty, Simmons, Phelps, Whalen, Skinner, has Simmons. Referee, McCord, Toronto.

Belleville Juniors were badly defeated in Toronto by the Aura Lees, the score being 11 to 1. The Juniors are now out of the running. The latter team was purely at their mercy and we will say them luck. They scored "goaches" from the Junior class, so soon, because Belleville is going to have a real "man" next winter and you can bet your life it will be a team the boys for being grand sports in the true meaning of the word—you have been a credit to the city and we are proud of you. Here's hoping you have better luck next year. It's now over and we can turn our undivided attention to the Intermediates. Are we downhearted—No

Messrs. Hubbell and Mr. Mc-Intosh have arrived home after a business trip to Toronto and other important places in the United States.

On the invitation of Ald. Parker, Chairman of the Public Works Committee the whole city council, a number of Front St. property owners and a committee of the city council to consider the question of permanent pavement on Front St. The question was discussed pro and con for some time, the property owners contending that it would be unjust to impose upon them a tax of 30 or 40 cents per foot in addition to their proportion of the 66 per cent of the cost of pavement to be paid by the city. Ald. Parker pointed out that the principles of a pro-rata tax had been applied to the construction of such works in almost every city and town in Ontario, and that the proposed paving of Front Street could not be decided on other than by the levying of a frontage tax unless by submitting the question to the people for their approval and sanction, which he thought would be rejected. The reply to that statement was to apply the principle to the next night work and improvements proposed. Finally, after a lengthy discussion, Ald. Panter thanked those present for the part they had now the views of the property owners and that it would be for the council to decide what was best to do in the matter.

Mr. Fail, Hart has had the misfortune to lose his fine and young St. Bernard dog, "Canadian Queen," by death from pneumonia. This dog was recently imported recently from York, England, by Mr. Hart, who states that it was the largest St. Bernard of its age ever seen on this continent.

Gordon Wandbaugh, an employee of Gilbert and Bulleid's drygoods merchants in this city, was working on the third floor of the store this morning about nine o'clock. At the time he went up in the elevator to let the door to the shaft open. When he went to go down, he was walking backwards and talking to another employee and not noticing that the elevator had gone down, he walked into the shaft and fell to the cellar floor twenty or twenty-five feet onto the top of the elevator. He was soon removed and Dr. Yoakes was summoned. It was found that he had sustained a fracture of a knee cap and a few bruises. His escape from death was most remarkable.

FATHER AND SON BANQUET SUCCESS

Responsibility of Father to Son Outlined By Speakers

The annual Father and Son banquet was held in Tabernacle Church, Bridge street last night, with over ninety present. The tables were decorated in the Tuxis colors and of favors was provided for every guest.

Don Alexander acted as toastmaster and after the singing of grace and the assembly the guests in few well-chosen remarks. The Trail Rangers' opening ceremony was led by Clark James and Roy Dafoe, with several readings by Douglas Galpin and community singing with Mrs. George Wright at the piano a list of toasts was given as follows. To the King—Roy Wheatley; reply by Grant Blakely and the singing of the National Anthem; to the Church—Denson Kilpatrick; reply by Rev. Harry Naylor; to the Home —Fred Edmondson, reply by Mr. S. Bateman; a recitation was given by Mr. Howard Truesdale. Don Alexander, Dick Hanley and Roy Dafoe also rendered for the boys' groups . Keith Davidson gave a guitar solo.

Addresses Given

Addresses were given during the course of the evening by guests, George Wright, President of the Young Peoples Union, gave an interesting speech on the responsibility of a father to his son. This was followed by one expressed in understanding and co-operation. If they had lacking them both the life of the father and of his son will be impoverished.

R. Edmondson, Boys' Work Leader of the Tabernacle Church discussed the aims and ideals of the C.G.I.T. and asked for the sympathetic interest of all the fathers present in the work undertaken.

Mr. Bateman on behalf of the fathers, L. Pollitt thanked the boys for their hospitality, courtesy and service. He spoke of his own experiences as a boy in the Tuxis Parliament and believed boys' work to be of supreme importance in the life of the church. The meeting was closed by Miss Mildred Benediction brought the happy function to a close.

The committee of ladies responsible for the banquet included Mrs. Roy Windover, convener, assisted by Mrs. McGuire, James, Edmondson, Moon, Hanley, Emerson, Johnson, Bateman, Mott, Blakely, Carr, and Chervis.

CANADIANS AND THEIR INDUSTRIES—AND THEIR BANK

FISHERIES

Jim: "Bill, do you ever get tired of handling fish, fish, fish, all the time?"

Bill: "Yes, Jim, but it helps me to keep goin' when I think of the thousands of folk we're helpin' to feed."

Bill: "Wasn't always big, though. The Chief was tellin' me the other day about how this company started. Some fellows have, and, as he said it was the same way with a lot of the other fishery concerns."

Jim: "A good story, Bill, and I know it's true, because the Chief told him. I reckon he tells most everybody, because he likes to talk about his Bank. It's my Bank, too. I have a savings account there."

Bill: "Have you, Jim? So have I."

Marmora and District

Marmora, March 3—An exhibition game of hockey was played on the home rink on Friday evening between the old Cyrus Havelock and Marmora, in which the latter were defeated by a score of 12 to 7. Goal scoring was prolific in all periods but in the first two it was nip and tuck for first place, with the first Havelock topping the score and then Marmora. However, during the last period the visitors simply got behind the Marmora defence and scored merrily with straight wide open shots against Cahey in goal. The game was played on fairly good ice in zero weather. Both teams fought hard and very few penalties were given out by referee Hewitt. In the final period the Havelock aggregation proved their superiority and the game ended 12 to 7.

Lineups:

Havelock: Goal, Davis; defence, Wrightman, Hewitt; centre Hagerman; wings, Dyer, Hunter. Alternates, Hewitt, Weldon, Parker.

Marmora: Goal, Callery; defence, Neal and McCoy; centre, Hayward; wings, Leonard and Hewitt. Alternates, Burns, Kerr, Johnston.

Water service was restored to the users on South Victoria Street last week after the freeze-up had caused the service to be cut off for almost a week.

Joseph Lajoie, nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Levi Lajoie, of Huntly township was taken to Belleville on Tuesday in a serious condition. Blood transfusions were given and the youngster is showing progress.

The eighteen months son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Merrow was brought to the office of a local physician with a badly bruised collarbone. The fracture was reduced and the child is resting comfortably at its home.

THIS NATURAL FOOD GENTLY REGULATES YOUR SYSTEM

Furnishes Needed "Bulk" for Regular Habits

Your doctor will tell you that keeping healthy depends far more on proper diet than on drugs, that common constipation is usually due to insufficient "bulk" in meals, and that proper medicines give you only temporary relief.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies gently needed "bulk" which relieves the cause of common constipation." The "bulk" takes up moisture, forming a soft mass which helps to cleanse the system.

ALL-BRAN gives your body the regular internal exercise it needs to prevent sluggishness. ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B and iron.

Careful studies on men and women have shown that this delicious cereal is perfectly satisfactory. Serve ALL-BRAN regularly for regularity, with milk or cream—or use in cooking.

Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. ALL-BRAN is much more effective than part-bran products. Avoid disappointment—get Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Kellogg's. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

"Bulk" is described as "bulk."

Through the kindness of Mr. J. O. Frost a radio was installed in the Council Chamber for the Sunday morning broadcast of King Edward VIII's first empire broadcast. The reception was perfect and the voice of the King was plainly heard by the large congregation which had gathered.

Mr. Harold Hopkins, son of Mr. Tim Hopkins of Tweed, and manager of one department of the Periodical Sales Company of Chicago, Ill., has been successful from first to last in leading in other managers in the company.

Mr. Hopkins is in charge of a large number of men engaged in selling subscriptions to popular magazines published in the United States. To him has been awarded a beautiful trophy, suitably engraved and inscribed with the names of winning managers. To be returned as winner of this trophy is to give evidence of outstanding managerial ability.

Mr. William Dafoe of Tweed, has disposed of his 4 lbs. business in Madoc to Mr. J. L. O'Riordan of Madoc. Mr. Dafoe carries on a similar business in Tweed.

Kingston Junior B.C.H.A. team continues to move down all opposition to provincial honours, Peterboro Colts being the latest victims by a score of 9 to 4. Tweed Juniors have been only opponents this season to give them a real battle, holding them to a 3 to 3 tie in Kingston, losing out on the record.

The World's Day of Prayer was observed in the United Church on Friday evening when a large number of ladies of St. James' Anglican, St. Andrew's Presbyterian and the Salvation Army joined with the United Church ladies in the observance of this occasion which has became observed throughout the Protestant nations of the world.

St. Jude's Anglican Church held its morning service at 9.30 a. m. on Sunday instead of at the accustomed hour in order that the members of the congregation might listen to the broadcast of the King's message.

Leafs' Coach, Manager Escape Serious Injury

Galt, March 3 (CP)—Coach Dick Irvin and Frank Selke, business manager of Toronto Maple Leafs, had a narrow escape, when their car skidded on the icy road and plunged 20 feet down a bank into Soper Park last night.

The pair were on their way to Kitchener on a scouting trip to Toronto car. After their mishap they continued by radial and it was not until this morning it was learned the machine with a Saskatchewan license belonged to Irvin. It was that saved the machines from turning over and the occupants from injury was the bumper catching on a tree. It took over three hours with a block and tackle to pull the machine out.

GILEAD

Gilead—The entire neighborhood was shocked when on Monday night the late Mr. Thomas Coulter passed away at his home on the 4th concession. Mrs. J. O. Huffman. The late Mr. Coulter had been in ill health for only about two weeks. The funeral was held Thursday afternoon.

2 GIRLS, BROTHER BURNED IN FIRE

Midland, Mich., March 3—(AP)—A tragedy of 18 years ago was duplicated today when two girls, one and their 23-year-old brother died in a fire which swept the farmhouse of Alba Thomas near here.

The victims were William Thomas and his sisters, Estella, 15, and Bertha, 11. Alba Thomas told coroner A. R. Bradley he was awakened in his first floor bedroom about 3 o'clock by the heavy pall of smoke that reach the bedrooms of his children on the second floor. Bradley said the blaze apparently was started by a defective chimney.

Mounted Police Use Snowmobiles

Edmonton, March 3.— (CP)— Canada's Mounted Police, keeping trend with the times, adopted motor snowbiles and airplanes as a regular part of their equipment. Now the "snowmobile", newest means of transport across snow-blanketed prairies, is the latest vehicle "carried on the strength" of the police force.

The snowmobile, described as "a cross between a Ford and a sleigh", has already been placed in use by Northern Alberta detachments, who found that the machine's "snowtracks" covered territory far better than sled dogs. Accordingly it used to patrol areas covered with snow.

Four of the machines are in use by constables of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, and are fitted with bullet-shaped bodies, painted in silver, enough to seat a driver and the Vegreville, Lamont and St. Michael areas.

Ambulance trips into isolated districts have been successfully made by the machines. Constable Fraser, at a 40-mile-an-hour gait the fragile craft travelled, brought patient towns marooned by snow.

WALLBRIDGE

Wallbridge—On Wednesday evening people of the community gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Wallbridge to bid farewell to Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Hinchliffe. The Rev. H. B. Johnston called the gathering to order and Miss Ella Phillips read the following address after which Mrs. Lawrence Ketcheson made the presentation.

Mr. and Mrs. Hinchliffe.

Dear Friends:—It is out of the fact that you are about to remove from our midst, which fills your neighbours and fellow citizens, certain friends present to go with some word and act of appreciation. Since you came to live among us, you have been prominently identified by your neighbourly spirit, and by your loyalty to the various organizations of the church and community. At a time when the church greatly needed leadership, you, Mr. Hinchliffe came and were unsparingly of your time and talent, by your zeal reviving the Epworth League, whose new life was manifest, and an awakened interest in others provided both in the Ladies' Aid and the Women's Missionary Society. As president of the ladies' organization you did excellent work in keeping before them the claims of Christ and spreading Christianity in remote lands.

Then, too, as organist of the church for many years, your efficiency in the Sunday services as an inspiration to all the members of the choir. This enriched in our church worship being brighter and more inspirational.

While Mrs. Hinchliffe was thus giving so freely of her time and talent to church and community, you, Mr. Hinchliffe had occasion to double your efforts, preparing abbreviated meals which, however, did not result in reducing your weight below your standard. You also took your turn at collecting revenue for church and missionary support. Living as you did in a home built by the hand you have and practise have been that of the poet who wrote:

"There are hermit souls that live withdrawn
In the peace of their self-content;
There are souls like stars that dwell apart,
In a fellowless firmament.
There are pioneer souls that blaze their paths
Where highways never ran.
But let me live by the side of the road,
And be a friend of man."

And having been so helpful and friendly to the Wallbridge community as you have been, we desire that you accept from us this purse as a token of our esteem. We assure you that, although removed from our midst, you will not be forgotten by us.

Signed on behalf of the community.

Fred Phillips,
Lawrence Ketcheson,
Frank Shorey.

Thrilling Escape from Leavenworth Told After Arrest in Windsor

Frank Brown Says He Swam Four Miles And Carried 33

Windsor, March 3 (CP)—Frank Brown, 26, one of two men held here for Toronto police on charges of burglary and theft, admitted he had been convicted of white slavery and escaped from Leavenworth Penitentiary in Kansas after a movie-like dash a mile swim down the Mississippi River.

Superintendent James B. Wilkinson of the identification bureau of Leavenworth said that night hopped a freight train for Chicago.

the prison walls. Having planned the getaway, he had a suit of civilian clothes ready. He tied the civilian outfit in a waterproof parcel around his neck, doffed his prison uniform and jumped into the Mississippi River.

He swam four miles down stream with the current, which carried him to the middle of the river. Almost exhausted and unable to make either bank, he was at the point of sinking, when a log floated by. Reclung to it for 33 miles before the current carried it and him to shore.

By this time it was early morning. He rested all day under cover of brushwood and that night hop-

Alexander Mackay Loses Appeal in U. S. Court

Washington, March 2. (CP).— Alexander Mackay, British subject and formerly a resident of Montreal, who faces a death sentence for kidnapping Charles Boettcher, II, members in a daring but futile plot to steal the Lindbergh baby, Calif., today lost his appeal for a new trial in the Supreme Court of the United States. MacKay had appealed along with his prison companion, Joseph Zarkey, also awaiting execution, in whose name the appeal was filed.

The British Consul General at San Francisco has been retained by California officials on behalf of MacKay, whose sister, Mrs. Evelyn Byrne is in Rosemount, Montreal suburb.

School Children Feed Partridges

Chaplin, Sask., March 2. — The Saskatchewan's government's appeal to all citizens to aid in feeding Hungarian partridges and prairie chicken which are wandering about the province in half-starved condition, met widespread response last week-end when school children here were surprised later to find the flocks thronging the school yard and picking up crumbs left from the children's lunch pails.

From then on "lunch time" was awaited by children and birds. The flocks arrive daily almost to the minute to share the meal, and sometimes perch on the window ledges till noon.

Advice to the Lovelorn
By Beatrice Fairfax

DEAR "ON THE SPOT"—

GIRL'S BEST LOVE ASSET

Wasn't it the late Oliver Herford, who said: "Propinquity is the greatest love affair in the world"? Well, there's something to it, about 75 per cent the quality of nearness being an-the-spot in the very greatest of Cupid's affairs.

That is why the middle-aged boss, who has seen wonder down the pretarsus path, not infrequently looks toward some young lady in his office.

But the young man who writes me about his romance of propinquity is not middle-aged, nor yet boss or the office where he is employed. Imagine a bright young assistant. In an amusing letter, he tells me that he was not so much girl-shy as he was girl-opposed—that girls as such had no place in his life. The young man courted only SUCCESS. The capitals are his, and he took for his motto Kipling's verse:

"Down to Gehenna, or up to the throne,
He travels the fastest who travels alone."

He admits that the loneliness of his solitary progress made it Gehenna, all right, much of the time. But with a will to succeed as the motive of his life, he stuck 'it out until he met Pauline.

Then the certain substantial qualities to Pauline which seemed to go with her name, the charm of her secretary in the office where this young man was employed, had the same look dictated from anyone but the two senior partners—all combined with a strong common sense in the profession of the law.

Pauline had a barricaded way about her, which took this ambitious young man mightily. She seemed to set limit on following her own line as did he. Never a word beyond a "good morning" or something that related to work. Once or twice he attempted something conversational, only to receive a wide-open glance from Pauline's office and a reply shrunk to a monosyllable. Distinctly, she was not the chatty office type. She never mentioned her personal affairs.

Another thing about this girl, which appealed to him strongly was the exquisite freshness of her appearance. Her blouses were immaculate, her tailored skirt well pressed, her little brown shoes shining with polish and the sheen on her well-brushed hair like that on a bird's wing. And the way she minded her own business that got him. At first he thought it was all that, but it wasn't. Pauline was made that way.

Then he writes me that "Propinquity or nearness is the creator of affairs and a destroyer of air castles," and what is my opinion of office-made marriages?

Though Pauline has not given him the least encouragement that she would consider a proposal, or even a casual friendship.

But, as I said, I can answer his question. My opinion of office marriages is that they're as likely, or even more likely, to be "made in Heaven" than any other kind. The first and second part see each other under conditions, where he is as he is—or when called down, praised, cut, ignored, when they sing shota smile or frown, and when the slings and arrows of "outrageous fortune" it is often political are sharpest.

So, taken by and large, office marriages are more likely to be successful than those made while dancing to the piercing wails of the saxophone, or in any of the more casual places where young people become acquainted.

The story of my opinion and the fact that this young man seems as "willin" as Barton," Pauline doesn't seem to me to hold out much hope.

HAPPILY WED FOR 50 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Watt, Sidney Twp. Celebrate Event

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Watt of the sixth concession of Sidney are celebrating their golden wedding today. On March 3rd, 1886 at Wellston they were married by Rev. John Ferguson, Baptist minister.

Twenty-seven years ago Mr. and Mrs. Watt came to live on their present farm. In that time they have established themselves in the affection and respect of the community. Mr. Watt still enjoys good health and carries on his work, taking part in the activities of the Presbyterian Church, Foxboro, and of the Foxboro Orange Lodge, of which he was made an honorary member this winter.

For several years Mrs. Watt has been confined to her home but is able to take a keen interest in all activities and is the centre of the family life.

There are three children, Alexander, living at Albens, Ontario and Herbert and Christina at home. There are also three grandchildren living at Albens, Kenneth, Orpha and Dorothy Watt.

Mr. and Mrs. Watt are receiving letters and congratulations from many friends, who are rejoicing with them and wishing them many more years of happiness.

It is not definitely known why runners appear upon a woman's face. It is suspected that some glandular disturbance is the cause. The electric needle will remove them permanently, will not cause new ones to appear. The needle enters the pore from which the hair emerges, electrocutes the papilla in which it grows. When the papilla is destroyed, a shaft cannot be produced.

ALBERT PLAYERS HIGHLY PRAISED

Drama Festival Adjudicator Commends Director And Cast

"The Greek Dark" by Dan Tuthers was presented by the Albert Players of Belleville, directed by Miss Jessie A. Tuthers, in the Eastern Ontario Drama Festival at Kingston on Saturday night. For the first time the group has entered the competition and so encouraging were the laudatory remarks of the adjudicator, Mr. Allan Wade, that it is hoped the Albert Players will continue to take part in the festivals.

The scene was a collier's cottage overlooking the pit-head yard of a colliery. The characters were a Welsh miner, five of them wives of colliers who had been trapped in the mine for six days, and the girl in love with one of the husbands. The theme concerned the reactions of the women waiting for news of the trapped men and the jealous fierceness between the wife and sweetheart of the men.

The adjudicator said "The Greek Dark" was a delightful piece of work. It was a straight-forward presentation of the facts in themself along and it had been presented as well as those facts could be. Because of their voices the women established their characters, from the start and the players too much. The timing was almost perfect, the one flaw being the hurried entrance and one or two other occasions. Some of these instances were open to argument, the adjudicator admitted, adding that if he had been the director, perhaps he would have changed the timing slightly for this character. Scenic effects were praised for a really lovely, convincing performance. The stage management was looked after toward the end of the play when all the women left the room leaving Rachel, a forlorn, lonely creature in the centre of the stage. In conclusion, he said "The Green Dark" was a beautifully finished piece of work, both for the director and the players.

On Saturday the Prince Edward Dramatic Club under the direction of R. W. Abraham presented "The Warside War."

The scene was an inn on the road from the King's Camp and the Duke of Monmouth's camp at Bridgewater, in 1685, the time of the Monmouth rebellion.

Mr. Wade said this play started off well. The building and scenery had to drive and poise and kept things going when she was on stage. He felt the off-stage noises should have continued throughout the first scene in order to create a veritable millinde of atmosphere. Regret was expressed that the huge hats worn by the Colonel and Aide obliterated their facial play from the audience's view. Mr. Wade said he would have arranged these characters differently as there was in order to better get the most the various situations created.

The Sergeant did well in a short part. He gave the feeling of a stupid man trying to do his duty under the circumstances, which was exactly the desired effect. Mr. Wade felt the play was a little too long and the director might well have used a blue pencil to good advantage in this connection. Alicia's part was sincere but she was inclined to emphasize everything too much and she did not get her per appeal enough. The Colonel played splendidly throughout with plenty of variety but he seemed a little too "let down" at the end. Otherwise there were no points calling for special attention, said the adjudicator, the ensemble work of the company and the director for elimination. A commendable thing which is always difficult to present than a modern play.

Response to Emotional Display

Don't Embarrass Tot or He'll Fear Show of His Love For You

"MY CHILDREN never show their feelings," Mrs. Joseph Smith said, with a tearful sort of sigh.

This means, of course, that Mrs. Smith finds herself to be unappreciated, blessed through no fault of her own with heartless, selfish and ungrateful children.

Did she not adore them? Had she not done everything in her power to make them happy and safeguard their health?

Of course, she was a model mother—good enough, indeed, to be a particular. She had no fact.

And where is there any one to criticize? Not when their lot is more unenviable than to child rearing!

Mrs. Smith adored her children but she did not understand them. She did not understand that simply because she never thought of putting herself in their places. Over with perhaps made she would have considered such an effort futile. She assumed that children were quite different from grown-ups, having a different reactions altogether and a different set of sensitivities, or lacking altogether in sensitivity.

Sensitive Men

At any rate, when son Louis came back from school and greeted his mother with a spontaneous hug, instead of accepting it as a matter of course and returning it in kind, she was surprised and delighted to find that she burst into tears and exclaimed: "Louis! I never knew you to show any affection before."

Louis, of course, was crushed and embarrassed, as you or I would have been, and after that he kept his emotions under control.

Rosemond didn't dare let her feelings "run riot" for fear of being teased. Rosemond grew more and more strictly about expressing her feelings because she always made her feel like a fool. She would laugh, cry, tease or seem very surprised and that is all. Then Rosemond felt in the wrong, too. Mother made Rosemond feel hard and ungrateful, cruelty.

Child Sensitive

Children are sensitive and easily embarrassed, especially when exhibiting affection before their elders or when making any demonstration of affection.

And it is so tragic, if, as in cases of Rosemond and Louis, a child is afraid to show any show of their feelings. It is tragic for mother, because she is ready for their love. That sort of thing grows. The unresponsive child becomes the repressed adult, the person who can't ever show his feelings.

Never suppress if your child shows you affection. Never suppress him if he doesn't. Genuine love is not a duty but a natural spontaneous thing.

And above all, don't tease or ridicule your child about anything he does. Praise him for what is worthy the object may seem to you. Respond to his confidences even if the cause seems a little silly.

Modern External Treatment Helps End Colds Sooner

Just Rubbed on at Bedtime Its Double-Duty Action Comes Through Hours of Restful Sleep.

OFTEN RELIEVES BY MORNING

Before a miserable cold gets you this night, go to bed and apply Vicks Vapoluh. Two reasons stated here why Vapoluh the newer way to relieve cold misery help to a milder, shorter cold.

1. Just rubbed on throat and chest at bedtime, Vapoluh acts two ways at once:

2. By stimulation through the skin, like a poultice or plaster.

3. By inhalation of its penetrating medicinal vapors, released by body heat and breathed in direct to inflamed air-passages.

Continuing through the night, this combined vapor-poultice action relieves tightness, helps irritated membranes—helps break congestion. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

For Fewer and Shorter Colds: Vicks has proven, for your family: Vicks has developed, especially for home use, a practical Plan for Better Control of Colds. This commonsense guide to fewer and shorter colds has been clinically tested by practicing physicians and further proved in every day use by millions. Full details of Vicks Plan come in each Vapoluh package.

ICE CREAM IN WINTER

Ice cream has many qualities which commend its extensive use, not only for parties, but as a regular family dessert throughout the winter season. Made principally of milk and cream, ice cream is a nutritious, wholesome and easily digestible food. Because of its rich cream base alone, ice cream earns for itself a place in the winter dietary, since it is a splendid source of the vitamin found to be a safeguard against winter colds.

In addition, the butterfat in ice cream, and the sugar which it contains, provide the heat which the body needs to combat cold. It can be truly said that no other food so deliciously combines food and health value with appetite appeal. In health returns money spent for ice cream is well wisely spent.

Ice Cream Sherbet

Fill cooled tart shells with ice cream. Cover with meringue made from 2 egg whites and 2 tablespoons fruit sugar. Set on board covered with paper. Bake in hot oven (500 degrees F.). Serve immediately.

Butterscotch Sauce

1 cup brown sugar, 1 cup white corn syrup, 1-4 cup butter, 3-4 cup cream.

Boil sugar and syrup until it threads. Add butter and cream. Serve with your favourite ice cream.

Baked Alaska

1 quart brick ice cream, layer of cake 1 inch thick, 4 egg whites, 6 tablespoons fruit sugar.

Cover a board with paper and place cake on it. Arrange brick ice cream on cake, leaving about 1 inch of cake extending beyond ice cream. Cover ice cream and cake with meringue of whites beaten stiff and dried sugar. Set in hot oven (450 degrees F.). Slip from paper on serving platter and serve at once. Note Meringue may be sprinkled with shredded cocoanut before browning.

Vanilla Ice Cream

1 teaspoon granulated gelatine, 1 tablespoon cold water, 1 cup milk, 1-2 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon flour, pinch of salt, 1-2 cup cream, 1-2 cup whipping cream, 1 1-2 teaspoon vanilla.

Soak gelatine in cold water. Heat 1-2 cup milk. Mix sugar, flour and salt with remaining 1-4 cup milk and add hot hot water. Cook about 20 minutes in double boiler. Return to heat and cook 3 minutes. Pour slowly over gelatine. Fold in cream which has been whipped stiff. Turn into refrigerator trays and freeze. Note: Heavy cream may be beaten separately and folded in with the milk.

Good Manners
By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

NEIGHBORLY CALLS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you kindly advise me as to the etiquette of calls? I have recently moved into a new neighborhood. A neighbor called on us last week, left cards, and asked us to come to a party that they were having in a few days . . . which we did. Now it is necessary for us to return her call, and leave cards, and how soon? The neighbor is a woman somewhat older than I am.

Reader.

I'm so glad that you wrote me about this, for it is very important what you do about acknowledging such friendliness and such special welcoming. When we move into a new neighborhood every social gesture we make—or omit to make —is checked for us, or against, and correctly so, for in these ways we show our breeding and our social accomplishments.

This visit-of-welcome so promptly done, so gracefully done, so hospitably done, is not without acknowledge at once, by a return call. Make your call in the middle of late afternoon, and leave cards. If, as I judge from your letter, this household consists of only the woman and her husband, leave one of your cards for the wife, and one for your husband's cards, one for the wife and one for the husband.

I'd even like to have you postpone your call for a day or so after you read my answer, so that at once you might write this neighbor a note of thanks for her hospitality in inviting you and your husband to the party. And it would be charming and generous of you to enclose this important note in a box of flowers. Do tell us soon that the note and flowers might be received in the morning of the day on which you make your afternoon call, in this way you make the double acknowledgment of the double courtesy, one acknowledging the party and the friendly welcome, and one for the visit of welcome.

Wedding Announcement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me how soon and as my father lives in a distant city, I would like to know if I should announce my marriage, which is to be a very quiet one, to them and my friends? How should an announcement of this kind be worded?

Dorothy.

The formal announcement of your marriage, in this case, even if you don't have to be able to attend the ceremony, should be sponsored by your father. Like this:

Mr. Albert Allen Brownson announces the marriage of his daughter

Dorothy Grace

to

Mr. John Graham Wells, on Tuesday, the first of May Nineteen hundred and thirty-six

Dallas, Texas

Also it is very gracious to expand the second line into:

has the honour of announcing the marriage of his daughter

Of course all the news about your marriage you would share with your father and the other members of your family by letters. And, if they are not able to come to the wedding, it would be natural and thoughtful of you to send a telegram to your father directly after the wedding. The news of your marriage should not come to them via a formal announcement.

Mrs. Beckman will be glad to answer questions on good manners submitted by readers.

Livestock Review Weekly

The market for cattle, calves and hogs was very unsettled and mostly 10c lower for the week. Only Lambs were the exception and for the week the market was firmer and prospects favourable. It is not too much to say that the cattle market is in the dumps, cannot see action, particularly in the Prairie Provinces, where cattle are coming exceeding demand, and carry overs are piling up at some points. Enormous demands are looking for export to Great Britain and the United States, consequently at a reasonable good scale, but there is no adequate outlet in sight for the present rate of supply, according to the Livestock Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. Shippers seem to have forgotten what it is to make money and say that until at least the end of the third week in June, if not longer, cattle consumption and, as well, foreign consumption will be at the lowest level of the year. To restrict that to whatever seems to have been the average amount to receive at St. Boniface, Manitoba, where approximately 2,500 cattle and calves arrived last week. The only bull spot there is in the desire for the setback to come in while bargains are obtainable in order to effect a clearance of high flyers.

An Outstanding Price Breaker

The market in the west and in some centres in the east, is being burdened with a lot of warmed up cattle, particularly Canners and Cutters, being half-fat small cattle, literally overpowering the trade. The obvious remedy is very sharply curtailed loadings for the coming two weeks.

Price Levels at Stock Yards

Toronto cattle prices lost 50c and some stock remained unsold. Tops were 50c down, while nothing above $6.50, except a few choice calf which had a top of $7.25, a loss of 50c. Monday's market was very unsettled and prices lost ground, with cows for the first time showing a tendency to follow steers. The top of the market was $5.90. The Winnipeg market was in a semi-demoralized condition and prices lost a lot of ground, with a $5.25 finish today and a heavy carryover. Calgary was also easy 50c lower with sellers taking most of the loss and nothing selling above $4.25. Edmonton had a bad market, with prices 50c lower and other classes 25c lower, with choicebeeves down $4.50. Prince Albert lost 50c, with tops at $4. Moose Jaw had a big run today, being 25c to 50c lower; Regina $4.50, a full 25c lower; Saskatoon $4.25, and Vancouver $6.25.

Export Trade With United Kingdom and United States

There were 703 cattle shipped ex St. John, N.B., to Birkenhead and Glasgow and there were 1870 beef cattle, 103 dairy cattle and 1926 calves shipped to Liverpool, London, making a total export of cattle and calves to all points for the week of 2,778 head.

Sales of Canadian cattle at Smithfield were steady, ranging from $6.75 to $8.25 for steers, from $6.10 to $7.25 for heifers, from $5.60 to $6.75 for cows, from $5.50 to $6.50 for bulls and $5 for a number of medium weight cows. There were holdovers and no sales of Canadian cattle on Wednesday. Canadians offered on Wednesday, 200 cattle, mostly cows, bulls, steers and dragny, with most classes 25c to 50c lower.

Chicago reports Canadian steers selling downward from $7 per cwt., with the bulk at $6.75 to $7, choice at $7.25.

Exporters took 450 cattle for Great Britain and steers and heifers cost mostly $6.50 to $5, with the bulk of cows selling from $5 to $5.50. Purchases for the United States.

Bangor Division reported by County of Hastings, SAVING AND EXCEPTING thereout and therefrom that part of the said lands described as follows: Commencing at a post planted in the centre of the East side of Lot 2 in the said Township of Hungerford; thence northerly in a northern direction 8 rods; thence at a right angle in a Westerly direction 18 rods, thence at a right angle in a Southerly direction 8 rods, thence at a right angle in an Eastern direction 18 rods to the place of beginning, containing 1 rood more or less, the said lands intended to be sold comprising 3 acres more or less. On the said farm there is said to be erected a dwelling house with suitable farm buildings.

The lands will be sold subject to reserve bid.

Board Room Gossip

SISCOE GOLD MINES MAKES STATEMENT—"Four directors are retired by ordinary vote which have been sent them that two of the present directors are dissatisfied and are anxious to have a New Board appointed. Including therein themselves. Without giving any reasons or arguments, we beg to refer you to Sisco Gold Mines Limited Prospectus issued for the year's (1935) working and feel sure you will agree with us that the Board should have your wishes, as expressed at the last meeting, carried into effect in order to protect your property safeguarded; development and ultimate profits accumulated over reserves greater than in the history of the mine; your cash position is the richest and the dividends regularly paid. All this has been accomplished notwithstanding the increased taxation; the lack of additional backing for improvement in living conditions of the staff; and the requirements of modern and advisable made development to maintain your property in good condition. In the objector, J. B. Lynch, president; writes that they submit the following to the shareholders for dissenting members; Leon Lajoie, K. C. and Herbert McLaughlin, K.C.

Yesterday's market was a quiet affair, the usual Monday dullness being accentuated by the period now or two would be welcomed as an aid to consolidating prices at prevailing levels. The general impression should shortly make its appearance and a broadening of the market base in addition within the next few weeks are:—Additional Steamships, the Oils, and tire companies, and the construction and allied companies.

The rise in the market has been a most encouraging factor in adding business. It is pointed out that the purchase of new stocks materially affects the earning power of fifty people. At the low of the depression 500 purchasers of 100 shares of stock holdings was very small. Today this has changed and the commission on such lines as automobiles can in large measure be attributed to the rise in security levels.

HOGS

Toronto, March 3.—(CP)—Prices were firmer today on the hog market, lots today with three point register-ing gains or 10 to 25 cents. Barrie and Penetanguishene sold high and makes the large gain while Brantford reported the 10 cent advance. The prices:—

Obaiman, $8.00; London, $8.00 Hull, $8.00; Stratford, $8.00; Kitchener, $8.00; Brantford, $8.25; Barrie $8.25; Peterboro $8.25.

THREE BURN TO DEATH AT KENORA

Believed Victims Overcome by Smoke

Kenora, Ont., March 3.—(CP)—Three persons burned to death in a fire that destroyed the Grateful Block here early today. Nine other occupants of the block on the second floor of the building managed to escape their way to safety down fire escapes.

The dead, Jack Smith, his wife, Bessie, and Mrs. J. Toon.

It is believed they were overcome by smoke and prevented from escaping with their neighbours. Identification was extremely difficult despite prompt efforts of firemen. Bodies of the victims were recovered from the debris and cause was unknown.

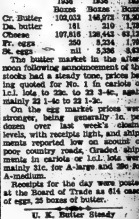
Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal March 3—Stocks of butter in storage at Montreal are considerably heavier than at this time last year. Cheese stocks also are larger, though the difference is negligible. The totals were announced yesterday at the Board of Trade, and also for the first week in day of the month. They follow with comparisons:

	Mar. 1	Feb.	Mar.
	1936	1936	1935
	lbs.	lbs.	lbs.
Cr. Butter	102,033	146,973	75,50
Salted Butter	181	181	1,18
Cheese	197,816	126,443	63,12
Fr. eggs	260	3,224	1,76
Sc. eggs	nil	3,336	1,00

The butter market in the afternoon followed advices received from stocks had a steady tone, prices being quoted for No. 1 in carton at 31½c, No. 2 at 31c and No. 3 at 30½c, equivalent basis 29 1-4c to 29 1-2c.



On the cheese market prices were stronger, being generally 1c. per dozen over last week's closing, with receipts light, and shipments reported low on account of poor country roads. Sales were chiefly made in carlots or l.c.l. lots were mainly 1st. for A-large and 2nd. for A-medium.

Receipts for the day were poster at 38 cases, Ontario at 814 cases of eggs, 25 boxes of butter.

U. K. Butter Steady

Ottawa, March 3.—(CP)—Butter was quiet and steady on United Kingdom markets, according to cable advice received today by the Department of Agriculture.

New Zealand and Australian sales from 82 to 83 shillings per cwt. (19.92 to 19.83 cents per lb.).

Redmen Take One Goal Lead Over Whitby Red Wings in Fast Game on Sticky Ice

Teams Evenly Matched With Goalies Standing Out

FEW PENALTIES

Players Tire From The Heavy Going in Latter Stages

Carrying too much speed for their rivals the Belleville "Redmen" scored a one-goal lead over the Whitby Red Wings, when they opened the "Highway squad" 4 to 3 in the third round of the intermediate O.H.A. play-downs at the Memorial Arena last night before a fair sized crowd. The return game will be played at Whitby on Wednesday night. The game was decidedly the most thrilling of the season, both teams rolled up many plays to the pleasure of nearly 2,000 fans, who kept the arena in fine shape for the contest. Carrying the play for the majority of the pastime, the Redmen appeared into a stalemate in the latter stages to allow a clean-cut goal getter to slip from their grasp, as the Red Wings staged a belated rush period that left the locals with a goal and a substantial early lead. The score was 2 to 1 at the end of the initial frame for Belleville with no scoring registered by the Whitby aggregation. The "Redmen" were one up as the visitors tied the count early in the second period on a fast goal-by Carl Morgan and Cy Partridge play combined to perfection. As the game in the last frame, only to have R. Sleightholm lower the boom on Whitby's hopes for the second time in the game when he scored the winner. Goalies Hurst and Morton stood between a large number of shots.

Always Carried Play

The "Redmen" entered into the contest profusely as they carried the play from the first drop of the puck and had numerous very fast rushes at both ends of the ice, but could not score. Defence men Ross Gerow, Cecil "Tug" Hurst, who stood between the "Redmen" goal and a much larger score, but the Red Wings apparently baled their nerves and managed to stem the onslaught. Whitby had its chances but was unable to get the range of Goalie Hurst to make the count four to two for Whitby. Johnston and Sleightholm broke away and raced in to take a crack at the open and lonely net, but the Redmen defence managed to stem the tide. Cy Partridge pass to Carl, who scored. Whitby moved the puck in fast forward and went on the offensive but Hurst was a case-of-it in front of the Red Wings' net, Cy Partridge raced the length of the ice and Hurst to make the count four to two for Belleville with a minute and a half to spare. Johnston broke away and raced in to take a crack at the open

Picture of Lil finaking into her mind. Lil, shy and ungainly in the absurd blue satin dress of the old Primrose Ride days, Lil sitting on the edge of the bed in the Child City hotel, staring her hard worldly wisdom. Lil, as she had last seen her, in her pathetic finery, slipping away in the crowd that she might not complicate Dale's life.

A true friend! Dale's truest, oldest friend! And she had let Lil slip away, so die alone. She had hesitated to share with Lil because of the sneers of the Kendalls, and their lofty friends. Grief—shame—helplessness storming through her.

In that bitter moment Dale hated them all—Mrs. Kendall—Mimi—yes, even Brant!

CHAPTER IV.
THE NIGHT VISITOR.

Dale could not eat dinner. Impossible to sit calmly at the table with Mimi—with Mrs. Kendall. They and their kind had killed Lil. Hunt, pallard old Lil. They had driven her out to die like a rat in a hole. And she, Dale, had helped them.... She had been as badly worse even, for she had turned her back on Lil last night, scorned and despises her.

Hot shame welled up in Dale's heart like a fountain. She slipped away from the house out into the pine scented darkness.

A still night. No moon as yet, but many stars. Stars encircling the black sky. And the black lake below holding their flashing reflections so that the girl seemed to be moving star filled space. Night air, soft as a kiss when she held her face to the sky.

Was there something in the sweet old childish belief—when people died, did they go among the stars? Lil.... going among the stars, knocking the moon askew. Her jolly laugh booming between the worlds—tipping the milky way.

What an absurd thought! But what if people were, in some mysterious way, absorbed back into the warm heart of nature? Lil, who had been so lonely underneath, a part of everything now. Part of the night and the stars.... able to see Dale crying like this? Knowing the ache in her heart—granting her forgiveness.

But, no. Lil was back there in the roar of the city. Blank rest in the loneliness and poverty from which Dale had escaped.

Poverty.....yes. Dale had escaped poverty. But she was lonely. Perhaps as lonely as ever Lil had been. Even the thought of Brant was unreal. No comfort in the thought of Brant.....

Some splashed by on the dark lake. A burst of song. Laughter. Two couples—Nancy's friends. God's forsaken ones, who didn't know what it was to be cold and hungry and live in terror of losing one's job. In some curious way Dale seemed nearer to Lil now, She resented all this for Lil's sake.

Dale looked back at the Kendall house and violent rage took possession of her. Long windows lavishly lighted. Lanterns stretched between the trees. The people who lived there were sleek, well fed people. They were her enemies—hers and Lil's.....

Dale was crying again. Blinded by tears. Stumbling and blundering into trees. She was back at the entrance gate without being clear as to how she got there. She was on the driveway below the dark sun porch.

She gave a little scream.

What had seemed part of a hydrangea bush stirred. A man close by her. Dale's knees went weak. She was seized and held. Phil's face looming above her in the starlight.

"Dale—Dale! didn't mean to frighten you!" His voice was sharp with alarm.

"Darling! Don't cry!"

Dale was clinging to him. Pressing her quivering mouth against his coat to stifle her sobs. She was saying over and over in a choking voice, "Lil's dead. Phil, Lil's dead."

It was quite natural that she should find Phil and tell this to him. The old days had quickened to life. The old back-stage days when she and Phil were sweethearts. Tinsel and glitter flung over yawning depths of misery. Phil hadn't liked Lil. Nor had, the old trouper approved of him. But they had understood each other. They had all gone through the mill together, they understood, as these sleek, well fed people could never understand. A comfort to have Phil now—faulty, handsome, ruthless Phil, who had, nevertheless, known the bitter tang of these old days.

Phil talking, in that voice which someone had said was like warm brown velvet.

That was Lil De Vos's epitaph.

Long moments Dale stood, clinging to Phil. Tears....and her whole body quivering. She finally drew away, over a long, shaky breath.

"It was—it was the shock. Picking up the paper and seeing it like that...."

Realisation began to overtake Dale. She and Phil were in the side drive. Fewer fragrance rising about them in the dark. The tall lift of the house near at hand. And Phil.....Why, how had Phil appeared here?

Dale's startled eyes flashed to Phil's in the starlight.

"Phil, why did you come down?"

"You ought to know!" The man's voice was a trifle sulky. "I told you I was letting everything go smash for you. When I heard the rotten trick Erma played I kicked over the traces. We had it hot and heavy believe me! A regular second act scene! I was all burnt up, Dale."

They had quarrelled over her! Her name bandied back and forth. And Erma would repeat it!—Oh, she would tell it about spitefully! Dale knew the relish with which it would be seized upon. Helena Du Bois—Carol Harrington—Eleanor—that awful laughter. "Have you heard the latest dirt? Oh, it's rich—!" And Brant....Brant would smile.

Fear shook Dale. "Oh, you shouldn't!" she gasped.

"I know!" came Phil's resentful voice. "I'm making you risk all—I think." Dale felt his arm sweep back the dark bulk of house. "I'm at the dark bulk of house. "I'm settled. I admit it! I always have been. It's my nature. Well, at least I'm honest! I want you so much I don't care how I get you."

"Hush!"

"I thought I wanted this sort of thing, too. I thought Dale was going to shock me up to a nice, soft place on top. And now I know that all I want is you. God, the irony of it! When I had you I wasn't satisfied. I had to see you belong to someone else before I woke up."

"No, Phil. Please...."

"I know. You don't believe me. The Lord knows you have no call to after the way I acted! But just the same it's so, Dale. Why, look—I could have married that foul Hanford woman. I intended to do that very thing. Then I looked up at you that afternoon—little gold - and - brown thing, like a picture in the candle light. Oh, Dale, the days I've thought of you when everything went dead wrong! Remembering how game you were; I found out that being flat broke didn't matter much to you had someone to share it. You can't imagine, Dale—"

Yes, she could. There was no present image of Brant and Mimi and all the complicated schemes of their kind. Dale was back again in the frantic, penniless years. Back in the struggle and glitter of night clubs. Seeing pictures....

Phil and Brant perched on high stools in all night oyster shops, young sidd ardent—incongruous in those shabby surroundings. She and Phil trudging up dark hills after the show to save the carfare. Cheap restaurants—"Shall we go without dessert and tip the waiter? ...Oh, thunder! Let him whistle—I'm too hungry!" One night stands, shivering in chill dawn at country railway stations. Phil, so endlessly in her early youth....

One couldn't get away from that. They were a mortgage on one's life. After all she belonged to those days. Phil and pool cold Lil....she was their kind. All through the mill together. And now Lil was gone. Just she and Phil left. Now fumbled up the complex years which had come between them.

Mimi pulled Brant's arm.

"Come in," she murmured. "Come the greater part of the furniture.

Dale's startled eyes flashed to Phil's in the starlight.

"Phil, why did you come down?"

"You ought to know!" The man's voice was a trifle sulky. "I told you I was letting everything go smash for you. When I heard the rotten trick Erma played I kicked over the traces. We had it hot and heavy believe me! A regular second act scene! I was all burnt up, Dale."

Sally was sent to Honolulu for an American education following the footsteps of her illustrious late father, who became China's first president, Dr. Sun died at Pekin on March 12, 1925. Dead, he has become a symbol of the awakening of China, an awakening which his daughter may attempt to further according to all indications. Many think that when the time is ripe a woman's hand may be yet to the wheel of state in the Orient. She continues in study and observe, the feminine question mark of the east.

POPE PIUS XI RECEIVES CHURCHES' CONGRATULATIONS ON 34TH ANNIVERSARY—Seated upon his throne in the Vatican, his eminence Pope Pius XI receives the congratulations of numerous cardinals and high-ranking church prelates upon the fourteenth anniversary of the coronation as head of the Roman Catholic hierarchy. Cardinals and church leaders travelled from many parts of the world to be present at the festivities in Vatican City celebrating the occasion.

COMMISSION WILL STUDY CANADA'S PENAL ADMINISTRATION—A three-man royal commission, charged with the duty of studying administration of Canada's penal system and possibility for improvement and reform was set up by order-in-council at Ottawa. Members are Mr. Justice Joseph Archambault, judge of the Quebec Superior court, who will head the body; R. W. Craig, K.C., Winnipeg barrister and Harry W. Anderson, former managing editor of the Toronto Globe. Allan J. Fraser, Ottawa lawyer, will be secretary. The commission will be given unlimited powers to investigate and report on all phases of penitentiary life in each of Canada's penal institutions. Above is shown the block of isolation cells at Portsmouth penitentiary, Kingston, Ont., where convicts are confined as punishment for breaking prison discipline. Below are members of the commission. A complete study of penitentiary problems has been urged for several years by parliament members, notably Miss Agnes Macphail.

This was the worst failure that American interests have suffered in Shanghai, and was so extensive that it virtually impoverished many thousands of people in China, and sent reverberations through the financial centres of the world. Raven, a native of Alamo, California, journeyed to Shanghai in 1908. From that time on his rapid rise to the top reads like the career of an Horatio Alger hero. At the time of his confession he and his family, consisting of a boy and three girls, lived in a palatial home in the fashionable residential section of Shanghai.

THE VAGARIES OF WINTER—When the pre-spring thaws turn ice-choked rivers into melting torrents, anything is liable to occur. For instance, huge ice chunks were deposited in back yards at Logansport, Ind., by the receding waters of the Eel river after virtually inundating a section of the city. And then, there's the scene from Pittsburg, a miniature Venice setting, as the Allegheny river overflowed its banks along River Avenue. This is something new in policemen covering their beat, eh, what?

RUSSIA WILL FIGHT JAPAN IF NECESSARY—STALIN

SAVE $6,280,689 BY NEW CONTRACTS SAYS MR. ROEBUCK

"Back to Niagara" Policy of Hydro Commission Says Speaker

EAST LOOKED AFTER

Highest Price Paid For Power Will be $12.50 Per H.P.

Toronto, Mar. 4 (CP)—A year after his sharp attack in the Ontario legislature that precipitated cancellation of the Quebec power contracts, Attorney General Roebuck has appeared again with a Hydro speech which this time has saved new contracts with two of the companies designed to save Ontario $6,280,689 this year.

Announcing the contracts with the Gatineau and Maclaren - Quebec companies as he started another long address last night, Mr. Roebuck coupled the announcement with a forecast of a "back to Niagara" policy for Hydro.

"The policy of the government as he declared, was to the effect of saying no possible from entangling alliances with private power companies and the policy of the Hydro Commission is back to Niagara."

Reason for delaying until December the proclamation of the legislation passed in April lay, he said, in threats of reprisals from certain persons in Quebec but the proclamation of the eastern system would face a power shortage should Quebec power be cut off.

Considers Niagara System.

The Attorney-General devoted last night to consideration of the Niagara system, but in the future will be paid a deficit of $4,676,679 for the period ending Oct. 31, 1936, against $23,103,979, an increase of $684,053 over the previous year, and expenditures of $28,780,658 against $24,104,077. He blamed the deficit on "the inspection and engineering contracts."

Mr. Roebuck announced two agreements with Gatineau, one for delivery of 36-cycle power to the Niagara district, another for 25-cycle power to the eastern district. There was also an agreement with Maclaren-Quebec.

The Gatineau agreement concerning the Niagara district provides for 260,000 horsepower being held available. Of this, 100,000 h.p. will be taken until the end of April this year and after that date a minimum of 160,000 horsepower only, unless otherwise ordered, together with 33,000 horsepower of immediate standby.

The price will be $13.50 a horsepower for the minimum of 160,000 horsepower, $10.00 a horsepower for the 33,000 and $1.75 a horsepower for the general power.

The former Gatineau contract was at $12.00 a horsepower and that contract was to run 30 years but the new contract is for only 20 years.

The Maclaren contract is for 40,000 horsepower at $12.50 a horsepower. The contract runs for 20 years instead of 40 as formerly and the former contract set a price of $15 a horsepower.

Terms Far Real Similar.

Terms of the contract for the eastern district were explained by the Attorney-General and he promised to discuss its nature today.

Mr. Roebuck secured a report into with the Ottawa Valley Company or the Beauharnois Light Company, he said. Ottawa Valley had issued a writ when negotiations were in progress with Beauharnois. That company, said Mr. Roebuck, made various reservations including any rights it might have in respect to its former contract with the Commission.

"For the four years from 1926 to 1930 dividends," he said, "were declared on power costs as a result of the 'par' agreement which amounted to $23,472,839. We have paid to the power companies in gross amounts from the year 1926 to the year 1935 inclusive the sum of $23,652,237 so that our saving in power costs during the next four years is thus approximately $4,000,000 of the total amounts paid to the four companies since the first horsepower arrived at the western Gatineau contract."

May Reduce Rates.

"No one can look far into the future," he said, "with any precision but this much seems clear beyond all peradventure, that the Commission will in the very near future be in a position to announce reductions in the charges of power in the municipalities in most substantial amounts."

History of the frequency changer machine at Chats Falls was disclosed by Mr. Roebuck. A motion had appeared in the press that the Westinghouse Company at Hamilton had stopped construction of such a device for the Maclaren Company after cancellation of the contracts.

Protection of Mongolia Point in Soviet Policy, Says Russian Dictator

He Admits No Border Incidents Created on Frontier

FAR EAST DANGER

Says Centre of Danger May Shift Even to Europe

New York, Mar. 4 (AP)—Russia under Joseph Stalin is ready to war with Japan if necessary to preserve Outer Mongolia's independence, the Soviet dictator said in an interview given Roy W. Howard, chairman of the board of Scripps-Howard newspapers, and published today under a world copyright by the New York World-Telegram.

Japan, he ventures to attack the Mongolian peoples' republic and seeks to destroy its independence, we have to be able to help that republic," Howard quoted Stalin as saying in reply to a direct question.

The interview was held in Stalin's office in the Kremlin in Moscow and lasted for three hours in which the Soviet leader and Howard discussed the Far East situation, particularly the war threat, the possibility of war in central Europe and Soviet-American relations.

Centre May Shift to Frontier.

"Have recent events developed any new Japanese activities in this region which have been confirmed by the Soviets as of an aggressive nature?" Howard asked.

"The Japanese seem to be continuing to concentrate their troops on the frontiers of the Mongolian Peoples' Republic," he quoted Stalin as saying, "but so far there have been no new attempts to create border incidents."

It is "impossible to say" when the next war will come, Stalin asserted, adding:

"Nowadays wars are not declared. They simply start."

He asserted Japan and Germany were the focal points of war danger.

War Clouds East and West.

"Where are the war clouds more threatening, in the East or in the west?" Howard inquired.

"It is difficult to say," was the answer. "Both in the west and both are smouldering.

"Instead of either of these, the Italian-Ethiopian conflict is an episode.

"For the moment, perhaps, the situation in the Far East is more threatening in the centre of danger may shift to Europe. It is symptomatic that the Japanese militarist speaks peace he cannot dispense with threats."

Stalin, genial, without dramatic, displaying little of the pose that has made him known to the world of 173,000,000 people, declared in simple straightforward language and frankly furnished the "chief war menace today."

Restriction of World.

"You recall the origins of the last world war—the desires of the great powers to redivide the world. Today we face the same state of affairs," he said.

"There are certain states which do not have not shared equally in the distribution of territories, markets, raw materials, spheres of influence.

"Capitalism in its imperialistic phase is a system which regards war as a legitimate instrument for settling international disputes. Although it does not give this method legal status, it accepts it in fact."

Believes One-Hour Parking Will Prove Favorable to Shoppers

Belleville's new one-hour parking by-law soon to be enforced in the downtown area will be a contributory factor toward better business in local shops, in the opinion of Mr. J. C. Herity, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

"Under the new system more parking space will or should be available. This means more room for those driving cars into Belleville from out-of-town. Business generally should increase. As it was the other way with unlimited time to park in front of the stores, many farmers' wives only from Ameliasburgh, drove around calmly to find a place in front of a store and then left again complaining audibly," added Secretary Herity.

Originally sponsored by the local Chamber of Commerce, the one-hour time limit had been up for discussion on many occasions. This year a resolution to that effect was forwarded to the city council and received a unanimous vote of approval.

Will Never Experiment With Quints—Dr. Dafoe

Toronto, March 4.—(CP)—The Dionne quintuplets never will be used as human guinea pigs, Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, their physician, assured 1,000 members of the Empire Club in a luncheon address today. They would be given every safeguard for medical and surgical advances but never would be the basis of experimentation, he said.

Dr. Dafoe outlined in the Callander physician field of the birth of the quintuplets, their subsequent stays, thanked everyone who had helped them and told of their part, ending characteristically "Then, there's myself. I took after the odds and ends."

His said the babies would never be taken away from their parents at Ottya and Eistre Dionne. A more pleasant task, he said, was that now in the relations between the parents and guardians. The parents visited the children's hospital every day now and Mrs. Dionne helped with the feeding and has since played with them. He hoped they would play a greater part in the children's care in the future.

HOTEL SECTION IS DESTROYED

231 Guests Routed And Radio Station Burned

Muskegon, Mich., March 4—(AP)—A four-storey section of the 600-room Occidental hotel here was destroyed early today by fire which routed 231 guests, and caused 2 of them to hospitals. Firemen said they believed there was no loss of life.

Four personal were rescued from upper rooms. Several other guests left with only the clothes they had on, which the fire was confined leaped to the second.

Numerous shops and a broadcasting station (WKBC), all occupying quarters in the building, were destroyed. The hotel management estimated the loss at $150,000.

Precious Package Sent Across Continent And Ocean

A small quantity of earth taken from the grave in Belleville Cemetery of the late Leonard Whillans, whose family resides at 130 Cathcart street, after being carried a journey of thousands of miles over land and sea, now rests in a Wolverhampton, England, Cemetery. An unusual story of sympathy and affection has been told in a recent issue of the Wolverhampton Express and Star. Not long ago Mr. F. T. Willes of Bank Road, Bilstonbrul, Wolverhampton, received a parcel from Samuel Willans of Burnaby, Vancouver, B.C., containing the earth.

Some time after Leonard Willes lost his life while fishing in the Thames River in Ontario, his brother, Samuel, of Vancouver, with a daughter, visited Belleville a distance of 4,500 miles and took from his brother's grave in Belleville Cemetery, a small quantity of soil and on returning to Vancouver sent same parcel to Mr. Willes, now 81 years of age living at Wolverhampton, England, with a request that all should be buried in the same grave in Penn Fields Churchyard, where his mother and one of his sisters are laid to rest.

Not long ago Mr. F. T. Wilkes carried out his son's wishes, and so after a journey of nine or ten thousand miles, a little bit of Canadian soil finds a final resting place in Wolverhampton—dimly the between the Old Country and one of her Dominions and between members of a family in far-separated lands.

Mr. F. T. Willes, who belongs to Oseley, England, has lived at Blackhill for 39 years. He was born in Canada and two in Canada.

GERMAN LAWYER AT OLD BAILEY DENIES SPYING

Letter Relating to Extracting of Information Is Read

FIRST FOREIGN TRIAL

Letter Tells of Contact With U.S. and English War-time Spies

By BURDETTE JOHNS
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, March 4—(AP)—A letter in which Dr. Hermann Goetz, German lawyer and writer, said he had been able to extract information from British and United States aviators was read by the prosecutor today at the opening of his trial for espionage.

Mr. Goetz pleaded innocence to charges of violating the British official secrets act at the start of his hearing in old Bailey — British first foreign spy trial since the end of the Great War.

Two women were among those accused for the jury.

Letter Dated Hamburg

The Prosecutor, J. C. Casels, read a letter dater Hamburg, Sept. 15, 1935, on a sheet of paper headed, "Dr. Hermann Goetz, solicitor and specialist on English law, the United States and American law."

Captioned "special application," the letter said:

"I point out I consider myself particularly suitable for employment in the intelligence service," within what the applicant called "the sphere of the German air ministry."

The document described Goetz' intelligence work during the Great War and pointed out he lived a year and a half in the United States and three and a half years in London.

"Drawing Room Tones"

During that time, the letter said, he was "again in contact with American and English war-time aviators."

The document, said, "I am even now still in touch with military aviators on the active list, or I probably can get in touch with them again.

"I am successful in my methods of interrogation, in which I use the drawing room tone. There is hardly an aviator concerned I am not able to persuade to make more or less important statements."

Man Arrested In Dental Chair Pleads Guilty to Theft

Brantford, Ont., March 4—(CP)—A plea of guilty to theft of a watch was made by Armand Maunel when arraigned today. Maunel was arrested in a dentist's chair as he was about to have a tooth extracted. He was remanded in custody until Friday.

STAINS OF BLOOD FOUND ON RUGS AND CLOTHING

Evidence Given by Woman Who Cleaned up Doctor's House

2 ROOMS LOCKED

Woman Ordered to Give Good Scrub Out to 'Yellow' Bathtub

Manchester, England, Mar. 4 (AP)

—A woman who cleaned the home of Dr. Buck Ruxton after, the prosecution contended, the doctor killed his wife and maid, testified today at his trial today she found several bloodstained carpets.

The witness, Mrs. Mary Hampshire, who failed during her testimony, also said she found a bathtub stained "very dirty yellow" and Dr. Ruxton asked her to give a "good scrub out" to the tub where the prosecution charges he dismembered the bodies of the victims.

Mrs. Hampshire identified straw was strewn on the floor of the Ruxton home, from the entrance hall to the top floor, and two bedroom doors were locked Sept. 15 when she went there to clean.

Towels Partly Burned.

She said she found a blood stained shirt and towels in the yard of the house, some of them partly burned, and added Dr. Ruxton gave her husband a stained suit which the physician explained had become soiled when he cut his hand opening a fruit tin.

Mrs. Hampshire said Dr. Ruxton came to her home the next day and at his request she removed identification tapes from the suit which he burned them.

Several times near collapse during her testimony Mrs. Hampshire fainted then, interrupting the court for five minutes.

Dr. Ruxton took an active part in conducting his own defense. The Indian-blooded doctor has made voluminous notes throughout the first two days of the trial.

Each night, upon returning to his cell in the nearby Strangeways jail, he has been visited by the slim dark haired Phyllis Jackson, secretary to one of the attorneys and the only woman to speak to the defendant since his arrest last year.

To her he dictates eagerly from the notes made during the day's proceedings, emphasizing points to be brought to the attention of his legal advisers.

JURY LEAVES COURT ROOM

Hull, Que., March 4—(CP)—The jury trying six men for the murder of Armand Nadeau today left the court room for the third time since the trial started while counsel argued the admissibility of a statement allegedly made to police by George Chenier, one of the accused.

Surrender of Ethiopia As North is Crushed Is Predicted by Italians

Emperor is Expected to Seek Peace Through League

ARMIES WIPED OUT

North Front Defence Collapses Says Italian Commander

ROME, March 4.—(AP)—Marshal Pietro Badoglio, Commander of the Italian forces in Ethiopia, reported to his government today the entire Ethiopian defence on the northern front has collapsed.

London, March 4.—(AP)— The Reuters correspondent in Addis Ababa reported today that it had been learned that Emperor Haile Selassie Halle Selassie probably will agree to peace negotiations within the framework of the League of Nations.

With the Italian High Command in Northern Ethiopia, March 4 — (CP)—Italian troops in Haile Selassie's surrender to Italy's victorious armies was regarded as an important certainty here today.

The crumbling forces administered by Marshal Pietro Badoglio in the north and General Rodolfo Graziani in the south, on the contrast, bear as far as effective striking power is concerned, a shell of the force of eight armies Ethiopia originally placed in the field, Italian observers pointed out.

SCHOOL TAX ISSUE IN NEXT ELECTION SAYS C. P. A. HEAD

Toronto, March 4.—(CP)—Mistreating a pupil, the case of 1,500 persons here last night, Rev. J. R. Thomson, President of the Canadian Protestant Alliance, said the question or diversion of taxes to Separate Schools in Ontario would be made an issue in the next provincial election.

"We will go into the constituency and fight on the issue of Protestant patriotism and let the people know what kind of a man they have sent to the legislature. We will be allowed. The Chief, a Catholic graduate and superintendent of the Indian reservation, is interested only in what life conservation in an Indian reservation.

He explained in precise English that purpose was to protect persons the American buffalo on this continent, to take care of our people in peril. "It is necessary to save the buffalo and all big game when the hills again abandoned as they did years ago."

NAVY ESTIMATES MILLIONS HIGHER

Net Total of 1936 Estimates Placed Roughly At $348,150,000

(By George Hambleton)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 4.—(CP)—The navy estimates for 1936 issued today were higher by a net increase nearly $50,000,000—over the estimates for 1935, but excluding supplementary estimates last year of £4,- 850,000 or $23,250,000. The net total of the 1936 estimates is £69,630,000 roughly $348,150,00.

The increase is only the beginning. It does not cover any additional cost for the armaments plan outlined in yesterday's White Paper.

Nitro-Glycerin For Heart; Explosive Given for Angina

WINDSOR, Ont., March 4.—(CP) — Nitro-Glycerin, the very thought of which has been known to cause palpitation of the heart, is now used as a remedy for angina pectoris.

Dr. Percy Wilson Hall, one of Canada's United States foremost living cardiologists, told members of the Windsor County Medical Association about it last night.

Dr. Hall explained the explosive chemical is now given to relieve the pain in cases of angina pectoris. Nitro-Glycerin he said tends to attack vigorous men on cold winter mornings as they step outdoors after a hurried breakfast.

Four cone-shaped tablets of the explosive, or removal of the thyroid gland, were radical but effective treatment for heart trouble. He gave as an example a case of a prominent Detroit man relinquishing practice due to angina pectoris but after a total recuperation, thyroidectomy, now resumed his practice.

Dr. White said it was also possible to relieve the pain attendant upon pectoris by antisyphilitin or by injecting injection into the nerve.

Persistent and severe palpitations of the heart, he said, are now being relieved and cured with the nitro-glycerine tablet. Referring to this treatment in some detail, Dr. White told of a 17-year-old boy patient. He entered the hospital with rapid irregular palpitations of the heart, heart beats ranging from 90 to 140 a minute and any succession of quickening spells quintuples palpitations. The boy afterwards was able to work as a barber in an amusement park.

HON. MR. STEVENS IS SUPPORTER OF U.S. TRADE PACT

Says When Minister He Had Suggested Pact Along Same Lines

BENNETT LETTER READ

Dunning Says Former Premier Estopped From Criticizing Bill

Ottawa, Mar. 4 (CP)—On the first major issue before the new parliament Hon. H. H. Stevens, Reconstruction party leader and former Conservative minister, will line up with the Liberal government and stand against his former Conservative colleagues.

Mr. Stevens yesterday announced he would support the Canada-United States trade agreement while the Conservative party headed by Opposition Minister R. B. Bennett opposed it.

The Reconstructionist said he could not consistently oppose the treaty as the Minister of Trade and Commerce, he had studied trade relations of Canada and recommended a reciprocal agreement along the lines of the present pact.

Basis For Greater Trade.

The treaty could be a basis for still better trade relations between the two countries in the future, Mr. Stevens believed, and should be improved in a broad and generous spirit. While Canada reserved the right to raise the preferential tariff against the United States, he thought this should only be done after consultation with Washington.

Hon. Charles Dunning read from a letter written by Premier Bennett to R. H. Bennett to Washington in Nov., 1934, as the basis of treaty negotiations and said Mr. Bennett was forever estopped from criticizing the treaty. The former prime minister had offered to the United States many concessions now embodied in the treaty.

Right To Change.

The government, said the minister, had the right to raise or lower the intermediate tariff. It proposed to retain the right from time to time as it believed the interests of the people of Canada warranted.

Concern about the possible effect of the treaty on Canada's relations with the rest of the British Empire was expressed by Mr. Harris and Mr. Oliver. Mr. Dunning replied that the treaty would make Canadians and Americans less than before. Empire trade pacts would make them British and the United might government to negotiate a new and more satisfactory trade agreement with the United States. Canada could once lost growing trade relations with the United States would be able to create a division in sentiment between Canada and Britain.

Fear Of Switzerland.

Payment of fines on the Australian Wheat Board was criticized and submitted by T. L. Church (Conservative, Toronto Spadina) on behalf of Leopolis, Minister of Justice, found no serious objection to the principle of the payment but said it by the attorney General of the Province who administered the criminal law. At his suggestion Mr. Church allowed the bill to stand over until later in the session.

J. Heaps (C.C.F., Winnipeg North), leader of the extreme leftship of imported literature as carried by the post office department and A. W. Neill (Ind. Comox-Alberni) thought the person who had received the literature deserved shaking up and that some members of the staff were asleep on the job.

MAY RE-ESTABLISH CHEESE BOARD AT KINGSTON THIS YEAR

With the formation of a new executive body, first steps have been taken in Kingston towards the establishment of a cheese board for that district. If successful, it will be the first time in many years that Kingston has had such a board.

At a meeting held in the Dairy School this week, following were elected as executive: Lloyd Ford, pare plans for its establishment; President, Alexander Mowat, Glenburnie; first vice-president, Harold Lyon, Latimer; second vice-president, Gregors Kirkpatrick, Ballersrae; secretary-treasurer, Harold Wartman, Portsmouth.

MOTORISTS HEED MAYOR'S SUGGESTION

The please-don't-splash-pedestrians response to local appeals for a few days ago by Mayor Harry Hill has been bearing fruit, in the opinion of police stationed on beat in the downtown section.

With the rain and gutters running inches deep in water on the city's main streets and intersections behind many an in any traffic, the genyal run of motor car drivers have been more careful—noticeably so, according to one officer. Fewer complaints than in the past year over being splashed have been heard so far.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES ON WANE IN THE CITY

Although several cases of measles still exist in the city, generally all cases have been of a mild nature, so mild in many instances that patients have not even found it necessary to be confined to bed, it was stated by the local Department of Health officials. Only a few cases of scarlet fever have been reported but these are all under observation at the Isolation Hospital.

POLICE BLOTTER

District Provincial Police today are investigating the theft of 12 chickens stolen from the farm of D. Wallis, Consecon, on the 2nd. They were stolen from the barn on Mr. Wallis's property last night.

The latest number of transients to be afforded a night's lodging at the police station the past year was on hand last night, when 17 were given shelter. The advent of warmer weather is attributed as a paramount cause of the increase in numbers, police officials state.

Answering a hurried call to the north section of the city at an early hour this morning, P.C. Ellis apprehended a man giving his name as James Dempsey, Belleville, who was found loitering in the vicinity of Mr. Jones' residence, that adjoins the Belleville General Hospital. He was taken to the police station and questioned it was discovered, that he had been in possession of a pair of field glasses and is alleged to have broken window pane in the nurses' residence. The accused will be charged on a nominal charge of vagrancy, but subsequently allowed to return to his home after being instructed to appear in Police Court on Monday morning.

No major motor accidents were reported locally during the past 24 hours, although police found a Ford sedan automobile abandoned in the ditch near the Ontario Regional building at the western extremity of the city early today. The vehicle, owned by Ontario Provincial Police number Y133, was reported to have been stolen from a local garage. The vehicle is owned locally, police later ascertained.

MRS. G. H. STOBIE TO SING AT CONCERT

The Leader of the Belleville Municipal Band announces that the Band Concert for Sunday evening will be a very enjoyable event. Two new numbers have added, three instruments, the reed, cornet, alto, baritone and trombone will be added to the band.

Mrs. Stobie has kindly assented to sing "The Holy City" and "Jesus Christ is Risen Today."

NEW HEADQUARTERS USED FOR FIRST TIME

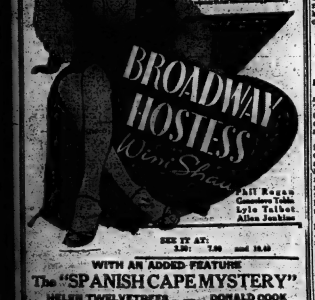
One of the most successful and largely attended meetings on record was held by members of the local Dunmore Club last evening in their new rooms at the 24th Battery Headquarters. Following the general business of the evening at which plans were made for an active membership campaign, the remainder was devoted to a program of entertainment and dancing. In order to provide funds for future meetings a promise of the donation of a piano for the club was made by Gunner Walter Allore of the Battery. Gunner Allore's promise was greeted over by Fred Wiggins, president.

UNEARTHS OLD COPY OF DAILY INTELLIGENCER

"Fifty-six years ago a boss carrier boy of a route of the Daily and Weekly Intelligencer of this city dropped an annual New Year's issue addressed to one of his subscribers in which through a printed column relating to local and district events wished his customers "A Happy New Year and Many To All." This week, time-followed with age, but still in perfect state of preservation this interesting memento was unearthed by Mr. Frank Orr, fireman of No. 1. Brigade of the local fire department. The double page address is dated 1880.

Return Applications to Dept. Of Fisheries

Applications for fry with which to re-stock the waters of Ontario in this district, bearing the Hon. Dr. Faulkner's official okay, have been returned to the Ontario Department of Game and Fisheries. Word regarding the records sent out by the local Fish and Game Protective association is expected to be heard soon, it was stated by Mr. Jos. Shortt today.



HIGHER TEMPERATURES MELT HEAVY ICE

Spring gained its warming victory over the last vestiges of winter today, bringing the first actual relief in lengthy spell of cold weather. Today along the business section, while, several inches deep in gutters chopped through the heavy ice, gurgled noisily to catch basins, employees of the public works department strove to remove the accumulation of flooded walks and roads. Today what is hoped to be the last of the many days of cold weather, so far this year, will be sent on its way.

Indiscriminate Use of Air-Rifles

It has been brought to the attention of the Ontario Intelligencer that several young boys in the city and more particularly on the East End have been using air-rifles in the city in a somewhat reckless manner. In addition to this, they have been taking pot-shots at their schoolmates and others with the result that one boy this week was shot in the corner of his eye, narrowly missing the eyeball. Another boy was shot in the hand which it is said has penetrated would have badly damaged the sight.

Another boy was deliberately shot at by one of his companions on Monday of this week and while the pellets did no damage to his person there is the very good possibility of serious injury resulting from such irresponsible action.

Parents of children sporting these so-called playthings certainly have a responsibility in warning their sons about the proper use of air-rifles that should not be overlooked.

There is a city by-law forbidding the use of fire-arms within the city limits and air-rifles are included in this classification. The chief of police has instructed his officers to be on the lookout for offenders and it is found wrestling this law they will receive the maximum punishment allowed.

One Parent in Full Communion View of Presbyterian Court In Case of Infant Baptism

Presbytery at Kingston Make Recommendation on Question of Infant Baptism

REPORTS PRESENTED

The Presbytery of Kingston of the Presbyterian Church in Canada met in St. Andrew's Church, Kingston on Tuesday, third of March, with Moderator, Rev. D. C. Hill, B.D., in the chair and the clerk, Rev. Dr. R. J. Craig M.A., officiating in that capacity. The court opened in due form and the usual routine of business was transacted.

Miss Mowat, representing the W. M. S. Presbyterial extended a greeting invitation to all the Presbyters and the annual meeting of the W. M. S. a body which will be held at Trenton on the 24th inst., afternoon and evening. The annual meeting on the half of the Presbytery thanked Miss Mowat for her invitation and urged the members of the court to be present at the convention.

Correspondence was read by the Clerk and due observance was made with regard to the same. Applications for reception were reported and also by student Gordon Stephens.

Rev. Dr. Stephens reported the decease of one of his elders in the person of John Greenley, who served as elder for 30 years, and Presbytery instructed that a letter of sympathy and appreciation to his bereaved widow be forwarded by the W. Stephens and Rev. A. Cameron, Rev. W. A. Hunter of St. Peter's, Madoc, reported on behalf of the Committee of Evangelism, Church Life and Work. The committee also brought in a recommendation that advantage be taken of holding preEaster services of prayer and fellowship. The committee also called attention to the general lack of life in the church that in the case of infant baptism at least one of the parents should be a member in full communion of the church and that a profession of faith be required before baptism be observed in the church. The committee recommended accordingly.

Rev. Trevor Pennington presented a novel feature of the proceedings was the presentation of a silver trowel which was used by the late Samuel Houston, D.D. when submitting Cooke's Church, Kingston, and in laying the cornerstone of the Trevor Presbyterian Church Sept. 22, 1881. The trowel was presented, by Dr. Houston's daughter, the late Dr. Campbell. It was gratefully received by Presbytery and placed in custody of the Madoc and Trevor charge.

The moderator, as mission convener presented the Home Mission report. It was recommended that the Home Mission Board be petitioned to provide the usual grant to the Deseronto Mission field for March and that further provision be made during that date. Grants for their augmented charges were approved by Presbytery. The moderator was appointed to support the petition before the Assembly's Board of Home Missions. Appointment of Mr. J. C. McPhee, student missionary as ordained to Rev. Dr. Cameron's and the Deseronto-Wilton united charge was sanctioned.

The standing committees were named for 1936-37. These remained the same as in 1935-6 with the exception that Rev. Harold Reid was appointed Convener of S. S. and Y. P. S. in the room of Rev. R. M. Scott. The allocations to the Budget for 1936 remained without change for the ensuing year. There was a slight increase in the grants over those of 1934.

Rev. S. M. Scott presented the report of S. S. and Young People's Societies. It was recommended that Presbytery be responsible for prompt and accurate reports which are due by April 1st to the convener of Presbytery's committee and that Home Department work be extended to the Deseronto field on application. He stated that the ministers' conferences in the fall were very favorable, but not so with regard to congregational contributions.

Rev. Dr. Stephens reported on Students who were studying with a view to the ministry. Two from St. Andrew's Kingston are pursuing their studies in Queen's College. Mr. J. McPhee was commended to the ministry to the Wilton group and Mr. Gordon Stephens continues studies in arts.

Rev. A. E. Cameron was appointed representative on Synod's Business Committee.

The following presbyters were elected commissioners to assembly: Moderator, Rev. W. A. Hunter and A. E. Cameron, and elders from Picton and Madoc.

Rev. C. E. Kidd, M.A., B.D. was nominated for moderator of Synod and the examiners of Madoc were examined and approved.

Presbytery agreed to overture the General Assembly that a strong committee be appointed this year to survey the entire secretarial organization of the church, and that in the meantime no appointments be made to any secretarial office.

Committee to report to the assembly of 1937, synods and Presbyteries being asked for their deliverance.

MRS. A. H. MOUCK NINETY YEARS OLD

Spends Day Quietly at Her Home Surrounded by Her Family

Surrounded by her family, consisting of two sons, two daughters and their families, who are spending the day in Belleville for the special occasion, and receiving the scores of congratulations received from her many friends and neighbors, one of the city's best known and esteemed residents, Mrs. A. H. Mouck, at the home of her daughter, Miss Nellie Mouck, 287 George Street, is today celebrating the ninetieth anniversary of, her birth.

But the occasion is also a double one, for on the same day a son, the youngest, Mr. A. H. Mouck, Trenton, also observes the anniversary of his birth.

Possessed from yet of a vigorous mentality and constitution, Mrs. Mouck on the occasion of the entertainment of her family and many neighbors, who had gathered at the home to pay her their respects of events in this section of the country for many years ago, from Miss Annie Graham, in Ireland, Mrs. Mouck came to Canada at the age of 19 years, and has since resided here. For many years Mrs. Mouck had made Belleville her place of residence, but for the past twenty-seven years Belleville has been her home. On June 4th, 1890 Mr. and Mrs. Mouck observed their Golden Wedding in Belleville.

Eight children, 36 children and eighteen grandchildren today join with many others and her wide circle of friends in wishing Mrs. Mouck many happy returns of the day. One of the most striking expressions of tribute was received in the form of a large and beautiful basket of flowers, contributed by Mrs. Mouck's neighbors, which arrived with greetings and love for so well.

Mrs. Mouck at the birthday table this evening will be her married sons and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Mouck, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Graham, Tweed; Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Mouck, Brockville; Mr. and Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Bateman, also of Thomasburg. Miss Nellie Mouck with whom she resides at the George Street address.

CHILD TRAINING SUBJECT OF TALK

W. H. Morrison of O. S. D. Speaker at Kiwanis Club

"Childhood" was the subject of an interesting address given at the Kiwanis Club luncheon on Tuesday, by W. H. Morrison, superintendent of the Ontario School for the Deaf. The club luncheon was in charge of the directors of the Membership committee and Eddie Logan, the chairman, introduced the speaker. Rev. Fred Deacon expressing Kiwanian appreciation to the guest of the day, Frank Dowsion, the president of the club was in the chair for the meeting, with a large attendance of the members.

Secretary read a letter from the Parks Board respecting the tennis courts in the city, which stated, that the Board was taking every precaution to keep the trees and shrubbery but that owing to a lot of work that could be done if they received more help, they are working on a reduced budget", said the communication letter. Eddie Shapiro, a member of the Board, stated everything was being done, and that the Board was doing splendid work.

The president requested, that members make it a point to be present at the Capitol Theatre on Sunday night, when the required number was easily obtained.

Mr. Morrison chose as his subject "Child Training" stating that the father of the man and stating there was no greater influence than that of training the child into useful citizenship. "Education is only growth," said speaker, "and there is nothing greater in training the child than the study of childhood who can't learn can be taught through interest. Turning to a subject with which he is familiar, the speaker touched on the training of the deaf child stating that during at anytime is an affliction but in a child is a calamity. Also he remarked, that the School liked to receive the child at five years so training could start early. He showed much of the teaching was by repetition and by the use of the finger alphabet. The divisions in the school were explained to the audience and showed the children were promoted according to age and this school was divided between studies and vocational teaching. He stated the children had the same mental high as the normal hearing child and that members of the outside world visit the school and see for themselves the work that is being done.

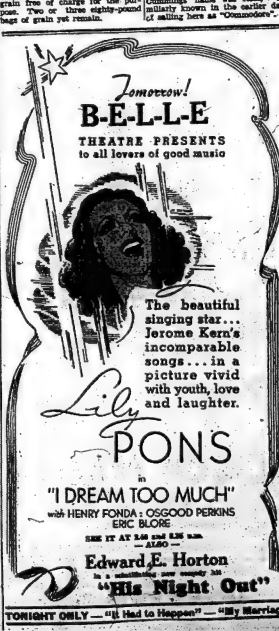
Members of the Belleville and District Fish and Game Protective Association who have been busily engaged in feeding pheasants and other game birds during the past several weeks, deep snow and cold weather making their work, it was stated today, this feeding and distribution of food during the winter has been made possible through the courtesy of Mr. Chas. Bishop, Jr., local boatman, who has made repeated and heavy donations of grain free of charge for the cause.



Two or three eighty-pound bags of grain yet remain.

Fire Chief Commends Car and Truck Drivers

Good co-operation has been received from car and truck drivers during the past period of snownarrowed roads, it was stated by Fire Chief Thomas Church today. "Most of them have realized the difficulty with which we have been working owing to the condition of the roads and they have readily agreed to give us lots of room when they hear the siren sound. We have got to slow down considerably in answering the general run of calls though", added the Chief.

Owner of the Surprise Was Mr. R. Cummings

In the emptied article in which "White Winged Craft" of former days on the Bay of Quinte were recalled in a contributory article by Mr. Ed. J. Roy, Napanee, and reprinted in a recent issue of this paper mention was made of Mr. "Dan" Cummings, of Trenton, who owned the "Surprise". We have been advised by a relative that Mr. Cummings, of Trenton, who familiarly known in the earlier days of sailing here as "Commodore".

The Rev. Dr. Stephens, Kingston, conducted the service in the Methodist Church, Tuesday evening, and took as his text the 38th chapter of Isaiah, was read by the president.

Prayers were offered by Mr. Bennett for League of Nations; Mrs. S. Dafoe for Empire, King and Royal Family; Mrs. J. Wess, for the Church; Mrs. E. Badgley, for Youth; Mrs. R. Badgley, for Temperance; Mrs. C. Haight, for Missions. Collection $1.05. Meeting closed with prayer in unison.

FINAL TRIBUTE IS PAID DR. HILL

Impressive Funeral of Former Belleville Physician

At Ottawa

Ottawa Evening Citizen of Tuesday, February 25th says:

Fitting tribute to the memory of Dr. Alfred W. Hill, well known practitioner of the Ottawa district, and especially esteemed in Rosebud Rebekah, Lodge, was paid here on Tuesday afternoon, when the funeral took place from his late residence, 249 Cooper Street, to Beechwood Cemetery.

Friends and relatives gathered at the residence, 249 Cooper Street, where Rev. Canon Gerald Burke of St. Luke's Anglican church, conducted the service at 2.30 o'clock. The service then proceeded to Beechwood cemetery, where interment took place.

Dr. Hill, who practised in several places in the Ottawa district, came to the Capital some five years ago on his retirement from his work in Belleville, where he was a member of the staff of the General Hospital. Among those present at the funeral was Right Rev. John Lyons, of Kingston, Bishop of Ontario, who was a personal friend of Dr. Hill. Pallbearers were two brothers-in-law, W. H. Murphy and Miller Arbuckle, two nephews, Waldo Arbuckle and G. Murphy, and Dr. A. E. Hunt and T. F. Lewis, a Chief mourners were his widow, formerly Lois White, and a sister, Mrs. W. H. Arbuckle, of Ottawa, surviving are two other sisters, Mrs. R. M. Arbuckle, of Dearborn, Oct., and Mrs. W. F. Sawyer, Thailand, B. C.

A profusion of floral offerings, telegrams and messages of sympathy indicated the high esteem in which he is held in Ottawa, Belleville and other parts of the district. Among the former were wreaths from the Misses Lodge, A.F. and A.M., Belleville.

Roslin and District

Roslin— "London is calling the Empire," many in this community heard these words, "Big Ben" chiming the hour of 9 during the relaying of the "National Anthem" at 11.30 a.m. on Sunday morning just previous to the message broadcast by His Majesty King Edward VIII, which came through clearly.

The morning service in the Anglican Church was held at 10.30 a.m. and after the service the congregation listened to the broadcast over the radio at the Rectory.

Mr. Charles Bailey who has been seriously ill with pneumonia, is somewhat improved in health and Nurse Hamilton who has been in attendance has returned to her home.

Some from here attended the funeral on Saturday of the late Mr. John Sherman of Lake. The service in private, which was held at the home of his daughter Mrs. W. Reilly was conducted by Rev. D. C. Hill, assisted by Rev. F. C. Beasley who officiated at the interment in Victoria Cemetery vault.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gillespie moved on Friday to their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Juniper and family of Belleville moved on Saturday to their farm.

Misses Roberta Milburn and Marion Purpey spent the week-end on Wednesday with Dr. H. E. Welsh and Mrs. Welsh.

Several ladies from here attended the "World Day of Prayer" service which was held in Bethel Church on Friday afternoon.

The service in the Anglican Church on Ash Wednesday night was cancelled owning to adverse weather conditions.

Many from this district will regret the passing of the late Dr. F. W. Hill who practiced here for many years. Leaving Roslin in November 1915 to take a course in surgery in New York. Later returning to Belleville where he practiced for several years, since his retirement owing to ill health he had made his home in Ottawa.

Rev. W. L. Wright who has recently been appointed Rector of the Church of St. George The Martyr at Belleville has been at Roslin as father Rev. J. de P. Wright who is now stationed at Campville was Rector of the Parish of Roslin for a number of years.

CANNIFTON

Cannifton—On Friday evening the young people of the "Alert" Bible Class of the church presented two very interesting one act plays before an appreciative audience in the Town Hall.

Notwithstanding the unfavorable weather conditions and bad roads these young artists were greeted with a full house.

The first play was entitled "Silence Please" and started off with a heated argument over a much needed fur coat, where page decided to put it to a vote, which caused talking. Finally they agreed that both should cease for a stated period. The ordeal was endured when page broke silence first and remarks got her coat. The parts were well taken and caused much merriment. The cast were as follows:—

The orchestra was up of members of the Glass Furnishing Cannifton made before and between acts.

The orchestra is composed of the following musicians—Ted Watts and Mildred Phillips, pianos; Rhea Dee Mills and Clarence Bird, guitar; Owen Johns, harmonica.

The second play "Whiskers" was a wedding scene in which the different characters were well taken. The costumes were beautiful and as usual the bride was charming.

It would be hard to select any one as outstanding. The cast were:—

The class of young people is outstanding in "good works" and this entertainment is just a repetition of their splendid efforts for the welfare of others. Much credit is due Teachers, Miss Mary Cowan and Mr. Douglas Brunton. The proceeds of the evening were $34 which will be used for their continued efforts of "good will".

The annual Day [illegible] of Prayer was held in the S.S. rooms of this church on Friday afternoon. Although the roads are very bad, women were in attendance from remote parts of the township. The meeting was made under the direction of the key woman—Mrs. E. W. Brown of Ashley.

Mr. Matthews has returned convalescence from the hospital but his condition is only fair.

Mr. Lyle Waits is receiving congratulations from his many friends on the occasion of his marriage to Miss Jean Sine, which took place Victoria Place. Mrs. Waits is well and deservedly known here having been a resident of this village for some time.

NOTED ARTIST DEAD—One of Canada's most distinguished artists, and the most famous painter of tree subjects in the Dominion, died in Toronto in the person of Carl Ahrens, member of the Ontario Society of Artists and fellow of the R.C.A. He was born in Ontario in 1863, the son of Danish Scotch parents and lived for many years at Galt, Ont. His work is represented in many public and private galleries and in the National Gallery at Ottawa.

A GOOD CITIZEN

Belleville has lost a splendid citizen in the departure of Mr. W. A. McMillan, local manager of the Canadian Department Stores branch here. Mr. McMillan has been transferred to Sudbury where he has taken over the management of the firm's store there. Sudbury is a bustling, booming mining city, one of the bright gems of Northern Ontario, and owes much of its present growing prosperity to the millions released in payrolls of the International Nickel Company, one of the largest mining companies in the world, with main holdings in and about Sudbury. Also centre of mining, lumbering and other activities Sudbury is an up-and-coming community with plenty of sip and go. Into this atmosphere of push and progress Mr. McMillan will fit admirably, his training and temperament being well suited to the eager rush of Northern Ontario where new mining camps are opening up every little while. He had his business training with the T. Eaton Company, Limited, in Winnipeg, and served with that company for a number of years before coming to Belleville eight years ago. Here he speedily made many warm and lasting friendships and he took a keen interest in everything pertaining to the welfare and progress of the city. As a business leader he was a decided success which redounded to the advantage of the firm he represented. In social and fraternal circles Mr. McMillan by general consent and quick and lasting friendships. He was an ardent Rotarian and gave as much of his time as possible to the philanthropic work of that organization. He was also a popular member of the Belleville Club, and he will be missed upon the links of the Belleville Golf Club where he was noted as one of the most enthusiastic early morning golfers, frequently doing nine holes before breakfast just as an appetizer and to start the day right. He is an all-round genial, likeable chap, whom to know is to admire. Many friends in Belleville and vicinity will regret his departure.

DEVELOPING DRAMATIC ACT

Belleville dramatic groups, the Young Theopians and the Albert College Players by taking part in the regional dramatic competition at Kingston, have done much to further the production of drama in Belleville and its environs. Though they were not adjudged winners the groups gave a very creditable account of themselves in the face of the keenest competition, especially from the Ottawa Drama League and Queen's University.

Entry into such competitions means ultimate improvement of the performers and the direction, for there is not only constructive criticism, and praise where the production has risen to a great height but there is also the opportunity to meet others and players of the instinct for the finest dramatic performance.

Belleville is fortunate today in having young people interested in this work and they are seizing the opportunity to give this city worthwhile productions. The work of the two groups in the regional trials is calculated to stimulate greater activity and to influence lesser groups. Through their agency there may come into being an organization in Belleville which will guarantee Belleville dramatic excellence.

Adjudicator at the Bay of Quinte secondary school drama festival, said, everywhere there is to be found fine dramatic material, which just requires to be fostered and developed. That is what the players of Miss Tuite's group, the Albert Players, and of Miss Merry's group, the Young Theopians, have been accomplishing.

LENTEN THOUGHTS

Religion provides rejuvenation for man worn by his daily cares, said Dr. Harry E. Fosdick at Riverside Church, New York, Sunday. The characteristic of the true saint has been not only morals but morale. This is a wearying time in which to live. It need not make us wicked but it makes us tired. Religion provides man first with the basic idea that life instead of being an accident as the materialists say, is an entrustment; second, great religion gives men, in its restorative ministry, available sources of spiritual power for daily living; third, worship is the process of making capacity to pull himself under the influence of something higher than himself, and fourth, in the spiritual realm in order to win, one need not outwardly succeed."

Instead of meeting reasonably the great problem of the day, which comes first—human rights or property rights, the world is trying to remake man to suit its own purposes and revolution is bound to follow the vain attempt, said Mgr. Fulton J. Sheen at St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York, on Sunday. "Revolution always follows when the end and purpose of anything is lost." He said the aim and purpose of man was being forgotten as outlined in the catechism that "man is a creature made in the image and likeness of God, put into this world to know love and serve Him and then be happy with Him forever in the next." Today it is man that is being put on the pillory by certain governments and by certain types of education. He is hammered into nothing more than a mere tool of the State in Russia; in Germany he is beaten into soldier; in Mexico he is made into an animal; and by modern civilization in Western civilization he is hammered down into a worm with a stomach as if he had no other destiny than to creep, crawl and exist. And the world needs and says 'Behold the man'. But the divine semblance is not destroyed for man is what he is by the nature of God and it is just as foolish to try to change him as to try to destroy the divine original.

"There can be but one true revolution in this world and that is the revolution of God. Only God can change the nature of man by lifting him up from a creature at baptism to become a child of God."

TO AN OLD FRIEND
(By Request)

I never seem to find the time
To go and sit with you.
To hear your laughter and your voice
As we were wont to do.
But oh! I think of you much
With tenderness and tears,
And I remember little things
Of foolish younger years.

Laughter was easy then, and song
Was part of every day.
What gay good times we always had
When have they gone away,
Faded the beauty we had known
Beset with care and strife.
Youth bows her head beneath the yoke
The bondage grim of life.

And though a hundred things just seem
To keep our ways apart,
I have you in the safe and dear
Like sunshine in my heart.
And no day ever seems so hard
No road so long or bare
Because I feel you're near me tho' miles
My friend is living there.

NOW IT'S THE THREE B'S, the Bankers, the Barbers and the Barristers, three professions whose members have decided that there is nothing to be gained by overworking themselves, that too much work makes Jack a dull boy, and that a Wednesday afternoon half-holiday the year round filled with golf, motor rides, sailing and other sports makes for longer and more pleasant life. Of course the Barbers of Belleville depart just a little from the all year schedule as they figure that men folks need more shaves in the hot season and the woman folks need more hair trims so they try to accommodate by staying open Wednesday afternoons in December. The Bankers and Barristers, however, are keen all-year round sports, and like their mid-week break from the busy rush of business. However, the Three B's of Belleville are now out to a good holiday afternoon start, and if any members of the Sidelight Family have any Banking, Barbering or Barristering Business to be attended to don't try to do it on a Wednesday afternoon or you'll be decidedly out of luck.

TWO MILES OF ICE OF VARYING THICKNESS CONSTITUTES THE ICE BRIDGE spanning the river St. Lawrence between Brockville and Morristown, N.Y. Last Saturday seven American and five Canadian automobiles crossed the ice bridge and about one hundred pedestrians. This shows that the ice bridge there is still safe for traffic—but it won't be long now, for a few days soft weather and a high wind along about this time of the year always plays havoc with this temporary international bridge.

VEXED QUESTION OF WHAT MUST BE PAID IN AS LICENSE FEE by hotels, restaurants and cabarets halls for playing copyright music in public will be settled once and for all if a bill now before parliament is approved. The Canadian Performing Rights Society claim to own the copyright on 2,000,000 pieces of music and have charged broadcasting stations and others license fees devised by the company. The bill before parliament provides that hotels and restaurants pay a fee of five dollars per annum, instead of the fifteen dollars and upward asked, and $25 for entertainment halls instead of $30.00. The company owning the copyrights claim entente from all public places using radio receiving sets.

Yes, it's That Way

Traffic policeman (overtaking speed hog)—"Didn't you hear me yelling for you to stop?"

Motorist—"Was that you? I'm sorry; I thought it was only someone I'd run over."

STRIKE TAKE TO BASES AS "INDOOR AVIATORS" STRIKE—When New York's "indoor aviators" (elevator operators to you) went on strike, thousands of persons were stranded in the lofty upper floors of apartment buildings, and it was a case of either walking dozens of flights or just not going down at all. LEFT, a fifteen-floor hike proved too tough for Lee Leonard and Angela Carson, who solved the problem by sliding down the bannisters. RIGHT, these men of the 'Air' serve flying squadrons of the building service employes' union are gathered at their headquarters with signs in readiness, with military precision they sallied forth when called upon to "pull" (perform duties necessary to strike), buildings in designated areas. James made the employees of the building service employes' union, and Joseph J. Sambrick, union leader, claims that more than 1,400 buildings in Manhattan and 400 in the Bronx are affected by the strike, involving 17,000 workers. Policemen are guarding the danger areas to prevent disorders.

Washington, March 4 (AP)—The successful transfer of a living heart from one fish's body into another was described today at George Washington University by Professors George Bain Jenkins.

He told of keeping transplanted hearts living in embryos of salamanders for from eight to ten days.

"The hearts slow down a little at first but soon begin to beat nearly resume their normal speed," he said.

LOOKING BACKWARD

20 YEARS AGO
March 4th, 1916.

The Intermediates did themselves credit last night in an unequalled performance as Arnott's rink when they defeated Midland by a score of 13 to 1, It is difficult for us to adequately describe the wonderful exhibition of hockey as clicked up Brock Shorey's puck chasers in this game. One should have seen it to realize the thrills, excitement and happiness that were enjoyed by the large crowd. Our boys were stars from the net out, with the King performer of the O. H. A., Bill Symons, as the outstanding light in practically every rush. Conley, the diminutive but custodian, deserves special comment. More finished hockey was what won the game for Belleville. How the bunch from Midland ever got as far as the semi finals, and how they defeated our stars by 10 to 4 will always be a dark mystery. Our boys did just as they liked with the Midland outfit, but Midland in their great power a stumbling block time and time again. The painstaking efforts of Brock and Bill Symons combined with the general good sportsmanship of the locals, will long stand as the top and they deserve it. The crowd in the first period went insane when Bill started from behind, our net went to centre ice, circled back and then along the right board, evaded the defence, threw Mc-Donald out and bagged the first for the greatest individual play of the season. Bill Finkle made a similar run in the last quarter, but not as spectacular, with the same result. Everybody of our team figured in the goal getting with the exception of Conley. Symons stated yesterday afternoon that the lead would be overcome in the first two periods, and Ted Whalen said they would get three goals in the first period. They were both right and they were. Shingle and E. McDonald were the pick of the Midland forwards with McDonald in goal, a strong man. Finkle and Whalen had it over all the other forwards, and Sammy and Mitchell were never troubled by their checks. Ben Whitty did some grand rushing, and broke away fast, but we must say, were far from when we try to talk about the brilliant work of Symons. Bobby Hewitson of Toronto again officiated, and we sure do like him by reason of his mind to satisfying to Brock and the boys to see their goal in sight and the crowd is with them to a man. The men in Midland was 10 to 4 for Midland and last night it was 13 to 1 for Belleville, which makes Belleville 17 and Midland 11 on the round. The following composed the teams: Belleville:—Goal, Conley; defence, Whitty and Symons; rover, Finkle; centre, Whalen; right wing, Mitchell; Left wing, Symonds. Midland:—Goal, McDonald; Defence, Beatty and Simpson; Rover, A. Simple; Centre, McGill; Right Wing, R. Simple; Left Wing, E. McDonald. Penalties, Belleville,—Finkle, Whalen, 2 minutes; Midland,—McGill, McDonald, 2 minutes.

Streets of City Praised

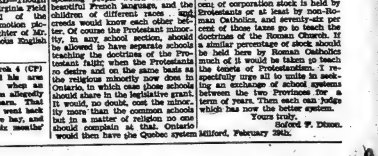
Belleville, Ont., Mar 3, 1936
Editor Ontario Intelligencer,
Dear Sir:

May I be permitted space in your paper to congratulate the Mayor, Council and Public Works Dept. of Belleville on the excellent manner in which they have kept the local streets cleared of snow this winter.

I am prepared to say they are very superior to drive over to the streets of any town or city in Eastern Ontario.

Thanking you for your space,
Yours very truly,
Traveller.

Would Exchange School Systems



To the Editor Ontario Intelligencer,
Dear Sir:

I have no intension of entering the discussion between two such excellent citizens as Messrs Finnerty and Cushing. In the interests of harmony and good will among all classes and that we may promote understanding also between Ontario and Quebec I suggest that public school supporters and the Catholic Rate Payers' Association unite in seeking an exchange of school systems between the two Provinces. Quebec has no public schools now and if our system were introduced there would be a tremendous saving for all classes and creeds. It might be a blessing, for many English speaking people would learn the beautiful French language, and the children of different races and creeds would know each other better. Of course the Protestant minor, in any school section, should be allowed to have separate schools teaching the doctrines of the Protestant faith; when the Protestants of Quebec and on the same basis as the religious minority now does in Ontario, in which case those school boards share in the legislative grant. It would, no doubt, cost the minor, by more than the common school but in a matter of religion no one should complain at that. Ontario would then have ple Quebec system Milford, February 29th.

100 YEARS OLD BANK BILLS TELL INTERESTING TALE

Early Canadian Currency Comes to Light in U. S.

AT ROYAL BANK

Notes on Canada's early days when a dollar was "piastres" and "pistoreens" and "pistoles" and "pieces of eight" were practical units of currency, reached Montreal today via the international banking route.

From a bank in the United States, The Royal Bank of Canada received for redemption a bundle of old bills issued by the Union Bank, Montreal, Lower Canada, and dated 1838. This, some of them slightly dog-eared, the printing faded, they must have laid by their brother, drawer or old chest for nearly 100 years. There were 10 individual bills in the bundle for denominations of $1, $2, $3, $6 and $10. Their total value was apparently $150.00.

The bills themselves tell a romantic story of Canadian history, business and finance. Engraved on the face of the "$10" is a representation of a railroad train, presumably the first railway in Canada, which began operations between Laprairie and St. Johns, Que., in 1836, two years before the bills were issued. By a coincidence, The Royal Bank of Canada this year has opened a new branch at Laprairie the opening of this same railroad.

It is interesting to note, too, that the bills are printed in a polyglot of English, French and Spanish. The one dollar bill is engraved in French, English and a combination of French and English. For the word "dollar" is translated on the opposite side into "huit piastres". The use of the word "piastre" and its existence in financial parlance 100 years ago comes from the active trade which had grown up between Canada and the Levant.

Halifax and other Maritime merchants of that day actively handled with this term through their dealings with many Spanish possessions. The term Maritime and Spanish currency was then common in Canada, particularly the "8s" and "piastres" were generally accepted as the equivalent of dollars. It is from this same term that our common expressions "two bits" and "four bits" originate for the "piastre" was divided into eight equal parts, the "pieces of eight" or "pistole fiction, each piece being a "bit"; thus "two bits" became a quarter or 25c, four bits, 50c and so on.

Other details of the old bills bring to light other unusual facts concerning the financial practices of the early days. At that time there was no legal currency in Canada. Organs of men organized themselves from time to time into local banks to be the source of available business dealings. Frequently the bills were issued not by the name stated individual or "bearer". Thus, one of the $5 bills of the series reads: "Union Bank pay on demand $5 to R. Harvey or bearer". Mr. Harvey's name was filled in later by the bank.

This story, unfortunately, has a sad ending, at least for the people who have presented these old bills for redemption. Little is known today of the Union Bank of Montreal. The Union Bank of Lower Canada," however, did exist and later became the Union Bank of Canada, which was absorbed by The Royal Bank of Canada, and it is perhaps because of this circumstance that the confusion between the names of the two banks has led those old bills have found their way to The Royal Bank in Montreal.

Seddon of the "Counterfeit Detector" used by bankers as a book of references, states in cold, unsentimental language: "Union Bank of Montreal' bank unknown and notorious."

But in this the "Counterfeit Detector" is wrong. The bills are not worthless. People interested in old notes and bills value them at so much. They, by the passage of time, $140.00 becomes a mere $8.50.

ENJOY WINTER VACATION BEST

Toledo Couple Leisurely Touring Eastern Ontario

H. G. Salmon, of Toledo, Ohio, travelling in an expensive automobile, and clad in attire suitable for this weather is an outstanding figure today debunked the notion that summer vacations are the only ones to be enjoyed. "Winter is the best time, especially winter in Canada," he declared, during the tangy air of the city yesterday afternoon, while on a brief stop over before proceeding east.

Mr. and Mrs. Salmon are making a tour of Ontario and Quebec, "and enjoying every moment of it," it was discerned by both.

A travelling representative for a Toledo firm, Mr. Salmon has for the past three years enjoyed his usual vacation in winter, generally accepting it in the eastern part of Canada.

"In winter we don't get the crowded roads, the heat or dust, and when motoring is at its best. We're able to get better service wherever we go and we don't find the usual hosts of visitors everywhere," Mr. Salmon has been, amplified the point.

The present winter has been the most severe one he has experienced, admitted Mr. Salmon. Also the deep snow had taken some of the joy out of touring, especially the week or so back, when their machine became stalled in a snowblocked road and they were forced to take refuge in a farm house for two days until the worst place came through. The experience was a novel one, however, and they made up for the inconveniences and discomforts enjoyed.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Salmon are camera enthusiasts. They travel on the extended tour of the east without any direction fancy or time may dictate.

LONSDALE

Lonsdale—The weather has been milder for a few days and the ice is has been weakened as the combined cold weather has been the reason for the ice harvesting and the ice melting snow has made a busy time for quite a few in our vicinity. The roads are fairly good now as Mr. J. McKee with a number of men have been engaged keeping with their shovels and snow plows especially in side roads.

Mr. T. Doyle with his horse and sleigh for a few days last week now been meeting the bread truck as Marysville and twice a week is delivering a big quantity of bread throughout this district.

Mrs. Ed. Farrell who has been ill with pneumonia is reported about the same.

Do You Know That— 250 Years Ago Your False Teeth was carved from an Elephant's Tusk?

In the days of our great grand parents several times removed, if you by misfortune lost a tooth, you procured a dentistwho carved from the tusk of an elephant or from the huge teeth of a hippopotamus. Either that or you might have used the teeth of a comrade who was being, a cow or a sheep . . . or guns toothless.

Only in the year 1728 did a Frenchman, Fouchard by name, develope a technique, making artificial teeth from porcelain. Nearly 150 years later, in 1774, porcelain false teeth were introduced in North America.

Today with the occasional advice and treatment of your dentist add the regular use of your tooth brush and tooth paste or powder, which you get from your druggist, the need of relying on even such modern dentures as have been made available by dental science is reduced to a minimum.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may just decay in the bowels. Then gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk, and the world looks punk.

It takes those good, bile flow laxatives to get at the cause. Two good something that should do it are Carter's Little Liver Pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Look for the red package. Refuse substitutes. 25c.

Mrs. Bishop, Mrs. Hall and the guests were served with delicious meal and catering for other meeting dishes. Mrs. Wilfred Kerr, as convener of the committee in charge, with the assistance of her committee, Mrs. Mowbray, Mrs. Green, Mrs. Hall and all members of the Association, is meeting in serving the supper.

At the home of the president, Mrs. A. B. Cuthbert, the members of the Catholic Women's League Study Club held the March meeting last night. The program was in charge of Mrs. F. Fitzgerald and Mrs. Ed. Hogan and readings included a piano solo by Miss Bernadette Black, a reading by Miss Wills of a paper written by Mrs. W. Milne, a vocal solo by Miss Kathleen Bawden, accompanied by Miss Mary Cahill, papers on household helps by Mrs. George Haines and Mrs. Wilfred Kerr, and a reading by Mrs. Gallagher. A discussion on the "Sacrament of Confirmation" followed, after which Rev. J. J. Collins concluded the evening's program.

The Guild of Christ Church held a record meeting last evening in the parish hall, when Mrs. Florence Pilkington-Reid, Miss Florence Pilkington, took the chair in the absence of Mrs. Hookey. The Self Denial Envelope was successfully carried over, which will remain in the parish until contributed. After the business session, "When I See the Wonder Dawn" was sung by Mrs. Bishop, Mrs. Vanderoort gave a thoughtful talk on "Sacrifice" and Lent. The Rector and Mrs. Wright both voiced their appreciation and support of the Lenten week, and Mr. Wright announced the benediction. Tea was served by Mrs. Bishop and her staff.

Smartest Skiers Fall for Waffles

Ski-ing is an invigorating sport for those who can take it. And it's often difficult to know exactly what food is enjoyed most by skiers as they gather at the Palisade and Christiania for hours after a long run. Sandwiches will not do, especially anything but plain varieties with gravy, for they are apt to "go to pieces" in the skier's hand and fall into their "skiing" world generally. And they get very tired of cakes and pastries filled tomatoes.

Waffles are, however, increasingly popular in Canada, there are many and more late ski parties at which waffles are served from the waffle iron, are easy to make and quick to serve. They can be made light and crisp with the use of cake flour and if the batter is thin enough to be of the consistency of ordinary flour so it runs quickly and easily from the waffle iron, the result after baking is appetizing.

Feather Light Waffles

2 cups sifted cake flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 tsp. salt, 2 tablespoons sugar, 3 egg whites, stiffly beaten, 1-3 teaspoon cream of tartar, 3 egg yolks, milk, butter.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt, sift again. Combine egg yolks, milk, butter. Add to flour mixture, beating until smooth. Fold in egg whites and cream. Bake in hot waffle iron. Place a slice of grilled pineapple on each section. Makes 4 four-section waffles. Dried uncooked peaches may be sprinkled over batter before closing iron and it's delicious.

Never Show Off Your Child

Writer Tells of Dire Results From Habit of Exhibiting Him

WHEN MOTHER had visitors Oscar was very, very bad.

Oscar didn't like mother's friends. He didn't like mother either. When she had company, Mother was different then. She sat differently, talked differently and her voice was entirely different.

But it wasn't so bad that either. The most terrible was that mother made a fool of Oscar in front of them.

Mother would say: "Here's Mrs. Jones, Oscar" (as if he couldn't see her). Then mother would make Oscar bow to her (as if he bows for Oscar to bow to Anyhow).

And if all that wasn't bad enough, mother would go on with: "Now, Oscar, do get that cigarette box you have all full of snow from Mrs. Jones. She will be interested, won't you, Mrs. Jones? I know you know Oscar is so interested in his hands."

Mrs. Jones then would smile at Oscar, the silly old fool, and say: "You are very, very young, and not at all handsome," and something belonging to mother that she has to be polite about."

Oscar didn't like feeling very, very young, and of no importance. He didn't like feeling that he was not handsome. He didn't like mother's friends.

Oscar had no defense. He couldn't explain that he didn't like being exhibited, that it embarrassed him, and made him feel inferior and foolish. He felt that mother was showing off her child and that him in a position like that. But he couldn't say so. He could only feel a dumb resentment which didn't help or clear things up at all.

Courtesy for you and your friends you learn at home, and Oscar had learned it from mother. And if you don't embarrass them, and if you don't embarrass them, especially if you give the example by showing courtesy yourself.

No child should be exhibited. No child should be forced to display his accomplishments or recite before company. Later on, if he wants to go, that's different. But to "show off" young children is very unfair. Either you make a silly little fool—or you make a self-conscious one. Both are bad. Neither can into an offensive little exhibitionist.

If possible, a child never should be forced to see visitors. Let him run in his bedroom and play for a bit out of sorts. But if he chooses to appear, let it be made clear before hand that it must be on his good behavior.

If he doesn't do you proud, speak to him firmly about it afterward, but never in front of the visitor.

The only true courtesy comes from a daily example, and a natural desire for politeness.

To assure your child's manners when company make him feel wanted, confident and inconspicuous.

Weddings

DALE—DAY

A quiet wedding took place at St. George's Anglican Church, Oshawa, at eleven o'clock on Monday morning, when Mildred Grace, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Day of this city, became the bride of Mr. Joseph Parks Dale, son of the late Joseph Perrin Dale, and of Mrs. Dale, Marmora. The ceremony was performed by Rev. D. Rose.

The young couple on their wedding trip to Montreal. On their return they will take up residence at Marmora.

The Rendezvous

By CAROLINE OSBORN

Celia Ayers stepped into the cool air of the small hall of the family chose at the Daffodil. As usual she waited a few moments before raising her eyes to the corner window where she would find the young man.

Celia always thought of him as "the young man" because she did not know his name and he was obviously very young—oh, much younger than she.

Celia was forty. She never had a romance in her life nor held a babe in her arms. She had been been a columnist on a metropolitan daily and now and then wrote little human stories with strong heart interest that appeared in a corner of her paper. She also contributed articles to magazines, and had a regular page on the care and feeding of infants.

She lived alone in a tiny bedroom, bath and kitchenette apartment and every morning left the office every day at the same hour to come to the attractive luncheon-room. She had discovered it quite by accident.

It was there that Celia had first seen the young man. He was about six and twenty and big-boned, with shoulders broad and blue-eyed. He had attracted her attention from the first day she beheld him seated at the table in the corner consuming sandwiches and drinking large cups of coffee. His eyes were particularly noticeable since they rarely left her face while she occupied herself busily with her modest meal. After the third day of his rather persistent presence at the same table Celia had found herself looking at him. Apparently he had contracted a similar habit. "The rendezvous" was what she secretly called it.

Today, on meeting those steadily blue eyes, Celia was serious—in an unfamiliar fluttering in the region of her heart. Her color rose in her cheeks, something quivered in her throat.

She was admiring her, she was dead! Was he falling for her too? In his big boyish way was he trying tightly turns to thoughts of love—but they are nothing compared to the tumultuous feelings that rose and rose he should speak to her—to her of all people. In the excitement, bloomed in the heart of a maiden of forty.

What there flitted through the newspaper woman's active brain as she sipped her coffee nervously for a bit of conceit. Never before had a man looked at her like that, and now he dared to speak to her—to her, Celia Brown, a respectable spinster with a record of twenty years for never failing—saturday and unbending dignity.

Perhaps she was about to enter into a beguiling romance—at last! Friendly she might be her every day self to those of the handsome young man. His gaze penetrated to the depths of empty dishes and he smiled boyishly.

When she saw the smile Celia rose and fled. Her heart was beating—pounding—and she had forgotten all about her check. She had never been so confused

No World Revolution Aim.

"We never had any such plan," he asserted when asked whether the Soviet Union had abandoned its intent to foment a world revolution. That is a tragic misunderstanding. No, a comic one—still, tragi-comic.

"We abandoned the revolution will occur in other countries but only as a result of what is considered possible or necessary by the revolutionists in each specific country.

"To attempt to export revolution is nonsense."

"Admittedly, Communism has not been achieved in Russia. State socialism has. Have not Fascism in Italy and Nazism in Germany led Germany claimed to have attained similar results? Have not both been achieved at the price of deprivation of personal liberty sacrificed for the good of the state?"

Communism Has Not Attained.

"No, Communism has not been achieved in the Soviet Union so far," Stalin declares. "It is not even near. But your term 'State Socialism' is not exact.

"Many people refer to a condition as State Socialism when a considerable amount of national wealth passes to government ownership, sometimes even a majority of the shares, even though the majority of wealth remains in private hands.

"The social order which we have built up on the foundation left by the great socialism in this sense. The Soviet system is fundamentally Socialistic because there is no private ownership of factories, land, banks, railways, mines, etc. Our system—which not yet has been quite completed—is Socialistic because the fundamental property is common, state's ownership, ownership by the people or by co-operatives and collective farms."

Board Room Gossip

Canadamex Mines Ltd. Capitalized at 2,717,241 shares, Canadamex is controlled by Ventures Limited which is reported owning 1,442,857 shares. The property adjoins McIntyre Porcupine in the Porcupine area of Ontario. Good ore results have so far been obtained down to a depth of 2,000 feet. A winze is now being sunk and six new levels will be opened up this year down to 4,000 feet. Ore reserves are not reported officially but it is said to be very large. The Company is currently milling about 400 tons a day as well as 150 tons a day of waste rock. Monthly output is approximately 10,000 and cash expenses $75,000. Before providing for taxes and write-offs in nine months ended Jan. 31st an operating profit of $161,291 was shown. The Company owned a block of Pamour Porcupine shares and in November 1935 offered shareholders right to purchase at 20 cents a share. Pamour stock on the basis of sales to the latter for 12 months ended 1936 is by far the most important year in Canadamex history and the results of this year's development work will have a considerable bearing on the ultimate potential value of the mine.

Macassa.

In nine months ending December 31, 1935, Macassa had a lower net profit than in the corresponding period the previous year, according to a financial statement forwarded to shareholders with the company's dividend cheeks. In the 1935 period net profit amounted to $291,409 or $291,409 after all charges, or just under 11 cents per share, as compared with a net of $339,245 or 12.9 cents per share in the previous year.

During the period under review company milled 53,127 tons of ore, which produced 15,000 fine ounces of $852,832. Sundry revenue totaled $11,185.

The rising gold tide has been one factor in pushing prices upward, following their depression lows and all recent market indications would have been fair gold for further advances. Money is flowing into the channels of trade and amongst the various investment mediums. But even with the restraints which have been placed upon the natural economic tides, prices greatly increased and stocks may be expected to continue to exert a significant influence upon commodity price trends for a number of years to come.

Professional opinion is quite bearish, continues the Tradex. The news of the week from Washington on the Soldiers' Bonus reduction bill, the contemplated tax program was disconcerting, all things considered. It is surprising that so little liquidation developed. Until profits are at hand, when a better diagnosis of business trends is available and more in hand of corporate earnings, there may be a dearth of stimulating news to alter the attitude of professional, but in the character of the selling of the past week there is little to suggest that the stubborn world-wide preference for American securities to cash has been undermined.

B.A. Oil

The annual financial statement of the British American Oil Company Limited for the year 1935 will be mailed to shareholders any day now. It has been officially stated that shareholders in the company shared an improvement last year and this is taken to mean that the profits coming report will probably be the best that the shareholders have had since 1929. Preliminary financial remarks undoubtedly will cover the bringing in of spacious wells in Oklahoma and Texas. Complete data on this situation will enable investors to size up the prospects of this subsidiary in respect to future earning of British American Oil.

"STOCKS SHOULD BE ACCUMULATED ON REACTIONS"—Wood Potter and Company, in their Market Letter, say: "Many months ago the market has had a long upward swing-gathering momentum. In the last three weeks many professionals in New York and well informed traders have changed from a bear to a bull attitude. This move for several years on the North American continent has been inevitable—but the fact remains that on the North American Continent there is more cash and credit available for investment than for many years. There is no doubt that the culminating point was caused by Chairman Garfield of the S.E.C.) speech in which he denounced stock market speculation.

"Well informed people tell us that there is very little actual speculative activity on the New York Stock Exchange and that a great deal of the buying is for cash. Some people go as far as to say that 90% of the trading is for cash. People have been taking profits on the rises by the stocks; stocks are easier to sell than they used to be. The move for several years on the North American continent has been inflationary. Hesitant people are tired of getting little or no return on their savings and are turning to equities—whether it be individual stocks or investment trusts—not be allowed to long remain idle.

"Financial authorities in some quarters there is a belief that the advance in security prices has been too rapid. So far, however, the business is improving; that inflationary forces are at work and that seasoned stocks in sound situations should improve in price. In our opinion stocks should be accumulated on reactions."

SMELTERS—Consolidated Mining and Smelting responding to higher lead and zinc prices by crossing $44 mark, highest since 1930. If the present trend of metal prices continues Smelters could go higher. Further sensational advance as the supply around present levels is declared to be limited. Durey Lead and Thompson, members of The Montreal Curb Exchange in their current letter to clients.

ABERHART FIRM TO DOUGLAS QUITS

Edmonton, March 4. (CP)—Premier William Aberhart announced today the Social Credit Government had cabled Major C. H. Douglas, founder of Social Credit, who desires to terminate his contract with the Alberta administration, but declined to divulge contents of the cable.

Premier Aberhart said Douglas was wished to terminate his contract as reconstruction adviser to the Alberta Government because of Alberta's administration in the world, was made yesterday by Major Douglas in London, England.

Premier Aberhart and his cabinet discussed the communication from Major Douglas and Premier Aberhart announced the Alberta Government would not waver from its program of establishing a Social Credit system in Alberta.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, March 4 (CP)—Mining shares displayed heaviness again today on Toronto Stock Exchange. After a few isolated issues displayed the general sagging tendency. Trading lapsed off in the base metal, silver and senior gold groups.

Lake Shore, Dome and McIntyre sold lower in the senior golder group. Gold's Lake, Sladen, Pamour and Canadian Malartic lost ground.

Most of the base metals were steady in quiet trade. Hudson Bay, Ventures and Falconbridge challenged to minor gains and Noranda remained steady. Hinnestaud was again the most active of the oils at a price advance of 3 cents to 38.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

Toronto, March 4 (CP)—Prices were irregular in the industrial section today on moderate trading. Demand on Industrial Section of Toronto Stock Exchange was quiet. The unsteady display given by the New York market had an unsettling effect on the local market. Gold prices leaned up to a half point were responsible for conservation advanced about two points.

WALL ST. CLOSE

New York, March 4 (AP)—Specialties and some of the utilities pushed ahead in today's Stock Market.

Gainers of fractions to around a point or many at new year tops included Allied Chemical, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Montgomery Ward, Du Pont, National Steel, Sears, board Oil Westinghouse, National Dairy Products, Mid Mfg. Consolidated Corp., International Harvester, Consolidated Gas and Western Union.

American Telephone and Chrysler eased under profit taking and the rails were about even.

The late tone was firm. Transfers approximated 2,800,000 shares.

GRAIN

Winnipeg, March 4 (CP)—Wheat futures showed a firm trend in early trading on Winnipeg Grain Exchange today with prices up to ¼ higher, May selling at 83½; July 84⅜, and October 84¼.

Exporters entered the market early and it was estimated at midsession that about 1,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat had been worked over night and during the early part of the session.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, March 4.—There was a scarcity of eggs on the local market yesterday, dealers stating unable to obtain desired quantities. Snowy weather, and mild cold weather over the week-end, have held up country deliveries. The lightness of receipts is attributed owing to the meagre stocks held on hand. Local dealers look to imports from the United States, to relieve the shortage, which may be lessened by the 10 cents duties duty on United States eggs is five cents per dozen and on fresh eggs a three per cent. sales tax and charges for transportation, while there would be added the further cost of candling and grading of all receipts. The butter market was dull and generally steady. Potatoes and poultry were unchanged. Receipts for the week were posted at the Board of Trade as 976 cases of eggs, 147 boxes of butter.

The egg market was 1c to 3c per dozen higher than on Monday, graded shipments arriving in 1c. lots selling at 32-32c for A-large and 30-30½ A-medium.

The butter market was 2½c to 3c per lb. for No. 1 cartons or 1c. l.c.l. lots.

C. O. S. S. A. Title Won By Belleville Collegiate; Play in London in Finals

Defeat Tweed 3-1 in Game Here And 5-2 on Round

ICE QUITE HEAVY

Three first goals in the final stanza gave the B. C. I. V. S. interscholastic an advantage over the Tweed High School at the Belleville Arena last night, when the local "Collegians" downed the Tweed students 3 to 1 on the game, and therefore won the C.O.S.S.A. championship after defeating the "northerners" 5 to 1 in Tweed last week. The local students annexed the C.O.S.S.A. title by the score of 6 to 3 on the round.

Last night's game was played before some 500 fans on soft ice but despite the slowness of the ice conditions, the play was competitive throughout. The Tweed boys kept the game four goals behind and despite their handicap never once "threw in the towel" but carried the play into the local students' territory all night. Considering the condition of the ice however, hailed combination plays on the part of both teams. The game was very clean throughout only two penalties being inflicted by Referees Harry Morgan and Jerry Quinn, who handled the game in a satisfactory manner considering the adverse conditions.

The Shield-coached B.C.I. squad opened the game on the offensive and in the time established a lead of two minutes for their goal advantage. No scoring was registered in the first two periods, as all four counters were rank in the final stanza. Bowerbottom, Lott and McGrath were the marksmen for the local students, while Lea scored for the visitors.

Close Checking

The game was marked with close checking by both teams and checked back well. Both goalies turned in splendid efforts and turned in specially brilliant work in the second and third periods. Derry turning in a splendid effort during the last stanza. The defence of both teams was bolstered considerably by Coach Shields proved more profitable as Rochon, Lott and Bowerbottom combined together to play a thrilling passing game and by by two goals, Lott and Rochon, undoubtedly the best Tweed player turned-over the locals' second lead. Lineups: Arber and Tummon played stellar hockey for the visitors, while Tweed kids never admitted defeat and for the most of the game carried the play, but the scorers of the ice hamstrung.

The line-up—B.C.I.V.S. — Goal, Mosier; defence, Derry and Quinn; centre, Morgan; wings, Hanna and Mutt; subs, Woodley, Rochon and McGrath. Tweed H. S.—goal, Sayers; defence, Arber and Lea; centre, Tummon; wings, Laffman and Tummon; subs, Cosnyright, Long, Cournoyer; referee, Hurley.

MAGEDOMAS LOSE FIRST PLAYOFF

Ottawa, March 4.—(CP)—Royal Canadian Air Force defeated Brockville Magedomas 3-1 here last night and captured the first game of the three-out-of-five series for the Ottawa Senior Hockey League championship. Magedomas however extended the clash to two 10-minute overtime periods before they accepted defeat. The second game will be played in Brockville Thursday.

The first period was scoreless although Brockville easily outplayed the home team. Tee Myers, however, drew first blood. When Red Ryan was serving a penalty for tripping Leola Lecompte, Eric Mortripping Leola Lecompte, Eric Mortley converting Tommy McIntosh's relay for a goal following several gangplays.

Jo-Jo Graboski deadlocked the count early in the third session after splitting the defence, while giving a terrific speed. Bob Hitsman put the Airmen one up in the second overtime period when his sharp-angle shot from deep left looked the Brockville goalie. The game was saved up, when Everett Porteous brought the whole Brockville squad in his own zone, raced fast up the ice and banged the final counter after he was forced to circle the net by a Brockville player, who skated back fast in an effort to halt the rush.

WHITTALL CANS AND WOOLER WIN PLAYOFF GAMES

First Named Defeats Hinde and Dauch, While Latter Takes Carrying Place

GOALS TO COUNT

Winners of These Series Will Play For Trophy

Trenton, Mar. 4.—(Special)—In the first game of the semi-final play-offs, staged at the Trenton Lumbers Monday night, Wooler gained a 3 to 2 decision over Hinde and Dauch, and in winning will carry a one goal lead into the second game, to be played tonight. In the first period Lott of the papermen put his team into the lead, when he skated through alone to score on Bryan Hinde. Then Hinde and Dauch, Wooler of the Hinde and Dauch received the only penalty of the game, a minor for tripping. In the second period the play opened up and the Wooler forwards each scored two goals looked best on the play. Wooler's counters coming after two minutes of the period and Lott under way. Johnson, Hinde and Dauch, of the Wooler aggregation, was on the scoring end of the play. Johnson scored the second and last Wooler counter ten seconds before the second period ended on VanOsten. Penalties dealt out during the period went to Lott and Hinde and Dauch for tripping and to Richard Hinde for high tripping. Both teams held their own in the third period and each goal tender called on many times to pull off a sensational save. Two penalties were dealt out during this session, VanOsten of Wooler for tripping and Hinde of the park and O'Malley of the Papermen for tripping. The Wooler line of Lott, VanOsten and Long starred, while the Hinde and Dauch forwards, Hinde, Hood and Lott looked the best for the losers. Final score—Wooler 3, Hinde and Dauch 1. Line up—Wooler—goal, Bryant, defence, Long and Lott; centre, Johnson; wings, Steinburg and McCall. Centre, Glenn Hinde. Alternates, Reid and VanOsten, Putnam, Cliff. Hinde and Dauch—goal, Sloanburg; defence, O'Malley and Bowden; centre, Hinde; wings, Hood and Lott; subs, Lot, Alternates, Shenuit, Mac-Wood, Parnell, Starr and C. O'Malley, Referee, R. Burtt.

Whittall Cans Win

In the second semi-final playdown last night Whittall Cans defeated Carrying Place 3 to 2. The Cans won game from Carrying Place in the last ten minutes of the game to overcome their rival's one goal lead. In the first period the Carrying Place team stepped out in front after the first two minutes of play. Rosenplot scored after following a smooth pass from Davis, to put his team out in front. The game was run off at a whirlwind speed and was comparatively clean cut only three penalties were dealt out through Hales and Piercefield of the Whittalls and Piercefield of the Carrying Place team each received penalties in the first canto. With a one goal lead the Carrying Place team relied on backchecking and some brilliant defensive plays were given by the canal men forwards. At the close of the second period Hales of the Whittalls let a shot go from outside the Carrying Place blue line to fool Goalie Cottrell in the net, completely. The second period ended Whittall Cans 1, Carrying Place 1.

To start the third period off, Richard of Carrying Place took a pass from Staples to put his team out into the lead once again. While York, the Canalmen's defenceman was off for tripping Kerr, Smith of the Whittalls evened the count up after taking a pass from Kidd. Smith clinched the game for Whittalls three minutes later tying another pass from Kidd. The game ended with the Whittall boys shooting the puck up the ice to protect their one goal lead. The line of Smith, Kidd and Hales starred for Whittalls, while the Carrying Place line of Davis, Vandervoort and Dolan, starred for the losers. Final score—Whittall Cans 3, Carrying Place 2. Line up—Whittall Cans—goal, Gray; defence, Kerr and Hales; centre, Smith; wings, Kidd and Smith, centre, Miller. Alternates—Derry, Cain, Chambers and Dadswell.

SHILL TANGLES WITH SPECTATOR

Riots Appear to be Common in International

By the Canadian Press

If the International Hockey League's clientele is any biggest season, the league officers can credit the boost to the number of oddities presented to the customers during 1935-36. They bring out a new one almost every week.

Last night it was a penalty so Earl Robertson, goalkeeper of Windsor Bulldogs. They had a near riot as Leonard Kelly, centre with a spectator. Riots, however, are common in the I. H. L. this year. Buffalo, Detroit and Rochester Cardinals stuck to hockey in the other clash.

Bulldogs, despite the penalty so Robertson had an easy time with it, won from Pittsburgh's reserved Shamrocks. Pazed by Dave Kerrigan and Bernie Brophy who scored two goals apiece, Windsor won 7-3 decision. After the first period, it was Downie's first game after a two-week layoff with a charley horse, Gaston Leroux kicked out two shots.

Stars

Syracuse Stars, six points in front of Buffalo Bisons, defeated the 3-0 lead on London by the end of the first period but Bisons tied it in the last-period shot by "Chuck" Shannon. Yank Boyd and Bill Regan scored first-period goals by Eddie Convey and Shill. Jimmy Wood and Bill Cowley featured the Cardinal-Bison clash, Wood, Buffalo goal-scoring star, and Cowley's drives while Tauiger Rieked out 38. Cardinals, who regularly lead the league in the playoffs, pressed all the way but Red Dutton's boys scored the single point and kept strictly to defensive hockey.

Silent Treatment Now Being Used On Great Dizzy

By ALAN GOULD

(Associated Press Sports Editor)

New York, March 4.—(AP)—The latest strategy in dealing with the great Dean reminds us of that old College song, "Haggis Around the Scale." All the notes, sour and sweet, have been tried over the past year or two. Perhaps the current use of the "silent treatment" will prove more successful than failed to quench Dizzy's unquenchable spirit.

Back in 1931, as a lad rookie from the Texas League, Dean popped off to the press in the dampening his tonsils, exhausted the patience of Gabby Hartnett and branded a rube hick to Houston. He bounced right back the next year and pitched himself to fame with a fine new National League strikeout king which he still is.

Dizzy's friends insist he's the "most misunderstood" player in baseball. He confides that it's difficult to understand him because he tells everyone a different story. He's a "sucker for a suggestion."

Branch Rickey, the Cardinal business boss, suggested Dis make it worth while as a holdout. The pitcher promptly demanded $40,000. But he will "compromise" for $25,000. Which is the figure he will promise, as part of the agreement, to cast no more aspersions, or otherwise, upon the earnestness of fortitude of his team-mate this season.

ALL STAR TEAMS

Following is the third of a Canadian Press series of National Hockey League All-Star selections by sports writers and broadcasters in N. H. L. cities. A consensus will be prepared later.

By Wilbur Wood, New York Sun

First team—Goal, Chabot (Montreal); point, Shore (Boston); R. D.; Wentworth (Maroons); L. D., Boucher (Rangers); centre, Conacher (Toronto) R. W.; Schriner (American) L. W., Trottier (Rangers) coach.

Alternate team—Wenters (American) Gal; Clancy (Toronto) R. D.; Goodfellow (Detroit) L. D.; Gracie (Maroons) centre; Dillon (Rangers) R. W., P. Thompson, (Chicago), L. W.; Irvin (Toronto) coach.

RELEASE SPRAGUE CLEGHORN

Pittsburgh, March 4 (CP)—Ray Babcock, President of the Shamrock Club in the International Hockey League, has announced the release of Coach Sprague Cleghorn.

Babcock said the post will be filled over the week-end by "Fraxy") Hughes for the remainder of the season.

The club president said Cleghorn's dismissal resulted from "misconduct during the past month."

Cleghorn, former N.H.L. star and resident of Montreal, said the dismissal came after he protested delay in receiving salary cheques.

British Columbia Still Unbeaten In Brier Spiel

Toronto, March 4—(CP)—A dazzling Vancouver rink that came out of balmy British Columbia to represent the far-west province for the first time in the Macdonald's Brier Trophy competition for the Canadian championship here took to the ice today determined to increase their unbeaten win total of three. It was a tough assignment however, for the Pacific coast crew were drawn against Manitoba's mighty rink, favored by many to capture the trophy.

The British Columbia quartet is the only unbeaten rink of 10, which last night defeated Saskatchewan's Wilkie rink skipped by Ken Watson, lost its first match yesterday in their round play. Followers of the ancient game believed the B. C. Manitoba clash might prove to be the best game of the night.

Yesterday British Columbia, piloted by the veteran Bill Grahame, defeated Quebec 13-11 and New Brunswick 16-8. It was the only game New Brunswick's Campbellton four had lost. The rink, skipped by "Red" Shirtes, is considered the strongest eastern rink in the event. The Quebec crew were skipped by C. B. Bignall.

Manitoba dropped their first match when Northern Ontario's crack Haileybury rink, skipped by Emmett Smith, defeated them 10-9. Earlier Manitoba whipped Alberta 16-6.

Yesterday's results left six teams tied for second place with two points each, one lost. They were Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Ontario, Northern Ontario and New Brunswick. Three rinks, Nova Scotia, Quebec and Prince Edward Island, have yet to win a game.

Ontario Comes Back

Ontario after being walloped by Manitoba Monday, came back strongly yesterday to take two games. Hector Cowan's Sarnia men, representing the Province, defeated Prince Edward Island 17-10 and Quebec 18-3. The Prince Edward Island team was from Moniagra and was skipped by J. A. McIntyre. Cowan's rink seemed to find their bearings after a poor start Monday and well-deserved their decisive victories.

Les Youngson's Saskatchewan rink from Regina broke even on the day's two matches. He was defeated 11-8 by New Brunswick in the afternoon but came back from Nova Scotia in third round play. Nova Scotia is represented by Halifax curler, piloted by Murray Macneill.

The early draw today, besides bringing British Columbia and Manitoba together, has Nova Scotia meeting Ontario, Prince Edward Island clashing with Saskatchewan, Alberta against New Brunswick and Northern Ontario facing Quebec.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

Can Belleville hold that one goal lead? Well, your guess is as good as ours, but remember this; the goal posts are just as pride for Belleville as they are for the "Red Wings" and our chances are just one for the better than the Whitby crowd. Regardless as to the final outcome, however, the series has been perhaps the cleanest ever played in the realm of the O.H.A. with both teams always giving their best and retiring gentlemen.

We have heard arguments pro and con relative to why and how the "Redmen" should have either won the Whitby-Belleville series or at least carried a substantial lead into Whitby tonight. True enough the Redmen carried the play well enough in both home games to be well out in front today, but they aren't exactly so far ahead in goals as they might have been for the game tonight, but the folks are as good as the people and we're trailing along with Eddie Thomas' charges tonight as we firmly believe in their superior ability.

At this point we must retract our attack on Referee Bert Hedges for our based statements relative to his work around the blue lines on Monday night. It seems that Referee Hedges called the Belleville and Whitby dressing rooms prior to the game on Monday and asked the boys to remember managers if they wished a close-checking game or did they want it to be small infringements of the rules side and thereby give the fans a wide-open game that naturally supplies thrills. Both managers agreed to the latter system thereby giving the fans a thrilling game.

Perhaps we're superstitious but since an innovation, our little rhyming ditty, the Redmen have never repeatedly so that's why the words continue to carry their good omen into tonight's game at Whitby. It rhymes to the tune of "Put on Your Old Grey Bonnet" and goes around like this:

"Put on your old red sweaters,
With the big white letters,
And we'll trim old Whitby in the Fray."

When the game is over, we'll be in clover,
On that grand victorious day."

Kindly forgive the repetition but we're clean out of rabbits' feet and horse shoes.

For the information of the local's interested in the result of tonight's game, the Belleville Arena has made arrangements to have the period scores telephoned to the local Arena. The fans are requested not to call the Arena until we'll allow 8.00 p.m., as the first period will not be terminated until that time; and naturally it will take some time for relay the boose usage. The telephone number at the Arena is 68, and the fans are again reminded not to start calling until well after 8.00.

Les Shiels' B.O.I. puckists were forced to the limit last night before they downed the Tweed H. S. sextette 3 to 1 and thereby won the round and the C.O.S.S.A. championship. Incidentally the local "Collegians" now stand tied are to proceed to London, Ont., and compete in the provincial Interscholastic play-downs on Friday. Naturally finances are rather low in school hockey circles and the local "Collegians" are taking a "gander" around in search of transportation westward. The Belleville Arena started the ball rolling with five bucks. How about it?

Although we learned that Bill Calladine, of Peterboro baseball and hockey fame, had applied for a position on the proposed Canadian basketball team to play in Berlin next summer, the Lifiock Chronicle comes to bat with a new one. He says Bill Calladine, ace puckster, accepted an invite from Jack Adams, pilot of the Detroit Red Wings and visited him in Toronto recently. He met Adams and Wm. Norris, owner of the Detroit Club, and was their guest at the Leafs-Wings ice game. Bill was asked to try out with the Wings next fall and entered a semi-pro ball job this summer in Henryton-ville. He promised to think the matter over meanwhile waiting word from England where, along with a host of Ontario amateur ballsters, he had applied to play baseball this summer. We wish him luck wherever he goes."

Duke Smith, manager of the local Yacht Club hockey squad and member of the Bay of Quinte League, is endeavoring to arrange a playoff series between the Maple Leafs' heads and his "Sailors" for the championship of the Bay of Quinte loop. Skipper Smith tried to have this series under way this Sunday but could not get a rise out of the Napanee outfit, who are paying no contrary, the game will be played in Whitby. Strez talk had the game being played in Oshawa, but there is a Toronto Memorial League game on in the Motor City Arena tonight which dispels all rumours regarding the Whitby-Belleville game being played anywhere except Whitby.

Dale Plays The Game

—BY—

CHAPTER 28.

BRANT'S BITTER HOUR

Brant had had much time to think in the past week. Lonely evenings he returned to a house which held none of his family. His Mother.... No Mimi, small and perfect, curled in the great carved chair she affected to emphasize her daintiness. No Nance, buoyant and sunny. Above all, no Dale waiting in the blue and silver room. Dale, whose wide brown eyes would go to him like homing birds the moment he appeared in the doorway.

Tremendous, the difference Dale made. Brant had thought the old life of office and home had enclosed him as completely as it did in the old days. But, after all, the thought of Dale was under it all. She had been so close to him that he hadn't realized. After all, the old truism still held...a man and his wife are one.

So gently had Dale stolen into his life that Brant had hardly been aware she was there. But now she was gone, the frenzied office—this huge, silent house—and he felt the empty shell which had lost the living creature which gave it life.

Brant's conscience was a little twinge. He'd rather neglected Dale lately. The unaccustomed work of managing the estate had told on him. It had made him irritable. But he'd taken it out on her. He'd been pretty curt with Dale, he remembered, with his cheekbones beginning to burn. And she was so quiet and unresisting. She'd never been that way before. Out on the desert she'd been a spunky little devil. He smothered a chuckle as he thought of the time she'd cut the tires on the car to keep him from driving to town.

But here she'd lost the ill. The ardor of her had been dimmed lately, as though between them they were crushing her spirit.

A gust of love seized Brant, shaking him as though his spirit shook in a warm wind. Dale...sweet little kid.....that night when she went down to the office, he'd acted like a grouch.

Suddenly Brant wanted to see Dale. He wanted to put his head in her lap and have her pat his hair. He wanted to ask her to forgive him.....

Thursday's confounded directors' meeting would keep him from getting away. But he could run down Friday afternoon. He wouldn't wait for Saturday. He would surprise her.....

Even on the train came memories which stung him.....

Dale, sitting opposite on their long trip east. They had been very close then. The desert dawn and the surprise of their love was still fresh. He'd take her back this year to visit Pa and Honey. Dale'd like that—and after all there had been great charm to those days.

It was dark when Brant reached the little village on the lake. Darkness still when he reached his house. Only his mother and Mimi were in this living room.

Brant refused to let his mother order a supper. He'd had dinner on the train, he explained. As he spoke his eyes glanced about the room, seeking Dale.

Mimi, watching him closely, explained.

"We don't know where Dale is. She went out suddenly before dinner, without leaving any word where she'd be. The Spencers are coming over this evening to play bridge. Nice you've come."

But Brant did not want to play bridge. He was strangely restless. When the guests arrived, he withdrew.

Where was Dale? What could be keeping her?

He paced through the dark library. Long French doors opening onto the sun porch. What a glorious night! Stars like little bright eyes peering between the pines.

Brant stepped softly onto the porch and drew a deep breath. Smell of pines.....Pines—the moon was going to rise. A cold radiance showing over the lake before it sailed into view. The air was flooded with sudden transparency, revealing trees and shore line. Revealing two dark figures out there on the drive.....A man, holding a girl in his arms. A murmur of voices reaching him....

Brant was suddenly frozen, the cigarette he had reached for, unlighted in his nerveless fingers. Dale.....it was Dale.....

"Come in. Come on in the house.....!"

Mimi snapped on a switch and a lamp burst into soft radiance. Her ancestral eyes went to the man's face. What she saw there made Mimi suddenly move to the door and stand, celebrated's arms clutching the door frame.

"No—no! Brant, you'll be sorry!"

Brant made as though to lift her out of the way, then suddenly stopped, his forehead creasing with pain.

"Please get away from there, Mimi."

"No!" Mimi shook her crisp, dark head. "Not a scene, Brant! You'll be sorry! Wait—just a few minutes! You can't spoil anything by waiting." Then her voice dropped to a low, throaty note of sympathy.

"Oh, Brant, my dear—I wish you hadn't seen.....

Brant was pale white. His arms hanging heavily by his side. "I guess you're right," he said slowly. "A row won't do any good—"

"Not any good!" Mimi said eagerly. "Oh, I have been so afraid of this. Of course you know who it is .....I have been afraid—not knowing what to do—but I would hurt you the least." A queer little shake running down the words as though Mimi were frightened. Red mounting under the smooth skin of her cheeks. A mad, daring light in her eyes.

"I've seen it coming—they are old friends. You know, she was engaged to him before she ever met you. One of those back stage engagements. The red, prim mouth curled scornfully.

Brant discovered the cigarette in his fingers. Very carefully he lighted it, then suddenly plicked it at the fire-place.

"No...I didn't know....." His lips twisted into a bitter laugh. "I guess I'm just a plain damn fool where women are concerned. Sooner or later they all let me down."

"Ah, no! Brant, don't say that! If you knew how I have suffered for my own wretched behavior!"

Mimi was clinging to him, the small face upturned appallingly to his own.

Gently Brant put Mimi's hands aside and walked across the room. Mimi's eyes flashed and she caught her breath. Then she spoke again, that same little shake, as of fright going through the words:

"Remember how you had been hurt—how could I let you know what—what she was doing!...."

Brant wheeled and Mimi involuntarily shrank. His face was a mask cut out of stone.

"You mean—she's been seeing—this fellow? Meeting him—"

"Oh, of course, I hadn't meant to say that—" Mimi said weakly. "But— but everyone knows how things are, Brant. Erma Hanford said that fellow admitted they were old sweethearts. You might have known—a cheap chorus girl! The minute you brought her in the house I could tell. She's that kind—anyone could tell that just to look at her."

"Oh, I don't mean to run her down—but I'm resentful! You've done everything for her—and she belittles you like this! I guess there's plenty we don't know. She's sly!"

Mimi went softly up to Brant. Drew his hand over her shoulder and looked up with soft dark eyes.

"Dear Brant, don't look so! Couldn't you see this was bound to come. After all you had nothing in common. She's pretty—yes, I'll admit taht. In a way. But aside from that—your marriage was simply a result of propinquity. And what did you know of her—"

Mimi stopped. It was so very evident that Brant had not heard a word. His face was strained as though he listened to some bitter inner voice.

He put her away and went out into the hall. When she came flying after him, Brant spoke in a light voice:

"I'm going back to the city. Catch the night train..... If I stay here I—I'll say too much. Do something I'll regret. I've got to think.....got to think."

Brant was shaking under the fierce pressure he had placed on himself.

"Fix it with the others. Say I got a call. Say I'll get you to a phone to think....."

A flash of satisfaction in Mimi's long eyes.

"Yes, it will be safest for you to go away now, dear," she said softly.

CHAPTER 29.

BRANT FACES THE MUSIC

Brant was shaken to the innermost depths of his nature. The sight of Dale in another man's arms had stunned him. Not even jealousy could stir at first. That, too, was paralyzed along with the power of reason. But Brant knew his own capacity for rage; knew his fiery temper, and fierce pride, and something prompted him to get away before that protecting numbness should be dissipated. It was instinct to strike back when hurt. There was safety only in distance.

As Brant sat in the train, on his long ride up to the city, he sat like a man stricken. He kept thinking of Dale—wondering about that part of her life before he knew her. Mimi had said this fellow had loved Dale then. Brant recalled that Dale herself had said he was an old friend, one night when they were at dinner. Clifford, his name was.....he'd met him once at Erma Hanford's. A handsome chap—the sort a young girl would fall for.

Dale had been pretty bitter about men when Brant had met her in Ohi City. So, this fellow was the answer..... Resentment blazing up in Brant's heart, scorching him. He crushed it back with the cold reason he'd learned to exercise lately.

He had lots of call to yowl! Brant sneered at himself. His arrangement with Dale had been a cut and dried proposition—so much for so much. He'd made a convenience of her to get the money his grandmother had left. It was understood that she was immediately to go her way—even if her way had led back to this handsome fellow she'd quarrelled with.

There were no black boys now to serve Zverl's officers, as even their personal servants had deserted to foregather with the men of their own blood; and so the five prepared their own breakfast, after Zverl's attempt to command their services had met with refusal.

While they were eating Kitembo approached them, accompanied by the headmen of the different tribes.

"We are leaving with our people for our own countries," said the Basembo chief. "We leave food for your journey to your own camp." The whites were silent.

"Many of our warriors wish to kill you," continued the chief, "and that I cannot prevent if you attempt to accompany us, for they fear the vengeance of the ghosts that have followed you for many moons." You can't leave us like this!" expostulated Zverl.

"You cannot tell us what to do, while man," said Kitembo. "You are few and we are many. Your power over us is broken. In everything you have failed. We do not follow such a leader." "You can't do it," growled Zverl. "You will be punished for this, Kitembo."

Trenton and District

Trenton, March 4 (Special)—At the regular weekly meeting of the Trenton Rotary Club held in the Bridal Cottage, Mont Ferland, members and visitors had the pleasure of hearing a very fine address by Mr. J. W. Wright of Ottawa. The subject of Mr. Wright's address was "Minding and Tying to the Province as a Whole." Mr. Wright is very well versed on this subject as he represented the Dominion Government for "Natural Resources of Canada" at the Chicago World's Fair. He also is past president of the Northern Ontario Board of Trade and is at present chief engineering manager of the Timmins Daily News. In his speech he disclosed how in these trying six years mining has upheld the trade balance of Canada, with the rest of the world and has jumped from fourth place as Canada's national industry to first place. He told of how the North country is rapidly opening up and of the great possibilities there. He related a story of Larder Lake in the north country where forty-eight people were on relief, a gold mine was opened up there in 1926 and at the present time there are over two hundred men employed and vast expenditures have already been made by the constitution. In closing he made a comparison stating that the mining industry today, is holding up the and that the wheat industry did formerly. The speech was introduced by Mr. Dave Joyce and a vote of thanks was tendered the speaker by Mr. Ken. Orchard.

Police Court

A Colborne resident charged with unlawfully driving his motor vehicle without a chauffeur's license on Front Street on February 8, was fined ten dollars. He was given until March 15, to pay.

A Trenton man charged with failing to be able to produce his chauffeur's license while driving a truck was fined two dollars.

A Whitby man failing to produce his driver's permit, paid three dollars and two dollars costs.

Three local men failing to have sufficient lights on their motor vehicles were fined one dollar each.

An Ernestown resident, on February 28th, caused $28.50 damage to a local man's car and was fined $10.00 and $3.00 costs and on default of payment will be given fifteen days in Belleville jail.

Personals

While skiing on Sunday Mr. Clarke Nelson, druggist, had the misfortune to fall and receive cuts and severe head injuries. He was attended by Dr. J. W. Farley. Several stitches were required to close the wounds.

Mr. H. E. Penn, of H. E. Penn and Company, of Toronto, attended the Rotary banquet last evening.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

"Broadway Hostess"

Wini Shaw and Phil Regan Co-Star in Colorful Film

"Broadway Hostess" First National's rollicking new musical comedy, drama, with thrilling high lights, catchy music and mammoth spectacles, opened at the Capitol theatre today, with an all star cast.

The story treats of life on the Great White Way, particularly the night clubs and the palatial gambling halls. It is the story of a little country girl who goes to the big city to make good in theatrical work.

She finds it a tough job to crash Broadway, however, until the mash a big shot gambler, who puts her over in a big way and makes her the toast of the bright light district.

Comedy and thrills follow in quick succession until a smashing climax in which the gambler is slain by the brother of the woman he loves. Winifred Shaw musical comedy star, has the role of the little country girl who sings her way to fame, Phil Regan is her assistant, while Lyle Talbot and Joan Blondell are featured. Tobin the society girl whom Talbot loves.

"Spanish Cafe Mystery"

Adapted from one of the most celebrated of the popular series of Philip Wylie detective novels, "The Spanish Cafe Mystery," a Republic production starring Helen Twelvetrees and Donald Cook, will provide hilarious and spine-chilling entertainment at the screen of the Capitol Theatre, where it opened today for a three day run.

The plot concerns a young detective, who flies to California for a vacation, and finds himself involved in the most baffling mystery of his career. A man is murdered on the exclusive Spanish Steps right at the Goodrey Family. The estate is surrounded on three sides by water. On the fourth, by a high wall. The grounds are patrolled by a pack of vicious bulldogs. Under these circumstances, it is believed the murderer is one of the members of the family, or a guest at the house. Yet police are baffled. Apparently powerless to check further killings, and it is not until four persons have been murdered that young Queen steps in and solves the case, by using the beautiful daughter of the family as bait for the murderer.

The action is colorful and ingenious, and the plot displays all the power that has raised Queen to his present pinnacle as one of the most entertaining of American mystery writers.

AT THE BELLE

"I Dream Too Much"

Lily Pons, of Brilliant Voice and Personality, in Musical Romance

Heralded as an event of major importance to the cinema is the debut of the stirringly young coloratura soprano who soared to fame with the Metropolitan Opera Company and who has won world wide acclaim as one of the greatest singers of all time.

An RKO Radio picture directed by John Cromwell, "I Dream Too Much", coming to the Belle Theatre tomorrow and Friday, matinee daily, has Henry Fonda, latest of Hollywood's young actor sensations, in the male lead opposite Miss Pons. Osgood Perkins, veteran star of the New York stage, and Eve Arden, the English comedian who has scored an electric rivalry with Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers in "The Gay Divorcee" and "Top Hat" and "Shall We Dance," figure in this lavish production.

Written especially to fit Miss Pons' brilliant talents as a singer and actress, "I Dream Too Much" is an original story by Elsie Finn and David O. Wittels.

While Miss Pons naturally plays a dominant part in the picture, the story is said to be a delightfully human drama that is of high interest entirely aside from the songs, the only 'is Lily Pons can sing them.

Miss Pons combines two grand opera arias and four popular songs composed especially for the picture by Jerome Kern in her vocal selections. The arias are Polacca from Thomas' "Rigoletto" and Bell Song from Delibes' "Lakme". Both are from grand opera, which Miss Pons has sung to international acclaim.

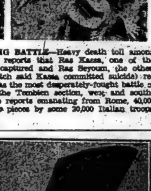
"Hockey in the Hay" is the first "Got Love", and also "I'm the Belle and I'll Dream Too Much" are the Kern numbers with words by Dorothy Fields.

Petite, brunette and vivacious, the French born and educated Miss Pons reveals a rare talent as a distant actress and comedienne.

Locales of the gay, sparkling romance are divided between the cities of France and the cities of Paris and London, including scenes laid in Paris Opera House interiors, a street carnival, Paris streets and the interior of a London music hall provide varied and intriguing backgrounds for a story specially created to provide the scene of entertainment in "I Dream Too Much" starts at 2.40 and 8.30.

Edward Everett Horton

"His Night Out", presenting a hard-boiled, devil-may-care Edward Everett Horton—not even the police cross-examinations and third degrees the wrath of Big Boss or the police and the death threat of gangsters, is sufficient to dim the side splitting festive attraction on the same program.



Edward Everett Horton in the unusual characterization are beautiful Irene Hervey, Donald Meek, Gordon and Clara Kimball Young.

Fay Wray Features Tonight

"It Had to Happen" co-starring Rosalind Russell and George Raft, and Fay Wray featuring Charles Trevor, Pauline Frederick and Kent Taylor will be presented tonight for the last time.

CRUSHED BY ITALIANS IN BIG BATTLE—Heavy death toll among Ethiopian troops in unconfirmed reports that Ras Kassa, one of the Ethiopian commanders, has been captured and Ras Seyoum, the other, was wounded (a Rome dispatch said Kassa committed suicide) resulted in what was described as the greatest battle of the Italo-Ethiopian war in the Tembien section, west and southwest of Makale. ADDITIONAL SPORT

W. HUNTINGDON AND BETHEL TIE

Sudden Death Game on Tuesday to Decide Championship

STIRLING, March 4.— (Special) —The largest crowd of the season cheered ten short handed Bethel greens skirts to the echo in the Stirling arena on Tuesday night, as they overcame a three goal lead to tie them on the round with West Huntingdon for the Championship of the Centre Hockey League. In the first game, West Huntingdon won by a score of five to three, and entered the second game with two on the outf. Early in the second period made its three. But the team of the Irish colour never gave up and though short handed they turned in a well-earned victory, playing with only nine substitute. This set up makes a third game necessary, and it is scheduled to take place next Tuesday night, when the teams will play to a finish.

The Game

West Huntingdon with a two goal handicap over the much weakened Bethel Club, started the game in a cautious defensive style, content with their two goal lead they made Bethel carry the play to them. Bethel did just that, playing a speedy game of combination from the drop of the puck, they tried Barles several times in the first period. West Huntingdon threw a few boos from the crowd with their defensive tactics, shooting the puck down the ice even when their opponents were unchanged. The ice was heavy and the puck hard to control. But the first period was scoreless. Referee Burt of Trenton, made the boys understand that hockey was the game by handing out several penalties for minor infractions right early. Doyle McGowan was the first to get the gate for charging, Sullivan following on the choke for hooking. Play became more even as West Huntingdon ventured forth on several dangerous rushes with Rodgers giving some fine exhibitions of real speed. The period ended in a scoreless tie with both teams tired from the heavy going.

From the face-off in the second period Mott took the puck west through the entire Bethel team only to be outgeneased by Dickey in the Bethel net. Shortly after the West Huntingdon face had a real chance to clear as Kirby scored on a three-man rush taking the pass from Rodgers to put the boys in black and white three goals up on the round. Mott went down the alone and with no one to stop him but the goalie, hit the goal post. Rodgers got the puck and Bethel shot a barrage of rubber at Sarles but almost made him diney, but they failed to beat him. Ray Dickey turned in the play of the season and was through on many of his rushes only to be beaten by Sarles in the Huntingdon net. He was the fastest skater on the ice and drew a great hand for his brilliant rushes. After about eighteen minutes of play in the second period, Bethel scored on the first goal for Bethel. This served as a stimulant to the boys in green and the period ended with West Huntingdon still leading on the ice and Bethel giving all they had.

Last Period

Bethel came out of the dressing room to make their final bid and they made a game effort, there to go out of the drop of the puck, the boys dug right in determined to do or die, and they came through with their goal 4-3 on the round. Shortly after Simms got the Million Dollar goal. With his teammates hovering around the West Huntingdon net, Simms raced into the corner and passed it out to Simms, who banged it in to tie up the series 5-5 on the round. Shortly after the West Huntingdon team pepped their unchecking for what time they shot the rubber down the ice, Bethel came back on a well organized and dangerous rush. In the last few minutes of the game West Huntingdon really showed up there to get the necessary counter, and Bethel had a tough time defending their net. Sarles Wright made some very brilliant saves for Bethel and Rodgers and Mott were always dangerous, went through time and again. It was one of the most thrilling games seen in Stirling this winter, and drew the largest crowd of the season. The battle to settle the question of supremacy is scheduled for next Tuesday night, and after the fine display by both teams in this game, it should pack the rink to the doors. Referee Burt in judge but no doubt West Huntingdon will play a much different game then. Bethel have trailed along at the foot of the league for some time, and now have their heart set on taking home the silverware this year. Mott, Kirby, Rodgers and Judd McGowan were the best for West Huntingdon, with Miller, Simms, Lapinette, standouts for Bethel. Ray Dickey was the Star of the game and sure deserved the great hand he got for his brilliant playmaking.

Line-ups—

Bethel—Goal, Dickey; defence, Culhane and Miller; Simms, centre; wings, Lapinette and Ray Dickey; alternate, Earl Dickey.

West Huntingdon—Goal, Sarles; defence, Judd McGowan and Gordon McGowan; centre, Mott; wings, Kirby and Wright, alternates, Rodgers, Thompson and Reid.

Referee—Ross Burt, Trenton.

Timekeeper—Arthur Hall. Henry Tulloch and George Tulloch.

FAMED LIZZIES HERE SATURDAY

Deacon Juveniles Hope to Secure Big Lead in Cage Battle

Facing their toughest opposition of the season, the Deacon Juveniles will meet Trenton's famous "Lizzies" in the Provincial Semi-finals of the Ontario Basketball Association playdowns this Saturday evening. The game will be played in the Collegiate hardwood, and should provide local basketball fans with forty minutes of real thrills.

The red-shirted "Lizzies" are again coached this year by Bob Alcock, Trenton's ace basketball advocate, who has brought more titles to the Hinterland's organization than any other Eastern Canadian coach. The Toronto squad has been badly shaken up after opposition throughout the season, and won the Toronto and District title only after a hard battle. While the Deacon youngsters have encountered little opposition from teams in the Eastern Ontario group, they have been working out with the Inter-mediates and have more than held their own in this fast company.

Although the Deacon Club's junior entry has just been stimulated by the "Ladies", the younger Juvenile squad is confident of avenging the defeat, and every player is in top condition and aching for a chance to push it into the rocky Trenton winners. With a sharp-shooting, fast-passing starting line, locals have five capable substitutes, who can be injected into the fray to assure a sustained attack and followers of the Deacons can rest assured that the team will apply the pressure at all times in an effort to secure at least a two-point margin for the second game in Trenton on the following Saturday.

With one of the best preliminary squads ever gathered in this city this year, the Deacon Club is expecting a capacity crowd at the Collegiate on Saturday night, and predicted the local boosters can get past the "Lizzies", they will have an excellent chance of working over to the Eastern Canadian champion-ship.

Little Benny's Note Book

My sister Gladdis and Harvey came around after supper, and we was all listening to the Seabrook Soap Hour, the man saying. And now, my friends of Seabrook's Complexion Soap, before we leave you until Thursday evening at 8 o'clock I would like to remind you of Seabrook's grand slogan contest. Don't forget one thousand dollars goes to the writer of the winning slogan. You can win it, good friend, and you, and you. And you. So put on your little old thinking caps and good nite till next Thursday at this hour, good nite.

Goodness, a thousand dollars what I could do with that, ma said, and Gladdis said, My stars, a thousand dollars, what I couldn't do with that.

I've always thawt I could think up a good slogan for one of these contests, ma said. Now for instance Seabrook's Complexion Soap, 90 and 60 cents, you save five per cent pure. That's practically a hundred per cent without crudely axually saying so, I mean it leaves something to the imagination if it's only one hundred per cent, she said, and Gladdis said, That's not half bad ma, and Harvey said, Now that's more like it, that mite have some selling power. Or here's this, Seabrook, the soap that made affection famous, he said.

By gullies we ast to get together on this, Harvey, pop said. A thousand dollars is a lot of money but it lasts, if you can get it. Use Seabrook's for soapex appeal, now I dont anybody be beat that, he said, and Harvey said, There's no use wasting time on such everything, now coincidence and emotion, how about starting a little periods bridge?

London, Ont., March 4 (CP)—Half a dozen food jobs are open to women here now that the relief boss, The Employment Service Bureau wants an electric and gas range demonstrator, a hotel housekeeper, chemical engineer, hotel manager, a cook, a waitress and a "computer expert," whatever that is. Pay salary is said to be the greatest drawback.

LOWER RATES FOR EASTERN SECTION SHORTLY, ROEBUCK

10-YEAR AGREEMENT

Niagara System Will Save Six Million This Year by New Contract

Toronto, March 5—(CP)—Attorney-General Roebuck, who has just concluded a lengthy Hydro address in the Ontario legislature Throne Speech debate looks forward to facing the House next year "without announcing a single deficit in any division of Hydro."

Winding up his contribution to the debate late yesterday, Mr. Roebuck announced a 1935 surplus for the Eastern Ontario, Georgian Bay and Thunder Bay system and for parts of the northern division but Abitibi-Deficit for the Manitouwin rural power district was reduced to the vanishing point, he said.

Opening the speech Tuesday night with an analysis of the Niagara system, he reported a deficit of $2,974,870, blaming it on the Quebec power contracts, cancelled by legislation proclaimed last December.

Mr. Roebuck announced new agreements with two of the companies, Gatineau and Montreal-Quebec, designed to save the Niagara system more than $4,000,000 this year. He announced a new agreement with Gatineau yesterday for delivery of power to the eastern system and estimated as a result the system would save $12,000 in 1938.

At the same time Mr. Roebuck said the Commission stood ready to meet the demand for power in the Province.

No Shortage of Power

"At no time in our future history", he said, "unless it be from a major calamity, will a time come when a single light goes out or a single machine stops turning as a result of a shortage of power."

The eastern system, he said, had a surplus of $348,001 last year, the Georgian Bay surplus was $95,323 while Thunder Bay's surplus was $1,751.

Surplus for the northern division, which contains the Nipissing, Wanapita, Espanola, Albany river and Red Lake districts was $127,041 but Abitibi's deficit of $271,66 wiped out this betterment.

Mr. Roebuck said he looked forward to a balanced budget for Abitibi this year. Lead, December, he said, in the combined northern districts the commission had a total revenue in excess of all expenses other than sinking fund for the first time since the Abitibi canyon purchase was completed.

Questioned by George B. Challies (Cons., Grenville-Dundas), Mr. Roebuck said he opposed immediate development of the St. Lawrence but favored negotiations to remove international obstructions to that development.

Agreement For 10 Years

The new Gatineau agreement for Eastern Ontario runs for 10 years instead of 40. The commission must accept a minimum of 41,000 horsepower at $12.50 a horse-power. An additional 18,000 horse-power is to be held in reserve, 9,000 horse-power as immediate stand-by for which the commission will pay $10 a horse-power and 9,000 as ultimate reserve for which a reservation charge of $1.75 is paid.

When the commission finally accepts the full 68,000 horse-power for its eastern system the price will be $12.50 a horse-power. Under the former Gatineau contract the price was $14.50 a horse-power.

The Attorney-General also forecast lower power rates in the eastern section "in the very near future."

Col. W. H. Price (Cons., Toronto Parkdale) will resume the debate today.

MEMBERS AIRED VIEWS ON PACT

Alternate Praise and Criticism Heard in House Debate

OTTAWA, March 5—(CP)—Alternate praise and criticism of the Canada-United States Trade Treaty continued in the House of Commons today as private members aired their views on the pact which has been in effect since January 1.

As the debate continued yesterday all the points came from the Liberals and all the criticism from the Conservatives. Disappointment with the treaty in that it failed to go far enough was expressed by one Liberal, J. J. Kinley of Queens-Lunenburg.

First Maritime member to take part in the Treaty debate, Mr. Kinley regretted Canada did not obtained more concessions on fish. He said the Maritimes fishing industry was facing destruction and the time had come for the Government to do something to stimulate it.

It would have been a fine thing, he thought, if Canada could have given the United States free entry on anthracite coal in exchange for free entry to the United States on fish. Canada needed anthracite and the United States was anxious to find a market for it and might have made the concession on fish.

May Have to Close Claimed

The Treaty's effects on manufacturing industries caused concern to John R. MacNicol (Cons., Toronto-Davenport), who thought many of the industries which had been built up under tariffs imposed by the Bennett Government could be forced to close their doors. This would mean more unemployment and more relief burdens on municipalities.

Northern British Columbia was enthusiastic about the Treaty, said G. Turgeon (Lib., Caribou), told the House. It looked forward to larger markets in the United States and anticipated a measure of prosperity and development as a result of the pact which would otherwise be possible. For similar reasons J. A. Bradette, (Lib. Cochrane), thought the pact a good thing for Northern Ontario. He was pleased, that continued free entry of newsprint to the United States was assured.

Harry Leader (Lib. Portage La Prairie), said he had opposed the 1911 Reciprocity Treaty and regretted his stand ever since. He had been a Conservative prior to joining the Progressive Party in 1921 and now believed the freer trade policies of the Liberal Party were right for Canada.

Police Commission Dismisses 9 Officers

Toronto, March 5—(CP)—Part of the recommendations of the Royal Commission which investigated affairs of the Toronto police force have been carried out. Whether the Toronto police commission will agree with other recommendations will not be known for some time.

The police commission yesterday dismissed nine officers as recommended by the report of the Royal Commissioners. Judgement was reserved in the cases of 43 others who the commission found "had established their innocence" of graft and robbery charges made by ex-constable W. J. Watt.

Secret Testimony is Given in Spy Trial

London, March 5—(AP)—Justice Greave-Lofft cleared Old Bailey court of spectators today and heard secret testimony behind closed doors in the second day of the trial of Dr. Hermann Gorus, alleged German spy.

The defense first completed cross-examination of Lieut. Col. William E. Cook, general staff officer and director of Intelligence for military operations, who introduced yesterday a description of Gorts' activities during the great war.

The defense questioned Colonel Cook closely as to his knowledge of German affairs. He had translated documents from the German language, alleged to show Gorts was detailed by Germany to determine United States air force development on one front.

HEIDELBERG IRRITATED

Old Heidelberg, stung by the non-acceptance of British Universities of Dr. Goetz and Confidence of Nations to participate in the 550th anniversary of the German-University, has hit back, withdrawing all other invitations to the Heidelberg program. A rather cynical letter has been forwarded by the rector of Heidelberg to all British Universities which had received the invitation, demanding that Britons have confused the matter of the university with political questions. "In order to spare those learned men from being placed in a dilemma by this development, I have taken a probably unprecedented decision. I therefore herewith withdraw my invitation to the British universities and academic societies." That sounds just a little bitter.

In Heidelberg the matter is taken up seriously for the representative of the Nazi government visited the university town the other day and it was thought for a time that efforts would be made to have the English universities reverse their decision. No more has been heard of the matter.

While Hayward will sent a delegate, its president not long ago rejected a scholarship offered by Dr. Hanfstaengl, Hitler aide, saying "we are unwilling to accept gifts from men who have been so closely associated with leadership of a political party which has inflicted damage on German Universities through measures which have struck at the very heart of the time fundamental to universities throughout the world."

Nazis probably realize what the world thinks of them as a political party. What the average German professor at heart thinks is not revealed. Any official action taken is no doubt at the instance of the Nazi authorities so that the two great British Universities no doubt will be delighted to know that they have stung the Nazis to the cancellation of invitations because the British refusal has sunk deep.

UNEMPLOYMENT

The question of the relief recipient has occupied the attention of the public for some years now and continues to do so. It will more and more be a matter of study how far the recipient of relief becomes instead of an unemployed person, an unemployable one. That the lack of regular work is a curse and that quite a number are naturally losing the desire for work is admitted. This is one of the tragedies of the depression when the enforced idleness of the worker may break down his spirit of independence and his morale.

On December 31st there were 1,200,000 persons in Canada receiving government aid. In September and October the figures had been about one million. This is a staggering load for those who are at work to carry.

Of these 19,000 were in camps. These are to be closed by July 1st and have been called a folly. The feeling of the Federal Government is that they have no place in the Canadian plan for facing this unemployment situation. Now the men to the number of a thousand are to find jobs in maintenance work on the railways and will not displace any workers. There are hopes of placing others on other work.

What exactly will yet be taken to bring about amelioration of the unemployment situation, no one can forecast. Such matters rest with the future.

It is hoped that the placing these men in jobs will find them taking to their tasks with alacrity so as to improve their condition financially and in morale for the better days which it is confidently hoped are ahead when there will be much more employment than there is at present.

DR. COOK'S CLAIM RECALLED

The name of Dr. Frederick Cook, which was much before the public twenty eight years ago, is again prominent as he demands scientific recognition of his claim to have discovered the North Pole before Admiral Peary. He has written a letter to the American Geographical Society requesting a full and partial investigation of his story.

Cook declares that every scientific expedition has upheld his polar discovery claim, though Admiral Peary disputed it (Peary claimed the pole in 1909).

Many persons remember the excitement of the time when Cook reported the discovery of the pole and of the subsequent events when the claim was disputed and Peary himself reached the pole and laid claim to being the first man to reach that spot.

Peary is dead and Cook has reached his seventieth year. Cook wants to be endorsed and to have his name cleared before he dies.

A poor man resembles a fiddler, whose music, though liked, is not much praised, because he lives by it; while a gentleman performer, though the most wretched scraper alive, throws the audience into rapture.—Oliver Goldsmith.

DALLAS TEXAS CORRESPONDENT SENDS GREETINGS and corroborates Miami, Florida correspondent's tale of the prominence and honor being done Mr. Crow in being invited to the best tables in the southwest. Hitherto Mr. Crow has just been black trash without one redeeming feature, apparently, a butt for everybody's jokes, sticks, stones and bullets, now a distinguished Oklahoman has made a bunch of politicians eat crow and like it. Governor Marland, Oklahoma, was one of the guests at the crow dinner and approached the piece de resistance very gingerly. Picking his crow he said ain't that a pretty plah to set before a Governor. However, he ate crow and liked it. So also did fifty politicians who afterward lustily joined in the chorus of "Bye Bye Blackbird", and "I Love You Just Because." And Tulsa hotels now have crow on the menus regularly.

OVERHEARD IN A BEVERAGE ROOM. Two men arguing about their knowledge of the Bible. One man claimed that he was very familiar with the sacred volume. The other seemed to doubt this and said so, finally offering to bet five dollars that the other did not know the Lord's Prayer, and could not repeat it, or even start it. The bet was posted and the doubter said, "All right, now, let's hear you repeat the Lord's Prayer, or any part of it." Will There be Flood in 1936? Citizens Voice Their Views

"THOSE WHO SAY 'YES'"

A snow laden country of the north, more deeply covered this year than for years past at the end of a sudden thaw, may see rapid torrents of water through its flooded creeks and overflowing lakes in the swollen Moira, creating a flood condition along the lower course that may duplicate the heavy ones of long ago, in the opinion of one older resident of this city who points to the weather conditions this year as being ideal for a flood.

"Take into account the amount of snow that will drain off the country into the Moira's tributaries and you will have an idea of whether there will be a flood or not. And that is the fact that this year the ice of the bay is heavier than it has been for years and will be slow to melt and break off, then you can see we're going to have a flood", but don't use my name, added the local man. "I might be wrong."

Whether or not residents of the lower end of the city would be going about their daily tasks with big rubber boots was debated by him.

"One thing might save us. That's the Point Anne which will be given over for time to run off. In many places the Moira is frozen right to the bottom. If the surface water comes down all at once over the top of the ice, then there might be a flood. The bay ice wouldn't be melted by then, and there would be no place for it to go. It will dam up, the water will rise and more water will steadily pile up. I don't for a moment think we'll have any such—well, at least some such."

From a bolster inner socket the local keeper of records produced a statement.

"Generally the Moira breaks up about the middle of March, but not each year. But it may be later this year on account of the heaviness of the ice. That will give it a chance to country plenty of time to fill up and let the water down all at once.

In the spring of 1935 the Bay of Quinte was completely clear of ice by April 8. But on May 22, following, this district was visited by a severe frost one night that killed that tops of cucumbers, potatoes and beans in garden plots, and even the city were nipped off, the book revealed.

"NO" DECLARES JACK

"No flood this year, It's almost impossible to have a flood any more with the way conditions are, no matter how deep the snow or thick the ice," confidently predicted Mr. Jack Roblin, life-long waterfront resident and keen observer of local water and weather conditions.

"The amount of snow in the north hasn't anything to do with it," he amplified, the veteran waterfront man. "For the thickness of the ice in the bay. Neither has the ice in the Moira. We haven't used rubber boots in this end of the town since the two dams were removed. We can't get a flood because there is no place in the Moira for the water to back up when it runs large ice sheets in the water."

"To have a flood you've got to have the big ice cakes—the ones that break off in two or three pieces and then jam in a heap at the lower end of the river. Anchor ice hasn't anything to do with it. It just forms and floats along up under the ice of the bay, even if the ice there hasn't broken up. Now and then it will break away or river to rise, but it will never cause it to flood, unless we get heavy freezing in between."

The north country hasn't anything to fear from the Moira, Jack says. Because generally, the river at this end is open before it starts to rise up there. It might come up a foot, but isn't come unhindered. Won't be much ice on either side of the river now. No place where the water is held back. No place where the ice can jam. Nothing but the lookers that rumble down, grinding on the bottom of the river, holding back half a river full more of them. They used to wear them—the lookers—down in the centre of the stream, pile up there right in the channel and push up the rest of the ice coming down. Now, I mind the time.....

As for the rest of the local residents questioned on the matter a similar evasion and parrying of the question was noted. For the most part a "wait and see" policy has been adopted, although plenty of 'anti-floodists' and 'floodists' had their own opinions on the matter.

A coroner's jury, under Dr. G. R. Philp, yesterday listened to Dr. W. L. Robinson, Pathologist, describe the injury that led to the youth's death and heard boxers, spectators and medical men describe the blows he received in three bouts. He fought under the name of Matthews.

Dr. Robinson, principal witness of the day, told the jury Matthews's death was from a ruptured blood vessel on the right side of the brain that might have been received weeks before the fight. The rupture resulted in a hemorrhage of the brain, a hemorrhage that could be produced by "very minor injuries, such as falling out of bed, bumping your head into a car door or some such minor injury."

Boxers and spectators agreed at no time did Matthews receive blows severe enough to cause a normal knockout. They were certain Pat Flanagan who fought Matthews just before his collapse, had not hit very hard.

Following his knockout Matthews was removed to hospital and was in a coma for nearly three days. A delicate brain operation was performed in a futile attempt to relieve his condition.

LOOKING BACKWARD

MARCH 5TH, 1916

One interested spectator of the game here between Belleville Intermediates and Napanee was Jack Starks who stopped off on the way to Toronto where he intends to play the following night. It is fifteen years since Jack Marks played here and on the last game he played was against Midland with the same team as in the recent game here. Between periods he was busy encouraging the boys and he gave them many valuable suggestions which were acted upon.

Some later notes on the Belleville-Midland game—about which city has sure fulfilled all his promises. This is the first time since 1901 that Belleville has reached the finals. Conley is the greatest amateur to guard—barring none—in the game. Whalen at centre is another hard worker and they let up not even going to going. Mitchell, like Sammy Symonds, is not spectacular, but there is there every minute of the play and his position could be no improved upon. Simons and Whitty are certainly a great pair to draw to, and when they start down the ice they are simply irresistible. It was their lightning-like rushes that broke their opponents' hearts before the first period had ended. One welcome addition to the line-up was our old friend Bill Finkle. He was there all the way through in his old-time form, and may but be is some destiny in the return of Finkle raises Belleville's stock immensely. One member of the Belleville team who is on the job every minute of the play is Sammy Symonds and he is one of the most effective men on the team. His back checking and defensive tactics help in no small degree to put the tally on the right side.

At the last meeting of the Trustees of Bridge Street Methodist church plans were submitted and unanimously ratified by them which met with almost unanimous approval. The sticking point was in the seating arrangements. One plan of the seats represented them in amphitheatre form with the pulpit in the west end, and another plan with the pulpit in a corner in the north side. If the latter method of seating is adopted a recess about 12 x 24 feet will have to be made on the north side of the church for the pulpit. The majority of the trustees were in favor of the north end plan, but in deference to not wish to depart from the form of the old church any more than possible. It is the opinion of the majority of those who have seen the plans that the north side arrangement is most modern and best adapted to the church. The estimate for the new church not including the material which can be used from the old building is $20,000.00.

We are now having good sap weather.

SAFEGUARDING OF INVESTORS LECTURE THEME

Prof. Walker of Queen's University Speaks in Belleville

"I think some way should be found to prevent the expansion of industry, to prevent industries by consolidation or merger, getting approximate control within the country," was one of the views offered by Prof. O. E. Walker of the Department of Commerce, Queen's University, Kingston, in his lecture before the Citizenship group sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce on Tuesday evening at the Y.M.C.A. lecture hall. This was the last in a series of addresses delivered during the past two months.

Prof. Walker said there could be no criticism of legitimate expansion of industry which, effected economies by mass production that the public should get the advantage of lowered production costs, not enjoyed by the shareholders.

He also declared that he was not in favor of government control of industries or even of those companies handling staple lines. But he thought there should be some safeguards to apply some means or safeguarding the public in order to assure the public some of the advantages in view of the fact that limited liability has been given the company. If there is no protection to the public from the "gouging" profit for the shareholders, there is no justification for allowing the company to operate.

Prof. Walker supported the opinion that the amendments of 1934-35 in regard to protection of the public were a step in the right direction. He said that no-par shares should have a small amount of value.

He said that no company was worthy of any confidence which sent out of its capital to the shareholders.

Prof. Walker in opening his address, "Protection Laws Investments—Investing the Investor" gave a history of company legislation from before the days of the Norman Conquest. In those far off days the more successful guilds established in England which were given the right of perpetual succession by Parliament. "To abide, endure and be maintained without end," was the spirit of enfeoffments to all the guilds was fostered in these companies. In 1218 corporation was granted to merchants to trade in the North Seas and Baltic. Then followed the days of the great trading figures in the seventeenth century. In 1566 provision was made to prevent dissolution of partnership on the death of one of two partners.

As early as 1671 it was claimed that the promotion was so high in some shares, that it was difficult to sell them, and so they were subdivided into halves, quarters and eighths.

Par value shares were first issued by the East India Company in 1813. Shares were first offered to the public in 1815. The first prospectus was introduced in 1824.

By 1720 the joint stock companies founded in great numbers had an aggregate value of fifty millions pounds, which was a large share of the national wealth. The climax came in the South Sea Bubble with enormous losses. Government stepped in to suppress but joint stock companies went on. One of the evils in the early days was that there was no corporate body, and a person with a debt against a company did not know whom to sue. In 1833 the right to sue and to be sued was made by law, thus establishing a "legal entity". The privileges of limited liability was occasionally granted by the Government prior to the company act in 1862. This limited liability gave an impetus to trading. The result of course was not all good. There should, said the professor, be the utmost freedom to individuals entering into business and be curbs to stop certain practices.

He held that uniform legislation throughout the province and the Dominion would be a step forward.

He advocated that the company be required to issue a non-withdrawal capital in order to operate as a security for creditors, shareholders and investors. Also the proposed more publicity, for the investor is entitled to protection before he comes into a company. He suggested that promoters and directors be required to give full information to those invited to become shareholders.

Under the limited liability clause, if a company fails and pays a fifty per cent settlement of debts, there is no claim on the private assets of the shareholders while on the other hand, the partners in a partnership are liable to the full extent of his assets. Hence it is necessary, said the professor, that the capital fund be kept intact.

To safeguard the shareholders more information should be given by the directors, continued Mr. Whitney of the New York Stock Exchange who said that many persons lost in the 1929 crash because they did not possess enough information about the companies whose shares they held. Were there fuller information there would have been less optimism and prices would not have been so high.

"I think," remarked Prof. Walker, "the public does not stop to think what is happening."

Mr. Walker read several paragraphs from the Price Control Report as to the blocking of cooperation in the interest of the investor and public being ignored, the comparative freedom from personal liability being responsible for unpractical and uneconomic practices, the growth of large corporations proceeding more rapidly than ever before, the price fixing to the concentration of wealth leading up to the disappearance of free competition.

On the law of today he said that the capital fund must be kept intact — for it is the investment of the investor. The law allows 75 per cent of no par stock to go to capital and 25 per cent to distributable profits which means this latter may be used to pay dividends before earned. Prof. Walker thought this was not just, that it was not justifiable to say widely that 25 per cent for that purpose.

He also pointed out the responsibility of directors in giving information to the investors who really have title of the larger companies in which they are interested.

As to the prospectus, Mr. Walker said directors are responsible to any shareholder or investor who acts on buying any shares through a misstatement in the prospectus. "We must educate the public to pay more attention to affairs of corporations."

Amendments of 1935 are calculated to prevent unfair practices. Now directors are compelled to report to directors annually the amount of sales and purchases of shares. This is to prevent manipulation. Par value shares must have a 100 per cent cash backing or cash equivalent. This is an attempt to get away from watering.

No par shares may be issued for any consideration agreed upon by the directors. The same provision should be applied to them as to par shares — they should be issued at a price and if property is turned in, it should be properly appraised and adequate value given in place of cash.

Mr. R. J. S. Devar presided and Rev. L. S. Wight moved a vote of thanks to Prof. Walker, to the Chamber of Commerce for the series of lectures and to the Y. M. C. A. for the use of the hall. Mr. Devar expressed the hope that the series would be continued next year.

'I'M ONLY BEGINNING TO LIVE'—Into Hollywood from the desert of Nevada came titian-haired Clara Bow the other day. But she left Nevada some time ago with her husband, Rex Bell, has a 14-months-old son, and says she wouldn't trade her life now for all the lights of Broadway. "I've just started to live now," she told reporters. Mrs. Bell (Clara Bow) is seen above with her son Tonl, and INSET, as she appeared during the "IT" girl period.

PLAINFIELD

Plainfield—The young people held their meeting in the church on Tuesday evening with Mrs. Harry Harrison, president, presiding. The meeting was opened with a hymn after which each person present in turn recited a verse of scripture or of a hymn in an act of consecration. Mr. Everson continued the study of the Sermon on the Mount, dealing with "What Jesus taught about the truth, how we should treat our enemies and hindrances to spiritual development. The minutes were read by Miss Fred Pringle. Mrs. Sherman Parks had charge of the first part of the program dealing with the Gospel, Truth and Ourselves". The explanation was given by Mrs. Harry Harrison and the discussion led by Mrs. Parks, bringing out the idea that God is near people and cares for men as individuals being a Father to each. Vernon Harrison contributed a solo, "Search me O God and know my heart." Verna Pringle recited, "It isn't your church its you." The second scripture lesson on "prayer" was read and explained by Mrs. Fred Prindle and the discussion given in a splendid paper by Mrs. Horace Palmer. Prayer was offered by Mrs. Harry Harrison. The meeting was closed with a hymn and the Mizpah Benediction. Mrs. Arthur Hall had charge of the social half hour period.

On Monday evening two sleighs well loaded with young people, members of Zion Hill Young People's Union journeyed to the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Treverton on the ninth of Thurlow where they had been invited by Miss Martha Treverton, teacher at Maple Leaf Public School, to assemble for their regular meeting of the society. Mr. Ray and Mr. Earl Hutcheson kindly gave their teams and sleighs for the occasion and a large attendance was present. The meeting opened at 8.30 with a hymn announced by the President Miss Martha Treverton, who also offered prayer. The minutes were read and the roll called by the secretary, Miss Joan Sills. Miss Ola Searles had charge of the first part of the program. A hymn was sung, Miss Edna Ray read the scripture lesson Miss Olive Searles told the story, "God and Ourselves" which was taken by the minister. Miss Olive Searles and Miss June Ray rendered a duet entitled "Jesus is all the world to me". Miss Merrill Ray had charge of the second part of the program. She and Miss Doris Bumstead sang, read passages of scripture with Merrill also recited a poem on "Prayer". The second topic, "What is prayer to me" was prepared by Mrs. Percy Ray and read by Miss Martha Treverton. Several young women were appointed a committee to make a district poster. A vote of thanks was tendered the hostess and she to Mr. and Mrs. Treverton for opening their home and for entertaining the young people so royally. The service closed with prayer by Mrs. Treverton. An hour of games was much enjoyed after which Mrs. Treverton served a delicious lunch.

Mr. Frank Garrison who has been a patient in a Toronto hospital for the last three months returned home on Friday.

Mr. William Collins has been under the doctor's care for several days.

Mr. Frank Garrison of the South concession of Thurlow is the guest of his son Mr. Frank Garrison.

Mr. Harold Healy of Glen Ross has been busy wood in the village for the last several days.

CARMEL

Carmel—On Friday evening, February 28th, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Simmons were hosts to the Young People of the Literary Society. 36 were present. Mr. Percy Reynolds, their worthy president opened the evening's program with O Canada. The feature of the evening's programme was a debate resolved that it is better to be tall than short. The worthy judges, Miss Gunning and Mr. Harold Brintnell decided in favor of the affirmative although many good and funny points were put up on both sides. The critic was Mrs. Wanda Sine. The affirmative side was taken by Miss Mildred Jones and Mr. Carmen Gunning. The negative was taken by Miss Fleta Hayhoe and Mr. Harold Howes. The debate all through was surely very delightful to the host and Mr. and Mrs. Simmons and to the rest of the guests who were present. Miss Olive Howes gave a very interesting reading and Miss Fern Patterson favored with a piano solo. Mr. Willis Pitman was leader of a contest called the newspaper, which was very humorous. After many social games the hostess assisted by Mrs. George Hicks served dainty refreshments after which all present enjoyed a very social time. The meeting closed with the singing of God Save the King. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Simmons for the lovely evening spent in their home and for their kind hospitality.

League was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Reynolds,on Wednesday evening last. In spite of the very stormy night a large crowd was present. Mr. President Miss Ida Reynolds opened the meeting with O Canada. The first number, Carmen Dafoe favored with two solo selections, accompanied with the guitar which every one enjoyed very much. Master Gerald Sine, Nana Sine and Ruth Brintnell sang which was enjoyed. Miss Gunning gave a very interesting reading. Miss Ethel Hoxton led in a couple of contests after which the meeting was dismissed. Mrs. W. Simmons served candy.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Simmons, Mr. and Mrs. John Patterson and family and Mr. Jack McCabe took dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds and Mrs. Wanda Sine's on Sunday and evening hearing Our Gracious King's speech which came in very plainly over the radio.

Friends are very anxiously waiting the recovery of Mrs. Wallie Meyers.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hicks, Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds and Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Simmons were entertained at the tea hour at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hicks Monday evening.

MUSIC

Pupils Of Cherrie And Mr. Jack Deacon

In view of the large number of pupils for tickets from nearby points, the management of Mrs. Mona's Chevron concert next Tuesday night in Bridge Street Church, announced there would be no reserved seats sold.

Mr. with John Deacon as soloist we expect a capacity audience, and do not think it fair to ask for reservations to anyone", said a member of the committee today.

John Deacon, the guest artist for the evening, is known as such a variety of classical and popular artist, so no request have been made him for anything special. Not the trained musicians but persons who enjoy music in any form will delight in Mr. Deacon's art. His ability to make the different sound convincingly simple and everything appealing seems to be the keynote of his success.

"I Dream Too Much"

Lily Pons and Henry Fonda in the Musical Trust of the Season

A great new gift in the divine voice and enchanting personality of Lily Pons is brought to screen which is now playing at the Capitol theatre, is not only one of the most delightful and entertaining pictures of the season, but it introduces as a film star the girl who made the song "The Lady in Red" in "In Caliente" famous.

The picture has just about everything in it, including hilarious comedy, dramatic thrills, catchy songs, unique, mammoth spectacles with hundreds of beautiful girls, and a cast of unusual talent, both as actors and singers. Best of all, has Wini Shaw.

A stately brunette of striking beauty, she combines unusual artistry in dramatic portrayal with a mezzo-contralto voice of exceptional appeal and is unquestionably the envy of many a torch singer. Miss Shaw sings three songs alone in the picture, one with Phil Regan, the "Singing Cop" of the radio, and two solo songs all alone, all of the pieces were written especially for the production by the famous song team of Ralph Rainger and Mort Dixon.

Miss Shaw plays the part of a small town girl with a voice, who goes to Broadway, but fails to make good until Lyle Talbot, in the role of a big shot gambler, takes her up and makes her the toast of the town.

The path of the stars is not exactly a bed of roses, however, for Regan's love for the brilliant night club hostess, Miss Shaw, is unrequited, while her own heart is broken because the gambler prefers a high society girl to his scintillating star. How does the society girl, who is played by Genevieve Tobin, fare so well for after she marries the gambler he is shot and killed by her own brother.

Allen Jenkins as the comedy aide and bodyguard of the gambler, fares best in the role of Talbot's pal. In a carefully woos a very much married and divorced socialite. Willie Eyring Byington, his bride, for she riches a large share of the comedy scenes.

"Spanish Cape Mystery"

Supporting opposite Miss Twelvetrees is Donald Cook, while members of the supporting cast include Berton Churchill, Frank Sheridan, Harry Stubbs, Guy Usher, Hunkley Gordon, Betty Blythe.

"Broadway Hostess"

A Thoroughly Amusing And Interesting Program

"Broadway Hostess," the first National comedy drama with music to be released in Canada, which is now playing at the Capitol theatre, is not only one of the most delightful and entertaining pictures to be seen, but it introduces as a film star the girl who made the song "The Lady in Red" in "In Caliente" famous.

Miss Shaw plays the part of a small town girl with a voice, who goes to Broadway, but fails to make good until Lyle Talbot, in the role of a big shot gambler, takes her up and makes her the toast of the town.

The path of the stars is not exactly a bed of roses, however, for Regan's love for the brilliant night club hostess, Miss Shaw, is unrequited, while her own heart is broken because the gambler prefers a high society girl to his scintillating star, who does the society girl, who is played by Genevieve Tobin, fare so well for after she marries the gambler he is shot and killed by her own brother.

Allen Jenkins as the comedy aide and bodyguard of the gambler, fares best in the role of Talbot's pal. In a carefully woos a very much married and divorced socialite, Willie Eyring Byington, his bride, for she riches a large share of the comedy scenes.

MADOC JCT.

Madoc Jct.—Little Joan Stapley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Stapley was painfully injured one day last week when she fell against the oven door. Her nose and face were cut so badly that she had to be taken to Stirling to the office of Dr. Charleton, where several stitches were required to close the wounds. The wounds are healing nicely.

The assessors, Messrs. King and McKeown, were through this line on Saturday and had dinner at Mr. C. Pilchette's.

Mr. and Mrs. R. McCaughan of Foxboro visited at Mr. and Mrs. N. Wannamaker's on Friday evening.

Mr. Murney Stapley and Mrs. Milton Wilson and Lavington spent an evening recently at Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wilson's of Hallowell.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Stapley had dinner on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. R. Stapley.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Stapley and children spent the dinner hour on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stapley of Stirling.

Little Vernon Clarke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Clarke, had his thumb nearly cut off on Sunday afternoon by a trunk lid falling on it. He was take to Stirling where Dr. Alger dressed the injury.

A merry crowd of young people enjoyed a skating party on the ice near the station, Monday evening. Later they went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Clarke where lunch and coffee was served.

Obituary

MRS. W. H. CHALKER
(Queenston)

Queenston, (Special)—The funeral services of the late Mrs. W. H. Chalker were held at the Rogers' Funeral Home, Ottawa, on Friday afternoon and were conducted by Rev. J. S. B. Paremar of Emmanuel Church, Ottawa, assisted by Rev. J. Lovery of Cushman Memorial Church, Hull, and interment at Beechwood Cemetery.

The floral tributes were numerous and very lovely—four different Lady Aid Organizations being represented.

In addition to the many relatives and friends of Ottawa present at the Funeral Home were Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Glover, Queenston; Mrs. Anna Glover, Mr. T. E. Thompson, Misses A. and J. Thompson and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sager.

2 New Sabotage Cases on Warships

LONDON, March 5.—(CP Cable) The Admiralty today was investigating two new cases of suspected sabotage aboard warships of the Royal Navy—making a total of six such incidents reported within the past three months.

Apparent attempts at sabotage had been made on the battle Cruiser Repulse and the Submarine H-28, the Admiralty announced.

The 32,000-ton Repulse was at Portsmouth undergoing repairs preparatory to a scheduled departure for the Mediterranean. She is due to replace her sister ship, the Renown, there.

FOURTH SIDNEY

Fourth Sidney—The Day of Prayer was held at the home of Mrs. W. Johnston on Friday afternoon with a good attendance. Mrs. H. Jeffery, vice president, presided. A very interesting program was given after which the hostess served a very dainty lunch.

Misses Peggy and Molly Jury Reg. N. spent Sunday evening with their parents Mr. and Mrs. W. Jury.

Miss Muriel Vermilyea spent Saturday in Kingston where she took part in a play.

The cawing of the crows and March coming in like a lamb almost leads one to think that the good old springtime will soon be here. The winter has been a very severe one as the men have been kept quite busy plowing out roads for traffic and it will be one that will be long remembered.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Pound and son Ross, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. Harris.

Little Aylmer Hannah is spending a week with his grandparents Mr. and Mrs. J. Hannah.

Miss Reta Wood was a guest of her parents Mr. and Mrs. A. Wood on Sunday.

Rev. H. Johnston called on Mr. Robt. MacPherson on Friday and took tea at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. Harris.

Mrs. W. Holmes spent Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. (Rev.) Johnston.

Mrs. H. Denyes spent a few days last week with her daughter Mrs. F. Jeffery who is confined to her bed with illness.

ST. ANDREW'S W. M. S.

The ladies of St. Andrew's W.M.S. Auxiliary of the Presbyterian Church, met in the church hall, on the afternoon of Wednesday, the fourth of March, with Mrs. J. Fargey, the President, in the chair.

The meeting opened by the ladies reading in unison, "The Call to Worship," which commenced: "Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord, or Who shall stand in His holy place?" and concludes, "Let us then therefore come unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy and find grace to help in time of need." After which the Lord's Prayer was recited in unison.

Hymn 548 was sung with Mrs. D. L. Fleming at the piano.

Mrs. P. Ranson read the Scripture reading which was followed by prayer by Mrs. Fargey, the president.

The secretary, Mrs. Wilson, read the minutes of the last meeting and also gave the list of the new officers of the Kingston Presbyterial, of which this is a branch.

Prominent among the items of business coming before the Auxiliary was a carefully consideration of the list of clothing, which is sent to the Birtle Indian School, Birtle, Manitoba.

The annual meeting of the Kingston Presbyterial, W.M.S. will be held in Trenton on the 23rd of March and all the ladies of this auxiliary are invited to attend.

The report of the treasurer, Mrs. P. Ranson, showed a very satisfactorily balances between receipts and expenditures.

Hymn 570 was then sung, following which Mrs. P. Ranson gave a very interesting reading on work among the Indians of the West.

The coming Easter Thank-offering meeting at which Mrs. (Rev.) Hunter of Madoc will be invited to address the members, was considered, and arrangements for the same begun.

After the singing of hymn 457, and the closing prayer by the president, the meeting was dismissed.

This meeting was very enjoyable with an attendance of twenty-six.

SPRINGBROOK

Springbrook—Mr. and Mrs. James Nickle, Billy and Laura returned to their home at Madoc on Friday after spending the past week in the vicinity.

Mrs. Verna Baker of Stirling was the week end with relatives in the community.

Mrs. Nelle Webb of Bonarlaw spent the week end with Miss Laura Percy.

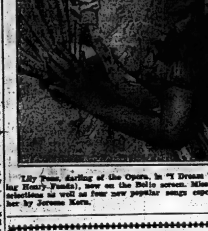
Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Morrison and Jameson were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Heath.

The many friends of Mrs. Carrie MacConnell are sorry to learn of her illness at the home of her son Mr. Thomas MacConnell. All join in wishing her a speedy recovery.

Misses Grace and Alma Nickle spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Bateman, 10th concession W.

The weekly meeting of Springbrook W.I. was opened by singing hymn 133, Annie Bateman read the Scripture reading and led in prayer. Alma Nickle gave a reading. Hymn 92 was then sung followed by a reading on "Canadian Forests" by Mrs. T. H. McKeown. A duet was given by Mary and Annie Bateman accompanied by Laura Mason at the organ. Edward Bateman gave a reading. Hymn 226 was sung. The topic was given by Jeana Nickle, also Mr. Hall read a paper in front of it. The business part of the meeting was then conducted by the President. Minutes of last meeting were read and approved. It was moved by Mrs. Foley and seconded by Mrs. T. H. McKeown that the Springbrook W.I. purchase the quilting of necessary boxes for Secretary and Treasurer. Hymn 123 was sung. A letter a contest on "Cities of Ontario" given by Audrey Prince, the meeting was closed by repeating Mizpah Benediction.

ASTHMA BRONCHITIS
...COLDS THAT 'HANG ON'



If you are tortured by choking, breathless bronchial trouble, racked by chronic cough, miserable by day, distressed by night, you need Fellows' Hypophosphite Syrup.

Your system is probably lacking in Calcium: this Fellows' Syrup supplies, together with other vital mineral salts, vital tonic health, energy and vitality. Fellows' lessens the coughing spasms and helps to restore the system to robust health. These generations have depended on this grand old tonic. Doctors in 52 countries prescribe it for restoring strength, and for building resistance to illness.

Only "FELLOWS" can give you the full benefit of this 60 year old recipe. Insist on "Fellows"—two sizes at your druggist's.

"BRITAIN'S MOST BEAUTIFUL BRIDE"—One of the most beautiful British brides of the year was Miss Amicie de Burgh Whyte, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William de Burgh Wryte of London. She married Mr. Roderick Walker, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Walker. Here the bride, accompanied by the groom, leave St. Peter's cathedral following the ceremony. The bride certainly is every inch a "queen" in this picture with her unusual and attractive headdress.

London, Ont., March 5—(CP)—The grit rid of pesky starlings, May- or T. F. Kingsmill suggests a bounty of one cent for two dead birds. He would put $500 in the estimates, taking care of bounties on 100,000 birds.

SAYS DOCTOR'S HAND WAS FOUND INJURED

Manchester, England, March 5—(AP)—The Crown marched another procession of witnesses to the dock today in an effort to prove its contention Dr. Bentley Purchase, blood-bloodied physician, killed his wife and a nurse-maid to collect their insurance policies into the "Devil's Beef-Tub" ravine.

Dr. Edgar Shannon, medical officer of the Manchester prison, said the physician had been searched after he had been arrested and one of them was injured. He came to the conclusion that he had been injured by a knife or similar instrument through the hand as it closed.

Burton said his hand had been cut by a cut opener.

Mrs. Mabel Smith, charwoman, said she noticed a most peculiar thing, "a nasty mess" in the Rexton home when she cleaned there Sept. 19, shortly after Mrs. Rupert's disappearance and that later she found a silk nightgown stained with blood.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

Toronto, March 5 (CP)—While a firm to strong price tone ruled on the Toronto Industrial Stock market, trading volume was light aside from considerable action in a half dozen issues. After dipping in the early trading, International Nickel improved to make a gain of ½-point in the afternoon and Consolidated Smelters recovered two points of a three-point decline.

Oils, steels, utilities and foods held a slight margin of gains over losses and the distillery stocks were off moderately. Brazilian and Ford of Canada were extra of small fractions for the day.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Mar. 5 (CP) — Sporty trading was the order in the Toronto Mining Market this afternoon following a slow morning trade with prices barely firm. Base Metals, Silvers and the medium-priced Golds harbored more activity than others while recessions predominated in the big golds.

Announcement that the Washington government would levy gold premiums silver from Canada through the Bank of Canada revived interest in Eldorado with the issue advanced 8 cents to $1.23 on good volume of trading. The other silver stocks made no response. Sudbury Basin, Sherritt, Falconbridge and Noranda were also firm.

Strong spots in the cheaper gold group were Bidgood, San Antonio, Carlboo, and Ferron.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, March 5—(AP)—Surging in today's stock market was paced by the rails, led by the Rail, Parm Implement, Merchandising and Specialty issues.

Noteworthy advances were scored by Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Missouri and Pacific, Southern, American Can., Du Pont, Case, International Harvester, Deere, Murray Corp., Sears Roebuck and Minn.

The Tobaccos were heavy and some of the Steels and Utilities were a little lower.

The late tone was firm. Transfers approximated 2,600,000 shares.

U. K. BUTTER

Ottawa, March 5—(CP)—Butter was dull and cheese slow on United Kingdom Markets, according to cable advice received today by the department of Agriculture.

Australian butter was 6d lower and Australian 3d to 6? shillings per cwt. (19.16 to 19.28 cents per lb.).

Board Room Gossip

As supplied by Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

Sullivan Com. Mines—Mine Manager Lindsay reports that at a point approximately 50 feet north of the shaft crosscut on number 4 vein, they have advanced 6 feet in a drift. The second round has shown an improvement in the character and occurrences of visible gold. "I believe this to be the most encouraging looking condition we have had as yet disclosed on No. 4 vein," Mr. Lindsay concludes in a letter to the Head Office.

The annual financial statement of Sullivan Consolidated Mines Limited will not be made public before the end of March but preliminary figures indicate that for the year ended December 31, 1935, the Company established a profit, before depreciation and depletion, of $212,238, equivalent to more than 3 cents per share.

The annual report when made public will show a considerable improvement in the year's financial position over the previous year. The ore for 1935 shows a profit of $1.10 per ton 300 feet on its objective of 350 ft.

Central Patricia Annual Report Soon

Semi-official advice received in Toronto says that Central Patricia's coming annual report to shareholders is that earnings of 13 cents per share on 1,500,000 shares for 1935 while approximately $300,000 cash surplus will be shown in addition to about $200,000 placed against new supplies. Ore reserves also show an increase by some 25,000 tons at the year-end, after having mined 30,000 tons. Ore reserves at the 1050 ft. mill tonnage will be fully reflected in the production for the first quarter of 1936.

San Antonio Runaway

According to gossip from Winnipeg the directors of San Antonio Gold Mines for the year 1935 may show nearly 20 cents per share earned on stock. Gossip says that they have still failed to find the ore shoot on the 1050 ft. level but that the No. 18 vein shows twice as much length on this level.

Sisco Gold Mines—Old Board Committee Gives Out State-ment

"The directors of Sisco Gold Mines Limited of which J. R. Lynch is president—and the present board without consulting the shareholders, or calling a company meeting for acquisition of outside prospects without consulting the shareholders, under by-law XV of the company, which gives them this right."

This is one of the many reasons, according to an official announcement today by members of the Old Board, why they are attempting to have the new slate of directors appointed at the annual meeting in Montreal on March 16.

Falconbridge Nickel Has 10 Years' Ore

At the annual general meeting of Falconbridge Nickel Mines, H. Hardy, newly elected president, in his remarks to shareholders stated that "in the present tonnage of ore we have so far extracted around 1 1-3 million tons above the present lowest bridge ground; and our estimates of reserves in sight are at present better than four million tons still available within the limits of our present operations. This represents ten years' life, even at the increased rate of output to be put to inaugurate by the end of this year, by which time, of course, further developments will have added still more tonnage to these reserves."

Discussing the nickel situation, it was pointed out by the president that the industrial expansion of European countries has been very rapid and that this has been reflected in increased demands for the company's products. Great Britain is Falconbridge's largest customer. Metal is also sold to Scandinavia, Holland, Germany, Japan, and the United States.

The exceptional strength in New York in recent sessions has not, as yet, found similar reflection in the Canadian markets. This is somewhat surprising in view of the fact that the business prospects in this country, particularly in base metals are as promising as across the line. The recent developments marketwise have been confined largely to waiting sooner or later this confidence factor will have a very considerable effect on a large portion of the board.

Dominion Stores has shown considerable strength in the market in the last four months, and this despite the fact that no special expenses have been included. Earnings for the 12 weeks period ended December 28th, 1935 sales were $1,405,310 compared with $1,350,423 for the 52 weeks period ended March 4 weeks in December 28th, 1935 sales were $1,375,089 compared with $1,350,423. For the 12 weeks to Dec. 28, 1935 $1,413,678 against $1,326,511 for the 52 weeks period. For the 12 weeks to February 22nd $1,452,068 against $1,350,423 for the 52 weeks. Since the trend changed, Dominion Stores' sales have shown a betterment of $100,000 per six an average of $133,127 per month.

Consumption of gasoline, according to Standard Oil of New Jersey, is somewhat better than might ordinarily have been expected in the face of the unusually difficult driving conditions in recent storms. Stocks, however, are at low ebb. Sales naturally disappeared. As a matter of fact, price cutting has appeared in the Middle Western States market, but this is not expected to spread and will probably prove to be short lived. With their best season still ahead of them, Consumers Gas is reason for heaviness on the securities of the better oil companies.

The Utility Group

Despite the recent market strength, the Canadian utility stocks still afford a handsome return when comparison is made with other security groups. For example the yield of the following five utilities, Mont. Power, Quebec Power, Shawinigan, Southern Canada Power and B.C. Power "A" is approximately 4.3 per cent.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, March 5—Sharp advances occurred on the local egg market yesterday. Fresh receipts in the city fell to 1,500 cases from sixty per dozen higher, generally, while prices in the retail trade in many lots were lifted 4 to 6c per dozen. The day's arrivals were posted at the Board of Trade at 902 cases and owing to the bare stocks on hand, this quantity was sufficient to meet requirements. A scarcity is expected to prevail for some days. No imports are likely from the United States, dealers said. The butter market continued steady, with no trading dull. Cheese, potatoes and poultry were unchanged. Receipts of butter were 1,000 boxes.

Graded shipments arriving in lots last week for export market and, generally at 35-36c for A-large and 33c-34c for A-medium. Some sales were recorded early in the day for large and 32c for A-medium, but higher levels quickly ruled later.

The butter market continued at 31 1-4c to 32 1-2 per lb. for No. 3 in cairns or 1-lb. rolls.

Livestock

Toronto, March 5—(CP)— Only a few hogs made the early morning run on the Ontario Livestock market during the early trading session today. No cattle, calves, sheep or lambs. Hogs prices while unsettled gave the indications of holding steady at yesterday's close of $8.50 to $8.60 off trucks and cars. One car load of western lambs was received but as yet found no market. The cattle holdover was 120 head.

Receipts reported by the Dominion livestock branch were: cattle, 0; calves, none, hogs 30; sheep and lambs, 210.

REPRESENTATION TO BE STUDIED

May Give Universities Members In House of Commons

Ottawa, March 5—(CP)—If the matter of Canadian Universities having representation in the house of Commons is placed before the committee dealing with the elections and franchise acts, it will be studied, C. H. Stothwell (Lib. Swift Current) said here today. Mr. Stothwell is chairman of the committee.

At present the committee's chief duty is to arrive at some conclusion on procedure to govern by-elections which may occur after July 1 this year.

Some members voiced interest in the suggestion to give the universities representation. In the main, however, the view was expressed such action would upset the balance of distribution as laid down in the British North America Act.

Property No Barrier To Public Services Declares Hon. Mr. Croll

Toronto, March 5 (CP)—Welfare Minister Croll declared today the Ontario Government would "refuse to lift a finger to unseat any relief recipient who offered himself for public service and has been given the vote and confidence of his municipality."

The Minister was commenting on the action of a group of Hagar Township ratepayers, who demanded four councillors in that township, 22 miles east of Sudbury, resign because they were on relief and had no legal status to retain office.

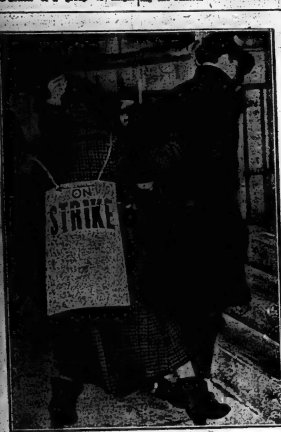
"Property is no barrier to public service," he said. "We are utterly opposed to any form of discrimination against citizens who happen to be forced to ask public assistance.

"There are even those, who would deprive the unemployed of their franchise, if they took parts in such moves—the germ of dictatorship. It took centuries of struggle to achieve the democratic principle, that a man's right to vote depends upon property but citizenship. Shall we abandon the idea because we have had a depression?"

NATIONAL PARK ESTABLISHED IN N.B.

Fredericton, March 5 (CP) — A heavy program of legislation was forecast in the Throne Speech read by Lieutenant-Governor Murray MacLaren in opening the first session of New Brunswick's 18th legislature today.

Forthcoming legislation would provide, in part: Establishment of a National Park; a colonization plan with Dominion government assistance; setting up a department of federal and municipal relations; a central purchasing department; appointment of a fair wage officer; consolidation or agriculture department services, with consideration to be given credit unions, Mutual Farm Insurance and cooperative production and marketing; a complete annual Liquor Control Board report; Restoration of free school books, to remain the property of the province, and improvements to the Workmen's Compensation Act.



Assurance was given the date of issue of the first Old Age Pension cheques would be announced during the session.

IMPERIAL PARLEY ON DEFENCE PLAN

Satisfactory trials of new anti-tank gun equipment and certain types of Dominion weapons to begin this year, it is also noted.

New Machine Gun

First deliveries are also expected this year of the Bren, a new light machine gun which will replace the obsolete Lewis.

An anti-tank rifle, "The Boys", is adopted as first line defence against armored fighting vehicles. It is light to manufacture and issue a number before the end of the year.

A simpler type of light and medium "Dragons" has also been evolved. The latest type of light tank has proved a success, it is remarked. New types of other models will shortly be available for experiment and trial.

Recruiting Unsatisfactory

Recruiting for both the territorial and the regular army is pro nounced unsatisfactory by the Secretary for War stating: "The depleted state of the territorial army," he said, "is a matter of some concern to me and my advisers in view of the importance of various tasks which devolve upon it in time of emergency. We hope certain measures now under consideration will lend to improve recruiting for this important part of our land forces.

"The strength of the regular army," he notes, "inclusive of British troops in India, will be approximately 20,000 below the recruiting establishment at the beginning of the financial year. During the year the number of men leaving the colors will be approximately 50,500.

50,000 Recruits Needed

"There is need therefore of more than 50,000 recruits. As during the past 10 months only 19,584 recruits have been taken on as against 22,500 during the corresponding period of last year. There is a serious shortage of men coming forward to join the army, although it is satisfactory to record that the type of recruit being enlisted tends to improve.

"During the recruiting year 1935 the percentage of rejections of physical, medical or educational grounds was less than in the preceding year.

Constant efforts are being made to improve recruiting. "All homes" are held in regimental depots and other barracks with the object of creating interest in the domestic life of the soldier.

U. S. WILL BUY SILVER OUTPUT

Canadian Production to Be Purchased at Treasury Price

Washington, Mar. 5 (AP)—Secretary of the United States Treasury Henry Morgenthau said today his agreement to buy newly-mined Canadian silver through the Bank of Canada was expected to benefit the Dominion's entire output.

The purchase was estimated by United States Treasury officials at about 16,000,000 ounces a year.

Morgenthau said that the Treasury would fix the price to be paid for the metal rather than to be governed at by the prevailing New York price.

The Treasury figure is about one-fourth cent an ounce higher than that quoted in New York.

This government now has an arrangement with Mexico to purchase that republic's entire output of the newly-mined metal.

The buying is done in pursuance of the silver purchase act requirement that treasury stocks of the metal be built up to one-third those of gold or until the price reaches $1.29 an ounce—the coinage value.

14,000,000 Ounces Available

Toronto, Mar. 5 (CP)—Minister of Mines Leduc said today he doubted whether the United States government to buy newly-mined Canadian silver would have a great effect on the province's silver production.

"Everything depends on the price," he said. The price goes up it will encourage people to re-open mines."

Ottawa, Mar. 5 (CP)—Dominion government mining officials said today they expected about 14,000,000 ounces of newly-mined Canadian silver would be available for sale to the United States Treasury this year through the Bank of Canada.

Under the London Silver Agreement, which terminates next year, the Canadian government agreed to buy 1,671,803 ounces of silver annually from Canadian mines. Canada's total production of silver in 1934 was approximately 14,413,282 ounces. Figures for 1935 are not complete but mining officials said they anticipated little change from the 1934 figure.

Meningitis Believed Cause of Girl's Death

WINDSOR, Ont., March 5—(CP)—Believed a victim of meningitis, Patricia Frances Fountain, four years old, daughter of Thomas Fountain of Amherstburg, died last night in a hospital here, where she had been a patient since Tuesday night. Her sister, Shirley Grace, has been under observation for symptoms of the same disease.

According to hospital attendants Patricia Frances Fountain also had contracted the ailment.

ADMIT BOMBS WERE DROPPED

Italian Pilot Claims He Was Fired on by Anti-Aircraft Gun

Bombing Admitted

Rome, March 5.—(AP)—A Government official said today an Italian observation plane had bombed what may have been a British Red Cross unit of 30 trucks near Quoram yesterday. He gave out the following explanation:

First, the observation plane flew over Quoram Wednesday and saw the trucks bearing Red Cross emblems unloading various materials and supplies. The plane flew low and was fired on and returned to its base.

Claims He Was Fired On

Second, the pilot flew to the same spot yesterday and attained anti-aircraft guns fired on him and the plane was hit. The pilot then dropped small bombs.

Third, the pilot said judging from the smoke that flared up he struck an ammunition dump.

Fourth, the British Embassy today informed the Italian Government a British Red Cross unit had been transferred from Desaye to Quoram and this was the first the Italians had known there was a British unit at Quoram.

The official asserted by firing on the plane, the Red Cross unit lost its immunity from attack.

Dr. Frankish Convinced Volvey Was Throttled

Cornwall, March 5 —(CP)—The Crown today concluded its case in the trial of Mrs. Viney Belle Volvey and Clarence Cameron, charged with the murder of the woman's husband, Louis last April 22.

Agreeing with previous medical testimony Dr. J. A. Tallon of Cornwall said today he believed Volvey died from strangulation. Dr Tallon performed the initial post mortem examination on the body of the deceased farmer and was also present when Dr. A. E. Franklin, medical expert of the Ontario Attorney General's department, performed a second post mortem. Dr. Franklin today testified throttling caused Volvey's death.

Dr. Frankish's examination convinced him Volvey died from strangulation and fractures of the hyoid bone, due to pressure on the throat, the Cornwall doctor said, though at first he concluded death was caused from a dislocated neck.

Dr. Frankish recalled the hyoid bone. There was no injury to Volvey's spinal column.

Harry O'Donnell Signs Notice of Appeal

Toronto, March 5—(CP)— Harry O'Donnell, convicted of the murder of 30-year-old Ruth Taylor and sentenced to hang May 8 today signed the official notice of his appeal against the sentence.

The grounds on which appeal will be that the trial Judge Mr. Justice Wood Jaffery allowed as evidence headlines from newspapers about the finding of a wrench with the initials "O'D", an important piece of evidence. The appeal will also contend the judge should not have allowed as evidence statements made by O'Donnell when he was arrested. The notice will be served today.

Attorney General Roebuck will have to review the grounds for the appeal and hear any explanation which may be given. Then, should he decide there is sufficient merit in the appeal to go ahead with it, he may either pay the full costs, or order a new defence counsel or pay part of the costs.

ONE SERIOUSLY BURNED

Toronto, March 5—(CP)— Four persons were burned, one seriously, when the dressing gown of George H. Linton, 80-year-old invalid caught fire at his home today.

Mr. Linton was seriously burned and his wife, his son Reginald, 25, and Miss M. Yeats, a nurse, suffered burns on their hands and arms when they smothered the fire.

DURHAM TEAM SELECTED

Peterborough, Ont., March 5 (CP)—In a competition staged by degree teams of the Royal Black Knights of the Counties of Durham and Victoria, the Durham team was declared winners and they will exemplify the Royal Scarlet Degree at the annual meeting of Grand Lodge for Ontario East at Prescott, March 18.

No Big War as Powers are Afraid Old Men Unsafe at Home—Shaw

San Francisco, Mar. 5 (AP)—Having designated himself the "most popular man" in the United States and laughed off the immediate possibility of a world war all in one press interview, bewhiskered George Bernard Shaw went to have a look at the Grand Canyon today.

"What is it," he asked, "a building?"

There won't be a serious war, he said, because the big powers are afraid of each other.

"Disarmament conferences are ultra rubbish. They are held merely to keep the public amused," he smiled. "No nation is going to disarm. They sit around a table and say:

"'If I shoot you with a 14-inch gun will you throw away your 16-inch guns?'

"It's impossible to guess where the next great war will break out because it probably won't break out at all. War has changed so old gentlemen who send out young men to fight for them are no longer safe. Airplanes can bomb them as well as the soldiers."

McCORMICK'S TOASTED Style SODAS

Rawdon and District

Rawdon—On Friday afternoon the "World Day of Prayer" was held at Mount Pleasant United Church with twenty-one in attendance.

The programme was based on the theme "In Spirit and Truth" and "Lift towards men," and was prepared by a branch of Chile.

The service opened with quiet music by Rendered at Mount Pleasant. Women's Missionary Society who presided over the day: also Mrs. Harold Elliott, President of Bethel Ladies' Aid, and in the absence of Mrs. Wellman's ladies, Mrs. John Holmes, 1st. vice-president of Mount Pleasant W. M. S.

All joined in singing "Jesus Shall Reign" and the call to worship, Mrs. MacMullen briefly addressed the gathering, especially the Bethel friends.

Mrs. Holmes presided over the responsive reading, Psalm 100, and Mrs. Holt read the Bible lesson. Prayers were offered by Mrs. A. E. Elliott and Mr. C. U. Heath, Bethel.

Mrs. J. R. Beckel gave a splendid solo, "Lead Kindly Light."

"The ways of peace" then followed with Mrs. Gordon Sharp and Mrs. Elwood Johnson and Mrs. Thrasher taking part.

Mrs. Allan Betley and Mrs. Cyrus Summers also offered prayer. The W. M. S. benediction followed by Mrs. J. Holmes. Mrs. Edgar McKeown, Mrs. Frank Smith and Mrs. Ernest Thrasher sang. Mrs. Jonas Sharp offered prayer. Mrs. Harold Elliott sang a hymn.

Mrs. Frank Smith, World Peace Secretary of the W.M.S. briefly sketched "The Origin of the Day of Prayer."

Misses Eileen Mackillen and Mildred Thrasher gathered the offering and Mrs. Fisher in prayer dedicated it, forwarded to the Treasurer of the Home Board Committee where it will be used to provide Christian literature for the young and children in other lands. Mrs. Holmes dedicated the offering and the service closed with a hymn and the Mizpah Benediction.

Unfortunately owing to bad roads, disagreeable weather and an epidemic of measles several were unable to attend this inspirational service.

Mrs. Thomas Mackillen, Hela and Blanche of Bethel and Mr. Clifford Reid of Belleville spent Saturday and Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Percy MacCauley, Foster.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Brandon entertained a number of young people on Saturday evening.

Bethel Young People's Society opened Thursday evening with a round of community singing and the per-ident Mr. Wesley Farrell in the chair.

The service proper began with a hymn and prayer by the pastor. The roll call was answered with a Bible verse. It was decided to send a donation to the Young People's Union.

Miss Lois Heath, Convener of Citizenship then briefly gave a patriotic hymn "The one deep and

SCIENTIFIC REPORT FAVORS BRAN

Relieves Common Constipation Safely

Read this statement, taken from an article in the Journal of the American Dietetic Association, page 133-134, Nov., 1932:

"The incision in the diet of a small portion of bran . . . would seem a very practical way of getting fiber which is not likely to be disintegrated. This bran has the additional advantage of furnishing a considerable amount of vitamin B and of readily available iron."

Exhaustive tests, over a period of five years, have proved Kellogg's All-Bran to be a safe, effective way to correct constipation due to insufficient "bulk" or fiber in meals.

You will enjoy this delicious cereal to prevent the dangers of constipation. You can eat Kellogg's All-Bran as a cereal with milk or cream. Sprinkle over salads, soups, or other cereals. Or cook into delicious breads and muffins.

Usually two tablespoonfuls a piece daily are enough to protect your family from common constipation. How much better than taking pills or drugs!

Serve All-Bran regularly for regularity. It is much more effective than part-bran products. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

...ve love." Mrs. Harold Elliott read the Bible lesson and Miss Luella Hoover gave a vocal solo.

Mrs. S. J. Elliott outlined the topic, the subject "Building Bridges to Nations" and Rev. J. E. Beckel briefly addressed the gathering. All joined in a hymn and a spelling match followed. Mr. Hoover closed the "Automobile Contest" to the close of the service.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Spencer and Mr. Robert Melville were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hoyes, Campbellford, on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dunkley entertained Mr. and Mrs. Willie Montgomery, Marie and Maurice to an oyster supper on Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Harold Elliott, president of Bethel Ladies' Aid and Mr. and Mrs. C. U. Heath, Mrs. S. J. Elliott and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hoyes attended the world day of prayer held at Mount Pleasant on Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McConnell and mother Mrs. McCoy, Eldorado, visited relatives in Toronto over the week-end.

Mrs. Cyrus Summers entertained the Ladies' Aid on Thursday.

Mrs. Jonas Sharp and Mrs. Frank Keown and Francis to tea on Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. James Sharp and Mrs. Ellen Sharp were dinner guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Jonas Sharp.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Parker on Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bailey on Sunday.

On Sunday evening Rev. J. E. Beckel preached. The convocation of the rush that was born blind" and Mr. John Coggins recitation "Blind Jim."

Miss Francis MacKown entertained the Young People's Society of Sunshine on a few days recently.

Mrs. Percy Bradshaw is a surgery guest, Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Montgomery.

Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Anderson and family moved to their new home on Mount Pleasant last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Germani measles are still busy going the rounds and each day brings forth new victims. Those reported to be carded at Mount Pleasant and no doubt the epidemic will soon die out.

A few of the people were privileged to hear the King's radio message on Sunday.

Mr. O. Vandervoort is holidaying with his daughter Mrs. Alton Vanest a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Stoe, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Stoe, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Dick and Mrs. Ida Dick were guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Percy MacCauley, Foster.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Brandon entertained a number of young people on Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Spencer entertained Mr. and Mrs. H. Wheeler, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Bailey and Mrs. A. Thompson to tea on Monday evening.

Mrs Betty McConnell spent Monday with Miss Marie Montgomery.

Mr. John Coggins opened Mount Pleasant Young People's on Friday evening with a hymn and the pastor offered prayer. Duets were made to entertain Salem Y. P. S.

Miss Helen Spencer, Social Convener then presided with a hymn and Mrs. Harry McMullen, pianist. The president read the Bible lesson and Mr. Harry McMullen recited.

Miss Faye Andrews contributed a musical selection, guitar and mouth organ.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen outlined the topic on the subject "Crusading Authors" dealing with the work of Elizabeth Barrett Browning, Henry Hilton, Charles Dickens, John Bunkin, Tennyson, E. Pauline Johnson, Mrs. Wheeler, Wilcox and Rudyard Kipling. She also gave a reading to two living authors. Mrs. Lila Rose, Toronto and Mrs. H. N. Anderson, Concession.

The pastor offered additional suggestions, gathering and spoke of the work of Miss Moore Jamieson, who found her way to Canada and after a visit visited those present not to look too far afield but rather to do the worthwhile things each day around their own home and community.

Miss Frances McKeown rendered a piano solo and Miss Mona Mills ...

"Redmen" Eliminated from Intermediate "B" Race by Whitby After Four Games

Score 6-3 And Red Wings Win 11-7 on The Round

STICKY, HEAVY ICE

Failure to Cover in Front of Twines Principal Cause of Defeat

It's certainly, mouth balls and all that sort of thing for the Belleville "Redmen" hockey after their 8 to 7 defeat at Whitby last night. Once again the Whitby "Red Wings" proved to be superior to Belleville under very trying conditions as the ice was wet and very soft all of which proved a handicap to the fast-footed "Redmen" who could not seem to make headway under the heavy going. The Whitby victory by 8 to 3 gave the Red Wings the round by the score of 11 to 7.

The game, as all three previous contests, was played cleanly and directly following the opening whistle, consistents exchanged complimentary remarks with the losers, wishing the winners the best of luck.

Although to play defensive hockey after they had carried the play during the opening stages and opened the scoring with Ted Ball in behind the Whitby net, failed miserably to cover their checks in front of the Belleville net, with the result that practically all three Whitby goals were scored in the first period through the neglect of the Belleville defence to cover in front of their net".

During the second period, however, this flaw was fixed by the "Redmen" defence, allowing only one Whitby goal, the greater part of the second and third period, and Manager Thomas used five forwards for minutes at a time in a frantic effort to head down the homester's advantage.

Twenty Minutes

The locals tried to their utmost, but their best efforts last night were not quite good enough as the Red Wings seemed more accustomed to the heavy going as it was sloppy, and soft ice in one of the fastest fighted rinks in the district. Besides this the Wings' goalie continued to hold a jinx over the "Redmen" last night, and was in better protection than was his rival Don. Mercer, guarding the local twine. Brown and Conlin teamed splendidly on the offensive for the Whitby Orange Order, assisted with them at times, but Brown came out as the best individual star for the Whips defence. The Wood brothers also put up a good game, but the largest ever to witness a game in Whitby, something to about as they have missed splendid efforts as Heard and Jack Sleighholm also turned in a fine game. Randle was well to the fore just right as he raced in six goal to score three goals, as Luther Vipond banged two with Louis Vipond, Brown and Goulden each getting one. Pete Morgan from Bartlagg, Jimmie McGuire from Carl Morgan and Harry Morgan's solo goal accounted for the three Belleville markers.

The Play

Belleville held a one-goal lead from the first game and right from the drop of the puck, Bob and Wood went on the aggressive and continued to hold down the Red Wings throughout the game. Belleville scored the first goal when P. Morgan was behind in the puck during a scrapple.

This aroused the Whitby team to great efforts, and they bottled the Redmen in their own end and kept them there until they tied the tying goal, with Vipond counting on E. Sleighholm's pass. Seven a half minute later tied the round when he drove in a hard shot after a bell-fired rush.

The crowd was wild as Randle put the locals ahead after taking a pass from Jack Sleighholm.

The second period found both teams playing a more cautious brand of hockey, but Whitby continued to hold their and and took command of the situation and Randle pocketed the winning goal of the night, taking a double-pass from J. Sleighholm and Heard. A penalty to E. Sleighholm gave Belleville a man-up, and after several fruitless plays Maguire scored on a pass from "P." Morgan. Belleville played five forwards for the entire third period, and continually gang-ed the Whitby net, but Whitby were always by the Whitby Red Wings were always by the Whitby net. Vipond put Whitby two goals up on the round, his brother scoring.

Whitby continued to hold the edge on the play, and Randle added to his goal-total with Heard and J. Sleighholm getting assists. Sleighholm scored the last goal of the game.

The Red Wings with the help of the two Vipond brothers, Randle and Heard, were away from a Belleville ganging attack, and a pass by Heard to Gifford O'Brien timed his pass nicely and Dukes' high wrister whizzed by puck-past Charlie Toms.

Dudley defence pair, Russ Brennan and Ab Grant, engineered the winning goal with Grant on the fir-ing end. Brennan had a pass out directly in front of the Hamilton net and Grant's shot shot surprised Teno.

TORONTO DUKES TAKE HAMILTON

Move Ahead in Senior Playoff By Winning 2-1

Toronto, March 5.—(CP)—Toronto Dukes marched back into the semi-finals of Ontario Hockey Association playoff pictures today, just a week after they were counted out, favorites to take the eastern section championship from Hamilton Tigers for the second consecutive year.

They came back the hard way last night by defeating Tigers 3-1 to win the best-of-three series at one win each. They play again in Hamilton, Friday night, and for the first time Tigers were on the short end of the betting.

There wasn't a murmur of dissent when all concerned handed Tigers the title after a 7-3 victory in the first battle. The fans didn't change much after Dukes tied the second at 1-1 in Hamilton but a weekend Toronto line-up, minus three regulars, fought from behind for their surprise triumph, that changed everything around.

It looked like another Hamilton victory when Cyr Wilson scored the O.H.A., banged home by the first goal after 11 minutes of the first game. A stubborn Hamilton defense was expected to hold when if it was Tigers' only goal.

A penalty to "Bed" Farrell, Tiger defenceman, paved the way for the Duke rally. "Obe" O'Brien started a play from well in his own zero-zone, flashed by Art Gifford, O'Brien timed his pass nicely and Duke Dutch Hyland blasted the puck past Charlie Teno.

Dudley defence pair, Russ Brennan and Ab Grant, engineered the winning goal with Grant on the firing end. Brennan had a pass out directly in front of the Hamilton net and Grant's shot shot surprised Teno.

Veteran Sports Editor Dies Suddenly

Picturesque Phrases Bubbled From Pen of Sports Writer

Served in Employ of Star For 47 of His 58 Years of Life

Toronto, March 5.—(CP)—Sportdom prepared to say good-bye today to Lou E. Marsh, a newspaperman for nearly half a century. Sports Editor of the Toronto Daily Star since 1911 and familiar to thousands or hockey and boxing fans in Canada and the United States as a referee.

The genial writer of the Star's "With Pick and Shovel" column died suddenly late yesterday as his home. He had been ill only six days and was planning a trip to Bermuda to regain his health. Death was ascribed to a cerebral hemorrhage.

Marsh spent 47 of the 58 years of his life in the employ of the Star, first as a delivery boy, later as office boy, then as Sports Writer. He developed a crisp style of writing that attracted to his column a great following. The Canadian Journalist was as widely known.

Until a few years ago he was on the refereeing staff of the National Hockey League. He refereed but 18 important fights, including title bouts and engagements involving leading contenders. He piloted hockey and boxing match-ors in races after he was 50.

Manitoba or New Brunswick May Win Title

Toronto, March 5.—(CP)—The curling wheels headed into the by stretch today with only three of the ten rinks, that started in Macdonald's Brier title play eliminated. Two more will go by the boards in the Dominion championship event, the contenders were far from having reached a decision.

Manitoba's Jack Kerr Watson of Winnipeg Strathconas and New Brunswick, skipped by Reg K. Shives of Campbellton, had the right of way after the "Almanac Twins" had victories against one defeat. Tied with four wins and two loses were British Columbia's Ernie Richardson of Nelson and Ontario. Northern Ontario broke even.

Should the Watson and Shives rinks come through this morning and afternoon play without further defeats, they will hook up tonight in a classic clod for the title. The draw has appears to bring them together in the last round.

In great form yesterday, the Manitoba curlers defeated British Columbia's Jack Matheson of Vancouver 20-7 in the afternoon and Nova Scotia by 14-9 at night. The Winnipeggers showed enough to convince the experts that they are a team to beat.

New Brunswick was aimed at his province by dispoising of Alberta by 17-4 in the morning, Prince Edward Island by 16-7 in the afternoon and Ontario by 11-9 at night. A big four on the ninth end of the night game was largely responsible for the New Brunswick's victory over Hec Cowan's Ontarians.

All the hard luck went against Northern Ontario's representatives, led by Emmett Smith of Haileybury. The Smith quartet dropped two close decisions, both by a score of 8-6. Alberta put across the winning counter in the last end of the fifth round and George Wanless and his Albertans duplicated the feat in the night session.

Most notable finish was provided by Leo Youngson of Regina, who, finishing off a Saskatchewan victory last night over British Columbia with his last rock on the last end by the Regina skip drew to the twenty to score two and win by 10 - 9.

DETTRONOES DANNO—Before a small crowd of fans Dick Shillaci of Philadelphia, long rated by New York wrestling experts as the best catch-as-catch-can grappler during today, toppled Danno O'Mahony of Ireland from the heavyweight championship. Shillaci he has occupied for the last 13 months. A numerous second and retained by Shillaci's great strength, forced O'Mahony to concede the fall after less than 20 minutes of the bout. Shillaci who is 29, held the crown once before, in 1929, but lost it to Jim London. O'Mahony is returning to Ireland shortly.

Hockey League play important games in the tense struggle for the two play-off berths in third place of Canadian and American Divisions.

New York Americans are one point ahead of Canadiens, but by no means safe in third place of the Canadian section. "Red" Dutton would be relieved a little if his Americs can beat Detroit Falcons tonight and stretch their margin over Canadiens to three points. Americans have the advantage of home ice. A loss would give Canadiens a chance to draw even and with seven games left on their schedule in which to overcome Americans' one-point lead.

In the American Division, Rangers are in an even more precarious condition. Boston Bruins, by beating Hawks in Chicago tonight, can overcome the Rangers' one point lead and oust them from third place. Both will have six games left to fight it out down the home stretch. A tie tonight would leave Bruins and Rangers in a deadlock for third place and make their stretch drive even more nerve-wracking for faithful fans.

Dismal attempts at defensive time for a "new deal" in that angle. For many years we have been advocating the return to the old neutral umpiring system, but each spring meeting of the league sees the executive resort to the home officials once again. Last year the Peterboro' delegation, the strikes umpires in defeat, were the movers and backers of the home umpire system.

The Peterboro' scribe tells his many (?) readers that he just recently noticed that the Petrol umpires, Ken Gulling, is wearing eye glasses now. Unless our memory is either hazy, the local "Blind-Dean" has been "wearing checkers for the past three years, or what? Well, apparently the Liftlock City scribe is very much in need of glasses himself, that is if he only recently discovered the presence of the cheaters.

The local Deacon A. C. juvenile cage team have been practicing against the Y.M.C.A. Intermediate O.A.B.A. squad all week in preparation for their big game versus the Toronto "Lizzies" on Saturday night. Due to the absence of Jr-Capt. Bill Hall from the Queen's Ontario, the winner of the Belleville Deacon-Toronto "Lizzie" series will play right into Southwestern semi-finals. Get that, we did not say Southwestern. Just Southwestern Downs. Coaches Cole and Faulkner have put a lot of time in coaching the boys and feel at last Belleville has a squad of boogsters that will bring home the bacon to Quinte City. Of course, Bob Abele always manages to flour a good team in his time and this squad is a red-hot series can be looked for.

LIFT WALKOUT WHETS HUMOR

NEW YORK, March 5.—(AP) Manhattan's topless towers had lost some of their glamour today and the chap with a penthouse was a man to be pitied as the Building Operatives Union put its strike into effect.

It was tragic or it was funnyy depending on your sense of humor and how far you lived.

Picketing generally was orderly. The only riot was in a strikebreaking elevator cage.

Jack Dempsey operated the elevator while his crew on his apartment house and skipped a chance to gamble on the strike by refusing to "beat you one" for doing it.

On Sunday Dempsey had been host to his fellow employers at a baby carriage down 50 flights of stairs in the solid comfort have her sides. Last night the ex-champ had apparently tired of such amusement as he reported away from the city.

One of Eddie Chanler's several dependents climbed the phoebe-plebe's telephone office to climb 30 flights to the roof and "talk" to the Cantor apartment.

"Gee, the fourth climbing-stair high to look at," she added.

There was the man who found a fat man puffing wearily at his desk door on the 23rd floor.

"Who are you?" he demanded.

"I'm a guy," panted the weary one.

"How'd you get down from here?" screamed a woman.

"Oot, a parachute, lady," megaphoned the man below.

Thousands of workers in downtown office buildings rode happily to their offices today when the elevators barred when they came to the top.

Not all apartments were without heat, from receiving their steam from a central heating company. Pickets took advantages of the fact that all their signs outside, went in to get warm.

The Academy of medicine issued a statement warning stair-climbers that they'd carry out "don't continue when you feel you've had enough."

City firemen, in compliance with the Mayor's order, added a number of persons to reach or leave upper floors and the list was shown the person making the request was too old or ill to use the stairs. Firemen carried down many persons to be doctors and to carry food to sick persons.

Dale Plays The Game

—BY—

Ann Forester

How could either of them know that Fate, the Jester, would take a hand? Dale had learned that he, Brant, could be cured. Shad taken up a burden and she scorned to drop it..... Something stirred in Brant's heart at the thought, intensely sweet....unbearably sad. Shane kid—bound to see the thing through.

Brant found his mind hovering about the desert shack, about that bitter, resentful time which could had the current of drama and romance flowing through it. Drama and romance—yes; for it had only been propinquity which drew them together..... A man a pretty girl. Haired between—not indifference—hatred, which the old adage said was akin to love.

So the thing had only been propinquity after all. The propinquity of a man and a girl, with the eyes of the world discreetly averted.

Brant gave a bitter little laugh. What responsive fools people were. Giving high sounding names to what was merely custom. Calling propinquity love..... Then, why hold it against the kid if she'd merely found out the truth?

Ah, but it wasn't all propinquity with him! Something sharp stirred in Brant's mind. Game little kid! Sweet little kid!.....No, he loved her, shining head and sweet brown eyes. Little slim hands and feet..... But it wasn't that alone. It was the way she tilted her chin—the fiery spirit of her. It was the way she defied him and managed him; the way she clung to him. He'd never known there was a girl like that, so loyal—the pure white flame of spirit burning high in her slender body.....

Shut up! He was getting sappy. Let the subject drop.

Would the ride never end? Brant began to wonder if he had done the right thing, should he have stayed and had it out with the fellow instead—of going away and leaving him in possession of the field?

But at the memory of that the moon had revealed—those two dark figures locked in each other's arms—the veins on Brant's temples began to swell and his hands clenched. No—he'd done right. He'd done what something he would be sorry for. Caused a row—a row that would get them nowhere and only cause a nasty scene. For, after all, Dale was his wife! His wife!

Here—take hold of himself! People looking at him. He must not have been scowling. Mimi said he looked ferocious when he was angry. Mimi had been right to let him go away. Good little Mimi—hurt her so, see him suffer....

But the picture of Mimi quickly faded out in thoughts of Dale. And in the thought of Dale there was sweet torture. When the train thundered into the city, Brant had reached a decision. He would write to Dale. He'd thrash out on paper the thing he didn't dare to meet in person. Guard against that quick temper of his—and hers, that quick temper of his—somehow Brant couldn't stand the empty house without her—writing while Dale's sweet white face floated tantalizingly between him and the paper:

"I don't trust myself to face you about this. I'm afraid of myself. I'll blow up or something. But if you drop me a line and tell me to come down I'll go on the minute. Then I'll know there's hope.

"I was wrong to let you tie yourself up like this to me. I can't stand it if it is only loyalty which has held you. It will have to be love, Dale, or we'll have to quit. I care too deeply to prey on you or any other terms.

"Dale—you can't think how this has stirred me.....

Dale never received the letter.

X X X

A light suddenly leaped out in the house and Dale thrust Phil away.

"Oh—you must go! Suppose someone should see!"

Realization leaped upon Dale. She was in an agony of fright.

"But, darling, we have to thrash this thing out. Can't you see—"

"Oh, please!" Dale tore her hands away.

"You've got to see me, Dale. I'm coming back—we have to put an end to this—" Inadvertently Phil was trying to stop Dale's flight. "Dale—listen to me, dear. I'm going to be at the village. I'll phone to you. We've got to reach an understanding."

Dale let Phil draw her back. She raised her eyes to his in the dim light. "Phil, we can't go on like this. If Brant should find out—"

"Well, what if he did? Do you know what they're saying? That he neglects you. That he doesn't love you—that was simply a combination of circumstances that led to your marriage."

He saw Dale wince, saw her mouth twist misery.

"They always know so much of everything, don't they?" she said scornfully.

"Are you happy, Dale?" Phil suddenly asked of her.

Dale did not answer.

"You see!"

"Agreeing that I'm not happy—" Dale said slowly. "Agreeing, even that—that Brant doesn't walk the floor at night—" a gulfwar running through the words—"still, I don't love you, Phil."

She saw Phil's face stiffen in the moonlight. "That's what you think now, Dale. But I say that you've always loved me. You're mine. We've loved each other, and tonight, we're the same kind; we understand each other. And this time I'll never stop, I have, sweetheart."

But when Phil reached to take Dale in his arms she thrust him away. A desperate note beat in her voice.

"No—no—I'm sure I love Brant.. ....even if he doesn't love me."

Him and impending. Dale stood in the moonlight, the radiance falling on her upturned face—on her white throat. Then she was gone—going unsteadily up the steps of the sun porch, walking with the droop of one very old.

She passed the open door of the library where the light had appeared. No one there but Mimi. Mimi sitting in a chair at the far end of the room, with a strange little smile laying about her lips.

CHAPTER 46

THE COILS TIGHTEN

One thing which Phil had said echoed over and over in Dale's mind..... "He doesn't love you—it was simply a combination of circumstances that led to your marriage."

Wry truth in that! Truth which one couldn't get away from. It had been circumstances which led to their marriage. Cooped up like that in the tiny desert shack.....Brant ill and needing her.....The memory of Brant, tall, brown, so independent upon her, brought a warm wave of love and loyalty in its wake. Ah, but if Brant no longer needed her! What if he had found their marriage was a mistake?....

In the dark, Dale pressed her hot face to the pillow and sent her mind back over the last year!

No question that the glamour had dimmed. But was that Dale's fault? Was it even Brant's?

Didn't people say that no house was large enough for two families? Certainly the big Kendall home was too small to hold her and Mimi. If Dale and Brant had been alone, the old sweet companionship would still hold. Or would it? Did Brant look in her to these complacent women? A lack which her love and loyalty could not make up?

They were saying that he neglected her....Fierce pride burned through Dale at the thought. That people should gossip about her! Pitying her! The flame went out in a cold wash of misery. Oh, Brant loved her! He must! It would leave nothing in life if Brant was gone.

Queer the shaken, lonely feeling which crept over her.... She'd felt it often in the past month. A queer, uncertain feeling, trailing faint nausea in its wake. The nervous strain, no doubt..... She must be more calm. She would send Phil away. She would try to forget the shock of poor Lil. She would be calm—and she would conquer.....

Fresh hope dwelt in Dale's heart even before she opened her eyes the next morning. Say to have hope when the sun streamed in the room and the fresh breath of the pines stole through the open windows. This was Saturday—Brant would be down. She would have a long sensible talk with him. She would insist on a home of their own when they returned to town. Then things would smooth themselves out.

Tremulous excitement running through Dale's veins, deepening as the time approached for Brant's arrival. She dressed with care, choosing a white silk tennis frock which Brant especially liked. An amber silk neck scarf deepened the gold flecks in her eyes, called to the luster of her hair. Mimi's jealous eyes told Dale that she was beautiful.

Out there on the drive she and Phil had stood last night. A wild dream..... yet it had seemed so natural, to have Phil appear, so though he had been conjured up by the thought of poor Lil. It had seemed so natural to have Phil comfort her.....But it was danger-

TARZAN THE INVINCIBLE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

"Who will punish us if we desert?" demanded Kitombo. "The English? The French? The Italians? No, you dare not go to them. Perhaps you will go to Haile Selassie in Abyssinia. He would have your heart cut out and your body thrown to the dogs!"

"But we can't leave this white woman alone here in the jungle without servants or porters or provisions," insisted Zveri, realizing that his first argument had made no impression upon the black chief, who now held their fate in his hands.

"I do not intend to leave the white woman," said Kitombo. "She is going with me! Then for the first time the whites realized that the headmen had assembled them and that they were covered by many rifles. As he talked, Kitombo had come close to Zora.

Now the black chief reached out quickly and grasped her by the wrist.

"Come," he said, and as he uttered the word something hummed above their heads, and Kitombo, chief of the Basembou, clutched at an arrow in his chest. "Do not look up!" cried a voice

No More Piles

Get Quick, Pleasant Relief

Probably not one person in ten knows the cause of piles is inadequate circulation of blood in the lower bowel.

That is the scientific truth about piles and is the real reason why ointments and suppositories do not give more than temporary relief—they do not remove the cause.

Your piles can not be relieved until you have corrected the condition which causes them. That is why an internal medicine like HEM-ROID should be used.

HEM-ROID is the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, who for forty in his professional life made many tests to relieve piles by correcting the cause. His medicine succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, eases the pressure of blood in the veins of the lower bowel and helps to heal and restore the sore, tender parts.

So if you have failed to get the relief you want from your sore, painful piles and would like to give HEM-ROID a trial, you have our promise to return your money, if just one bottle of this prescription does not give pleasing results. J. S. McKeown or any druggist can supply you with the genuine HEM-ROID.

FOXBORO

Foxboro, March 5—Miss Dorothy Utman of Stirling is spending the week with her cousin, Miss Marion Daniels.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sherry had Sunday dinner at Mr. Arthur Wright's.

Mr. I. B. Gay is ill at present.

Mr. Everett Kerr, son of Peterboro spent a few days at his home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Merrick Foster of Prince Edward spent Sunday with the latter's parents Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Gay.

The regular monthly meeting of the Young ladies' Sunday School class was held at the home of Mrs. Harold Stewart on Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Clare Finkle and daughters had Sunday evening supper at the home of the latter's mother.

Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Montgomery and daughters of Stirling had Sunday evening supper at Mr. W. Hodgeva.

Mrs. Harold Stewart spent a few days with relatives and friends in Peterboro and Hastings.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Yorke and Douglas of Wellman spent Sunday afternoon at Mr. W. Hodgen's.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Roonbough were Sunday callers at Mr. George Beimore's.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Utman and Ralph of Stirling were Sunday evening guests at Mr. J. W. Daniels.

Mr. E. P. Yorke of Orland had dinner on Tuesday at Mr. W. Hodgen's.

The Young People's Society met at the home of Mrs. George Ketcheson on Monday evening with thirty in attendance. The President Mrs. Priest was in the chair and the meeting opened with a hymn and was followed by prayer. The twenty-third Psalm was read in unison and the Roll Call answered with a verse of Scripture beginning with the letter K. The minutes were read and adopted and some items of business discussed. A hymn was sung and Miss Hazel Cluney read a poem, which Marion Daniels read the Scripture lesson and Mrs. Spencer gave the topic "God and Ourselves," which was followed by a discussion. Doris Daniels and Lloyd's Tenor sang, and Miss Doris Horton gave a reading. A duet with guitar accompaniment by Misses Carmine Daniels and Bill Rombough followed. A vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs. Ketcheson. The meeting closed with the singing of a hymn and the Mizpah Benediction.

The many friends of Mrs. (Rev.) Mutton (a former pastor's wife) will regret to learn that she is again a patient in the Toronto hospital.

About eighteen ladies attended the World's Day of Prayer services in the United church Sunday School rooms on Friday last.

WHITTALL CANS HINDE AND DAUCH IN FINAL SERIES

Carrying Place And Wooler Eliminated in Trent Loop

ICE QUITE HEAVY

Papermen Overcome Goal Lead to Make Playoff Berth

Trenton, Mar. 5 (Special)—Carrying a one goal lead on the round Whittall Cans defeated Carrying Place 4 to 3 in the final game of the semi-final matches played at the Arena Wednesday night. Whittall Cans winning the round 7 to 5. This win entitles Whittalls to play Hinde and Dauch, winner of the second game, Friday night for the Courier Advocate Hockey Cup. The game was a very hard fought affair and the many fans saw Carrying Place tie the round up twice only to have their hopes shattered by a tricky Whittall forward flipping one into their net. Miller of the Whittalls scored the Cannon's first goal two minutes after the first period got under way.

From then on the Carrying Place team put on a five man ganging attack and held the Whittalls behind their own blue line most all the period. Anderson the oldest player in the Trenton and District League tied the score up, banging one in from out of a scramble in front of the Whittall net. Five minutes later Bohan, tricky Carrying Place centre, put his team one up by banging the disc past Gray from out of a scramble. The period ended with both teams giving all they had. The second period, on play was about even and both forward lines missed many an opportunity to score as the puck would roll off their sticks when they were in a scoring position. Miller of the Whittall tied the score up, after taking a pass from Smith.

In the final stanza the teams gave all they had but it was plain to see that the better conditioned Whittalls had the edge on the play. Five minutes after the ball rang to start the period Bohan put his team one up, by scoring from the side of the goal Whittall net. The Carrying Place team from then on lacked the scoring punch as they were tiring fast from the two previous periods.

Smith of the Whittalls tied the score up after drawing goalie Cottrell out of his net, and Cain shoved of the series, when he broke away after a Carrying Place ganging attack to score Whittalls fourth and last goal of the game. Smith of the Whittalls received the only penalty of the game. It being dealt out for roughing it with York in the Carrying Place corner. Final score—Whittall Cans 4; Carrying Place 3.

Referee, W. Bowen.

Wooler Eliminated

In the second semi-final game played Hinde and Dauch defeated Wooler 5 to 3 on the game and 6 to 4 on the series. After Wooler had won while the game carrying a one goal lead from the first game. The ice was in fine shape, and condition when this game got under way and the players had to rely on awaiting the puck to be thawed to make any headway. In the first period two goals were scored by the Hinde and Dauch forwards. The first going to McCloed, on a shot, that did not leave the ice. Lott, starry Papperman centre mark the second one from a scramble in front of the Wooler net, In the first part of the second period the Wooler forwards worked like demons in order to overcome the two goal lead but their many attempts proved fruitless.

About halfway through the period, Lott registered the Papermen's third goal, after carrying the puck through alone. Five minutes later Mattis flipped one by goalie Bryant in the Wooler nets to make it four for the Hinde and Dauch. Wooler applied the ganging attack and in the last two minutes of the period came through with a goal, Long, of Wooler, scoring out of a scramble. With Wooler giving all they had in a last desperate attempt to win, the crowd was shown plenty of action in the final frame, and at one time it looked as if Wooler might overcome their rival's lead. From the face-off Wooler played all their men and Steenburg in the Hinde and Dauch nets was given plenty to do. Lott of the Papermen received a penalty for roughing it and the Wooler forward did everything but score. After Lott returned to the ice Claude Rattan banged one by Steenburg, in the Hinde and Dauch nets.

The game was held up for five minutes as Hood was hit in the mouth by the puck which came off the stick of Bowen. His team mate who was clearing the puck up the ice. Hood returned to the ice after he was fixed up. Lott of the Papermen scored their fifth and last goal of the game after breaking away while the Wooler forwards were down in the Papermen's end of the rink.

Line-ups—

Hinde and Dauch—Goal, Steenburg; defence, C. Bowen and O'Malley; wings, Hood and Mattis; centre, Lott; alternates, C. O'Malley, Barr, Pernell, McCloed and Sheppard.

Wooler—Goal, Bryant; defence, C. Rattan and G. Rattan; wings, Steenburg and Redcliffe; centre, Clarke-Rattan; alternates, Long, Matthews, Johnson and Perrault.

Referee—W. Bowen.

SAILORS GATHER FOR LECTURES

Those Proficient in Art Teaching Novices The Elementary Rules

At the Bellerille Athletic and Yacht Club, Wednesday evening about 36 local sailors gathered for the first of a series of lectures being sponsored by the local club.

The object of the meetings was explained by M. Callaghan as follows. In the past, the sailing races have been run without adhering too close to the rules, due firstly to getting the sport organized and second a lack of knowledge by the sailors themselves of the rule of sailors themselves of the rules of arguments and unnecessary protests.

M. Callaghan has a copy of the International Yacht Racing Association rules and it is proposed to go through this book point by point with the sailors and discuss the various items, so that when the boys go out into the bay this year, they will go with a full knowledge of their rights and what they may or may not do, thereby decreasing the number of protests and making smoother sailing for the season 1936.

The meetings are open to everybody interested in sailing including spectators as the club feels that if they know more of the rules of sailing, they will understand the movements of the boats and the reasons for same.

Before the close of the meeting, the secretary mentioned the illness of the father of the sport, King Rogers and it was the earnest wish of everybody present that he will weather the storm and be at the helm again this coming season.

ATTEMPT IS MADE TO KILL YUGOSLAV PREMIER

Bullet Narrowly Misses U. S. Minister Wilson As He Sits in Gallery

Belgrade Scene of Attempt of Opposition Deputy to Kill Premier

PISTOL IS PULLED OUT

Deputies Seize Damian Arsanitovich as Shots Are Fired

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Mar. 6 (AP) —In gunshot firing visibly at President Milan Stoyadinovich, narrowly missed shooting the United States Minister to Yugoslavia, Sotirios Vilson.

The assassin was Damian Arsanitovich. He was taken into custody by Gendarmes who led him off the floor.

At the time of the shooting, President Stoyadinovich was reading a message on next year's budget.

Wilson was sitting in the diplomatic gallery of the Chamber of Deputies when the deputy of the Opposition party suddenly jerked a pistol from his pocket and started firing at the Premier.

Other deputies rushed him and the first shot lodged into the wall just over the heads of the diplomats. The remaining three shots went into the floor.

BLOODY SNOW PICTURE SHOWN

Jury at Dorchester See Photographs of Brief Blood-Stained Snow

Dorchester, Ont., March 6 (CP)—Photographs of a snowdrift, stained for about six feet around" by the blood of Mrs. Marion Bentley, were shown and exhibited today to the members of the jury at Dorchester Assizes.

The pictures were submitted by two Royal Canadian Mounted Police Constables who described the scene when they arrived last January at Pacific Junction where Mrs. Bentley told them about the attack in the log cabin home of Mrs. Bentley's father, Mrs. Ring, at Bentley's Corners, Bothin Lake, was found half-naked outside the home and her throat reportedly had been struck over the head as she fled with her two children, Lois, 5, and Lorne, 3, to a neighbor's home, it was found near the mother's.

The witnesses included Mrs. J. Ring and Sergeant R. G. Peters, who had been in charge of the searchruns for the body of Lois's youngster child, six-months-old Betty, later found in the home of Constable's mother, charged with kidnapping the child.

Unsung Heroine Saved From Pauper's Grave

Port Huron, Mich., Mar. 6 (CP)—Capt. Maud Buckley, native of the Thousand Islands district, among the ice of the Great Lakes and believed to have been the only woman to command a three-master schooner, has been saved from a pauper's grave by the Salvation Army.

Old timers of the Port Huron waterfront knew the gnarled, bent 75-year-old woman as one of the few women navigators of the Lakes. Maiden body to a lot in a Port Huron cemetery purchased with funds furnished by the Army and Legion Auxiliary.

Mrs. Buckley who earned her Master's papers back in the square rigger days had penniless and alone in a Port Huron hospital Wednesday. Her only income was a state pension, for since her retirement several years ago as head cook for the Canadian steamship line she had given most of her savings to needy sailors and lost the remainder in unwise investments.

Finding $1,000 Excites Windsor Policeman

Windsor, Ont., Mar. 6 (CP)—"Send the whole force over quick," Stanley Endera, just out of his probationary period as a policeman, shouted into the police telephone. "I've just picked up $1,000 in the street. There may be millions. I'll stand guard until they get here."

Most of the force was there in ja tions but no more money was found. A. J. Auchinvole, the owner, said the bills probably fell out of his car. "I think it will come in handy for the little fellow we expect at home soon," said the beaming Endera as he pocketed a $40 reward.

Germany is Real Winner In African War Claimed

Fighting in Ethiopia 'Gold Mine' For Tonton Propagandists of Big Arms Firms, Anti-Fascists Movements Find Inspiration in Italy

Berlin, Mar. 6 (AP)—Germany, no longer a member of the League of Nations, is nevertheless watching Geneva's attempts to settle the Italo-Ethiopian war with interest as great as though she were directly involved.

Optimists at the Wilhelmstrasse believe when the war is over, Germany will prove the real winner.

Hitler's Regime Praised

Hitler's regime has gained some of the most effective propaganda material it could have wished. Use since the Fuehrer came to power. As though in confirmation of Hitler's doctrine a strong army is the nation's best friend, the League of Nations condemned Mussolini's invasion of Ethiopia—and encouraged the Ethiopians to use weapons which they had to throw him out.

If there still remains a German who does not think that that proves Hitler absolutely right about withdrawing from the League and rearming, then it is no fault of Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels.

Another rich vein of propaganda material is the Italian campaign of "gold mine," and a vein vigorously exploited by Goebbels, was the attitude of Italy's King George in Italy. Each time a Bishop in Italy gave gold in the government's gold drive, the process of Nazi Germany whirred, blanketing the country with the pictures of the two event and with editorials comparing the attitude of the Church of Italy with its alleged anti-government activities in Germany.

Economically, the Italo-Ethiopian war doesn't seem to have been such a gold mine for Germany, at least in official figures; as against exports to Italy of 80,000,000 Reich Marks in 1934, the 1935 figure was 378,900,000 Reich Marks — an increase of nearly 300 per cent. On the other hand, an increase in Germany's exports to South America may have been partly due to war and sanctions effects on Italy's trade in that quarter.

Iron Rings In Europe.

Diplomatically the Italian preoccupations of Mussolini have had their effects which might be considered a gain for Germany. The "iron ring" of mutual assistance pacts which, the Fuehrer declared out is being forged around the Reich has been widely interpreted as having something to do with Italo-German rapprochement.

Mayor Hill Believes Municipalities Should Share in Motor Licence Tax

Belleville should have some share of the motor license and gas tax money collected by the Provincial Government, in the opinion of Mayor Harry Hill who addressed the Rotary meeting today on the subject of this matter.

It was pointed out by the Mayor that the province gets a neat revenue from these items collected within the municipality, nothing, particularly those cities and towns through which the highways pass. While the province issues the licenses, it is the people of the town's highways is run up in the cities, especially in built-up areas, a considerable outlay with consequent cost to this municipality.

"Belleville particularly should get a share of this tax," the Mayor pointed out the Mayor. "We're directly on the highway here and the amount of traffic including the giant trucks and transports rumble through here at all hours. They use our roads and complain loudly about the condition of the roads and streets. It has all meant work for our Public Works Dept. and Mr. Murphy, Bill, Sr., don't know how much time and material and money it has cost us. Local roads and others, but it must be a lot. It's only right that we should get a bit it wouldn't cost us one quarter as much."

Suggests $1 Per Car.

"I believe," continued Mayor Hill "that $1 per car, which is a small percentage of that collected, say $1 per car distributed among the municipalities which are on the highways, that it would go a long way toward maintenance costs. This would assist us in snow clearing, sanding, etc. Also local road and the money paid workmen for the work. We also have to take into account the wear and tear on the roads and streets which must be taken up right away with the hope that we can get some action by next winter."

POWER SHORTAGE WILL BE FACED SAYS W.H. PRICE

Greatest in History, When Present Contract Runs Course Says Member

PAYMENTS STOPPED

Services of Lewis Duncan Dispensed With by Premier

Toronto, Mar. 6 (CP)—Warning that Ontario faces a future power shortage which has been the subject of opposition members of the provincial legislature in a lengthy assault on the government's hydro policy.

W. H. Price, Conservative member for Dundas, declared the greatest power shortage in its history," Col. W. H. Price, Conservative member for Dundas declared, when he said yesterday in an all-day hydro speech. His declaration was followed last night by an attack by George H. Challies, Conservative member for Oxville-Dundas, on the short terms of the new agreements arranged by Premier Hepburn and General Roebuck.

Chairman Lewis Duncan, the Toronto lawyer who advised the government in connection with canadian Niagara power contracts, was referred to by Premier Hepburn, Conservative leader, as still in connection with his work.

"Is Lewis Duncan still on the job? I don't like the size of his bill," the Premier said after Col. Price asked the government why Mr. Duncan's services were dispensed with.

"Yes," admitted the witness. "I would not try to defend myself here if I thought I was hired for high treason in Germany. I cannot dare to defend myself outside for one."

Premier Hepburn said Duncan had been paid $18,571.67, from Jan. 27, 1932, to May 27, 1935. Unpaid bills totalling $4,700 plus a contingent fee "commensurate with value of services rendered in connection with the Quebec power purchase contracts." Mr. Hepburn said all payments had been stopped "on my instructions" and Duncan's services dispensed with by the government.

Forced To Accept.

The government's long-term contracts, guaranteeing cheaper power for 40 years "are repudiated," Col. Price declared. "The Quebec contracts have been forced upon us at slightly cheaper rates for 10 years," he continued. "What then? The amount of power the government must buying will be insufficient to meet the 1937 demand."

No Blame Attached In Death of Fifteen

Revelstoke, B. C. March 6—(CP) —In the opinion of a coroner's jury, no blame can be attached to any party in connection with the fatal day's crash of a runaway locomotive and three passenger cars, in which fifteen men were killed.

Seven were accidental death and a rider urging utmost caution in poor visibility and use of a safety locomotive whistle. The verdict was returned yesterday by the jury.

Thirty men, the fatalities on the Canadian Pacific Railway's main line near here.

Country Needs Young Editors Says Veteran

Amarillo, Texas, March 6 (AP)—Gene Howe called it "old age" today as he resigned as editor of the News-Globe, retiring with the suggestion that "this country needs young editors."

Howe, who came to Ed Howe, the "Sage of Potato Hill," said he would continue to write his column, which won him distinction as a homely commentator.

"I'm 61 my idea that an editor burns out and that a quarter of a century is plenty of service for anyone," he added.

Bette Davis and Victor McLaglen Awarded For Best Performances

Hollywood, Mar. 6 (AP)—Bette Davis—Hollywood once told her she was through—today is time when Victor McLaglen ruled today as the screen's royal consorts of 1935.

The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences last night awarded them gold statuettes, emblematic of last year's best performances. "Mutiny On the Bounty" was selected as the outstanding picture of the year.

Despite a boycott against it by two major motion picture guilds—players and writers—last night's eighth annual awards banquet was attended by more than 1,250 screen personalities. Miss Davis, in white and McLaglen ruled today as the screen's royal consorts of 1935.

The two guilds put a boycott on the banquet with an injunction the academy is a "company union" and "unfair" to the best interests of the organizations' members. Miss Davis nor McLaglen are members of the academy.

"I'm so tickled I can't even think," her performance is "dangerous" had been the screen's highest honor.

MAJOR BURGOYNE RED CROSS MAN KILLED BY RAIDER

BRITISH PROTEST

Ethiopians Deny Claims of Fresh Italian Victories

Addis Ababa, Mar. 6 (AP)—A British Red Cross worker, Major G. A. Burgoyne, was killed by a native raider's doctrine a group of natives, an Ethiopian government communique said today, while participating in an Ethiopian withdrawal back of the northern front.

Burgoyne, 61, a transport officer in the Ethiopian Red Cross organization, was killed by a shot from Ambe Alaji to Quoram, 36 miles south of Ambe Alaji, with Ras Imru's army at Kabeda. A heavy Italian air bombardment was reported in that sector.

The government communique said he died a death of glorious.

Veteran of Wars.

Burgoyne, veteran of the South African and Great Wars, escaped injury in an Italian bombing of a Red Cross camp at Mai Chaw, near Waldia, a town on Lake Ashangi, 60 miles north of Addis Ababa.

One British member of the Red Cross unit named Melotte was reported to have been thrown into a nearly stream but to have escaped injury. Another, Major E. Grandidge, stood neck-deep in the stream, helping to rescue the wounded despite slightly by bomb fragments. Three natives of British Kenya were amongst dead.

Ethiopian Denies Protest.

London, Mar. 6 (CP)—Great Britain has made no formal or sharp protest to Premier Mussolini over the bombing of a British Red Cross unit at Quoram in Ethiopia yesterday.

Official dispatches from Sir Sidney Barton, British Minister to Addis Ababa, confirm the bombing but do not confirm press reports three nurses of British Red Cross were killed.

(New press reports today were that the Ethiopian government had protested the bombing of a British Red Cross officer, Major G. A. Burgoyne, to the bombing of the unit.)

Anthony Eden, Foreign Secretary had a long talk with Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin today on the whole Mediterranean situation, the war in East Africa.

Britain's Protest.

London, Mar. 6 (AP)—The British government today instructed its Ambassador to Italy, Sir Eric Drummond, to protest to Italy against the bombing of a British Red Cross unit in Ethiopia.

Sir Eric was ordered to ask the Italian government to make an immediate investigation of the affair and to report the results. He was instructed to see to it nothing of the sort occurred again.

103 Year Old Quebec Man Thirsts For Adventure and Excitement

Detroit, Mich., Mar. 6 (CP) — Tommy Morin, native of Montreal, Que., began his 103rd year of life today, thirsting for adventure and the zest which will make him live to the age of 115.

More specifically, Tommy wants to go deer-hunting. He announced on his birthday anniversary he gladly would trade his present physician for one who would prescribe a good deer-hunting trip as a tonic for a fellow who feels he has all his age can way.

Two years ago, when Tommy was celebrating 100, he wanted to go airplane riding, more than anything else in life. Doctors and nurses, children of his, and their middle-aged sons and grandchildren and the countless great-grandchildren chorused:

"What would the doctor think?"

Anyhow a week later he went riding in a friend's plane.

Tommy Morin, husky French Canadian, was born in a tiny, clay-chinked cabin on the banks of the St. Lawrence River.

When he was 16 years old he made the long trek to Michigan with his elder brother, Paul, who died fifteen years ago at the age of 103.

MOTHER AND SON ARE FOUND WITH THROATS CUT

Relatives Say Man Was Worried Over Property Matters

RAZOR IS FOUND

Toronto, Mar. 6 (CP)—Mrs. Isabella Chiovitti, 50, and her 27-year-old son, Louis Reve, were found with the aged woman's bedroom here early today with their throats cut. Both are in hospital in critical condition.

Hearing the woman's scream Anthony Leo, son-in-law of Chiovitti, rushed to the room and found the mother and son unconscious and bleeding profusely.

Dr. Malcolm Campbell was living on the bed and her son was unconscious a few feet away on the floor. Both their pipe was severed. Both were covered with blood.

Police were called by Dr. I. W. Hain who had been called by Leo. Officers found a razor blade in the bedroom and believed the wounds were made with it.

The elderly woman is suffering from shock and loss of blood while her son, Louis, is in serious condition because of the badly gashed windpipe.

Some of the wounded man told police their father had been greatly worried over some property matters.

FIVE YEARS FOR ROBBING

St. Catharines, Ont., March 6 — (CP)—Henry Hiscock and Louis Burnside, charged with the armed robbery of the Canadian Bank of Commerce at Beamsville in 1934 and robbery of Oakhurst's store in St. Catharines the same year, were sentenced to five years each in Kingston penitentiary today by Magistrate J. H. Campbell. Oakhurst was wounded in the store holdup.

PASTOR TRAMPS WITH TRANSIENTS

'Men Not a Bad Lot' He Says as He Studies 'Cold Shoulders'

Aylmer, Ont., March 6 (CP) —A Baptist minister who has walked the four days roaming Ontario with transients returned here today to tell of his experiences. He is the Rev. W. D. Stanlake, pastor of St. Paul's Church.

During the four days, he walked, talked, ate and slept with transients and discovered several things. One of them was that he is a poor judge of shoes. Another was that there are innumerable ways of cooking a fish in one's face.

He decried transients as a rule "are not a bad sort" that the majority are "good fellows" who couldn't help it and are appreciative of what is being done for them.

In Hamilton he joined a bread line and went right through with the transients. He praised the Hamilton Welfare Department for the courtesy of the men. He will write his experiences the basis of his Sunday night sermon.

Pembroke Mayor Sent Threatening Letters

Pembroke, Ont., March 6 (CP)—Mayor A E. Cockburn of Pembroke, has received several letters threatening bodily ill relief workers protesting the cuts which have been received two threatening letters.

The Mayor refused to reveal their contents and said he was not taking the letters seriously. Neither letter was signed. In one of them, the Mayor said, the writer threatened to "get" him when police were not around.

The Mayor said authorities are inquiring into the relief riot, March last arising from it were dealt with at a special meeting of town police next Tuesday night.

German Lawyer Admits Sketching Airdrome As Material for Novel

British Court Trying Espionage Does Not Press Question

'DARE NOT ANSWER'

Blandness of Dr. Goetz Shaken by Queries at London

London, Mar. 6 (AP)—Dr. Hermann Goetz, charged with supplying a sketch of a British air field to the German Secret Service, testified today he "dared not answer" questions of "higher-up" because "I'd be tried for high treason in Germany."

His declaration, which caused a sensation in the crowded courtroom, followed a strenuous denial. Goetz admitted making a sketch of the Mansion Airdrome but insisted it was material for a novel.

Under a barrage of questions, he admitted having seen a man named Nicolaus Ehrendt and other apparently important Nazi officials. Pressed for further details of the identity of the officials, Goetz glanced nervously around the courtroom and answered:

"Excuse me, I am in a very difficult position."

"You mean it might be dangerous for you to say just exactly what you let" the judge asked in reference to "Colonel Ehrendt."

"Yes," admitted the witness. "I would not try to defend myself here if I thought I was hired for high treason in Germany. I cannot dare to defend myself outside for one."

The prosecution did not press the question after one of the crown attorneys indicated the words, still "it would endanger this gentleman's position if German authorities took a certain view about it."

Goetz was still on the stand, his blandness shaken by the court adjourned until Monday.

Ruxton Trial Witness Swears as to 'Smell'

Manchester, Eng., Mar. 6 (AP)—A chemist who was a neighbor of Buxton's house testified at his murder trial today she smelled "a kind of burning" coming from the doctor's spare b@m a few days after, the Crown charges, the physician killed his wife and nursemaid.

The witness, Mrs. Elizabeth Curnsen, said:

"I found the doctor's room locked and there was no key there. The drawing room and dining room also were locked.

Previously, the charwoman had told Buxton, who told her Mrs. Isabella Buxton and the nursemaid, Mrs. Jane Rogerson, had gone to Edinburgh for a holiday and he was "going to sit up all night as he couldn't sleep because Mrs. Buxton was away."

Police Go Modern With Radio Car; Call Letters 'CJR'

Belleville Police Commissioners Will Inaugurate System at 7.30 This Evening

"Calling all cars", "Station CJR testing".

"Belleville Police Department calling Station CJR".

If local radio listeners will dial their radio set to 1580 kilocycles at 7.30 p.m. tonight, they will perhaps hear some such words over the other side.

Officially the Belleville Police Department broadcasting station CJR3 will go on the air at 7.30 p.m. tonight at which time the Police Commission, represented by their Worships Mayor Harry Hill and Magistrate J. A. Bleasdell, K.C., will officially test the new police broadcasting station which has been installed with a transmitter in the police station and a receiving set in the police car.

Rent By Sergt. Heath

The transmitter at the police station, which has been licensed by the Dominion Government, will be given the call letters, CJR, was built by police Sergeant Arthur Heath of the police department, assisted by local persons interested in radio. The transmitter is a 50 watt amateur type and will operate with 110 volts of 60 cycles. The wave band has been set at 1580 kilocycles, equivalent to 177.5 meters being used. The receiving set in the police car was supplied by the Stewart-Warner company and is of standard equipment. The testing aerial over the roof of the police station will be made as low as possible to be inconspicuous and extends from the top of a large metal mast over the police station to the pinnacle of the City Hall tower. There is no interference police radio spending broadcasting facilities.

The official opening broadcast of the Belleville Police radio this evening will mark the inception of police radio in cities in the Province of Ontario, being preceded by only other city to precede Belleville. Local radio listeners interested are asked to tune in on 1580 kilocycles band and endeavor to keep in touch tonight's broadcast for they will then assist in ascertaining results as to how the system works.

It is thought that the apparatus will be operated by Constable Cant Snook, who recently received his operator's licence from Ottawa, should carry a distance of some 50 miles.

Chief Odell announced this morning that Police Commissioners Mrs. Mary Ann Bleasdell and Mrs. Bolter, would be asked go open the broadcasting station at 7.30 tonight over the air first, following which they will be driven about the city in the police broadcasting car so that they will be able to receive the broadcast themselves. Sergeant Booth, who is in charge of the Belleville Police Radio Department.

The entire City Council will also be invited to be present at the test.

Family Driven from Home in Scanty Attire

Windsor, Ont., March 6—(CP)—In near-zero weather with scanty clothing and a few blankets among them, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Mosa and their five children were driven to the street today when fire destroyed their riverside home today.

The family then stood outside and watched the destruction of the home on which they were still making payments for the last 7 years. It was uninsured. Most of the household effects, including the affects of the family were lost in the fire.

F. A. CORRELL IS MEETING GUEST

New Manager of C. D. S. Welcomed by Chamber of Commerce

Mr. F. A. Correll, the new manager of the Canadian Department Stores in Belleville, was a guest at the regular weekly meeting of the directors of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce on Thursday and was heartily welcomed by the President, Mr. J. F. Benson, and the directors. Mr. Correll is not a stranger to Belleville, having been assistant manager of the Belleville store prior to his transfer to Napanee two and a half years ago.

In acknowledging the welcome extended him Mr. Correll said that he appreciated greatly the very friendly manner in which he had been welcomed back to Belleville and also the courtesy of the directors of the Chamber in inviting him to be a guest at their meeting. He was glad to be back again to live in this city for a long time to come and hoped that he would be able to serve in any way he could be used to further the advancement of Belleville.

Several important reports were received and considered by the directors and general routine business transacted.

Mr. R. P. Bernstein, the president, presided and the following directors were present: Messrs. W. H. Merrin, W. C. Springer, H. E. Fairfield, John A. Hutchison, J. A. Boyce, Leo B. Riggs and Secretary-Manager, J. O. Herity.

Belleville Soprano Featured in Florida

Miss Billie Smith of Belleville, Ontario, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Smith of Belleville, Ontario, soprano, winner of the C.N.E. Gold Medal makes her presence known in Florida by her voice.

Miss Smith was the featured singer at the elaborate Washington Birthday Ball at the swanky Viney-Park Hotel, St. Petersburg, and received ecstatic praise for many encores.

So pleased were the guests with her singing that the following night, before a packed house at the Mark Twain Hotel, St. Petersburg, she gave a special request program. Of interest is the fact that a large number of requests were for songs in the Scotch and French-Canadian dialect.

Two request numbers were for the benefit of an elderly gentleman who was sitting between his two doctors. In thanking Miss Smith after she had given his favorite song, he informed her that his doctors expected him to die almost any minute, but that he was still feeling them.

She has been fortunate in most of her Florida engagements in having Ernest Rivers, one of the best known pianist, to play her accompaniments.

Miss Smith states that Florida is a veritable paradise. It being almost impossible to believe that while it is so cold in the North, it is so warm and sunny there.

POLICE COURT

Joseph Sopha, Marmora Township, youth, appeared in the local police court, held before Magistrate F. J. Ponter, K.C. today, charged with the theft of a gold watch, the property of Mrs. Thomas Winfield, Marmora. Before the accused may be committed for trial, Crown Attorney R. G. Donnan, K.C., asked for an adjournment until Thursday, which date is to be heard at Marmora before Magistrate Lloyd, substituted for Crown Attorney as Magistrate Ponter granted the enlargement.

At the opening of the Police Court, Chief Kidd was sworn in as Crown Attorney Donnan indicated that he would have been confined to his home through illness for the past ten days, Miner fits shoes and waiting in his stocking feet Howard King, 146 Front St., Belleville, was charged with vagrancy, no bee was taken as Chief Kidd asked for a week's enlargement in order to procure a mental examination. Local police department alleges King has been acting rather strangely of late and was discharged yesterday afternoon when taken into custody yesterday.

William Flagler, of this city, pleaded guilty to a charge of obtaining a sum of money under false pretences and sentence was postponed until Monday. The accused allegedly solicited money to assist a man in the custody of the police. "I am told," stated Crown Attorney Donnan as he asked that the accused if he was still under suspended sentence. He replied that he was not. Flagler. A check-up of police records showed he had received a two months' suspended sentence on Feb. 14th, 1936.

Arnold Malley, of this city, pleaded guilty to the theft of an outboard motor, the property of the Department of Education of Ontario. The motor was taken from the Deaf and Dumb Institute School for the Deaf last October and only recently discovered by Provincial Police today divulged. Ridley's previous police court record showed no offences. Sentence before you pass sentence I would like to have this man examined by Dr. Ponton, Government Mental Physician," interrupted Mr. Donnan. "I suggest segregation." sentence postponed until next week," added the Magistrate. The drunk and disorderly charge against Ridley, pleading guilty, was given time to raise the assessed fine.

WEATHER

Toronto, March 6—(CP)—Synopsis: A disturbance which developed off the middle Atlantic coast, is moving northeastward across the Maritime Provinces causing strong winds with snow and rain in that region. An area of high pressure and cold weather is centred over the Great Lakes while pressure has fallen slightly over northern Saskatchewan and Alberta, causing southwest winds and milder weather in the western provinces.

Lake Superior—Fair and cold; Wednesday and Thursday.

Kenora and Rainy River—Partly cloudy and becoming somewhat milder; probably snowflurries.

Manitoba—Mostly fair and cold.

Saskatchewan and Alberta—Fair and milder.

A Heavy Covering For Orono Bed

How would you like to be under 300 pounds of plaster? That is what happened to Cornelius Hugheson last Monday morning at about 9 o'clock. Mrs. Hugheson heard the ceiling plaster cracking and managed to get out of bed before the main portion fell, though one piece hit her head. But poor Cornelius was in bed buried under a pile of plaster and nearly suffocated with lime dust. However, he crawled out from under and offered a thankful prayer that it was no worse.—Orono News.

CRITICS APPROVE NEW WAVE-ORGAN

Instrument Received Audition Thursday in Georgian Room of T. Eaton Co.

Toronto, March 6.—A fair young man and unpretentiously in the group of musical scientists and people who listened to the final demonstration of the new wave organ in the Georgian Room of the T. Eaton Co., Ltd., yesterday afternoon. He was the inventor, Morse Robb of Belleville. He is one of the few who have not succumbed, with pipeless organs, anywhere in the world, and many who have been in the first experiments believe his invention to be definitely the best of the two or three now working.

Harvey Robb (not a relative) has taken many years of keen interest in the invention, and played the organ yesterday, demonstrating its use for organ solo and for accompaniment to solos or violin. The instrument had a little undue vibration and some tones were more agreeable than others, but its general behavior gave remarkable pleasure and was artistic. When one considered that all the organ, or its kind to be installed, the degree of satisfaction in the tones seemed to assure a most gratifying product in manufacture. The inventor himself was first to point out improvements which he could immediately make in the first instrument.

The Robb-Wave organ is another case of electronic reproduction of tone and console set-up have been accepted as the present day ideal in instrument, but it immediately drops other relation with the time-honored machine, the handling of relief and other things," stated Mayor Hill were being carried on. The optimal today, "This city, according to several of them ranked at the top" between none of them and very sharp, it was reported.

"They all had a good word to say about Belleville, and commended favorably on the condition of finances, the handling of relief and other things," stated Mayor Hill today, "This city, according to several of them ranked at the top"

Among the cities visited by the Mayor were Ottawa, Hamilton, Toronto, London, Oshawa.

"In some of the places visited conditions were deplorable," declared the Mayor.

C. C. F. GROUP WILL SUPPORT TRADE AGREEMENT

Does Not, However, Regard (Trade Expansion as Solution of Ills.

FLORISTS MAKE PLEA

Real Measure to Canadian Progress, Wilson Tells House

Ottawa, March 5 (CP)—Canada's political independence and financial stability are menaced by the Canada-United States trade agreement, Hon. C. H. Cahan (Conn. St. Lawrence-St. George) believes.

The veteran statesman, who has served every parliament since Confederation, told the House of Commons yesterday he was familiar with the efforts of all Canadian Governments to obtain better trade relations with the United States and that in his opinion no popular had ever been evolved, which was not open to objection.

Debate on the treaty continues today and the vote is expected early next week. Speakers on the list for today include Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Liberal Minister of Agriculture, and Hon. H. A. Stewart, former Conservative Minister of Public Works.

The depression of the last few years, he said, was due largely to purchases of more goods in the United States than Canada sold to that country, Mr. Cahan said. The policy of the former Liberal Government brought relief by the brink of financial collapse and when the Conservatives came into office it was faced with the task of restricting imports, particularly those from United States, and restoring a favorable balance of trade.

Averted Collapse

It had done so and then averted a collapse such as had not occurred in North America since 1878. The public could not have forgotten the conditions with which the present Government had to deal at the time of its election, he said, and to avoid would have been prodigality. When the time came, said in full, however, it would be agreed the Conservative administration had done a good job although it had not been wholly successful, Mr. Cahan said.

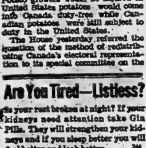
Although Conservatives remained as firm in their opposition to the treaty as the Liberals were in their support yesterday the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation took up its file first. A. A. Heaps (C.C.F.—Winnipeg North) said that group would vote for it although it "did not regard expansion of trade as a solution of all economic ills."

A plea for the florist industry was made by Gordon Graydon (Conn. Peel), who urged a tariff be imposed on cut flowers from the United States. The general tariff on flowers was 40 per cent and the intermediate rate free. The treaty substituted the intermediate rate for the general. Imposition of a duty under the intermediate schedule was essential, he claimed.

Rate Reduction Wanted

Fruit and vegetable growers also would suffer from the fact unless they were protected by Dumping Duties and higher rates in the intermediate Tariff, Mr. Graydon told the House.

Ralph Maybank (Lib. Winnipeg South Centre), though the agreement good in every respect except that it did not go far enough, said he would like to see more reductions in the Canadian tariff. In particular he thought duties on automotive cars should be reduced to a maximum of 15 per cent and duties on gasoline wiped out altogether.



Effects of the pact on factory workers caused concern to Herbert Wilton, (Cons. Hamilton West). He thought work would be given to American instead of to Canadian factories and that the United States tax might fly over Canada if the Treaty continued long in effect.

No benefits would come to the Maritime Provinces, said A. J. Brooks (Cons. Royal), one of four Ontario elected from the three Eastern Provinces. Products of the fish industry, concessions in the United States tariff on their products did not seem wholly dissipated. Potato growers would be injured as United States potatoes would enjoy a tariff in the United States.

The House yesterday referred the question of the benefits accruing to existing Canada's electoral representation to its special committee on the election and Franchise Acts. The committee has instructions to study the system, review systems in other countries with a view to suggestions for the future.

Treaty Commended

Strong commendation of the Canada-United States Trade Agreement was expressed by J. A. Bradette (Lib., Cochrane).

He said removal of the duty on United States newspapers and magazines was a good move but there should be no tax or restriction on the importation of literature.

T. F. Wilson, (Conn. Hamilton West), said he saw in the treaty a big increase in Canadian prosperity. He saw increased employment for American cities like Grand Rapids, Mich., and less employment for Canadian cities.

In opposition to the treaty, Mr. Wilson said, was not because he was a Conservative but because he saw genuine harm in it.

"In this trade agreement," Mr. Wilson said, "the possibility of the American flag and not the Canadian flag flying in Canada."

"A great vision," retorted a Liberal member, while others laughed.

The treaty, continued Mr. Wilson, was practically handing Canada over to the United States. Canada was giving two for one by Washington. It held out no hope for unemployment and, although it had some good points, its defects far outweighed them.

At least one Hamilton factory was laying off men as a result of the treaty, Mr. Wilson said, and he believed others would be forced to do likewise. He believed it would lead to increased unemployment, empty dinner pails, empty cupboards and evicted home owners.

Trenton and District

Trenton, March 6 (Special)—Fred Kassidy appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., at the Trenton Police Court yesterday charged with stealing an overcoat from R. Bonder, C.P.R. employee on March 5th and also with stealing a ride on the C. P. Railway from Smith's Falls to Trenton. The Magistrate remanded the case till Monday's hearing.

A fifteen-year-old Trenton lad appeared charged with stealing one lock off a local man's ben house, on the third day of March. He made restitution by throwing it into snow at the back of the local man's home. The accused alleged, that the local man owed him fifty cents for work which he had done, so he took the lock in payment. The local man said "that he had never promised to pay the boy" The boy received a suspended sentence. The Magistrate enlarged the case until Monday. A local man, agent for the Bedstone charged with being found in a pedal car unlicensed. This is this man's third offence on this charge. Previous convictions are, convicted for being drunk and disorderly on August 3rd, 1934, paid $50.00 fine; and was also convicted on the 28th day of August, 1935, paid five dollars fine. He pleaded guilty and was remanded till Monday for sentence.

The Angus man who was convicted in a local court last week had his driver's permit suspended for fifteen days.

Badminton Club

Twenty games with three sets to a game was played by the Trenton Badminton Club and the Belleville Badminton Club members on the Trenton Badminton courts. The result of the games was that the Trenton Club won ten points and the Belleville Club ten points. All games were closely contested affairs and led to the three set limit before the winners were decided. In the ladies' doubles Trenton took four games to Belleville's two. Belleville men won four games to Trenton's two in the men's doubles and each team won four games in the mixed doubles. Members of the Belleville team to take part: Ladies—Mrs. Hannah, Mrs. Howard, Miss Keeler, Mrs. Martin. Mrs. Hunter, Miss Johnston, Miss Sheffield, Miss Wallbridge, Miss Wardner, Miss Potts, Miss Jacks and Miss Davidson. Men—Messrs. McPee, Martin, Walters, Lenard, Foward, Hurst, Hunter, Hunt, R. Obituary

LATE ROBT. T. GILLESPIE

(Wisconsin, Rapids, Wisconsin)

Funeral services for Robert Thomas Gillespie, manager of the Dairyvale Gold Creamery Company, who passed away very suddenly while in his bed at Wisconsin Rapids, Wisconsin, on Saturday, February 17, were held on the following Wednesday morning from the Episcopal Church in that city. The Masons had charge of the service at Baker and Dyer Funeral Home. Burial will be made in the Forest Hill cemetery.

Mr. Gillespie was born on March 4th, 1880, at Plainfield, Ontario, son of Thomas R. and Anna Laura Gillespie, the former from Ireland and the latter from Scotland. On May 21st, 1936, he was married to Margaret Searles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Searles of Wisconsin Rapids, and to this union three children, all of whom survive, were born. They are Robert, Marguerite and Patrick.

Mr. Gillespie had made practically a life study of dairy products and cheese before going to Wisconsin Rapids in December, 1934, to manage the R. W. Coon plant in the old packing house building. Later the firm was taken over by the Kraft-Phoenix organization, and Mr. Gillespie was retained in charge.

An enthusiastic supporter of sports and other activities in the city, Mr. Gillespie was well known and respected by a large circle of friends. He was a life member of The Belleville, Quinte, Lodge No. 123 A. F. and A. M.

A number of relatives of Mr. Gillespie live at Plainfield.

MRS. MARY VANCE

(Stirling)

Stirling, March 5.—(Special)—Mrs. Mary Vance, widow of the late Robert Vance, who predeceased her some ten years ago, died at her home on Edward street on Thursday evening after an illness of two weeks' duration. The deceased was well and favorably known in Stirling and the district. She was born in Huntingdon Township, 79 years ago, being the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Blakely. For many years she resided on the farm with her husband but sixteen years ago made her home in Stirling. She was a member of St. John's Anglican Church and active in all branches of the church work. Left to mourn her loss are two sons, Phillip and Charles of Harold, two daughters, Mrs. T. W. Fanning of Espousaing, Mrs. Charles Folk of Portland, one brother, Charles Blakely of Stirling and two sisters, Mrs. J. Kincaid of Madoc and Mrs. John Scott of Ravedon. The funeral will be held in the Anglican Church on Saturday with interment in Stirling cemetery.

MRS. MATILDA JOHNSON

After an illness of three weeks' duration Mrs. Matilda Johnson, widow of James Johnson, passed away at her late residence, 311 Foster Avenue, Friday evening, March fifth.

The late Mrs. Johnson's maiden name was Matilda Penn, her parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Penn, and she was born in the County of Norfolk, England. After coming to this country at an early age she resided in the 6th Concession of Sidney Township for some time later coming to make her home in Belleville, where she has resided for the past forty years. She was a member of the Church of England, and highly esteemed by all who knew her.

Bereaved Four Times In Five Weeks

Picton, —The sympathy of every resident of the county must be given to Mr. Colborne Brant of Hallowell who has suffered bereavement four times in the past five weeks. His mother, Mrs. Isaac John Brant, 86 years old, died in Deseronto; his daughter and his grand-daughter passed away about two weeks ago and his son, Shannon, was buried recently.

The family is well known in Prince Edward where Mr. Brant has resided in Hallowell for many years. He was employed by the Consumers Company and his son worked for the Hunter Canning Company.— The Picton Times.

PROSPECT FOR LABOR APPEARS EXCELLENT

Instead of men looking for jobs, jobs may be looking for the men, it was intimated by Superintendent James V. Ross of the local Employment Service of Canada office this morning.

"Things appear to be looking up. An air of cheerfulness is evident. Even the men who have been jobless for some time feel this. I can tell it by their conversations, their talk. From all appearances we'll get a very good year. Not men for the farms this spring than we'll be able to fill," declared Superintendent Ross.

"One of the reasons we have had more replacements lately is the weekly radio broadcasts by the head office which have been aimed to bring both farmer and job seeker closer together. Both realize their dependence on each other. They have helped us here in this office, I know."

First requests for farm help are already being received at the office.

CRIMINAL COURT JUDGMENTS

There were 31,634 convictions for indictable offences in 1934 in Canada as compared with 32,943 in 1933. By sexes the convictions included 28,539 males and 3,145 females. The figures for 1933 were 29,465 males and 3,477 females.

Mere increases in Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick, Saskatchewan and Alberta, but decreases in Nova Scotia, Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba, British Columbia and North West Territories.

Trials for both indictable and non-indictable offences totalled 366,152 in 1934 compared with 331,600 in 1933. The number of convictions of non-indictable offences was 328,744 compared with 292,678 in 1933.

The rate of progression in the number of convictions for gambling has been very marked in recent years. In 1930 the number was 6,665 which increased to 8,287 in 1931, but from then on made much more substantial increases. In 1933 the number was 14,928 and in 1934 it rose to 22,191, but in 1934 reached the large figure of 30,499.

On the other hand, convictions for drunkenness have decreased very substantially in recent years. In 1930 the number was 35,789. This dropped in 1931 to 29,145, in 1932 to 22,664, in 1933 to 18,910, while in 1934 there was a small increase to 20,764.

WORLD RECOVERY

How trade is improving is indicated by the annual statement of the British Board of Trade as to British balance of international payments. The worldwide recovery has now reached all but two or three of the European states. New York Times presents an analysis of this report to this effect: "Including the net adverse balance arising from foreign trade in merchandise and silver combined, but offsetting this debit by the credits arising from net shipping income, from overseas investments and from miscellaneous net receipts, the Board had for three successive years reported an unfavorable net balance on all accounts. In 1931 this total net balance against England was as much as £104,000,000. There was £56,000,000 deficit in 1932 and both 1933 and 1934 failed by a narrow margin to produce an excess of receipts over payments. In the latest year, the Board of Trade reports a net surplus of receipts in foreign trade amounting to £37,000,000, the largest since 1930.

"Analysis of the detailed showing of international trade is particularly interesting because it affects so many branches. The yearly excess of Great Britain's merchandise imports over exports has been reduced in each successive year since 1932—always through increased exports. Last year, notwithstanding increase of imports also, it was smaller by £10,000,000 than in 1932 and by £8,500,000 than in 1934. Our Government lent a hand through its silver purchase policy. In 1935 England exported £14,500,000 more silver than it imported, whereas its excess of silver imports in 1934 was £10,000,000. Among the "invisible credits"—England's traditional strength in foreign transactions—the item for shipping increased £5,000,000, or 6 5-8 per cent. They were the largest of any since 1931, and £10,000,000 above 1933. Net income from investments abroad was the last year £10,000,000 greater than in 1934 and $40,000,000, or 27 1-2 per cent, above 1932.

"The British Board of Trade does not, like our own Department of Commerce, include gold exports and imports in striking the country's balance of international payments. The gold movement is regarded as apart from the ordinary trade movement. If gold were included in the British figures, the total balance would be less favorable; for in each of the two years England has been a net importer of gold. But even in that regard the position of 1935 has on net balance been stronger. Its gold imports last year exceeded exports by £71,000,000. In 1934 the gold-import excess was $133,700,000."

BOMBING OF AMBULANCE

The entanglements of modern war have been clearly enough shown in the present struggle going on in Abyssinia. Swedish hospital units have been dispatched by Haile Selassie. A British ambulance unit has suffered, seven persons being killed. Italy admits the air attack but places the blame on the British Government, on the ground that the corps it claims was not known and that the day before the aviator had been fired upon twice by troops near the ambulance. The Italian government, as Rome reports, has issued assurances that no Ethiopian munition train masquerading under the Red Cross emblem. Three of the victims of the raid were British subjects from Kenya.

A civilization which permits the slaughter of men and women and children by bombs or any other ammunition needs repairing badly. Fortunately there is the civilising agency of the Red Cross, which tries to alleviate suffering of war's victims and to repair the broken bodies. But even the doctors and nurses and drivers of the ambulances are not safe as has been shown before in this war, for the air bomber has attacked them whether with or without justification on the ground that soldiers of the enemy are believed to be taking advantage of the emblem of the Red Cross.

There are other instances of British ambulances attacked by bombs. All these matters are being reported.

Sweden has protested to Rome that the attack on a Swedish ambulance on December 30 in Ethiopia by Italians was not an accident but was pre-meditated. Britain has asked for a full statement of Thursday's fatal attack.

STRIKE OF ELEVATOR MEN IN NEW YORK CITY has more played havoc with cliff-dwellers, and life along the skyline of Manhattan has certainly lost its charm. In some instances the firemen of apartment houses have gone out in sympathy with the elevator men and that meant cessation of heat, a most serious matter. Difficulty of getting milk for babies above the twentieth story is also a problem for the milk delivery men haven't time to climb those cliffs and get through the same day. Ingenious tenants have devised means of coping with the emergency such as improvising dumb waiters with ropes attached to pails which are loaded at the street level and pulled up by the men at the top. The strike is a rough and tedious one and hinges on shorter hours and longer wages.

DESPITE THE FACT THAT THE ROBINS HAVE BEEN PROCLAIMING THE ADVENT OF SPRING FOR SOME TIME there are folks who still think that winter will linger in the lap of spring for a little time yet. Perhaps they'll believe the frogs when they begin to croak after their long winter's imprisonment. Then we could have a chorus of croakers.

FIRST LADY OF THE LAND OF UNCLE SAM, Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt is a very busy lady of womanhood. She's a walk through the "Mike" like nobody's business, writes pieces for the papers, and gets around to this, that, and the other thing, with regularity and alacrity. President Roosevelt is proving himself a clever, courageous and spectacular chief executive, and time alone will test the wisdom or otherwise of his policies now being attacked so vigorously by the Republican party. It is easy to understand that much of President Roosevelt's strength is due to the help and encouragement from his wife and sympathetic counsel from her. She is truly a help-meet of great potency to him. Once again the woman scorns while the man takes most of the credit.

THREE WOMEN OCCUPY DEATH CELLS AT SING SING condemned to die in the electric chair for murder. Women's plea for equality with men in the social, political and business affairs of the states seems to have gone farther than was expected. Man has exploited crime on the scaffold and electric chair for a long time and but few women have suffered the death penalty except in France during the Terror when the lust of blood sent many fair aristocrats to the guillotine. In the United States it seems difficult to convict a woman of murder and still harder to inflict capital punishment upon the fair sex. It is worthy of note that a woman in the United States recently tried for murder and sentenced to ten days imprisonment remarked that she was glad she had not been tried in Canada where they hang women, citing a case in Western Ontario some time ago where a woman suffered the extreme penalty. Consequently to have three women in the death cells at Sing Sing at one time is something of a record for Uncle Sam, and it looks as if the three would go to the chair despite pleas for leniency from women's organizations.

SHOULD CHRISTIANS SMOKE? is again being thrashed out by correspondents to Toronto newspapers. This is an old question revived. It should be "Can Christians Smoke", or can people who smoke be Christians. A wife-cracking evangelist once said that a man might smoke and still be a Christian, but he would be a dirty Christian. Others felt, or stated, that tobacco was a contraption of the Devil used by pure Christians from the straight and narrow path. Smoking used to be more or less universal in pioneer days when grandma got so much satisfaction out of her clay pipe and the Cigarettes hadn't been invented then. It ceased to be the fashion for women to smoke and they destized Cigarettes brought in some Christians. But what a waste of time and newspaper space to debate whether Christians should or should not smoke.

Thoughtful Pat

An Irishman was riding a restive pony along a country road. The animal slipped into a ditch and in attempting to scramble out again, caught one of the hind feet in the stirrup. "Arrah!" said the man, "if you're thinking of getting up here 'tis about time for me to be getting down."

Only One Right View of Religion

The Editor Ontario Intelligencer:

After reading an article in your issue of Feb. 26, under the head "Wrong Views About Religion", I thought how many wrong views there must be when there is only one right view, one God, one faith, one straight gate that opens into a narrow way which leads to Heaven. There are many wrong ways which seem right unto man but end in death, yet these ways are travelled by. God is great love and mercy so fallen man has at a great cost opened up a way, and in a great broad map, giving careful instructions how, how to get on the No. 1 Highway, of the danger the traveller is likely to meet with, how to avoid them, and finally make a safe landing, what it will mean if he becomes careless. In fact all he needs to make him wise unto salvation.

There are inspired writings to make the man of God perfect thoroughly furnished unto all good works. The author commands us to search it, we neglect this at the peril of our souls. It has reached us through a sea of blood. How we ought to prize it! I am pleased when I see it scattered abroad in the land that is not letting the highways or wherever man is found. I am sure those who read it is not getting a good work.

I know a young man I saw clearly if I was to get well out of this old world I must earnestly contend for the faith once delivered to the saints so having become a partaker of this precious faith the power of God there in that land of pure delight is often on my mind. My heart and treasure are there, until at times I feel like Paul, in a strait between two having a desire to depart and be with Christ, to be with Him in Heaven, that is very much like in hell.

Jesus gives us the most information we have of either place. He is the only one that could—I am glad He has told us a little about it in the Bible.

Hell is God's penitentiary for impenitent transgressors. Those who go there are trespassers. It was not prepared for man but there it is for other place for him. There is no neutral ground as having an immortal soul that will live forever with eternity (Matt. 25th, last verse) they go either into everlasting punishment but the righteous into life eternal.

How thankful we of this generation should be. We have at least an opportunity to hear and became acquainted with God and being filled with His spirit, compelled by His love for others went forth as spiritual pioneers and blazed a trail through it meant self-denial, much suffering even unto death, but in the world not their lives dear unto themselves, left foot-prints on the sands of time that others may follow safely, but the way is too much for the tender feet of many today, they are looking for an easier way, they will find it but it leads to Heaven. Still there are a few who are still filled with grief hearts.

"Faith of our fathers living still, In spite of dungeon, fire and sword;
O, how our hearts beat high with joy
Whene'er we hear that glorious word."

Payrolls Needed Says Mr. Elliott

March 3, 1936
Editor of Ontario Intelligencer.
Belleville, Ontario.
Dear Sir:

During this week several men and families in this district have discussed with me their and story of arrears of rent. Just certain I was allowed on the valuation of family clothes are those that have been worn by others till discarded and the furniture they once had has been sold to get what was more necessary at the time, all equity or insurance gone, and in some cases equity of salable grain gone.

They cannot afford newspapers so I have chosen them as the way I see it is my legislation being passed that will give them employment and the manufacturers, merchants and real estate need the payrolls of those unemployed more than ever seriously.

We cannot eat much of the farmers' produce but if the million unemployed were put to work at a profitable amount of wages they could pay the rent twice as much for his produce and the farmers could meet their financial obligations and not need Mr. Bennett's Red Guaranteed Loan Act. Again, I know financial and political propaganda whispers to the farmer, the unemployed, the merchant, etc., that the taxpayer cannot pay the interest on the present debt without more debt.

My dear fellow Canadian you and I know that mergers in business, watered stock, high finance, unethical methods and financial racketeering have taken money out of circulation, then the men we elected to see that social justice was established, went to these racketeers with bonds instead of taxes and came back for more taxes to pay the bonds. Lo! My dear fellow Canadian in financial distress, just so much money is needed to purchase the necessities of life, and the shops are classified with him.

Let me say to you whom we elected, you are wasting your time and money on the Social Credit picture. The Canada-U. S. A. Tariff Treaty, "Sanctions", the Empire Trade Treaty, the Marriage Laws, etc., how long do you think we who have elected you are going all will put up with your cowardice. Money is made for man, not man for money.

Yours for better power of citizenship
George Elliott.

LOOKING BACKWARD

20 YEARS AGO
March 6th, 1916

Dr. and Mrs. Willrid have arrived in the city.

Mrs. Gertrude Allard of Cagnods Hall, Toronto, spent yesterday at her home in the city.

The Barnes contingent is arriving tonight at 9.25 o'clock and the members have been busy getting meet steaks and soft beds in advance. Seating will be full coming a day ahead and their men will be in good order. The need all their condition and don't know if we go by what Brock, Sherry's outfit has in the city. Never has there been such a rush for seats for a hockey match in Belleville and it is safe to say that never before have there been two such teams of high calibre as will clash tomorrow night. The regular reserve seats have been sold out and the gallery has also been reserved. The ground floor will be rush. The O.H.A. has routed the rink and is pledged to the games both here and at Sarnia, so we can look to four in final games. You will have to come early to see the game of your life.

Wedding anniversary. A correspondent writes as follows: "A very pleasant evening was spent at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Reeve in Thurlow township on Feb. 19th, when over fifty invitations were issued to celebrate the forty-fifth anniversary their wedding. A sumptuous repast was served after which games were played and other amusements provided. Those present were from Belleville, Bayside, Melrose, Foxboro, Moneypoint, View, Redneersville and the surrounding vicinity. Among the presents received were a handsome chair and lamp from Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Walker of Redneersville. The evening was most enjoyable in every way.

SENATE EMBARKS ON LONG HOLIDAY
House Criticized For Not Having Business For Senate to Deal With

OTTAWA, March 6.—(CP)—The Senate today was embarked on another long holiday of indefinite length, after hearing its members yesterday criticize the House of Commons for long debates and failing to provide it with enough business to keep the Senate occupied.

Senator Raoul Dandurand, Upper House Government leader, said for weeks the Commoners spent early in the session on matters the Senate could not touch and then in a few days was responsible for the long adjournment. The Government ordinarily devoted two months to legislation, but this session only

Holloway St. Church Ladies

On Wednesday p. m. about fifty ladies of Holloway Street United Church met in the church parlour for their March meeting. The president, Mrs. J. Cordes, opened the meeting with the hymn, "Jesus Calling Us Thy Grace" which gave the theme of the whole program. The devotional was led in prayer. The recording secretary, Mrs. H. Woodman, gave a very interesting account of the February meeting. The "strangers' secretary, Mrs. R. Cassels, reported calls made in February. A number of letters and a gift "Missionary Monthly" are to be sent to ill members. The delegate to the tenth annual meeting of the Provincial held in the Tabernacle Church in Belleville this month is Mrs. J. Cordes. For the W.M.S. Sunday program, a special guest speaker is to be secured.

The leader of Group 3, Mrs. S. Hagerman, took charge of the meeting. The hymn, "Gracious Spirit Dwell With Me" was followed by the devotional leaflet on "The Spirit of Jesus at Work Settling Disputes," read by Mrs. J. Cordes. The temperance Secretary, Mrs. C. Holmes, gave a vivid picture of the drunkard on driver as a menace on the road; at times asleep, full speed ahead, turning from side to side, with the final crash, causing hundreds of accidents. The punishment should not be such as is not in proportion to that given for other carelessness. A very appropriate poem challenged remedial action. Mrs. J. Redner and Mrs. H. Sager took up the collection for which Mrs. Holmes made the offertory prayer.

The study book chapter on "The Faiths of Africa" was taken in six individuals: "Their Underlying Beliefs," Mrs. Hagerman; "Sin," Mrs. McMurray; "Their Belief in Immortality," Mrs. Redner; "Spirit Worship" by Miss J. Clement; "Magic" by Mrs. J. Shaw; "The Church" by Miss A. Hamilton, and "The Advantages of Islam over Animism, and the Disadvantages of Islam Overcome By Christianity" by Mrs. W. Sherry. Mrs. H. Sager conducted a quiz on a wall map of Africa, and a review of the blackboard synopsis opened up interesting discussions.

Mrs. R. Hilbabish sole, "I Heard the Voice of Jesus," closed this part of the program. The social hour with refreshments was much enjoyed.

Personals

The sewing circle of which Mrs. J. Mcmillan is a member met on night at the home of Mrs. R. H. Edwards, 183 Dundas Street, West, for their regular weekly social meeting. Mrs. Mcmillan was presented with a gift by her friends previous to her departure from the town.

Mrs. George Nicholson of Wallbridge has returned to Belleville after having spent several days at the home of her sister, who passed away at Peterborough on February 4th. Mrs. Nicholson is survived by one daughter, Mrs. G. W. Pepper, for a few days before returning to her home in Wallbridge.

Mrs. J. Godley, of Montreal, National President of the Catholic Women's League of Canada, will be the guest yesterday of Mrs. W. H. Deacon, George Street.

On Wednesday, February 19th, Mrs. J. G. Brintnell celebrated her 80th birthday with a dinner at her home, 99 Clarke Blvd. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Mitchell, Mr. H. Wilson, Dr. W. G. Wilson, Miami, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Miller and son, Allen, Belleville, Ontario; George Brintnell, Belleville, Ontario, R. K. and T. L. Brintnell, and Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Brintnell, Ojus, Dade County. The afternoon friends called in with Mrs. Brintnell many happy returns of the day.—Fort Lauderdale News.

SOCIETIES

With a large number of visitors from outside points in attendance at regular meeting of Belleville Lodge on Wednesday evening observed with the ceremony of the 132nd anniversary of the founding in Masonic Hall. The local Lodge holds the distinction of being the oldest one in Ontario and has a long and creditable record of Masonic work to its credit.

During the evening Worshipful Master R. I. Brown acted as toastmaster and conducted the program, which included a solo supplied by the Metra Lodge Orchestra under the direction of Bro. Waller Hamilton.

An going speaker of the evening was the presentation of an excellent charter, dating back to 1833, to Bro. Rev. Dr. Wm. Rothwell of Cobourg. The document signified the conferring of Master Mason's Degree upon Bro. Conrad Dafoe and was signed by Benjamin Matchett, Wor. Master of the Lodge, which was then known as the Belleville Lodge No. 17. The late Wm. Yeomans was then Senior Warden of the Lodge. The document has been sent to Bro. Rev. Rothwell from British Columbia.

A brief outline of the history of Metra Lodge was given during the evening by Rt. Wor. Bro. W. G. Mikel who traced its origin in 1792 and its steady growth and added membership since. The original warrant of the Lodge was issued to by William Jarvis, Provincial Grand Master, in the year 1801. The man directly responsible for the formation of the Lodge was Capt. John Walden, who came here to the Quinte District, at the conclusion of the American Revolution. Capt. Meyers was a Free Mason and a natural leader in community life.

In the year 1814, when Sheppson's tavern burned to the ground the Lodge warrant was destroyed. However, it was replaced in Kingston and since then the Lodge has continued to grow under the name of Belleville Lodge No. 17. Sheppson's tavern, it was pointed out, was one of the meeting places of the Lodge following its formation.

Musical Night Enjoyed

"Musical Night" in honor of the patron saint St. Patrick, was held by The Belleville Lodge A. F. and A.M. on Thursday evening with Wor. Master W. D. Embury acting as toastmaster. The week of the event was quickly transacted in order, that a full evening of entertainment might be enjoyed. There was a large attendance of the members with many from district lodges attending representatives. The Princess Patricia orchestra under the able direction of Bro. Ernest Hall rendered a number of pleasing selections from a platform in the dining room decorated in green. The members of the orchestra were introduced to the brethren.

The first selection was a "Bunch of Shamrocks" which was a collection of Irish airs. Bro. Hall's solo violin parts being outstanding in the selection. A clever skit "A farmer takes a wife" was given by members of the orchestra and proved most entertaining. The Belleville Male quartette, composed of James Bankier, Harry Macdonald, Harold Howard and Albert Evans with Leo B. Riggs at the piano gave four numbers and every selection was heartily encored. Miss Margaret Macdonald and Miss Nina Sherry delighted with a tap dance, while Frank Howard gave a comic song. The soloist, Miss Mildred Lloyd delighted with a reading "Nobody Woman Despises" and the orchestra favored with a selection "Hearts and Flowers"

Brother Everett Smith gave a monologue "The Parson addresses his Flock", while the program was concluded with a selection from the quartette. Brother Frank Tulk, moved a vote of thanks to the artists for their delightful entertainment.

ON YOUR FEET ALL DAY?
If So, You Need
Zam-Buk

Constant standing at work causes inflamed, tender feet. It weakens and ruins the skin. Zam-Buk is the ideal remedy for such troubles. Rub it well into the feet, ankles and legs. Its soothing, healing herbal essences are quickly absorbed. Hard skin, corns and bunions are softened, joints suppled, tone and feet are made comfortable. Start with Zam-Buk tonight.

Rub ZAM-BUK In Every Night

RECOGNIZE HIM—In case you cannot recognize the man (with a moustache) at first glance, he is Charles Laughton, film star. He is snapped arriving at a theatre in London.

Rev. Dr. James Seargin, pastor of Bridge Street United Church, gave an interesting address. He chose for his subject "The World Moves Forward on the Feet of Little Children".

One of the features of the evening was the presentation of an excellent charter, dating back to 1833, to Bro. Rev. Dr. Wm. Rothwell of Cobourg. MOST INFLUENTIAL WOMAN IN NEW YORK—You are looking at the most influential woman in New York city, this is Sally Deutsch, who is 28, pert, efficient, a backbone of activity and, most important of all, secretary to James J. Bambrick, the leader of the service strike which has paralyzed elevator and freight service in many of New York's large buildings. Sally started working for Mr. Bambrick in 1934 and since that time has become an authority on wages and hours in the building service trades. Sally is widely read on labor literature, and is looked upon as a veritable human encyclopaedia on the subject. Miss Deutsch can be hard-boiled when occasion demands. She is pictured at the telephone giving orders in no uncertain terms to some of the strike lieutenants. When a reporter called, an earnest striker rushed into the little office. Miss Deutsch's caustic remark to them was: "Get the hell out of here!"

30,000 TONS COAL USED BY RESIDENTS

Belleville stores, furnaces and heating plants will probably set a record this year for the amount of coal consumed during the winter season, it is revealed by a check up of records at the city weigh scales. Up to the present time it is estimated by Norman W. Reid, weighmaster, that between 28 and 30 thousand tons of coal have passed over the scales so far. But winter, it is pointed out, is not officially over and a considerable tonnage yet remains to be weighed.

Gene Autry, Ann Rutherford with "Buck," the wonder dog, appearing in "Melody Trail" at the Capitol on Saturday only.

Current Attractions at Local Theatres

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

"ANYTHING GOES"

Rich Comedy and Song Hits Feature Big Comedy Film

"Anything Goes", coming to the Belle tomorrow and Monday, matinee daily, is a jolly, tuneful mixture of talent. Bing Crosby is the featured player in this song-and-dance Paramount presentation of the popular Broadway musical comedy which broke records during its New York run. He is assisted by such favorites as Ethel Merman, Charlie Ruggles, Ida Lupino and Grace Bradley.

All the famous Cole Porter songs which were universally popular are heard in this riotously funny film, has provided a number of others which are equally as good as "You're the Top", "Anything Goes" and "I've Got a Kick Out of You." Additional songs by other music makers are included.

Outstanding in the lyric line are the parodies on "You're the Top" which Crosby and Miss Merman sing. These parodies are among the highlights of the picture. Nearly everything under the sun is lyrically dused in these parodies, from Eskimos to stratospheric flights.

The bright dance routines by Le-Roy Prinz deserve mention, as does the fast pace directed by Lewis Milestone. The spectator is carried headlong from amusing suspended to diverting songs, and from spectacular night club scenes to madcap comedy.

Crosby is a knight errant aboard a transatlantic liner. His interest to support gets him into trouble, for it belongs to a public enemy. That support focuses the attention of and out of sundry disguises with hilarious consequences. The whole ship becomes a madhouse of fun when Crosby stops at nothing to effect possession of their costumes. In the end it gets its reward with an all-star romance.

"Anything Goes" is amusing entertainment. Although hard to classify, it is heartily recommended to one and all.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Melody Trail"

New Western Is Different and Pleasing

Gene Autry breaks away from the tried-and-true western formula with his latest outdoor feature, "Melody Trail", playing Saturday only at the Capitol Theatre, and the result is a picture that completely satisfies not only lovers of westerns but the general movie fan as well. Autry's new production includes in its roster of players that remarkable canine star, "Buck", who won the hearts of movie fans with his performance in "Call of the Wild". He's here in the happy role of a four-legged rascal whose penchant is taking anything not nailed down.

Seven songs are introduced in the picture, delivered in the inimitable style that has made Autry a popular figure both on the radio and screen. Ann Rutherford and Sybil Jason, Anne Rutherford and a bevy of charming "cowgirls", these talented numbers make the picture unique.

Those who look for hard and fast riding, gun play and flat-footed accordance will not be disappointed in "Melody Trail", for Autry is just as much at home in the saddle as "Champion" and his strumming away on his guitar. All the elements that go to make a bang-up western are present, with the story and cast make for genuine entertainment.

Special Saturday Matinee

A special children's matinee is again being presented which is attracting the interest outlined above, offers a variety program of seven-different cartoons and comedies and also chapter two of the "Phantom Empire". If you like Mickey Mouse and all his friends don't forget to be at the Capitol on matinee afternoon.

Today Only

This is your last chance to see Wini Shaw the girl who made "The Lady Lies" famous in her first starring role "Broadway Hostess" "Spanish Cape Mystery", the second feature rounds out the program in thrilling fashion.

HEALTH and PSYCHOLOGY
By Lodi E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology
Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

In my opinion the saddest mental disturbance is the one, beginning early in youth, called "dementia praecox." About one-third of all the patients in asylums suffer from this condition. And once the disease definitely sets in, many authorities hold that it is absolutely incurable.

The reason I consider this psychosis especially sad is because, in the first place, it so seldom is recognized early, in time to render definite and valuable aid. In the second place, it attacks young people about the time of puberty and often is a complete surprise to unsuspecting parents.

Dementia praecox, you see, is not sudden or dramatic in its onset. Usually it is insidious and slow. The boy or girl may be bright in fact may even be doing unusually well in school. But on the emotional side certain changes may be noted, and these, to summarize them in a word or two, may be classed as eccentric or peculiar behavior.

These young people are not social. They do not mix well. They tend to be seclusive and shut-in. They do not enjoy going to the theatre, picture shows or dances; they take little or no interest in athletics or sports.

Often they are described as "moody." Sometimes they sit quietly by the hour, perhaps for half an hour or longer, apparently in deep thought.

Yet, actually, their thinking, anything but profound, is of the shallowest sort dealing with superficialities and trivialities.

Later on, as the weeks or months go by, hallucinations and delusions develop. They see strange sights and hear peculiar sounds, all of which have no actual existence. Sometimes they believe their heart has stopped beating or that the blood has dried up. Often they get the notion that they are being watched and persecuted, that an enemy is "working wireless" on them.

Often, also, peculiar mannerisms and awkward attitudes of the body are in evidence. Such a patient may stand for minutes and minutes in a strained position without realizing what he is doing.

Marked stubbornness is likewise common. This may amount to what is called "negativism." That is, the patient does exactly the opposite of what he is told.

Other symptoms may be present in the early stages of the disease or may develop later on.

The point is that expert medical aid should be sought at the earliest possible moment, especially such aid as can be given by a specialist in mental disorders, a psychiatrist.

Parents must not, of course, become unduly alarmed when their boy or girl acts strangely, let us say, once or twice. Such unusual behavior is not incompatible with normality.

If, on the other hand, the child's character continues to change, it is much better to have him examined and be on the safe side than to wait until the case has advanced far beyond the stage of possible help.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

Stomach and intestinal upsets are not, as a rule, caused by teething in infants, despite popular opinion. No modification of the diet should be made when a child's first tooth appears. Give the baby toast and crackers to chew upon to help develop the jaw muscles, harden the gums and activate the salivary glands.

Murder Case is Given to Jury

Cornwall, Ont., March 6—(CP)—The Ontario Supreme Court jury in the case of Mrs. Violet Mary Vokey and Clarence Cameron for the murder of the woman's husband, Louis, retired after hearing Judge today to consider their verdict.

Reasonable Evidence

In addressing the jury, His Lordship said the Crown did not have to establish a motive to prove the charges. He reviewed the Crown's contention that Mrs. Vokey and Cameron both 39 years old, had an affair and that the latter was the faithful to her 55-year-old husband.

If the evidence was accepted, His Lordship said, Cameron talked a number of times with Mrs. Vokey's parties with Mrs. Vokey. Justice Jeffrey reviewed statements made of Mrs. Vokey that her husband suffered from a cold and found her husband's body at the foot of the stairs. She said she did not hear him fall.

"Do you accept the story Vokey fell down those stairs with a lamp in his hand and his fall, only eight feet in fact, down the stairs, did not awaken her?" asked the Judge.

His Lordship wondered why, if Vokey fell down the stairs with the lamp in his hand, the fragments of broken chimney were found not on the landing at the foot of the stairs but on the floor beside the landing.

Forres

As far as Financial Service can ascertain from comments heard in brokerage circles the recent setback in the stock is due to two main reasons, neither of which appear to justify the drop in the price of the stock. First, the fact that during the mill running a delay of about three weeks in shipments caused by the need to be circulated that the mills were having trouble with the mill. An official statement issued day read that the mill is now in continuous operation, the completion of the Annual Report this week is also said to be responsible for some selling in the stock based on the fact that the balance sheet showed a working capital deficit of $50,000 with an item 'loan payable' for $65,000 appearing as a current liability. It is difficult to understand why one would consider the latter item serious about this loan when, as a matter of fact, this item represents advances made by the construction of the power line, an account which is to be repaid as power is consumed by the Mills.

A study of General Manager J. Forres' address to the annual meeting would indicate that there was a highly optimistic state of affairs as far as the immediate future was concerned and future possibilities. The following extracts from the address given in the two-page remarks is no doubt the report that "the width and thickness of the 40" fast has been opened width three to five feet, values $20 to $25, together with shoots 100 feet length of better than $10 ore.

A logical review of these forces would indicate that the present market fails to reveal concrete cause for appreciable decline in the stock. Also in the Mid-West Review of a further bullish influence in the near future is the recent report proposed in the United States. It is estimated to repeal all corporation income and similar taxes, and institute a tax on undistributed earnings after payment of dividends.

While developments continue to suggest higher prices for stocks, it is necessary to protect oneself against undue optimism. For a year the market has been rising steadily—and seldom have stocks gone through March without a reaction if an upward movement has been in evidence in previous months. Consequently, despite the difficulty of being able to point to definite signals for factors, investors should be prepared for a change in the public's attitude towards the market. It has been in evidence already in a few cases and is likely to become more common and will be discussed. Cash resources are strong enough to permit a payment at this time. Should the directors decide on an interim dividend of 40 cents a share it would mean the distribution of over $3,500,000.

GRAIN

Winnipeg, March 6—(CP)—Wheat futures prices eased in the first hour in dull trading on Winnipeg grain exchange today. Prices were near mid-session 1-8 to 1-4 cent lower. May delivery was at $1.24 3-8 and October 84 1-2 cents. Export business was off to a very small volume, the mill running and elevator trading being estimated at 150,000 bushels.

HOGS

Toronto, March 6—(CP)— With the exception, reporting hog market today held with unchanged prices. Quality was the only point to record a change advanced 25 cents on Monday's top at $4.25. The prices:

Bradshaw, $.25; London, $8.25; Hull, $8.25; Stratford, $8.25; Kitchener, $8.25; Brantford, $8.25; Barrie $8.25; Peterboro, $8.25.

PRODUCE

Toronto, March 6 — (CP) — Wholesale prices on produce delivered at Toronto supplied by United Farmers co-operative Co. Ltd. today: Eggs grade A large, 23c; grade A medium, 20c, 20c; grade A pullets, 20c, 27c; grade B large, 19c; grade C, 20c. Who has received a second appointment within a year. Originally Manager of the Montreal office of Canada Dry Ginger Ale Limited at Montreal, he was made General Sales Manager and transferred to head office at Toronto early last year, and now becomes Vice-President and General Manager of the company.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, March 6—(CP)— Base metal stocks displayed uniform strength in Toronto mining market today while a few specialties including Teck-Canada on Cat-Dorado advanced well in heavy volume. God's Lake was an early feature but profit taking in Teck-Hughes expanded and nearly all the gain was lost. Mandy and Ashley also gave up some of their gains of about 10.

Higher metallic prices for lead and copper were evidently a market support. Noranda advanced to 50, Hudson Bay and Sherritt Gordon to 25, Waite Amulet and Ventures did better.

Among the specialties gold shares the market was firm to strong for Dentonia, Fairchild, Macassa, Seattle, San Antonio and Sudbury Basin were lower for Pamour, Sylvanite and Buffalo-Ankerite.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

Toronto, March 6.—(CP)—Prices firmed up after a quiet and slightly irregular opening in Toronto Industrial markets today. Ford A, O.P.R. and Massey-Harris were in demand while Liquor shares participated in the advance while the oils were moderately weak and Consolidated Nickel unchanged this afternoon.

Wall Street stocks were generally helped by the announcement so the report would be paid quarterly on the common, putting the issue on a $2 dividend basis. The price advanced 1-2 and Associated Gasoline up 1-8 but A had the same gain. International Petroleum and Imperial Oil were down, Pete dropping about a point.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, March 6 (AP)—A run-up of about 8 points in Allied Chemical was one of the features of a forward push in the industrial market.

Principal gainers included Schenley, National Distillers, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, U. S. Smelting, American Smelting, Case, Du Pont, Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Boeing, Westinghouse and Du Pont. Numerous "new highs" were recorded.

The Ida Tarbell Mrs. Transfers approximated 2,850,000.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, March 6—Higher prices again prevailed in the local egg market yesterday, with supplies arriving in the city still insufficient to meet the demand. Dealers were hopeful that the pinch for supplies would not last much longer than this week, and, in some quarters the belief was voiced that prices had about reached the limit due to current upward movement. The butter market was quiet and prices unchanged. Cheese, potatoes and poultry had a steady tone. Some new Ontario potatoes have appeared in the potato list. Receipts for the day were 1,000 pkgs. of 2-4 and Canada as $96 cases of eggs, 90 boxes of butter and 140 boxes of cheese.

On the egg market the only shipments arriving in Ld. lots were those of Canada No. 1 selling at 24 cents for A-medium.

The butter market remained at 22 1-4c to 22 1-2c per lb. for No. 1 regraded in cartons of 1-1. lots. The Montreal Canadian Exchange had no sales.

POULTRY

Toronto March 6—(CP)—Wholesale prices on poultry supplied by United Farmers Co-operative Co., here today were in order of live & dressed A. selects and dressed A. milk fed. Grades:

Chickens over 6 lb., 16, 20 and 22c; 5 1-2 to 6 lb., 15, 19 and 21c; 5 to 5 1-2 lb., 14, 18 and 20c; 4 1-2 to 5 lb., 13, 17 and 19c; under 4 1-2 lb., 12, 16 and 18c; under 4 1-2 lb. milk fed, 13, 17 and 19c; hens over 5 lb., 16, 18 and 20c; 4 1-2 to 5 lb., 15, 17 and 19c; 3 to 4 lb., 12 and 13c; old roosters, 7 and 9c.

VICTIM OF HOLD-UP Is Under Critical Condition

Toronto, March 6 (CP)— Edward Stonehouse, shot by gunmen in a Markman last Saturday, as he attempted to prevent theft of a police car, is reported in grave condition today. Surgeons have used blood and two operations have been performed.

His son James, also shot in the holdup, is progressing favorably.

HOTEL WORKERS ARE CALLED OUT

New York Strike Expected to Spread Before Nightfall

New York, March 6 (AP)—Hotel workers were called away from their jobs today in support of the building employees' strike which already has grown to entail a tie-up of Manhattan's important "Grand Central" area, Brooklyn and Queen's before, nightfall.

The first hotels affected by strike orders were the Barbizon-Plaza and the Hotel Windsor, both on 58th Street on the near west side. Strike leaders said that 30 employees left the Barbizon-Plaza and 35 were called out of the Windsor. The action came shortly after Chris. Houlihan, president of the Hotel Workers' Union, left his offices with the announcement he would "pull" the hotels.

The Hotel Workers' Union is a subsidiary of the Building Service Employees' Union which is conducting the strike. The general strike threat voiced earlier in the week by James J. Dambrick, head of the Building Service Employees, received a measure of support from Paul N. Coulcher, Secretary-Treasurer of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees' Union.

Coulcher announced 5,000 kitchen and dining room workers in 100 hotels would join the picket lines of the striking workers.

WELFARE BOARD HELD PRISONERS

Barricaded Until Provincial Police Put in An Appearance

Niagara Falls, Ont., March 6. — (CP)—Until two o'clock this morning Welfare Board members of Bridgeburg Members were barricaded in the clerk's office in the Township Hall. Only after four provincial policemen arrived were the Welfare officials released by the mob.

Ten women, their arms linked together, backed up by nine men refused to permit the members to pass. The demonstration was in protest over recent cancellation of relief allowances to the uniformed male.

Reeve L. T. Couch informed the crowd through the blocked door because of the financial condition of the Township it was impossible to meet the needs of relief. The crowd dispersed peacefully on the arrival of the police.

The crowd had brought coffee and sandwiches with the evident intention of remaining in the hall, and keeping the Welfare Board members prisoners until their demands had been granted.

STATEMENT MADE IS TOLD COURT

"Suppose I am Wanted For Bank Robbery", Alleged Statement

Hull, Que., March 6 (CP)—Detective Claude Lavallee testified today when he arrested Joseph Rochon for the murder of Armand Nadeau the accused man said he supposed he was wanted in connection with the Hull bank robbery.

Rochon, one of the six men charged with the slaying of the 18-year-old son of Mrs. Alfred Desjardins 41b, was arrested December 4th in Ottawa, he declared yesterday.

Sauve said when he made the arrest Rochon remarked: "I suppose you want me in connection with the Hull bank robbery." A bunch of young punks pointed Rochon out to me and I suppose they squealed on me."

Alphonse Fournier, counsel for Rochon, objected to the detective repeating what Rochon might have said as the accused had not been warned at the time. The objection was overruled.

Too Much Sunburn Is Found Dangerous

Detroit, Mich., March 6—(AP)—The danger of too much sunburn was emphasized today in a report to the American College of Physicians on effects of rays in sunlight which kill guinea pigs.

Dr. Karl Sonne, of Moscow, U. S. S. R., and Dr. Aaron Margolis of Tucson, Ariz. told the final session of the annual meeting that the College how the guinea pigs had died of retinal injury. They had been exposed daily with marked pathologic changes in their organs.

Animals whose abdomens were shaved were exposed to the solar radiation, and according to a report to those which exist at an altitude. Dr. Sonne concluded with a lecture of 22 degree heat. They died within one hour.

To Consider Toronto Seeks Tax On Public Utilities

Toronto, March 6 (CP)—If city council approves taxation of public utilities, including Toronto Transportation Commission, Bell and waterworks, legislation will be sought, Controller Hiram E. Mageee, McBride said today. The controller said the city will require the approval of debentures issued this year for relief purposes.

Boston Earns Tie For Third Place With New York Rangers

(By The Canadian Press)

New York Americans, crippled today on the eve of the National Hockey League playoff divide and "feather" over the Montreal Canadiens and Montreal Canadiens will continue to do some tall loitering between now and March 15, when one will be left out in the cold.

Before a house crowd that found little to cheer about, Americans took a 4-1 beating last night from Detroit Red Wings, at least on the American section. This left Red Dunbar's team still in third place in the Canadian Section, one point ahead of Canadiens.

In the East the Flying Frenchmen with one more game to play than the New Yorkers, have the advantage with a chance to pass the Dutchmen. They can do this Saturday night in Toronto by beating the Maple Leafs.

Americans held the powerful Red Wings for one period, Art Chapman matching a goal by Herbie Lewis, but Larry Aurie gave the Wings ahead in the second frame on Lowrey plus Shad Amesbury and Harry Cook scored in the third.

In the other scheduled game last night Boston Bruins played a 2-2 tie at Chicago with the Black Hawks and pulled up into a third place tie in the American group with New York Rangers. The Bruins had four scoring chances but twice they broke through on Mike Karakas.

Football Clubs Change View on A Recent Edict

London, March 6 (CP)—When the English Football League decided two weeks ago to cancel existing fixtures and announce games weekly, a few hours before the time set for play, a rumpus was started that has all England and Wales by the ears.

Aimed at the abolition of football pool betting the league's action has thrown the spotlight on the various interests affected by pool operations. The pools have attained wide popularity but their elimination would not mean only that the public would be deprived of one form of amusement. Thousands of men and women are engaged by something like 200 pools, while the post office has derived immense revenue and finds it necessary to employ large extra staffs during the soccer season, that extends from August until the first week in May.

Delayed fixtures means a heavy loss to British railways. Special trains are run in connection with many league games and these arrangements are advertised well ahead. This feature of railway service is impossible unless schedules are known well in advance and railway officials are greatly perturbed over the turn of events.

Clubs Change Views

Sixty-five of the 88 clubs comprising the league voted for the cancellation of fixtures. But it appears many have changed their views and there seems little doubt their representatives will move along different lines at a special general meeting in Manchester next Monday when the whole question will again be taken up.

Startling attendance decreases were registered at practically all league games last Saturday and while poor weather may have had something to do with it, officials generally conceded the shuffling of fixtures was the main reason. At many grounds where 10,000 is the average crowd, there were no more than 3,000 people. If this continues some of the poorer clubs will find it very difficult to carry on.

The Football Association has carried the fight to the government. In a communication to Sir John Simon, Home Secretary, a few days ago it was urged legislation dealing with pool betting be put into effect by the government as speedily as possible.

SPEED SKATER ALL THROUGH

NEW YORK, March 6.—(AP)—Kit Klein of Buffalo yesterday returned from Europe, where she won the world's women's speed skating championship in amateur she had pitched her skates into the Atlantic and would never compete again.

Miss Klein returned aboard the Lurer Washington on which Miss Thomas Colgate, to whom Miss Klein was rumored to be engaged, also was a passenger. She refused to discuss the rumor.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

LOU MARSH

The newspaper world, the world of sport, and the reading public mourn the death of Lou Marsh, who had made himself representative of sports in a day when competition, games, and sport are essential to the balance of a people. So great had been his hold upon the public as an official of sport and as a writer that news of his passing could scarcely be believed. But Lou Marsh never did anything by halves, his life was one of intense activity, throbbing interest and his passing was in keeping with his life.

The world loves a fighting, dominant spirit, the fearless hard-hitting man, the man who is outspoken. Marsh was of that class. He always permitted the world to know where he stood and the world thanked him for his sincerity.

Advocate of organized sport, and an official, Lou Marsh was truly the exponent of the great outdoor life, to which the world of this age has taken.

Belleville had opportunities to see him, as a referee in hockey and also in his greatest love, yachting. He was here several times in the days of the yacht races off Massassaga and sailed because he was a sailor. His range of interest was extensive as it covered every field of sport, lacrosse, the race track, and so on.

Lou Marsh was a friend to reporters, to sportsmen and to the vast public at large. Strong in personality, Lou Marsh made his friends by the legion and thousands will find it difficult to visit Toronto without him.

further interscholastic hockey honours, the B.C.I. and V.S. senior pucksters left for the provincial interscholastic play-offs yesterday afternoon. Glebe Collegiate of Ottawa, London Central Tec, Hamilton and a team from Northern Ontario are district winners along with Lester Pearson Collegiate septette, incidentally the "Collegians" went to the intermediate finals last year at Kingston and unless the opposition is much stronger in tonight's opener, the B.C.I. should make a better showing in 1936. Coach Shiels has a better team of pucksters this year and we are expecting great things from them.

Local O.H.A. hockey fans were naturally quite disappointed when the defeat of the "Kodaks" threw scope of Belleville's first O. H. A. title were abruptly terminated, as the fans hoped for semi-final play. A full well realized was a tough proposition; that being the chances of the "Redmen" holding a slim margin of one goal over sturdy Lindsay. On the other hand, however, hockey has enjoyed a better than average season in Belleville. For Instance Eddie Thomas' charges made a creditable showing in the pre-season Kingston League, where some good hockey was played. Then the Red "Kodaks" played an O.H.A. series with the Oshawa Chevies and the Peterboro squads, all games providing splendid brand of hockey. Then the "Kodaks" clinched Napanee and Campbellford before being themselves rubbed out by the Whitby Red Wings in the third round of the O.H.A. play-offs, which gives us hockey from the middle of November until March 4th.

Whether it is true or not we cannot say, but street rumours in Oshawa are to the effect that Reference A. W. "Army" Armstrong, of Oshawa, was suspended from the O.H.A. list for not playing overtime, as the rules call for, during last Friday night's game in Belleville. As we say, the statement is only street talk, but was passed on to us Wednesday in Oshawa. If this rumor is true it is too bad, that Armstrong should suffer thus, as both team managers were quite willing to call it a day and stay, hostilities afraid.

The untimely death of Lou E. Marsh, Sports Editor of the Toronto Star, will be keenly felt by Howard "Dynamite" Wheeler, Belleville's energy little banjo-wielding scribe. Wheeler lost one of his best supporters in the late Lou Marsh, as Lou was very much in love with the local militeer and his ring style. It is doubtful if the passing of any Canadian sportsman ever attracted as much attention as did the sudden death of Lou Marsh. In Belleville the news of his death started time sportsmen reminiscing and Lou old days when Lou used to referee local hockey games were recalled. Lou Marsh was a fearless official and a good one. He played no favorites and called the plays as he saw them, regardless as to the consequences. Although Lou Marsh backed up his convictions courageously and left many friends behind him than he ever realized. "And they try to tell you there is no sentiment in sport, but we never would fall for that crack. No sentiment in sport—we have more than its share of sentiment and appreciation."

School leaders hold leads on the local sport horizon for Friday night as Albert College and St. Michael's college boys clash at Albert) while at the Armouries the two girls' squads meet the Trenton girls, while in the Memorial Arena the R.C.I.V.S. junior boys meet the Trenton juniors. In the senior series of the Bay of Quinte group in C.O.S.S.A., however the St. Mime-Albert game holds an interesting angle as it is the ultimate elimination for the group honours.

Elsewhere in today's issue is an interesting letter from His Honour, Judge Deroche, who is holidaying South of Florida. The letter is on horse shoe pitching.

Tickets for Saturday night's provincial semi-final basket ball game between the Deacon A.C. and the Collegiate Cagers are being sold rather rapidly. "The fans are beginning to warm up to basket ball here in Belleville and we expect a record crowd at the Collegiate for this big game on Saturday night," added Coach Art Cole today. The Deacons are in a splendid position to get places in the cage realm this year, as their toughest opposition of the season this year will be on hand in the "Limber" Bob Abate, coach of Elizabeth Park Boys' Club, Niagara Falls. The local Industrial loop has provided plenty of fun for the members of the six teams to compose the loop and was a successful project. It should be stronger next year. The play-off dates have been announced as yet, however.

BUFFALO BISONS COMING STRONG

Only Four Points Behind Syracuse Stars in Section

Buffalo Bisons, who always are in the top or close to it in the International Hockey League, were but four points out of the leadership of the Eastern Section today. They have a good chance of riding past Syracuse Stars for the extra money first place brings.

Stars had lost to Detroit Olympics last night, while Buffalo trounced Rochester Cardinals 3-0. It was a lustreless I.H.L. program with both games producing nothing out of the ordinary—a feature in these nights of riots and near-riots.

Syracuse, who have played one game more than Buffalo, started out slowly against Olympics. Mickey Blaiks gave them a 1-0 lead less than two minutes after the game opened. Johnny Sherf got it back a few minutes later and Stars never did get going again.

A penalty to Jack Still in the second period gave Olympics the seven men on the ice, paved the way for Modere Brunetson to score the winning goal. Olympics made it safe with a third-period counter. The victory left Olympics in fifth place in the van of the Western Section.

Cardinals had only two defencemen for the 60 minutes of the game with Buffalo, and they weakened after a one-man first period. Les Cunningham and Cliff Barton balled home goals in the second and George Mascaar scored again in the final period.

HOCKEY'S BIG SEVEN

(By The Canadian Press)

While five members of the N.H.L. Big Seven were in action last night, only two boosted their scoring totals. Art Chapman of New York Americans and Paul Thompson of Chicago Black Hawks each scored a pair, Chapman bringing his total to 3 6 and March to 31. Hooley Smith and Baldy Northcott of Montreal Maroons were idle.

MANITOBA RINK BEST IN SPIEL

Ken Watson Wins Curling Title in Great Final With N. B.

Toronto, March 6 (CP)—Ken Watson and his Winnipeg Strathcona rink today upon the pedestal of the curling mighty, successors to such celebrated Manitoba rinks as those skipped in other years by Gordon Hudson, Howard Wood, Rob Gourley, Jimmy Congalton and Leo Johnson. They won the Canadian title last night at the Macdonald's Brier Rouspiel by defeating New Brunswick 11-9 in a thrill-packed struggle that had one of the largest crowds ever to attend a curling match in Toronto cheering wildly at times.

The win over the Reg. Shirreff skipped Campbellton rink, considered the strongest eastern rink in the toilet, gave Manitoba its seventh victory since the Brier was inaugurated in 1927. Last year a Winnipeg rink skipped by Leo Johnson lost out to Gordon Campbell's Hamilton Thistles, representing Ontario, in a great final match.

The ninth round matches last night left Manitoba with eight wins and one defeat against seven wins and two defeats by their opponents. Alberta, Sir. finished the week's play with seven wins against two defeats and the teams will play an afternoon game today for the second-place position. Other provinces followed behind with British Columbia, entered in the splel for the first time, turning in nine crazy curling to finish with six wins and three losses. Ontario and Northern Ontario tied with five wins and four losses each while Saskatchewan, four and four, and Quebec, one was away down the list with two wins and seven losses, while Nova Scotia took one and lost eight. Prince Edward Island, other new entrant in the hoppity bonn, could not break into the win column and lost all nine matches.

Boxing Commission to Allow Bout to Go On

New York, March 6 (AP)—Regardless of all rumors, Primo Carnera, former heavyweight champion of the world, is slated to step 10 pounds into the ring at Madison Square Garden tonight for a 10-round bout with Tony Galento of Orba. He is expected to go in as favorite at 3 to 1 or better.

The New York State Athletic Commission deferred until today its decision concerning the ring-card connections between Louis Seven and Max Baer, Jimmy Braddock of Carnera and Gastenaga, respectively, for the questioning Bob Commission Chairman John Phelan declared yesterday he saw no reason why the bout should not go on.

"If something turns up at the last minute we always have the recourse of holding up the purses," he added.

MAGEDOMAS WIN ROUGH CONTEST

Even Count With Air Force Team by Winning 5-3

Brockville, Ont., March 6.—(CP)—In a rough battle Brockville Magedomas evened the count in the Ottawa Senior City Hockey League finals here last night, when they won the second game from Ottawa Royal Canadian Air Force 5-3. The third game of the best-three-out-of-five series will be played Saturday at Ottawa and the fourth contest here Monday.

Brockville's margin of two goals was disputed by the Ottawa team, which claimed that the goal by Kennedy did not enter the nets. The Ottawans also disputed Price's goal in the last period. Price shot from an angle as the Ottawa nets into which the puck bounced off Bergin's arm, Officials allowed both goals.

The teams battled on sticky ice affected by the mild weather of the past week. The first goal in the affair was handed out, 11 going to Price of Ottawa, recorded when three Brockville goals were counted.

Ottawa's first period flurry and defensemen proved a solid wall of his defence and every time he rushed, the crowd held its breath as at times he left Ottawa players sprawling in his wake. He figured in two of the goals.

O'Connor and Jokus Prominent in W

Ottawa, March 6 (CP)—Led by Buddy O'Connor, hard-working forward, Montreal Royals defeated Ottawa Senators 4-2 here last night and advanced to the final round in the best-of-five series of the Montreal Senior hockey group playoffs. It was the fourth game of the semi-final series between the teams, the Montrealers winning three and Senators one to capture the three-out-of-five game series.

More than 8,000 fans, the largest attendance this season, saw O'Connor give as masterful a display as ever witnessed here in amateur hockey as he tore goals and fours in the remaining two his teammates scored. He was best effective in centrefay as time and again he broke up Senator rushes at midice to lessen the pressure, while his team played shorthanded through penalties.

Pete Jokus was another big factor in the royal win. The big defenseman proved a solid wall on his defence and every time he rushed, the crowd held its breath as at times he left Ottawa players sprawling in his wake. He figured in two of the goals.

Dale Plays The Game

—BY—
Ann Forester

Upstairs in her own room, she threw herself face down on the bed and raged like a hurt child.

Brant wasn't coming! His hadn't even telephoned in her personality. They were right—those scandalous tongued women. Brant was indifferent. Fainting—deceiving—neglecting her, as the scorching winds had swept the desert and left its scars unheeded.

Then a frenzy of pride blazing through her. Well, did she want him if he didn't want her? Of course not! Of course not! She stormed within herself. She had spirit! She had pride! Short! Tell him that! Short! Say: "I won't hold you by the weight of one finger! You can quit if you want! It's for you to choose!"

She could picture the scene. Brant's eyes would darken at her words. His face would tighten as it did whenever he slumped down on himself. He would say in that quick, almost terse way of his: "You wish this?"

And she would say indifferently: "It is what you wish, apparently."

Then he would sweep her in his arms and his dark face would go ardent with passion and he'd say: "Ah, no—not that, Dale. Never that....."

So vivid was Dale's imagined scene that she gathered comfort from it. She was soothed. The strange revelry of the room stopped and she lay relaxed, wet lashes blistering on her cheeks, arms of tired stupor taking the place of peace in her mind.

But shortly was a closet without Brant. Pride and defiance were wiped out of her mind again. Nothing left but a gnawing pain, which left her feeling as if half alive. He might change his mind and come down. He might phone.

Twice Dale went to the telephone and turned away, without lifting the receiver. No, she couldn't call him. Some stubborn barrier in her own mind which would not give way before her chill unhappiness. She despised doormat women.....

To put temptation behind her, Dale went the walk in the woods. She was not surprised to see Phil appear at her side. She had left him near all day.

Dale turned on him shrilly, venting her own wrought up emotions upon him.

"Why do you do this—follow me like this! Can't you see—I can't stand it!"

Pale and wretched, one faced the other through the peaceful starlight. Phil's mouth was bitter; he was a man possessed.

"Good God, do you think I'm here because I wish it?" he burst out. "It's just that I can't get you out of my mind now. Something driving me back to you all the time. I don't know what to do.... I have a chance to go to Dallas—playing stock, I'm fixed—I have to do something. And I can't leave you....Dale I have to have you——"

"Oh, go away—please—please go away!"

Phil told Dale the name of a theatre. He said: "If there will reach me. You're going to need me, Dale. The hope is cracking about you."

"No! No!"

"Yes, you will. This thing is too big for you to swing, Dale. You can't believe in yourself. You're not made that way. You'll come back to me."

Dale tried to push Phil away, but he took her in his arms. He kissed her; and he went away, carrying a picture of a slim girl standing in the sun, the hem running from beneath her closed eyelids.

CHAPTER 61.

STARVED OUT

Early the next morning, Mimi stood in the hall looking through the mail which a servant had just brought up from the village. She wore a green chiffon negligee, and, so motionless she stood, she might have been a figurine of Nile. A figurine which represented, say—Jealousy.

Jealousy in the taut line of Mimi's mouth at the moment. Jealousy smoldering in the hard dark eye.

And in her heart blazing jealousy which was licking her, with fierce, cruel tongues of flame as she looked down at the letter in her hand—an envelope addressed to Dale, in Brant's writing.

Under Mimi's hard exterior that jealousy had been burning for months. In fact, ever since Brant had come back—a new Brant, handsome, steely, maddeningly indifferent to her—to whom Mimi's presence was always an affront.

Perhaps it was merely because Brant belonged to another woman; perhaps it was that law of compensation which bars a strange way of living even with those who are too ruthless with others' lives. Whatever the cause, by now, Mimi was deeply, wretchedly in love with Brant. And her hatred and resentment of Dale had grown in proportion. With the queer twisted reasoning of a jealous woman Mimi had even worked herself to the point of considering the girl an interloper who had had claim to Mimi's own property.

Dale—white and golden—the antithesis of Mimi's dusky beauty.....Mimi hated her with a despairing, vindictive hatred.

Now she turned the letter over and over in her hands—small white hands with pink glistening nails. She wondered what was in the letter.....

Dangerous to wonder about a letter addressed to another. Soon the mind begins prying.....soon a shining gold nail is slipped under the flap—and one begins to think how easy it would be to open it and satisfy the gnawing curiosity.....

Footsteps on the porch! Someone coming in the hall! Mimi slipped the letter up the long flowing sleeve of the green robe. Whoever came into the hall saw only Mimi's arms back as she went up the stairs to her own room.... But Mimi's heart was pounding; there was a gleam of frightened triumph in her eyes.....

The week was endless to Dale; watching each day for a letter which never came.

She wrote a long letter to Brant. Pathetic—wistful. It was revealing her own wounded heart. Then, in a moment of wrathful pride, she tore it up. She wrote a storming letter, bitterly upbraiding him. She offered him his freedom. She wouldn't put up with this humiliation longer! She tore up that letter as well. Tore it up and walked the floor feeling forlorn. Did Brant no longer love her? Was he waiting silently, forcing her to make a move? Forever to leave him?

The thought stabbed like a knife. No! That wasn't Brant's way! Perhaps he was forlorn, and bewildered too. They had drifted so far apart in the last few months. Whose fault was it? Did it matter whose fault it was?

Suppose she went to him, eyes meeting eyes squarely, and asked him what was the matter.

Suppose she did—and discovered that he no longer loved her.....

Dale was suddenly distraught. Alone.....to be alone again..... The dreariness! The ache of being forlorn! Such intensity of feeling swept over her that she began to tremble. The room reeled in blackness.

She clung to the dresser until the nausea passed. Here—calm down! She mustn't let herself go like this!

Swiftly Dale made a resolution. She would go up to the city to Brant's office. Face to face they would talk this thing out!

Calm came with action. Dale dressed with shaking fingers. If she hurried she could catch the afternoon train at the village. Mrs. Kendall and Mimi were out. So was Nance. There need be no explanations. In the singing quiet of mid-afternoon Dale reached the village, little ringlets of damp gold plastered to her forehead by the heat.

Sitting in the train starting out at the country slipping by, while her thoughts churned heavily in time to the wheels. A measure of self-possession came to Dale so that she was collected—smiling even, when she talked into Brant's office. She smiled, even when the astonished secretary told her that Brant was away—but it was a strange, set smile.

But Mr. Kendall wasn't back from his business trip to Canada! Surely Mrs. Kendall hadn't expected him so soon.....

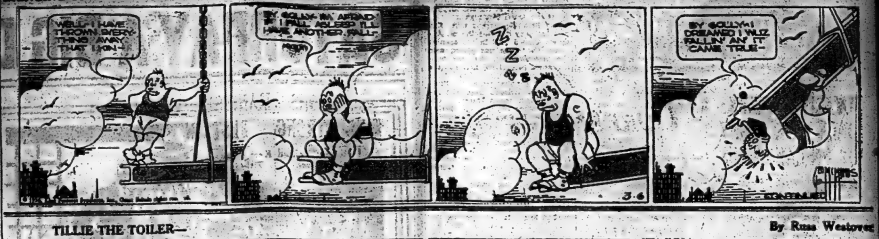
Dale moved her stiff lips. She managed a little deprecatory laugh. Of course—how absurd of her.... she was growing so absent minded. Dale felt the curious gaze of the girl follow her from the office.

She went abruptly into a tea room. Not because she wanted tea but because her legs felt so queer and that odd fluttering had started again in her heart.

Brant had gone away, without a word to her.....What was wrong. Dale wondered desperately, pressing her hands together hard under the table to keep from crying. Or did there have to be anything specific? If a man tired of a woman, he just tired of her, didn't he? Nothing wrong with either one.... human nature had grew tired, that was all.....

But Brant.....Brant! Oh, that sort of thing didn't happen to people like them! They had been through so much together—the long blistering days in the desert..... the time Dale had been so cruelly sunburned—Brant had been tender with her then. And he had fought Steve Kemp for her....Oh separations—divorces—didn't happen between people who had been through all that!

Then, crowding into her mind, all the stories she had ever heard of couples who had separated after a lifetime or time.....it was breaking one's heart in two.....



Miserable pride treading on the heels of this. She didn't want any man who didn't want her! She would tell Brant Kendall that very thing! Just how could she tell him until he came back.....Humiliating.....but she would have to return home to Pinedrum. She had no money—no friends. Nothing to do but go back and wait until Brant chose to return.

Tossed from one mood to the other Dale sat staring out the window until unseeing eyes, on her way back to the lake. After a while thought was exhausted and she sat vacantly looking into a steel blue twilight. Not suffering now—a breathless searching her heart, listlessly enduring. Nothing making any particularly but to get to bed. To close her eyes and feel the night, cool and black press upon her.

Mrs. Kendall was entertaining friends when Dale reached the house. She did not see her daughter-in-law go upstairs. But Mimi did..... And Mimi knew what Dale had been, with the clairvoyance of a jealous woman.

K-Y LEAGUE

Although it took them one period of overtime to win, the Nationals won the Sunday night game in the local K-Y league last evening at the arena when they downed the Maple Leafs by the score of 5 to4 in a torrid struggle. The game developed into a mad skating match and saw plenty of good hockey throughout, the players turning in a surprisingly good account of their efforts.

No score was registered in the first period, while in the second session both teams notched a counter and during the next 20 minutes with the team were held scoreless but in the first period of overtime the Nationals secured the "million dollar" goal, that gave them the Ranken K-Y hockey championship of Belleville.

The lineups:

Nationals: McIntyre, Holway, Lyall, Smith, Jones, K. Diamond, Hall, Mosson, Evans and J. Diamond.

Maple Leafs: Dell, Pringhton, Catron, Meagher, Rogers, Joyce and Keane.

Referee, Joe Fidwell.

Scoring one goal each period the Y.M.C.A. "Acorns" won the Queen Mary School "Wild Cats" by the score of 3 to 2 in the first of a two game series play-off in the Midget section of the K-Y League, the game preceding the hantam tussle at the arena. The Wild Cats boast of but with the "Acorns" for the first two periods, as the score stood two-all at the final stanza when the Acorns have the Y.M.C.A. squad get the odd goal that gives them a one goal lead to take into the second game of the finals in the Midget series.

The lineups:

Wild Cats: Bryant, Reed, Row, Hibbard, Gordon, Mellor, Hall, Ramsay, Sword, Langsbeer and D. Reed.

Y.M.C.A. Acorn: Clarke Jones, McBride, Illsley, Moorcrist, Clare, Bradley, Catton and Sellen.

Referees: Fidwell and Pointer.

In the Juvenile series the Y.M. C.A. sextette defeated the Black Rovins 3 to 1.

Letters to the Sports Editor

Palm Beach, Fla.

Sport Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer,
Belleville, Ont.

Dear Sir,—I wish Jack Lafferty and his horse shoe men had been with me at Lantana Park yesterday. A man named Hicks from Cleveland who handled the world's horse shoe championship for five years gave a demonstration.

First he took four shoes and pitched them up and down several times and everyone carefully noted making a ringer. The casual manner in which he successfully completed his throws as he seemed to take no aim, no care and speedily tossed shoe after shoe as he picked them up, proved quite interesting.

Hicks then asked for an opponent from the crowd. The gathering called for a young man named Johnson, a local collegiate student, who is recognized as one of the best horse shoe pitchers in Florida. During the contest Johnson only made three points, while Hicks ran up fifty.

Some of the stunts successfully tried by Mr. Hicks later were—

1.—A man stood with one foot on top of the peg while Hicks pitched four ringers.

2.—The man stood immediately over the peg straddling it with feet spread apart while Hicks pitched four ringers.

3.—This was repeated with the man's back turned to Hicks.

4.—A man used a movable skate and had it in the ground at four different places for the four shoes, changing it three or four feet in different directions—three ringers.

5.—Hicks threw first shoe from the usual place, then moved forward three feet for each of the other shoes—all ringers.

6.—He stood in usual place but threw the shoes each at a different peg on four different courts, three courts of course—three ringers.

7.—Pitched shoes on regular court, but one with a three-quarter turn, one with a one and one-quarter turn, one with one and three-quarter turn and one with two and one-quarter turn—all ringers.

8.—A man got down and put his chin on top of the peg or stake and Hicks pitched four ringers under his chin.

9.—Four men held a blanket a few feet in front of the peg, touching the ground so Hicks could not see under it and held it high enough so he could not pitch over the top of it and he pitched three ringers.

10.—The blanket again is in the same position with a fifth man standing straddle of the peg and two other men a little distance from the blanket towards Hicks facing each other and holding each other's hands forming a circle between the arms. Hicks pitched through the circle, over the blanket, the shoe landing between the feet of the straddler and made all four ringers.

Some horseshoe pitching!

Kidney Acids Rob Your Rest

Most people never seem to get a good night's rest. They toss and toss—lie awake for hours—and often they blame it on their nerves. Often they blame it on other things. It may be their kidneys. Nature intended the kidneys to purify the blood. If they don't function properly and poisons remain in the blood, they may cause backache, headaches and dizziness. 4 TEAMS GAIN PLAYOFF BERTHS

Belleville-Sargent, St. Andrew's, Bankers and Y's Men in Final Series

Belleville Sargent, St. Andrew's, the Bankers and the Y's Men's Club gained coveteus play-off positions in the local Basketball Hockey League Saturday, the final schedule of games of the season, played at the Arena last night.

The Belleville Sargent won first places as they defeated the St. Andrew's Club 4 to 3 in the opening game. The game was played with the understanding that the winner would be declared first and the loser second, as these two teams were tied for first place in Trenton last Wilson's loss. The remaining four teams battled it out for the other two play-off berths with the Bankers being awarded third place after their 5-1 victory over the Corby's aggregation, while the Y's Men staged a comeback to pass out Corbies to the tune of 7 to 1, thereby giving the "service club kids" the remaining fourth place play-off berth.

In the opening game of the night's triple header played on a fast ice at the Arena, the Belleville Sargent got an early game lead to coast in to a 3 to 2 victory over St. Andrew's Club. Jimmie McGinn and Simpson scored twice, while Samuels bagged the other local for the "Tech-makers". High and Cryr scored for the "Scotchmen." In the second game Morgan and Hughes scored two and Ann one for the Bankers as Sutherland bagged Corby's lone counter. In the night-cap affair an even dozen goals were scored as the Y's Men won 7 to 5 over Corbies. The Y's' Day with three, Don Dalley two, Alec Weir and Norm Savage flashed the red light for the winners as Chuck Smith agged two for Corbies as did Scriven with Deacon Hoyt getting the odd goal for the losers. Dates for the league play-offs will be announced early next week.

The Rosups:

First Game—Belleville - Sargent (3)—Goal, Darvell; defence, Burnett and Samuels; centre, J. McGuire; wings, Bushell and Anderson; subs, Simpson, Fred McDuhr, Grant, Robinson and MacDonald. St. Andrew's Club (2)—Goal, Cray; defence, Fisher and Miller; centre, Wright; wings, Cray and Elvins; subs, McCreary, Steele and Baird.

Second Game—Bankers (5)—Goal, Hinton; defence, Riggs and Knott; centre, Morgan; wings, Ann and Cooper; subs, Hughes and O'Neil. Corby's (1)—Goal, Church-ill; defence, Kiser and Simpson; centre, Latchford; wings, Heechman and Sutherland, subs, Forster and Reid.

Third Game—Y's Men (7)—Goal, Stewart; defence, Mayhew and Day; centre, Barriage; wings, Grant and McEnma; subs, Weir, Knott, Barker, Miller and Armstrong.

Referee for the night—Henry Canning, Belleville.

DEACONS READY FOR CAGE GAME

Red Streaks of Hardwood Gridiron Will be Tough to Take

With the finest opportunity ever offered a local team to step into a Canadian championship the Deacon Juvenilles basketball squad will literally "train" to-day for the game against Toronto's famous red and white, of the hardwood gridiron, the "Lambs" Juvenile entry. The Toronto team will be in this city tomorrow night for the opening game of the series with the Deacon lassies, the Collegiate gymnasium and local followers of the bounce ball. The ladies game should make this affair the most interesting of the two remaining colorits in Ontario championship.

Provided the locals get by Toronto, they will meet the winners of the Ottawa Valley-Peterboro play-downs in two games, both of which would be played in this city. If they can overcome this second obstacle, the Belleville youngsters would be called upon to journey to the Maritimes to meet the remaining team in the Canadian title hunt. Hampered by lack of adequate opposition throughout the season, the Deacons are nevertheless of the peak of their form for the important game tomorrow night and anxious to wipe out the stigma of the defeat handed out to the Deacon Juniors last year by the Windsor "Flames" junior squad.

Although they may be handicapped by the loss of Ros Collins, "Hoy" Muir and John Ronsky for the game tomorrow night, Belleville team has several capable substitutes to throw into the game, and the fans will see a smart passing, fighting team in action as the Deacons go through their paces. The probable starting lineup for the locals will find Ralph McCabe in centre, Art Cole at centre; Cord Edwards taking over from Ab Fortcher at forward and Jack Dickens following in the footsteps of Frank Martin at guard. Geo Kilns and Muir or Peoples will take care of the defensive duties, which last two were handled by George Ostrom and Countryman. On the bench, the Deacons will have Manny Mitchell, George Mason, Murray Clare and Ros Collins.

'SOLUTION' SAYS HITLER

Non-Aggression Pact on East Frontier Suggested by Germany

POLISH CORRIDOR

Swift Action by Germany Comes as Great Surprise to Paris

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

Berlin, Mar. 7 (AP)—Adolf Hitler disclosed the shocking today and ordered new elections so that the German people might express their opinion of his foreign policy.

The Reichstag dissolution was made effective March 29, with the new election called for March 29.

Berlin, Mar. 7 (AP)—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler maintained in the diplomatic notes he presented today an unexpected solution of the occupation of the Rhineland "solution" which he said would "bring about a new era and a better world were sovereign" have reached their aim of humanity."

Der Fuehrer acknowledged the Wilson thesis of "an endeavour to give new laws governing the relations of peoples toward each other and to fill them with a new spirit from which an institution might arise that, as a league of all nations, might be destined to bring peoples nearer to each other in mutual regard and understanding."

"No people feel for the magic power of the fantasy more than the German," he declared.

Lasting Peace

Hitler asserted "that the entire world fall into this period of lasting tension and continued crisis must be described as a failure, and that a peace with which the problems of the nations were treated both individually and among each other."

Then followed Der Fuehrer's repudiation of the provisions of the Treaty of Versailles—the treaty which ended the Great War, and the military clauses of which, he had already declared, left his nation no opportunity of rearmament of Germany.

He declared Versailles was a classical example of how a war should not be ended.

The League of Nations covenant, he contended, became worthless unless it tied up with the Versailles treaty, which he said divided the world into victors and vanquished.

Worst of all is the spirit of hatred inherent in this treaty which took possession of the general mentality of peoples," he said.

Hitler drew a gloomy picture of world conditions today.

"Wherever we look, we experience a flare-up of domestic and foreign conflicts," he asserted.

"No year passes in which somewhere upon this earth there has not been an endless war of weapons instead of a ringing of peace bells. Who can wonder if from such tragic disappointment, the confidence of the nations in the justice of the order of things was shaken and seems to fall in so catastrophic a manner?"

Vivid Picture Drawn

Der Fuehrer drew a vivid picture of religious, economic, human and political revolutions which he said had ensued since 1918, referring especially to the Russian revolution.

"We are not to be blamed for this development because it was not within our power to turn to give the world ideals or even laws of life after our terrible breakdown and at the end of the bloodiest of all conflicts of mankind," he said.

Hitler declared the treatment of Germany by other nations as "roaring folly." Hitler said it was quite clear that without a marked change in mentality there never could be real peace in the world.

"There are politicians who seem to feel, secure only when their neighbors are badly off; the worse off the better," he declared.

Citing the German (Polish corridor' as an example, Hitler asserted:

Unreasonable to Deny Access

"I wish the German people would understand that although it affects me painfully that an access to the sea for a nation (Poland) should cut through German territory, it is unreasonable to deny such a great nation that access."

"Europe after all is a family of nations and it cannot be imagined as closed off."

Any attempt to solve European problems otherwise than with calm reason and with the problems of the nations were treated both individually and among each other."

Then followed Der Fuehrer's repudiation of the provisions of the Treaty of Versailles—the treaty which ended the Great War, and the military clauses of which, he had already declared, left his nation no opportunity of rearmament of Germany.

67 Million in Germany.

"The German question consists in something quite different," he declared.

"On very limited, not overwhere fertile soil, some 67,000,000 people are living. That is about 136 per square kilometer.

"These people are no less industrious than other European peoples, but they are also no less desirous of the good things of life.

"They are no less intelligent but they are also no more cowardly and under no circumstances are they less honorable than members of other European peoples.

Hitler contended that indecent elements no longer were within Germany living illegally as emigrants with some international backing.

Hitler said, "The German question consisted in fact that this people even in 1933, was supposed to still stand for inferiority of rights because of a debt which, it occurred, which for the honor-loving people was unbearable, for the industrial people insufferable, for the intelligent people a cause for indignation.

Sense of Equality Sought By Germany Says Hitler

Berlin, March 7 (CP)—Adolf Hitler, before the Reichstag in the monumental opera house today declared that Germany's signature to the Locarno treaty of 1925 was given "under the impression of peoples toward each other and to fill them with a new spirit from which an institution might arise that, as a league of all nations, might be destined to bring peoples nearer to each other in mutual regard and understanding."

"No people feel for the magic power of the fantasy more than the German," he declared.

Army Leaves Cancelled By French Government

Paris, Mar. 7 (CP)—The French government cancelled all army leaves today as German troops moved into the Rhineland.

The military decision resulted from a conference of high officials which also started drafting a German protest to the League of Nations against Germany's denunciation of the Locarno Treaty.

The note was being supervised by Pierre-Etienne Flandin, Foreign Minister, at the same time that Premier Albert Sarraut called the French "war council" into session.

Anthony Eden Confers With Colleagues And Baldwin

Paris, Mar. 7 (CP)—The French government will submit Germany's denunciation of the Locarno Treaty to the judgment of the League of Nations Council on Tuesday.

The right of a German signatory to denounce the pact unilaterally will be provided in the law of the League.

Meantime all leaves in the French army will probably be cancelled tonight, it was reported.

Rome, Mar. 7 (AP)—Italy probably will not put into effect her pending sanctions, the Locarno Pact, informed Italian sources said today, after Premier Mussolini was informed of Adolf Hitler's decision to violate the instrument of peace.

France Suspicious

Hitler's declaration of remilitarization of the Rhineland was received in Rome with tremendous interest, but with real surprise.

The German government informed Italy of the decision before any other foreign power.

It had been planned to have the announcement made by the German ambassador in Rome, Ulrich von Hassell, simultaneously with Hitler's announcement in Berlin.

An early Italian cabinet meeting, however, made this impossible. Von Hassell and Ambassador von Hassell called on Mussolini in the early afternoon and laid Hitler's decision before him.

British Conference.

London, Mar. 7 (AP)—Adolf Hitler's bombshell announcement of occupation of the Rhineland in violation of the Locarno Treaty of 1925, started the British foreign office today and precipitated a swift series of conferences.

The telephone line to Berlin was completed with an urgent government call, while Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden conferred with his colleagues and Stanley Baldwin, the Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin.

Dr. Leopold von Hoesch, German Ambassador to London, went to Foreign Secretary Eden to present Hitler's memorandum after holding a staff conference at the German embassy.

Prime Minister Baldwin was at his country residence, Chequers, and 19 was uncertain whether he would come to London or whether Eden would go to see him.

THORNY OUTLOOK FACES GERMANY

Raw Materials, Political Questions, Colonies Are Issues

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

Berlin, Mar. 7 (AP)—The high pressure of German diplomatic activity indicates today that Adolf Hitler's government is endeavoring to bring the Rhineland affair to a dramatic isolation.

A thorny path lies ahead for Germany in her international relations both for the immediate and the more distant future. The principal problems are:

1. Preventing the throttling of East Prussia;
2. Obtaining raw materials;
3. Warding off Germany, including the Rhineland, on a military basis.

The more distant problems are:

1. Bringing about peace of German blood under the sway of the Nationalist Socialist view of life;
2. Obtaining a "place in the sun" for the Fatherland.

East Prussian Problem.

The problem of East Prussia has suddenly become a question of the most immediate, after a period of some two years of German-Polish friendship which people of German blood under the sway of the Nationalist Socialist view of life;

'BLACKIE' IS FOUND NEAR IVANHOE

"Blackie", a fine black-coated terrier was recovered on Friday evening by his owner, Mr. A. H. Ketcheson, 198 Dufferin Avenue, after being away since last Saturday.

The dog did not return to the house and after a good deal of searching, Mr. Ketcheson placed a "Lost" ad in the Ontario Intelligencer.

On Friday he received a phone call from Mr. Grant Coulter, storekeeper at Cronkhite, saying that he had seen a dog answering the description in the ad. Mr. Coulter went to the same spot. He gave the address of the man, who had the dog, which was at Ivanhoe.

Last evening Mr. Ketcheson motored to Ivanhoe and recovered the pet. It turned out, however, that the Ivanhoe man had purchased the dog from a Crookston resident for five dollars. He said the dog was a nice months' old New-foundland. With the five dollars Mr. Crookston man purchased groceries in Mr. Coulter's store and later when he (Mr. Coulter) was passing the paper he saw the "Lost" ad. He phoned and putting two and two together immediately phoned the owner.

It pays to advertise!

Treasurer Fleming the initiative being taken by the Belleville police in pioneering the police radio. Inspector Grant assures the local police radio department that the efficiency with which observed throughout Ontario and congratulate Belleville upon its efficiency, city officials and councillors in general were also high in their compliments-tary and favourable remarks upon the competent reception and broadcast.

Built by Sergt. Heath

The police radio in Belleville was the result of untiring activity on the part of Sergeant Arthur Heath, who personally built the transmitting set, successfully used last night. The transmitter operates on a wave length of 1,550 cycles or 177.6 meters with 110 volts of 60 cycles. The call letters in the Government license for Belleville police work are registered CJRB. The radio receiving set recently installed in the police car was supplied by Messrs. Sherwood Electric Company and the reception throughout the city last night was perfect. Those present when commenting upon the apparatus last night, complimented Sergeant Heath in straightening out the installation after the machine had been built in detail by Sergeant Heath. Eddie Corcoran, another local amateur radio expert also assisted in its erection, but the kigs and pioneer construction is due to the endeavours of Sergeant Heath.

Following the official opening of radio station CJR last night, the first official call to be broadcast was a message to Mrs. Living east of Belleville, to be on the lookout for a missing cow. Mr. Lindsay, that lives Miller for Kingston early last evening, but the cow has not been found. Operation at 10.00 p.m. The successful operation of the police radio station was successfully demonstrated previous to the official broadcast when a motor car theft and an arrest was completed, after a message had been sent out by Sergeant Heath.

Call Brings Arrest

According to information from the police the first arrest resulting from the police radio broadcast was on Tuesday night. P. C. Arnott was on investigation duty in the vicinity of Wess Belleville, when a call came to the police station that a car with what a night prowler was in the vicinity of the former residence of Mr. Frank Hilton. Sergeant Heath immediately went on the air, informed P. C. Arnott that the car proceed to the nurses' home, where he finally arrested a man. The night him to the police station. The arrest was made in the Bridge Motorcycle Patrolman riding in Belleville fully intend to equip their motorcycles with radios while police departments from Brockville to Cobourg had assured him that they will install short wave radio receiving sets in their police stations in an effort to co-operate with the Belleville police radio station at Belleville.

Pioneer in Field

The success enjoyed by Sergeant Heath's short wave police radio last night doubtlessly will pioneer police short wave radio broadcasting stations in the Dominion.

The successful success of the local police radio has established absorbtly before noon today, when a citizen from Port Hope telephoned to the police station to inform Chief Kidd he had picked up the broadcast and that the reception was excellent, the quality of voice being clear throughout the entire broadcast. The tuning on the radio receiving sets for high frequency reception is very sensitive and it takes considerable time manipulation of the dial to tune in on a station operating exactly on 1690 kilocycles, as is the Belleville station.

CONSISTENT RISE IN ALL PRICES

Open roads, warmer weather and bright sunshine marked the opening of last spring Saturday morning market today attended by both buyers and sellers in larger numbers than for the past several weeks. The market today was also featured by a consistent rise in nearly all lines, noticeable especially in the dairy produce section.

Eggs reached the season's top price today, selling at from 33 to 35 cents for large, 30 cents for mediums and from 28 to 30 for pullets. Fewer offerings of this commodity were noted. "Prices are high because buyers are paying higher prices the tag of the cold storage eggs are reported gone," enlightened one vendor. "Then again farmers, are keeping them for hatching purposes which thirty-five dozen that I have myself to put in the incubator next week. It is just possible that they will go higher before they come down. Fly Lent, too, and more people are selling them."

Butter remained firm at 30 cents per pound as a rule, although in the odd case two-pound rolls could be secured by the thrifty shopper at 55 cents for the two-pound roll. Fowl was offered in small quantity, with prices ranging from features in this section. Smaller pairs of this fowl were being offered at from 75 cents to $1.50 per pair, with lone birds selling at from 50 to 75 according to weight.

Vegetables Hold Firm

On the outside market vegetables held their own, although the supply was light. Cabbage still ruled and firm ranged from five to 10 cents the head, carrots, turnips and parsnips were at 20 cents the peck and parsnips at 10 cents the bag. Potatoes and beef sold by the out-side vendors was slightly lower, with pork being quoted at 13 1-2 cents per pound by the hundred-weight and 14 1-2 cents by the quarter. Beef was 6 and 8 cents by the quarter.

Poultry were decidedly scarce, with a few bags offered, ranging from $1.25 to $1.50 per pair. Ducks brought $2.

Fresh caught fish from local waters made their appearance in very limited quantities, although the fish-ing this season mudcats, ready for the frying pan were snapped up eagerly by the early purchasers. Skinned, were being held at 30 and 35 cents the pound, and fresh herring and mullets at two for 25 cents.

In the livestock section little life was found except in the case of a flat price of $6 each.

There was no change in grain prices.

SENSE EQUALITY AIM OF GERMANY

consists in an endeavor by a system of senseless action, measures and unbelievable methods to make more difficult a struggle for existence which was to itself already difficult enough.

Pleading for Germany to have a "place in the sun" Hitler said: "We are not asking for colonies, we are demanding equality."

The German people need no special aid for maintaining their life. They merely wish to have the same favorable chances than those afforded other nations.

Herein lies the one German question.

To master this question, he declared, Germany must possess a feeling of political equality, and with that one of political security.

"This fight for German equality which I have conducted for three years is not a raising of a European question, but it is a solution of a German question."

He said he regarded it as a tragic misfortune that the French people believed it to be to their interests to adhere firmly to the provisions of Versailles.

The restitution of Germany's power, Hitler said, was especially difficult because Germany's neighbors had become so used to her impotency.

"I shall be able to demand of history acknowledgment that at no hour of my activity on behalf of the German people, in the fulfilment of duties I and all of us have toward serving European culture and civilization, have I failed."

Duty of Patriotism

Hitler declared the duty of patriotism of the population of Germany with those of other nations, especially those who castigated those whom he believed to be happy over every misfortune that befell the German people.

He maintained that if Germany did not succeed in establishing a so-called German question would acquire a character which other nations would have reason to fear.

Concerning the method by which Germany set her own house in order, Hitler said the foundation was no concern of other nations.

"I have tried to solve the question of the Reich," he said, "on a single theory within the interior of Germany, namely, that of higher common sense." Hitler declared.

"Higher Common Sense"

"Herein I had to succeed. Why shouldn't it be possible to fit the conditions of life of 65,000,000 Germans between nations and states with the powers of reasonableness and passion and more them under the quieter light of higher reasonableness?

Replying to international critics who found fault with Germany's refusal to co-operate with soviet Russia, Hitler declared:

"I do not decline co-operation with Russia, but with the Bolshevist theory that is to say, with the world."

"I do not want the horrors of Communistic international dictatorship to descend upon the German people."

Hatred of Russia Reason

"The hatred of the Reich of the Bolshevist international world supremacy is the reason why I am one of the greatest enemies is nearly a great honor for me and justifies pride that I am considered by them as an enemy of the nations."

Hitler warned other statesmen not to have any truck with the Bolshevism.

Hitler said that Europe could be divided into halves—one consisting of independent national states, and the other those dominated by the Soviet dictators.

"The most tragic tragedy inherent in the fact that as a conclusion to our sincere efforts for peace many people have lost the confidence, the loyalty and affection of the French people. Whether these losses can ever be concluded whose beginnings we have not provoked whose end, however, will be attended by unpredictable consequences unless indeed reason once again gains the upper hand. May God grant it. He is merciful than men deserve." Hitler declared.

Efforts of Three Years

He reviewed his efforts of the last three years to prepare the ground-work for Franco-German rapprochement. He said he had never once made any concrete offers.

He also pointed out sincerely to have German armaments limited to 200,000 men, and later to 300,000.

He also turned to other European statement, he asserted, on which he based his policy, namely, the proposal for establishing a lasting relation between the German and French people.

"I have endeavored to inculcate in the youth appreciation of the work of Frenchmen, and I believe I have succeeded in this without success.

Saar Plebiscite Arming

He said Germany observed provisions of the Locarno Pact, which provided for arming her side of the frontier heavily.

Concerning the Saar, of this pact was the arrangements which France had kept entirely secret, Hitler declared he had already signed and whose ratification by the chamber has just passed, he said.

Hitler observed that France had concluded treaties of mutual assistance with Czechoslovakia and Poland, even before the Locarno Pact, and therefore could did not object to these because they were subordinated to the League of Nations.

France-Soviet Pact Attacked

The Franco-Soviet pact was different, he contended, because Russia was an organized exponent of revolutionary ideas.

He said that as a possibility existed that France might some day, because of internal disorder, Germany must obtain a guaranty that any such would "not be founded on hopes."

Hitler said he had warned Europe for years against Russia's aggressive methods, but that he had met always failed to deaf ears.

Now, however, he said, formed French Soviet Pact Menaced. Hence should be thanked for having used the whole power of Germany to oppose defense on ratification of the Franco-Soviet pact. "I have always the Russian war machine was ready."

The Russian army has a peace strength of 1,300,000 men, he said, comprises 17,000,000 war strength in reserve, it is equipped with the most modern weapons in the world and has the greatest air force, Hitler declared.

Hitler declared that this gigantic army, if brought into Europe, would upset completely the European balance of power.

Hitler charged that his recent interview with Bertrand de Jouvenel, French journalist, in which he appealed for French friendship, had been withheld until the day after the ratification of the pact by the French Chamber of Deputies.

He continued dramatically:

"In this historic hour, when all western provinces our Reich Germany looks upon the solemn moment, we say into their future garrisons of peace, we all unite in two holy oaths.

"First, in a solemn oath to recede before no sacrifice and no effort in establishing the honor of our peoples and the Reich, through honorably to the heaviest privation, whatever may ever capitulate before it.

"Second, with the determination now more than ever to help bring about understanding between people of Europe, especially known our western peoples and neighbors.

"Thus, Hitler came from, I believe I can consider with today the fight for German equality as concluded."

GENERATIONAL SPY CHARGES SYMS. WASHINGTON — While a United States federal grand jury in Los Angeles investigated what is declared to be the most astounding spy plot since world war days, Harry Thomas Thompson, (above) and Willard Turmine (LEFT) are in jail on a charge of illegally wearing the uniform of the United States army. Thompson was said to be the former sailor discharged in 1930 for asserted insubordination. He also was named a former room-mate of Turmine, who was questioned by the jury as to charges he secretly holds "key information" on the plot in which knowledge of the signals of the war games of the Pacific and Atlantic fleets in 1934 was allegedly sold to a rival naval power in the Pacific, giving the rival power 60 days advance information anent the docks.

The Poles claim that Germany's failure to pay is tantamount to the Reich's forcing a loan from Poland, but the Germans claim that Poland's refusal to pay is a violation of the Locarno pact.

Also, because of need for Baltic ports, German foreign diplomacy is working towards severing relations with Lithuania, which holds many of these ports, and with Soviet Russia.

Another pressing immediate problem for Germany is that of finding new markets for her goods, since Germany took in March of last year, under the "most favored nation" clauses of the Treaty of Versailles and void.

Also, Nazi propaganda has been preparing the way, announcing that the French Franco-Soviet pact violated the Treaty of Locarno, and that therefore the Reich has the right to denounce it and build garrisons in the Rhineland.

MADOC EARNS 3 GOAL LEAD

Defeats Tweed 4-1 in First Game, Winner to Meet Stirling

Madoc, March 7 — (Special)—The Madoc intermediates are climbing heatedly to third position in the Central League by winning five straight league games, including two wins over Stirling, the league leaders. They won a home and home to Tweed as a result of a 4-1 win over the second players, in the first of the series, which was played in Madoc Thursday night. The second game was played in Tweed on Friday night.

The game was fast and clean, Referee Ross Burtt of Trenton, keeping the bad men in the penalty box. The locals were without Jack Madoc having the advantage in defensive tactics, but the Tweed forwards turned in an exceptional game. The clever passing of Shorty Somerset was too much for Tweed and Goalie Thompson of the visitors had a hard time keeping out the fast beat him.

Shorty Embury, Alexander-Keller and Shaw turned in fine performances while West was exceptionally good on defence. For Tweed Thompson, Maguire and Fryer were the outstanding players.

Summary

Referee, F. Smith, F. Embury, subs.

Summary

1st period—

1—Madoc, Alexander (Embury), 2.30.

2—Madoc—Keller (Alex), 4.00.

Penalties—Tweed—Shannon, (Maguire); Madoc—West, (Whytock).

2nd period—Keller (Alexander),

MRS. J. F. DOLAN DIES IN KITCHENET

Taken Ill While Preparing Meal While Visiting With Friends

The death of Mrs. Annie Agnes Dolan which occurred in St. Mary's Memorial Hospital at 4.30 o'clock today morning, had brought deep feelings of sorrow and regret to many friends and acquaintances in Belleville.

Mrs. Dolan, nee MacO'Grady, Mrs. Dolan went to Kitchener to visit Mr. and Mrs. Jas. McCollum, former residents of Belleville, and while preparing the noon hour festival she was taken ill and pneumonia, developed which eventually resulted in her death.

The late Mrs. Dolan was the wife of the late J. F. Dolan, who was a prominent and leading member of Belleville in this city for many years and who died in the year 1918. She was born in Picton, her maiden name being Annie Agnes O'Hagan, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John O'Hagan. In the year 1894 she was married to Mr. Dolan and came to Belleville to make her home.

Mrs. Dolan possessed a pleasing personality and was a lady of rare character, as a consequence of which she attended many friends during her residence in Belleville. She was a devout Catholic. She was a devout member of St. Michael's church and was active in the work of the Catholic Women's League of which organization she held the office of treasurer for some years. She was also interested in the activities of the Women's Christian Association and the Women's Aid Society in this city. She served with both organizations and in these associations and for a long time to come she will be greatly missed.

During Mrs. Dolan's illness, Mrs. Jacob Dolan, Mr. J. Dolan's son-in-law, was in constant attendance upon her.

Surviving Mrs. Dolan are two brothers, Mr. Robert O'Hagan of Ashfield, Alberta, and Mr. Henry O'Hagan of Warner, N.Y.; one sister, Mrs. O'Leary, Seattle, Wash., and one niece, Mrs. William Pepper, of Belleville.

The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this paper.

GERMANY FREES SELF OF TREATY
Belgium Notified of Entry of Troops Into Rhineland
Brussels, March (CP Havas) — Germany officially informed Belgium today that "small detachments" of German troops had entered the Rhineland and that Germany considered itself henceforth free of all obligations under the Locarno treaty.
Premier Van Zeeland met in an emergency conference with his defence ministers and instructed Belgian envoys in Berlin, London and Berlin to enter into immediate contact with these governments to examine the situation created by Germany's denunciation of the Locarno treaty.
The German Charge D'Affaires, Dr. C. Rraner, told Premier Van Zeeland, that Germany was ready to negotiate a new Rhineland pact excluding articles 43 and 47, which provide for its demilitarization.
He also proposed that the new pact would be completed, subsequently by an air pact, in which Holland would be included.
Premier Van Zeeland sent into immediate conference with Albert Devese, Minister of Defence, to decide on Belgium's course.
RELIEF DEFINITION GIVEN BY BOYS
It is seldom that relief officers of the local office thoroughly get a clear cut definition of the meaning of "relief," but this afternoon, happened to be one of this day.
Trudging along the walk this morning two small boys engaged in animated conversation. Behind them, walked one of the officials of the office.
"We're on relief," commented one of the youngsters, in the course of the conversation.
"Relief. What does that mean?" queried the second.
"It means that you can go to the store and get everything for nothing—you don't have to pay for it," enlightened Boy No. 1.

LESSER CONTROL OF COMMISSION OBJECT OF BILL

Civil Service Commission Under Fire in House of Commons

WANTS RESTRICTION

"Return to Sanity" is Mother-well's Opinion of Trade Pact

Ottawa, Mar. 7 (CP)—A move to lessen control of the Civil Service Commission over appointments to the government service is before the House of Commons, in a measure which, as comprehensive amendments to the Civil Service Act.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Liberal member for Rotherham, seeks to put government employees outside the civil service, the scope of the Commission and to vest ministers and deputy ministers with the final say in appointments to technical and professional posts.

Mr. Lapointe is a past president of the Native Sons of Canada and in his bill seeks to restrict service to Canadian veterans the preference given war veterans in civil service appointments. At present it extends to veterans of all the allied armies.

Explaining the bill last night, Mr. Boulanger said it was not designed to upset the merit system but to separate the executive and administrative functions of government.

The commission, he said, was qualified to conduct examinations and compile eligible lists but should not be the responsible head of the department which will have the final say in appointments.

Wants To Fill Job.

The commission took weeks to fill the most insignificant post, said the Quebec member. He was ridiculous to expect three men to be more competent than the heads of departments to fill such varied jobs as postmasters in the Yukon, caretakers in the Maritime Provinces and fish inspectors in British Columbia.

Debate on the Canada-United States trade treaty continued yesterday and the speakers dwelt more on the practical results of the pact than on its probable influence on Canada's position in the Empire and the broader relations of the two nations then.

Hugh Stewart (Cons., Leeds) objected to the uncertainty of the treaty and said its terms combined to lessen the value of tariffs which would enable the United States to terminate it on short notice and protect to the possibility of legislation being passed by Congress like the invalidated NRA which would involve price fixing and trade restriction and might bring about assimilation of the treaty.

It must be kept in mind, Mr. Stewart said, the United States had several natural advantages over Canada, he believed Canada should have received the limit of everything President Roosevelt offered.

Stewart Not Hopeful of Success.

If the treaty widened the balance of trade between Canada and the United States it was a step in the wrong direction, Mr. Stewart said. He was not hopeful of the treaty's success. American tariff rates were so high, little benefit would accrue to Canadians in trying to use them.

The treaty would make it more difficult to extend or modify the Ottawa agreements, Mr. Stewart said.

Mr. Stewart was followed by Hon. W. R. Motherwell, one of the veterans of the House whose memory goes back to the pre-Confederation Reciprocity treaty with the United States. He congratulated the government on a "return to sanity" in trade relations following the disproved business as a result of the pact.

The treaty met with the 100 per cent. approval of the Maritime Provinces, William Ryan (Lib., Saint John-Albert) told the House. Its cancellation or abrogation would be a great help to New Brunswick and Maritime potato growers had nothing to fear from United States competition.

NEW GERMAN ZEPPELIN—LATEST IN LUXURY LINERS—Germany's new Zeppelin, the LZ-129, which will inaugurate trans-atlantic service between the United States and Germany in May, is the "last word in luxury liners and in aerial design. The Zeppelin is much larger than the famous Graf, but not as huge as the ill-fated British dirigible R-101. It is 817 feet long, has a maximum diameter of 130 feet and a hull capacity of 190,000 cubic metres. The LZ-129 is considered to be the most desirable size by the veteran of German dirigible construction, Dr. Hugo Eckener, who is expected to pilot the big ship on its inaugural flight.

THE QUEEN MARY BEING WASHED FOR TEST RIDE—The fact that the Queen Mary, largest liner, is nearing completion, is attested to by the picture which shows painters going over the hull of the super-liner. Queen Mary at Clydebank, Scotland. Over the white hull they are putting a coat of black paint. She will sail from Southampton on May 27. Her first test run to Southampton will be made this month.

Brier trophy emblematic of Canadian curling supremacy. Ken Watson's Strathcona rink playing against New Brunswick rink which like themselves had lost but a single game in eight previous rounds, scored an 11-9 victory to take the silverware, last year held by the Campbell's of Hamilton Thistles. Charlie Kerr, deputized lead for the westerners is shown at LEFT as he started a stone toward another point. The remainder of the Tag rink is also pictured. They are LEFT to RIGHT: Ken Watson, Colo; Grant Watson, third and Marvin McIntyre, second.

WINNIPEG RINK WINS DOMINION CURLING TITLE—For the first time in ten years, Winnipeg curlers have won the Canadian championship, second.

Marmora and District

MARMORA—Mr. Vincent Lynch has obtained a position as chemist with the Hollinger Mines Milling Company and is leaving on Friday for the Northern mining town. He has many friends in the district extend every wish for success in his new position, although keenly regretting the fact that he will leave Marmora. He has been a valuable and efficient member of the High School Board for over a year. He was also elected a director and appointed treasurer of Marmora Agricultural Society for 1936. For many years he has been a member and recently was president of the Holy Name Society. He will be greatly missed by his fellow-citizens.

A splendid program was enjoyed by the members of St. Paul's Men's Club at their regular monthly meeting held in the White Hall on Wednesday evening. W. J. Cottrell presided over the short business session which was followed by the opening musical selections of Donald Prentice and William Hart. Next was a song "The Gangster's Warning" by Pat Bertram accompanied by Rogers Reynolds. W. B. Reynolds gave an entertaining reading "Black Justice" which was followed by selections from the youthful "Moonlight Serenaders", whose members are: Norman Green, violin; Donald Prentice, guitar, Jack Gray, guitar and Eugene Reynolds, trombone, guitar and mouth organ. Rev. B. D. Cavell was the guest of honor and gave an interesting address on "Power" after which Eugene Reynolds pleasingly rendered "Little Joe, the Ranger". The program ended with more excellent selections from the "Moonlight Serenaders", who very pleasingly rendered "Auld Lang Syne" in audience. Delicious refreshments were served at the close of the program. The regular monthly meeting of Ked in Marmora on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Boyd have moved into the residence recently vacated by Mr. and Mrs. C. Whelan.

Mr. Wm. McWaters has returned home to Trenton after visiting his mother, Mrs. Wm. McWaters.

Mr. O. A. Bleecker, who has been confined to his home through illness is able to be about again.

Mr. D. Sproul of Lindsay spent Wednesday in Marmora.

Mr. F. T. Halford of Toronto, is the guest this week of his father.

A very successful euchre party was held under the auspices of Circle One of St. Paul's Ladies' Guild at the home of Mrs. C. Nichol on Wednesday evening, when six tables were played. The prize winners were: Miss Myrtle Gordon and James Linn. Following the cards delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.

Mr. J. P. Wilson of Toronto, visited in Marmora on Wednesday.

Rawdon and District

Rawdon—A large number of Wellman's rule gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Hatch on Tuesday evening when Wellman's Ladies' Aid and Young People's Society held their meeting jointly.

Mrs. John Heagle, president of the Aid opened the service with a hymn, followed by prayer. The business period closed with another hymn.

Mr. Omar Ernelun, convener of Christian Fellowship then presided and all sang a hymn, Mrs. J. E. Sexsmith read the Bible lesson. Miss Dorothy Dunham outlined the topic on the subject, "Hymns and Hymn-writers". Mr. Everett Marples contributed two selections on his piano-accordion during the evening and Wellmans' Orchestra also rendered two musical numbers.

Rev. J. E. Sexsmith gave a brief address on "Superstition." Miss Dorothy Hinds gave a reading. Miss Carlyn Johnson read a poem. All joined in a hymn and Mrs Gladys Faulks played a "Jig" contest.

A delectable lunch was then served and a delightful social time was enjoyed by all who were privileged to attend. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the host and hostess at the close.

On Wednesday evening members of Springbrook Young People's Union enjoyed a real treat when a group of players from two other societies, namely Ryestone and Madoc, presented their plays.

Miss Evelyn Bailey of Harold is holidaying with Mr. and Mrs. Carl Clancy this week.

Miss Helen Scott was a supper guest Thursday evening of Miss Carlyn Johnson.

On Friday evening several members of Springbrook Young People's Union journeyed to Madoc where they presented their short play. Two other societes, Coe Hill and Springbrook, competed and the judges awarded the plays as follows: (1) Coe Hill; (2) Eldorado; (3) Springbrook.

Mr. George Heagle of Wellman's underwent an operation on his eye on Monday at Belleville Hospital and at present he is recuperating at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Fair.

Mrs. Frank Bailey, Carmel, is holidaying with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dunham.

On Sunday morning at Wellman's United Church those in attendance were privileged to hear the radio broadcast message of King Edward VIII. Mr. Robert Wallace very kindly installed the radio and had all might enjoy the King's first broadcast message. The service opened with a hymn and the Invocation. Following this the National Anthem was sung and the radio turned on, and almost immediately the King's address was heard very distinctly.

Mr. nd Mrs. Carl Clancy entertained Mr. and Mrs. Victor Taylor and Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Nix and their respective families to tea on Wednesday evening.

SPECIFIC DETAILS WANTED ON BILL

Conservatives Refer to Tax Bill as "Pork Barrel" Legislation

Toronto, March 7 (CP)—Battling for specific details of the manner in which the Ontario Government will reimburse municipalities for revenue lost through provincial assumption of the income tax, the Conservative opposition continues to block second reading of the reimbursement bill in the Legislature.

When the measure came up yesterday for second reading after debate had been resumed from the previous Friday, Conservatives renewed their attack and called it "pork barrel" legislation which would put much power in the hands of Welfare Minister Croll.

Leopold Macaulay, Conservative member for York South, moved that an amendment, not voted upon, to defer second reading until the government included in the bill a proper plan for reimbursing municipalities.

Mr. Croll was dictator in respect to relief, said Col. W. H. Price, Conservative member for Toronto Parkdale. He had relief in one pocket, the income tax in another and the Ottawa cabinet in another.

"It's the greatest barrel I ever heard of," he said. Mr. Macaulay agreed. Described the legislation as "pork barrel by order-in-council."

Bill Not Fair Says Rigg

The bill was not fair, said Col. T. A. Kidd (Cons., Kingston), municipal income taxes collected during the past ten years should be added together and a share given to each, he said.

W. A. Baird (Cons., Toronto High Park) thought municipalities should be entitled to a percentage from all residents liable to income tax.

M. M. McBride, independent member for Brantford, believed the bill must be in force a year before the government knew whether or not the system of reimbursing would work. He questioned the municipal impartiality, regardless of whether it collected an income tax, should obtain a share of the income the government collected and this should be fixed by statute.

Prior to adjournment for the week-end, Premier Hepburn announced it was the government's intention to proceed with the three speech debate the first three days of next week so it could be finished when he brought down the budget Thursday.

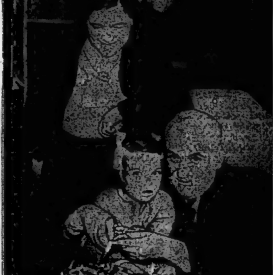
IN ACCORD WITH PLANS



Windsor, Ont., March 7—(CP)—Lieutenant-General Sir Archibald C. Macdonnell son of Windsor's first Mayor, who came here from Kingston to address the annual banquet of the South African War Veterans' Association, said he was in accord with Britain's new armament expansion program as a strict necessity for defence. Sir Archibald commanded the first Canadian Division in the Great War.

EXCESSIVE SPEED FOUND

Windsor, Ont., March 7—(CP)—Excessive speed in switching operations and contributory negligence on the part of two engine crews caused the death of Robert Carson, 54, Canadian Pacific Railway brakeman who died of injuries received Feb. 26 when he was crushed between a locomotive and a boxcar in the C.P.R. yard here. This was the finding of a Coroner's Jury here yesterday.

STOLEN JEWELRY RECOVERED

Montreal, March 7—(CP)—Stolen goods valued at $5,000, including sample bags worth $1,500, were recovered yesterday, police after a chase involving gunfire. Sergeant Detective Cremazie noticed a man peering into several parked automobiles and trailed him to an eastend apartment. They followed but the man escaped through a window, failing to halt when a rifle fired at him. The loot was recovered in the apartment.

DEFENSIVE ARMOR

Britain is girding on her armor. She is getting ready to ward off attack should war come. Britain does not necessarily say that large armaments mean safety, but she does realize that possibly in such a world as today big armaments may save the day and may even prevent war perhaps as Bernard Shaw says because the big nations are afraid of one another, though armed.

Lovers of peace cannot but admit that under present conditions there is no many uncertain forces at work in the world, armament is the only step, because Germany for instance is rearming, as are Japan and the United States.

In the United States as in Britain, armaments are growing because of what is taking place in other lands.

Here is the fatal result of the sense of lack of security. The nations have to barricade their doors and be ready to go out into the neighborhood to round up a nation that should run berserk.

The tragedy of today is that there is no limit to rearmament. Arms do not necessarily mean peace but peaceful conditions of lack of concert and understanding force re-armament upon the unwilling nations.

SAVING PRECIOUS WINDOWS

Preparations for removal to places of safety of the priceless stained glass of the windows in French Cathedrals in the event of war are being organized by the Association for the Preservation of French Art.

War has an unholy spirit which tries to uproot civilization and destroy all it touches as expressed particularly in its architecture and art and at the church. In these two are truth and beauty, which Keats says are "all ye need to know". At least they are the foundations of civilization.

5,700 panes of eleventh, twelfth and thirteenth century glass would require several months to remove. A big operation was carried out during the Great War at famous Rheims ,Cathedral where Joan of Arc had Charles the dauphin crowned as King over five hundred years ago. So although much glass was destroyed many priceless windows were saved. Chartres Cathedral is near an airport and would undoubtedly fall in the event of war. Accordingly the French Association is considering a plan for construction of quickly adjusted metallic scaffoldings and the training of a corps of 340 workmen, who could remove the glass in a few hours. There would be special cases for storing and classifying the glass. A special lighting system would enable the men to work at night.

To save the glass is worthwhile attempts but that it should be possible such old edifices should be destroyed is saddening.

This is but another proof of the need of that day when war will be abolished.

WHY FACES CHANGE

Why do faces change? Dr. Hrdlicka, curator of physical anthropology of the Smithsonian Institution, has taken measurements of thousands of men and women including "old Americans", Pueblo and other Indians, Eskimos and Negroes.

Ears grow longer, nose grows a little longer and distinctly broader and mouth widens with the years.

That is his finding, the mouth and nose changes being sufficient to alter indefinably a well-remembered face.

Dr. Hrdlicka claims that a cartoonist can often make a recognisable likeness of an individual by drawing the mouth and nose slope.

The nose changes are due largely to heredity and is a marked degree to cold, heat and moisture. Those living in the hottest regions have the broadest noses and those in the mountains the narrowest.

The mouth changes are even more marked. The phenomenon, says Dr. Hrdlicka is "of a progressive nature from early life onward."

A BLOW FOR DIETERS

The rage for dieting is scored by many physicians. Dr. Thomas R. Brown of Johns Hopkins University claims that the best thing one can do with a diet is to forget it. He attacks the building up of bugaboos and fads on medicine. He wonders if there is really one case in a thousand of auto-intoxication in the world. He points to the scons and scons of our ancestors who got along without a diet. He claims that one can get all the vitamins he needs in the average mixed meal. He says that while cooking may diminish the value of some foods slightly, if one eats an average amount of uncooked foods, one has no need to worry about his vitamins.

While so many are dieting Lincoln Ellsworth the flier has been in one land where good food and huge appetites are the custom—in Australia. He backs the Australians against the world.

So there the dieters are.

In the cigarette endangered of overthrow from the high places in tobacco sales, British students puff briars, Stalin smokes a pipe and more and more people are said to request permission to smoke a pipe after dinner

A MILE WITH ME

Oh who will walk a mile with me
Along life's merry way?
A comrade blithe and full of glee,
Who dares to laugh out loud and free,
And let his fellow fancies play
Like a happy child, through the flowers gay
That fill the field and fringe the way
Where he walks a mile with me.

And who will walk a mile with me
Along life's weary way?
A friend whose heart has eyes to see
The stars shine out o'er the darkening lea
And the quiet rest at the end o' the day—
A friend who knows, and dares to say,
In the rare sweet words that cheer the way
Where he walks a mile with me.

With such a comrade, such a friend,
I fain would walk till journey's end,
Through Summer sunshine, Winter rain,
And then?—Farewell, we shall meet again.

—Henry Van Dyke.

A LIBERAL SPEAKER IN THE ONTARIO LEGISLATURE this week, during one of those lulls in legislation when the House is practically empty, gazed sadly around at the small fringe of members sufficiently interested to remain in their seats to listen to his weighty thoughts on this, that and the other thing in bigger and better government. He noticed that the opter government. He noticed that the opposition was represented by a solid array of empty seats. This generated a germ which incubated the wise crack that the House was now a picture of what it would probably be after the next election. Chief Opposition Whip Jim Hill, of Belleville and points East, entered the House at that particular moment and observed that the speaker was probably right only that instead of all Grits it would probably be all Tories.

IN ENGLAND THE APPRENTICESHIP SYSTEM has long been one of the bulwarks of the nation. An apprentice must learn the business thoroughly hence must serve at least five years. John B. Harker, grocer, of Belleville, remembers that it was on March 6, 1875, that he began his apprenticeship of five years to the grain and grocery trade, papers being signed to that effect between his parents and C. J. Rountree—and he served his five full years and then Mr. Harker has his first week's wages still intact, a silver half-crown piece.

HAVE YOU HEARD THESE?

Got Ahead of Them

The chief of the village fire brigade was making his report to the chairman of the village council.

"Yes, sir," he said, proudly, "we put out the fire just 10 minutes after we got there."

"Very praiseworthy," said the chairman. "Had it got a good start of you?"

"I should say it had," said the fire chief. "When we got there there was only the foundation standing."

Parliament Hill Hears

By Wilfrid Eggleston

The longer one watches Parliament the more one admires Hansard. Slow speakers, rapid speakers, new and old speakers, loud speakers, midnight unintelligible speakers, disjointed speakers and incoherent speakers; they all get up from time to time in the House. Sometimes they address the Chair, sometimes they address the south-east corner; sometimes they dance out into the aisles as they speak, as did Henri Bourassa. Sometimes they say a few words in French and switch without warning into English and vice versa. Sometimes they throw in a few words of Latin or Greek. They expound at times the most profound economic theories. They uncover a vocabulary that the ordinary man may never have heard before. In a new parliament there may be as many as 130 or 140 new members: the reporters must learn to know (or a moment who is speaking. Crossfire may develop: heated and rapid; a point of order or privilege be raised without warning.

And through all this Hansard reporter sits taking it down; and it's a hundred to one that next morning when your copy of Hansard arrives at your home, you will turn to page 2, little smoother and more coherent than the actual address, but not one essential word or common meaning. How do they do it?

x x x x

'Tis told....that it is not the rapid speaker necessarily who is most difficult to report....for instance, there was 'Bob' Manion, with a delivery like a machine gun, yet relatively easy to get; Reporters are after ideas, assertions, quotations, as well as words. Even if some speakers have a great deal of padding in their speeches, like 'let me tell my honorable friend' or 'you know as well as I do, Mr. Speaker' or the like. The shorthand man develop a code for these 'asides' and if they are spoken by a good deal the Hansard man can keep up comfortably, even if the orator reels off 300 words a minute.....'Joe' Bradette, member for Gaspe-Bonaventure, is one of the hardest men in the House to report: he speaks very rapidly, his addresses are 'full of meat', and he has a slight French-Canadian accent. Then there was Hon. Colonel J. A. Ralston who still, outl.... he never repeated, and every word meant something, there was no 'padding' or 'strained' or 'rhetoric' in his speech. Then, last, there is the man who has a rapid flow of words who is necessarily hard to report, it's the man with a rapid flow of ideas.

x x x x

Another 'terror' for Hansard is the incoherent, ungrammatical speaker, the one who never finishes a sentence, who gets started on one thought and is sidetracked quickly onto another....Jean Francois Pouliot is not easy to report, but compared to some others his reports can usually be read with spaces in between, and let the Toronto member fill in the gaps afterwards.....Every fall the late Joseph Pitman used to sue by House of Commons reporters.... I asked one authority on reporting who were the outstanding reporters in recent years and received the answer: Young, associate editor of Hansard and D. J. Hallett, chief Senate reporter, as the absolute top-notchers.

In the last Alberta provincial election a great many people were astonished when Mr. Aberhart ran in one riding, and the Minister of Public Works in the next riding, and both were defeated.

"Thank you," was all he said, but he could hear the Minister of Education and said (so I was told by one of the Alberta representatives at Ottawa):

"Congratulations, Mrs. Flamme, on your husband's victory."

"Thank you," was the reply. "But I wish he had been beating the Minister of Public Works instead of Education. He's the one who knows so much more about bridges and roads than he does about schools!"

The lady, it seemed, thought that anyone who beat a Cabinet Minister automatically got his job!

Anyone who thinks that being a member is all beer and skittles should listen to some of the private wails heart at Ottawa these days.....of the women that line up outside a members office at home when he leaves Ottawa for the week-end.....of the demands for jobs, for money, for wangling of one sort or another.....one Toronto member told me that for wangling of one sort or another.....one Toronto member told me that he had been at his office last Saturday from shortly after nine until seven in the evening, with fifteen minutes off to grab a sandwich at noon.....from provincial Liberals in Ontario are the worst for jobs. They've been out of office for 30 years.... "I wouldn't shake our provincials" by a ten foot pole for $10,000 a year," quoth one Quebec member on the same theme....Sam Jacobs, of Montreal, after a painful day interviewing applicants for Jobs and doles sighed wearily: "It's no wonder we don't get out of this world alive!"

Did you know....that Sarto Fournier only misses being the 'baby' of the House by seven months.....Ernest Perley, Federal of Peace River holds the honor.....Fournier is the young man who fainted when he got the nomination for Hull....Ernest Perley is a son of Hon. George Perley and Colonel Power is a son of the Speech from the Throne....Sarto has held better luck with his elections than passing law examinations.....he is president of the Canadian Labour Window Cleaning Ltd. of Montreal.....Pelletier is a station agent of the Northern Alberta Railways.....both were born in Montreal.....At the other end of the parliamentary roll is R. R. 'Bob' White, the Grand-pa of the House, who will soon be 80.....Sir George Perley isn't far behind him, however, being 79 in December.....Mr. Marcil is the dean of the House, having being first elected in 1900..... but 'Bob' White was in the Press Gallery 18 years before that again.

March 7th, 1916

The Toronto Globe in a recent issue had the following to say regarding the Belleville Hockey team. "The citizens of Belleville should be proud of the boys who have represented them in hockey this winter. The town has been represented in the Ontario Hockey Association for seventeen years. They have been champions in the season of 1899-1900 and made a splendid fight for honors during the final of the intermediate series, losing out for the championship in a game played at Toronto by London by 3 to 1. The Belleville team of that year was as follows—Goal, Winchester; point, Wallace; cover point, Dubois; forwards, Hall, Bateman, Emory and McGuire. The marks mentioned in Jack Marks, who is now a member of the Quebec team of the N.H.A. That is the closest until this season that a Belleville team has come to winning honors in the O.H.A. This season Belleville will fight it out with Sarnia for the championship here and home games, the first at Belleville tonight. The intermediate team however does not hold all the limelight. The junior team reached the semi-finals and was eliminated by the Aura Lees of Toronto. For a number of years the Belleville management thought it wise to have a paid coach, but none of them had success. This year they dropped the idea although Bill Simons, who captains the intermediates, has acted in the capacity of coach for both the junior and intermediates team."

Owing to the country roads being blocked by last night's snow "all the vantage stage arriving in the city were very late today.

PLAINFIELD

Plainfield—On Thursday evening several dozen of the neighbors and friends from the Elm Hill United Church assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Empey and presented Mrs. Kelcheson with a beautiful chair, as a token of appreciation of their appreciation of her services as pianist in the church. The committee in charge was Mrs. A. E. Gay, and found that their visit had been wholly unexpected and that Mr. and Mrs. Kelcheson had not had the slightest intimation of what was underway.

A short program consisting of the following numbers was presented by Rev. J. F. Bvenson, pastor of the congregation, Mrs. Myrtle Hawley, prayer. A duet by Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Denyes, reading, Miss Marion Trevarrow; duet, Mrs. Myrtle Hawley and Mr. Arthur Sinefield; solo, Mrs. J. F. Bvenson; duet, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Kelcheson; duet, Mrs. Fred Searls and Miss. Doris Empey; duet, Arthur Sinefield. The following address was read by Mrs. Floyd Sinefield and the presentation made by Mr. Percy Hay.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelcheson—

We, as members of the Elm Hill United Church, have gathered here this evening to pay tribute to you, who so devotedly and graciously has given your time and talent as organist and choir leader in our church. Your diligent and untiring efforts in the welfare of our church have been an inspiration to us and have been a pleasure to have worshipped with one who gave her best to make a success of the Sunday activity with which she was interested. We know of all these things, therefore as to your home with the greatest of hospitality. As a small token of our gratitude for your faithfulness on our behalf we ask you to accept this gift and may it recall to you ever remind you of your many friends in Plainfield. Signed—

Signed, Mrs. H. K. Denyes, Mrs. Floyd Sinefield.

Mrs. Kelcheson made a very suitable reply in which she assured the congregation that anything she had done was in order to further the work of the Kingdom of God and not for selfish purposes. She assured her associates in the community of a warm welcome but said she was not surprised but shocked as she felt she had done nothing to deserve such a remembrance.

Mr. H. K. Denyes spoke a few words relating a bit of history in connection with the Church life at Shoo-Fly. The program closed with singing "For they are jolly good fellows." A delicious lunch served by the ladies brought a delightful evening to a close.

ROSLIN

Roslin—The monthly meeting of the Women's Association for the United Church at Roslin was held at the home of Mrs. Glen Ish on Wednesday, March 4th with 21 present. The new president, Mrs. (Rev.) Herrington opened the meeting with a song service. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Herrington who also offered a very inspiring prayer.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Aletha Howes, which was followed by the roll call. It was decided to answer the roll call by a verse of Scripture.

The business part of the meeting was then conducted after which Mrs. H. Welsh and Mrs. Glen Ish were elected as a sick committee.

Miss Aletha Howes closed the meeting with prayer. A dainty lunch was served by the hostess and a social half hour spent.

The mid-week Lenten service was held in the Anglican Church on Wednesday evening and was well attended. Rev. Mr. Hall showed a series of lantern slides at these services. The subject of this week's slides was "The Good Shepherd." During the service Rev. Mr. Beaney sang several solos. The subject of next set of slides is "Women of the Old Testament."

At the meeting of St. Andrew's Men's Association which was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Fargey on Wednesday evening there were about thirty present.

After the business period the shuffleboard tournament for which competition is becoming very keen was continued, with six tables being in play. The prize for the evening's high score was won by Miss Ruth Fargey and the game a dainty lunch was served.

The March meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's Church was held at the Manse on Thursday afternoon,

THREE CHILDREN MISSING

Buffalo, N.Y., March 6.—(AP)—Three playmates, a girl of 13 and two younger boys, have been missing since Wednesday afternoon, police reported today.

Phyllis Bruce, 13, her brother William, 11, and Eugene Mahoney, nine, went out to play Wednesday afternoon and failed to come home from school and have not been reported since.

Mrs. William Bruce and Mrs. August Walter, the mothers, were reported ill today, because the children had not been located.

QUARANTINE QUITE RIGID

Harlan, Ky., March 6.—(AP)—A rigid quarantine was clamped down on disease-ridden Harlan County today as state and county health authorities fought to check the rampant spread of spinal meningitis, 90 cases of which have caused 19 deaths.

Stirling with deadly effect at Cumberland, Ky., where 21 cases have caused 17 fatalities, the malady has practically paralyzed community activity.

Stirling and District

Stirling—The Stirling Boy Scouts journeyed to Ivanhoe on Wednesday evening, where they supplied all the numbers on an interesting program at a concert given by the Ivanhoe Branch of the Women's Institute in the Community Hall. Mr. Thomas Ward, Scoutmaster of the troop, was in charge of the program and acted as master of ceremonies throughout the evening introducing the various numbers as they were given. The program opened with a number by the orchestra, composed of James Ward, Trumpet; Lloyd Rowland and Cherwood Wannamaker, flute; Madison, violin; and Stan. Elton, piano. Everything here in the settlement field was next number a three round boxing bout between Mickey Armstrong and Jack Farnsworth with Tom Ward as referee and Don. Ward and Art Duncan, acting as seconds for the former. This was an excellent display in the art of self-protection and physical fitness, Mickey Armstrong declared but both contestants gave evidence of knowledge in all the tricks of the game. Roy Mallough then gave a violin solo accompanied at the piano by Stan. Elton. The next number was a shadow act which caused a great deal of merriment. James and Lloyd Ward were the surgeons and Russell West, the victim and the operation as seen by the audience was very weird with the deadly instruments being hammers, saws and hatchets. The anesthetic being administered through a spray gun and was very exceptionally well done and greatly enjoyed by the audience. Lloyd Ward brothers then gave a fine display of gymnastics and tumbling with a wrestling bout thrown in for good measure. The many difficult tumbling acts of the Ward boys which thrilled the crowd portrayed what can be accomplished by careful systematic physical training while in the open air.

Several other musical numbers were given at all time by the orchestra, Mrs. Madison and Mrs. Ward then introduced a novel stunt which included the participation of the audience who proved themselves real sports by entering into the spirit of the game which had as its aim, merriment and laughter. Mrs. Ward then called for the orchestra gave a pizzo number that brought forth much applause. The last number on the program was a community singing which everyone present who wished to join and for the next twenty minutes all had a very happy and social time together.

Mr. Ward expressed appreciation of the boys in attending by invitation to appear at Ivanhoe to give a program and for the attention given by the audience to the various numbers, Mr. Henry Wallace, on behalf of the audience, also extended the appreciation of the gathering. The boys were also so generously given of their talent to help with the fine evening's entertainment provided and extended them a hearty vote of thanks.

Those taking part in the program were the guests of the executive of the organization at the conclusion of the program at a dainty luncheon which was served by the ladies. The Boy Scouts left for Stirling with the singing of the National Anthem. The many kindly comments heard throughout the district have evidently themselves of the unusual talent to be found within the ranks of be Stirling Boy Scouts, who have given such splendid programs and which vary in character with each appearance and the entire community are grateful for the generosity of the boys who supply a real entertainment. Eldorado and District

Eldorado, March 7.—Mr. and Mrs. Russel Whyte and family were callers on disease-ridden Harlan County today as state and county health authorities fought to check the rampant spread of spinal meningitis, 90 cases of which have caused 19 deaths.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Blakely and Mr. and Mrs. Franks spent Saturday evening at Mr. Russel Whyte's.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cumerford and Miss Annie Thorpe spent Sunday at Mr. Ed. Blakely's.

Mrs. John Trotter, Mrs. Sandy Andrews and Mrs. R. O'Brien spent Monday at Mrs. Wm. Andrews.

Mr. and Mrs. Colden Holmes and little Joan spent Sunday at Mr. Albert Empey's.

Mrs. C. D. McCann and Misses Ina and Dorothy spent Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Robt. McCann.

Mrs. Stanley Moorcroft and baby are spending a few days at the home of father's, Mr. Wm. Parnell's.

Mrs. R. Franks spent Monday at the home of Mrs. Russel Whyte.

The regular monthly meeting of the Eldorado and Salmonsbury Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Clarence Carmen with a large attendance, about 60 being present including visitors. The president, Mrs. Alex Davey was in charge and opened the meeting by all singing the Institute Ode, followed by all repeating the Lord's prayer. The roll call was then called and the members responded with "Irish Quotations." The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Letters of thanks from Mrs. Minh Peet and Mrs. J. Sandford were then read. A short business period followed. The chief matter of business being the "Erection of a new Community Hall." After a short discussion it was decided to hold an open meeting in the near future. The programme for the remainder of the evening was based on "Historical Research and Current Events." Mrs. Harvey presided and opened this part of programme by all singing "Where you and I were Young Maggie." Miss Shirley Andrew gave a recitation, and Harry Whyte a solo with guitar accompaniment by Mrs. Wm. Andrew read a paper on King Edward VIII. Miss Jean Holmes a paper on "Making of Potash," and Mrs. A. Harvey a paper on "Hallowe'en Customs." Mrs. Harry McCoy reviewed the current events for the month. Between these different readings music was played by the Arbell orchestra of Eldorado assisted by Mr. Earl Armstrong of Madoc. This was much enjoyed by everyone present. Mrs. Harry Empey in her very pleasing manner, aided as a bride of 50 years ago marched into the drawing room to a wedding march "Here Comes the Bride" played by Mr. Vernon Strobe. This caused much merriment. Mrs. Wm. Andrew and Miss Lily Wright accompanied by Miss Edith Hollcraft sang "Around the Old Grey Bonnet." Instrumental music was furnished by Mr. Vernon Strobe, Mrs. Russel Whyte, and Mrs. Harry McCoy. The National Anthem closed the very interesting programme. A dainty lunch was served by the hostess and her two assistants and a social half hour was spent.

An unusual attendance was present at Sunday School on Sunday 6) being present. Mrs. G. McCann was in charge of the missionary programme.

N.P.U.

The regular meeting of the Eldorado and Union Young People's Union was held on Wednesday evening, March 4th at the Eldorado United Church.

The meeting was in charge of the Christian Citizenship convener, Miss M. Wright.

The first item on the programme was the devotional period, the scripture reading of Miss Florence Walker.

The Bible lesson, John 14-11 was read by A. Holmes, and the 23rd Psalm was repeated in unison.

Obituary

MRS. FRANK M. WALSH

After a lengthy illness Mrs. Frank M. Walsh, passed away at all the family residence, 309 John Street, on Thursday evening, March 5th.

The late Mrs. Walsh's maiden name was Miss Anna V. Roche, her parents being the late Mr. Mrs. Jeremiah Roche, who lived in Belleville and with the exception of a few years spent in Buffalo, N.Y. her life was spent in the city of her birth. She was a faithful member of St. Michael's Church and when health permitted she took an active part in the work of some of the organizations in connection with the parish.

Surviving her besides her husband, Mr. Frank M. Walsh, are two brothers, Mr. Jeremiah Roche of Belleville and Mr. William Roche of Buffalo, N.Y.

One sister, Mrs. Cross of Cobourg, and a brother, John Chatterworth of Belleville, also survive. One son, Jeremiah, predeceased her away in 1914.

The many floral tributes bore testimony to the esteem in which the deceased was held.

The bearers were—D. R. Ketcheson, Gerald Johnson, W. N. Simmons, Bert Green, Ray Turley and H. J. Madill.

LATE GEORGE MYLKES

The Burlington, Vermont, Daily News of January 1st, 1936, contained the following regarding the late George Mylkes, who was well known at one time in the Stirling district.

George H. Mylkes, aged 60, local antique dealer for many years, died this morning at a local hospital as the result of an infected foot. Owing to his unfailing energy and rare knowledge of antiques he had acquired a patronage far reaching, as during his last summer trade his antique shipments reached nearly every state in the Union. This business which has stood the test of half a century of service in the Burlington Community, had been under his proprietorship since 1919.

Mr. Mylkes' stock was so valuable he personally passed his judgment on their rarity and not only filled his store to capacity owing to his unusual tact in buying, but also a small one building a Colonial hotel furnished throughout with antiques in their natural environment. His china and glass ware departments were always ablaze with the newest creations in that line whether foreign or domestic, even extending to the manufacture of famous Colonial wallpapers and borders carried a full line of other papers.

Mr. Mylkes was born on November 30th, 1875, at South Bolton, N.Y. the son of Benjamin L. and Sarah (Smith) Mylkes, the former born in Rome, N.Y. and the latter a native of Stirling, Ont., Canada. He attended school at Stirling and after going through the high school, entered Belleville College, graduating from there with the class of 1894.

Rochester, N.Y. was the scene of his first commercial endeavours, going into a department store in that city and remaining 28 years until he came to Burlington, to enter the large emporium owned by C. G. Peterson, who had founded it in 1877, dealing largely in crockery and glassware. Then in 1919 upon the death of Mr. Peterson, Mr. Mylkes assumed control of the business and it has since developed into a widely known organization. A wide department had been added, and from various orders for interior decorations, the acquisition of antiques and characteristic American furniture is a natural outcome, and with the rarity of field to draw from throughout the Vermont countryside of early colonial furniture and early glass and pewters, Mr. Mylkes had made himself an authority not only to the local lovers of Americana, but to the antiquarians further afield.

The guest speaker of the evening was Professor Ian MacLean, who told of his experience in Ethiopia as war correspondent for a Toronto newspaper. Other speakers included Past President W. J. Calnan, of Toronto, formerly of Belleville; President J. B. Boyce, of Belleville; President Allin Smith, of Oshawa Club; and the Presidents of several visiting clubs.

Pack Up Your Woollens In An Air Tight Bag

There is no royal road to combat moths in the household. The basis of control rests in extreme care and cleanliness. Certainly, naphthalene and its cousins with the formidable name, paradichlorobenzene — pronounced para-kloro-benzeen—are helpful because moths do not like them, but at the same time, unless they are properly used after due precautions have been taken, chemical moth balls are as useless as many other popular remedies which include tobacco extracts, dried lavender leaves, cayenne pepper, black pepper, allspice, salt, borax, eucalyptus leaves, and red cedar leaves. The mere sprinkling of moth-smelling substances means little in the way of life or a moth. In the knowledge of how and when to sprinkle lies the justification for many chemical products

Weekly Livestock Review

Toronto, March 6 (CP)—Cattle trade was seasonably dull during the week's session of the Toronto Livestock with a result prices were down from 25 cents to a dollar on all grades. Calves were again on the declining side in prices with another drop of $1.00. Hogs with a slight increase in receipts closed on the market with a registered gain of 25 cents. Sheep and lambs held mostly unchanged with a few sales of fed-lots bringing a 10-cent advance.

Large shipments of beef from the Western Provinces to Ontario feeders have restricted local outlets for locally killed cattle. While Great Britain and the United States took a number for export the shipments were not as large with only 221 cattle going to the United Kingdom and 570 going to the U. S. A run of 4300 head met with the change and reduced prices down on all grades but choice heavy steers. Butcher cows were down 50 cents on the majority of sales and bulls followed butchers and heifers down 25 cents. Medium to good steers and heifers sold at $4.50 to $5.50 and a few choice heavies sold for export at $5.75 to $6.75. Butcher cows and heifers sold mostly at $4.00 to $4.50 with choice cows up to $4.75. A few common butchers went as low as $2.50. Cows closed at $2.50 to $3.25 for the bulk of sales with a few export at $3.50. Canners and cutters brought down to $1.75.

Western lambs made up one-half of the sheep and lambs receipts for the week with the total supply being 2,100 head. Price level was changed at $8.75 for best quality Westerns and choice fed-lots fetched with a few selling 10 cents higher. Culls and bucks sold from $6.50 to $8.00. Ontario-fed lambs sold at $8.50. Sheep were steady at $2.00 to $5.50, according to quality, with some young western sheep going at $6.00.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: This week—Cattle, 5,119; Calves, 1,647; Hogs, 4,079; Sheep and Lambs 2,099.
Last week—Cattle, 3,760; Calves, 1,900; Hogs, 5,066; Sheep and Lambs 2,496.
1936 to date—Cattle, 43,805; Calves, 16,799; Hogs, 32,182; Sheep and Lambs, 20,613.
1935 to date—Cattle, 43,988; Calves, 16,790; Hogs, 31,175; Sheep and Lambs, 3,026.

Board Room Gossip
As supplied by Bigger and Greatrex by Financial Service.
Investors and rubber speculators are not only biting at paper securities, but naturally seeking them. Last spring the increased demand that demand stimulates. All this is making for the real habilitation of the industry, and while the price structure remains the happiest thing it has been for years, time and tide are working for and not against the industry. Rubber prices are definitely on the way, in spite of all.
Secretary of the United States Treasury Henry Morgenthau states his agreement to buy newly-mined Canadian silver through the Mint of Canada was expected to absorb the Dominion's entire output. This country produces about 18,000,000 ounces a year, United States 47. Treasury officials said the arrangement had no particular significance. It was designed to create a specific arrangement for the purchase of silver which is known to be newly-mined.
A similar arrangement is in effect between the Gifford Chaim and Mexico whereby the New York Reserve Bank carries out transactions with the Bank of Mexico. Purchase of newly-mined silver of other countries is not involved. Nether fore, acquisitions have never been distinguished as between newly-mined and other stocks. Officials said the Canadian purchases would be made at prevailing market prices. The silver purchase act directed the United States Treasury to build up its silver stocks to one-third of the gold stock until the price reached $1.29 an ounce.
As a result of the above, interest in Lake Shore silver stocks should be maintained for some little time to come.

Laura Secord
The Laura Secord Candy Shops have taken a step up in their business for the first five months of their fiscal year when a comparison is made with a similar period in 1935. Sales are higher and miscellaneous expenses appear to be satisfactory.

NORANDA MINES
The common stock of Noranda Mines has been under steady accumulation for several weeks. From a technical position of this issue is said to be the most active it has been since the New York Stock Exchange came into being. People who know this company well predict that Noranda Mines will have in 1936 the best year in its history.

TORONTO MINES
Toronto, March 7 (CP)—Mining shares were firmer in moderate trading in the closing session of the week, the gold group especially reflecting a modified optimism over prospects for the recent active gainers of the week. Index group Dropped 2 to 10 cents.
In the senior group, Hollinger, McIntyre, Dome and Teck Hughes displayed weakness. Teck came out with heavy selling of 6 cents down to $4.95. Central Patricia dropped back 10 cents to $2.85, Buffalo-Ankerite lost 10 cents to $3.40 and Macassa weakened about 10 cents, Preferred issues were firm. Bonds were steady. Coppers were firm. Base metals were steady. Lake Shore, McKenzie-Red and Reed-Ambler.
Trading fairly actively, Franklin, Lake Shore, McMillan-Rochester and fractions to a point and Gunnar Mines, Hollinger Consolidated, Lake and Greene Stabell were lower.

WALL STREET CLOSE
(By Victor Embank)
(Associated Press Financial Writer)
New York, March 7—(AP)—The stock market listened to a new tune today, and prices became highly unsettled.
Mr. Hitler's troops marched into the Rhinelands, recent equity leaders yielded fractions to 2 or possibly more before meeting support. At the same time, aviation and mining issues diversified. Strength in composite of military orders from abroad.
As a result Foreign Transfers approximated 1,500,000 shares.
Among Dominion stocks, Distillers Corp. Seagrams and International Nickle improved slightly, while Canadian Pacific declines recorded by Dome and Canadian Pacific.
Government bonds were inactive Canadian funds held unchanged at 100 1-32 bid.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS
Toronto, March 7—(CP)—A sagging Toronto share market rebounded itself in the last 15 minutes of trading today and turned up on Canada's Wednesday session. Had had sold down to 50 but was quickly held up to 51 in the final minutes to show a net gain of 1-2. The general tone firmed also.
Gold bid drastically erased early losses for Brazilian, Fanny Farmer and Consolidated Smelters. Smelter's loss was converted into a gain at 1-2 by the final bell.
Liquor issues wiped out minor losses and showed a firm closing, closing steady to strong. Distillers-Seagrams was up 1-3 and Canada Malting, Consumers and Inland Metal Alcohol A displayed the best activity. Brewery stocks remained quiet.

At Auction to Talk Rather Than to Buy

Hamburg, Ont., March 7—(CP)—First auction sale to be held in the province in 1936 took place in Hamburg today when Lyle Brie in East County had to his auctioneering opportunity. Bidding was very slow and quiet bidders mostly content to remain silent.
"Most of us went to visit not to buy" said one farmer as he left the sale.
G. Thompson of Chatham was selling the furniture of a summer cottage belonging to Mrs. J. V. Rhodes, Chatham.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, March 7—Egg prices held generally steady at the week's advance yesterday. While receipts were still moderate, the demand was somewhat better. Butter was in good demand, however, with a steady to weak tone being maintained. Other produce, butter, cheese, potatoes and poultry ruled steady with trade fairly the quiet side. Receipts for the day were posted at 54 cars of hay, 62 cars of mill stuffs, 6 cars of eggs, 163 boxes of butter and no cheese.
On the grain market graded shipments arriving in lots of 1,000 bushels or more were quoted as follows:
No. 2 Canadian Western Oats, 47½ to 48c.
No. 3 Canadian Western Oats, 46½ to 47c.

Dale Plays The Game

—BY—

Ann Forester

Dale stood at the window pounding wildly at her heart. This was getting critical. Suppose—suppose that wife scheme she had thought of could not be carried through. Melodramatic, it was—oh, ridiculous! But what now; wanted something desperately—beyond all reason. Beyond all honor..... Suppose some one—a complete stranger—did a little shove in the—direction one wished them to take..... Melodramatic! Just playing fate—that was all. The Greeks had a name for it. They called it the power of the machine. When human fates were snarled beyond all unsnarling, then the machine aptly appeared and regulated them. Perhaps Mimi played god of the machine.....

CHAPTER XX.

MIMI PLAYS A BEST GAME

Until was right—Brant was true to her. Everyone else had gossiped behind her back. Ernie, Mother. They could see it. She alone had been the fool.

Dale tossed the room, grinding one hand hard into the other and her eyes were wide and dark—the eyes of an anguished young girl.

Well, was she going to stay on where she was—indefinitely? Was she going to keep on being the pathetic heroine, who had always been so independent?

But pride was prostrate before wounded love.

Deep within Dale a small flame of hope still flickered. She fed the blaze with precious memories. Oh—Brant had loved her—was sure of that! That time on the train coming east, when he assured her so emphatically that his love for Mimi was dead. What had he said—that only when her love was dead did he known what love and loyalty could mean..... Yes, he had loved Dale then.

Calling her silly little pet names. The flashing white smile in his brown face. The sudden darkening of his eyes when he was swept by passion.

Of course they loved each other. They had simply—misunderstood apart, as so many married couples drift. Pooling was over. Now they would find their way back to each other..... She wouldn't doubt. She would be strong.

That resolution was something to grasp. Dale held to it through the night, she clung to it somewhat the next day when she awoke the next morning to a sense of vague unhappiness.

No, she wouldn't doubt. Today there would be a letter from Brant for, would have had time to think. He would learn what she really meant to him. Misunderstandings sometimes grew indifferent and an absence roused them to a realization of each other's worth.

When Dale came downstairs the mail was already stacked on the table in the hall. So lonely did she long for a letter that she was afraid to look. She clung to the banister to steady herself for a moment. If an shepherd's be there.....

Only a fat letter from Honey, a letter which sprinkled Dale with dried sage when she opened it with jubilant fingers.

Honey wrote: "I'm putting in a bit of sage—you just won't forget what it smells like out here."

Pungent, aromatic, the fragrance flashed back memories of past happiness.

Nestling on the high porch of Honey's store in blessed peace, seeing the desert melt into the sky..... Dale's little shack at twilight and Brant grinning behind his pipe..... Dale leaned against the table and closed her eyes. The little sprig of sage brought the old dream very close.

Wearily, she gathered up the pencil scrawled sheets of Honey's letter and walked into the shaded living room.

After the bright sunshine of the hall this amber dusk was confusing. As Dale blinked uncertainly in the doorway she heard a sharp little exclamation. Someone rose in the shadows.

Dale's sun dazzled eyes caught a flash of something green.

Mimi—gathering the sheets of her letter together in confusion—almost running from the room.

Mimi—gathering the scene. The girl looked at Dale with rapidly clearing eyes.

That was it. She had always had ever seen Mimi lose poise. And why—

Dale's eyes went over to the chair where Mimi had been sitting. Something white on the floor—sheet of the letter. Dale leaning forward, with a sharp pain in her heart.....Brant's writing. She would know that bold angular hand anywhere. Brant wrote to Mimi!

In a bound Dale was across the room, holding the page with hands which shook, her heart pressing up in her throat to stifle her.

Brutally clear, the words leaped up at her:

"—the ghastly mockery of this marriage. I love you, too much, Mimi, to ever get over it. From the very beginning there has been anyone but you. If only the old scheme of things could have held!

"We take now, of course—but somehow I can't accept the fact that it is all over, Mimi. If you could know the misery I have been through.....

The words were flames scorching her brain, drying up the tears in her heart. Dale felt she was set and grey. The hand which held the pages did not tremble. Something dreadful was creeping over her.....

She read the written words again, and then slowly, drinking in the bitter meaning as deliberately as ever Socrates drank his cup of hemlock.

The middle sheet of a letter, evidently fallen from the rest when Mimi gathered up the loose pages. Dale did not need the others.

So..... It was all over. All she had struggled for. All she had fought for. It was over and oddly she could not feel it. Her body was numb. Her heart, the seat of deadened thought flashed into her mind. Was death like this? Numbness of the senses so that nothing seemed to matter much? And she stood alone in the centre of the floor listening to the quiet—the silence closing in upon her.

She looked at the photograph of Brant on the dresser. The picture was there, but the thought of him was not. Nothing real but the memory of his cold disdain—spreading about her.

Her hand crept up to clasp her mouth her chin in an old childish gesture of fright. Paper crackling.

The page of the letter she still held in her hand. She flung it from her as though it had been a snake. Pooling was revived with the gesture. Realization rushed in, stabbing her.

Alone.....she was alone. Stripped of everything! Every wave of sadness which was becoming an familiar, breaking over her again—rocking her—sweeping her into her depth. For a moment the physical anguish drowned the mental.

She groped blindly for the bed; fell across it and lay there, one arm flung out—across the other—the truth rushed upon her.

Stagering..... But indisputable! Blazing white light bursting through the darkness of her mind. Of course—of course! Why had she been so blind! Why hadn't she guessed before? For it answered it—obliterated the hideous fact of Brant's letter.

CHAPTER XX.

DALE FINDS THE ANSWER

Confusion, and Dale had not even dreamed. The next—she knew. Knew it beyond all doubt, with a quick shrinking of her cold face, fear and wonder in her eyes.

Her mind went back over the past. How had she been so blind? Why hadn't she guessed? Now, that she knew, everything was so plain

.....

Dale walked over to the window and stood twisting the cord, looking out quietly—dully who had been distracted. Everything was blotted out for the moment but the wonder of it. That she had decided almost fierce gladness which leaped in her heart. An instinctive, primitive sort of the recognition, for almost immediately it was swamped in its turn by doubt.

The brown eyes grew misty. Brant would think that she had walked out on him. Would he? A year ago six months ago even, the idea would have been preposterous. If she could go to Brant—creep into his arms, hold him and see the grey eyes go black with tenderness.....

A sob shook through Dale. Go to Brant? Now, when he had turned a love letter to Mimi! Brant—baking his head against her!

Suddenly Dale's pride was flaming—dangerous. All her grief turned to resentment and a fierce sense of ownership seized her.

Brant was not to think alone! She wanted no one's pity or help!

A quick fire put thought rearing through her brain. Something small and helpless, entirely dependent upon her. Could she have it? Oh, she could—she could! She would go away from Brant, who could write of the "ghastly mockery of this marriage" should never have a claim on her child.

She, who had been alone all her life would never be alone now. The child should be hers alone. If Brant knew, he would steal. "For the sake of the child" often she'd heard that said.....They kept on together for the sake of the child" a frail bridge of endurance flung across a chasm of unhappiness.

No! She'd have no such cheap substitute as that! She would not use her child to hold a man who had tired of her.

Suppose she and Brant separated—what then? Divorce and a monthly sum doled out to her as a living pension—his relations would think the "matchless" is gone. And—because he was the father, Brant would have a claim on her child. Part of the time the child would spend with him—and Mimi! A stab of hatred came at that which left Dale trembling.

No! Him alone! When he wrote that letter to Mimi, Brant forfeited all claim on his child. It would be hers. Compensation for the aching loneliness of the months behind her—and the months which stretched ahead.

Dale was suddenly cunning, with the frenzied cunning of a hunted animal, fleeing by its self to safety. If Brant came back—if he found how things were—she was trapped. Stephen, burdened as she would be, they could dictate their own terms. If she stayed on here, they would claim her child. A scandal, being their mode of life.

Thank way of thinking. Mrs. Kendall might love it, for Brant's sake, but she would make it all Kendall. Dale was only one. Dale found herself thinking wildly, how could she protect all of them?

"They shan't have it!" she said aloud. "It's mine—all mine!"

But—alone. The fear and the pain. The long terrifying months.

She was crying. Pressing frantic hands against her trembling lips. The poignant scent of sage..... that sprig of sage from Mona's letter which still clung to her hands.

Dale closed her eyes and drew a long shaking breath. She had found the answer.

Dust and sage blowing about Honey's desert store..... Honey's hard red arms about her protectingly..... Honey's voice, husky with tears. "We got a home waitin' for you if you should ever need it. Ain't much but our love'll make it soft....."

Yes. Love would make soft the bed of pain. Love would dull the edge of that sharp new fear.

Leaden calm came over Dale at the thought. Without Brant's love she didn't want it. Life—for her would have to live. Honey would help her.

Never again the sweet keen ecstacy, of love—the love she had given to Brant. But this other—this help of love for something small and helpless.....

Honey would help her.....

In a daze Dale dragged out a suitcase. She walked about the room, listlessly picking things up. Brant's photograph—that was always the first thing she thought of. She lifted it now and stood for a long moment studying it. The pictured eyes looked deep into her own. Cool, aloof, stern lips..... to think they had been lying.....

Dale put the picture down almost indifferently. She took a few dress from the closet. Folded it with precision. Another. Shoes. Underthings—ethereal pink wisps of crepe and georgette. The harvest of many a day shopping with Eleanor. Eleanor.....the thought of her was shadowy and, unreal. Yet Eleanor had hurt her too. Would she grow to feel this way about Brant? Monday would the dull hurt be gone from her heart and her thoughts come to flutter at his name?

It was all unreal. Unreal even when she strapped the suitcase, then she changed her clothes. She moved as one who walks in one's sleep, strangely deliberate.

Dale was going away. Going back to Honey. Less than $100 in bills under the handkerchief of her drawer. Brant had given that to her just before she left the city.

Dale took the money. Took the string of pearls Brant had bought for her in the west. That, and her diamond and wedding ring were her only valuable bits of jewelry.

Looking about the quiet room, in its last glance, Dale's eye fell on the crumpled sheet of letter, Dale's soft lips tightened grimly.

Oh, yes. One more thing.

15 MEMBERS ARE GIVEN AWARD

Life Saving Certificates Presented by M. P. Duff

Since last September fifteen members of the Y.M.C.A. have been successful in passing their tests for the National Y.M.C.A. Life Saving award, obtaining their certificates at the meeting held at the Y Parlors twelve o'clock when they were presented with the awards by Mr. M. P. Duff, President of the Association following which they enjoyed a social half hour together. The following members were recipients of the award: Misses Doris Gardner, Rhea Bush, Gladys Marsele, Evelyn Cole, Mona Hall, Harry Mountjoy, Jack Peoples, William Wright, Howard Kerr, Arthur Martin, Elton McMurtery, Douglas McBride, and Fred Hammond. Three other members, Misses Margaret Griffin, Grace Hoggard and Mr. Carl Gray were successful passed their tests and qualified for the award last August, making fifteen additions to obtain the award during the present season.

Three members who obtained their standing are deserving of no little credit as the tests they are required to pass are in no way easy and necessitated no end of practice and hard work in preparation. Mr. M. P. Duff in charge of the class were highly complimented by President Duff in the course of his remarks in the presentation of the awards. Examiners for the tests were Misses F. Bowen and Mr. Andrew of Albert College and Private Director Morden of the local Y. All members received their instruction during the Swim Club season earlier in the year. Special coaching Fall and Winter under the direction of the physical department.

MACMOTH PLANT ORDERED

Edmonton, March 5—(CP)—Expenditure of $50,000 to erect a full-equipped packing plant in north Edmonton is announced by Canada Packers Ltd., according to between 300 and 400 persons as soon as the plant is completed has been ordered by Canada Packers Ltd., according to a joint announcement issued today by the city commissioners and Percy W. Abbott, K.C., representative of the company.

A Scout is Thrifty—5th Scout Law.

The District Commissioner visited the Cub Pack of St. Andrew's Church at their Wednesday night meeting and was very pleased with the progress they are making. The following is a report submitted by the Cubmaster:

"There are 18 Cubs in the Pack, all of whom have passed their Tenderfoot Test. There are three Sixes, The Brown Wolves, the Grey Wolves and the Black Wolves, with Sixers Ray Anderson, Merv Damon and Roddy Cameron. The other Tenderpads are Norman Cameron, Arthur Jordan, Lorne Foley, Gordon Williamson, Donald Boyle, Gordon Cole, Bob Thompson, Alan Theobald, Bob Buxton, Arthur Jordan, Douglas Fisher, Ian Cameron, Bob McCrory, Harry Dennis and Lloyd Davis.

Two members of a Toronto Pack are now in this Pack, pending the arrival of Akela and Arthur Jordan. The latter has passed his first star test.

Last Wednesday evening the Pack received a new Totem Pole very well built by Ray Anderson and Phillip Fisher, Patrol Leaders of 4th Belleville Scout Troop. This is a marvelous addition to the Cub Pack equipment. It will be used in the opening and closing ceremonies in the Grand Howl.

The Pack is proceeding well as it is now entering Cubmaster, Chris. Thomas. Parents and Scouters are invited to visit the Cub meeting any Wednesday night at 6.45 p.m."

Little Benny's Note Book

Me and Glasses Magee was in bis back yard and I assistently happened to look in the ash barril to see if there was anything unusuall in it, with there was, being a lot of old bottles, mostly, some Scotch rost full and some almost empty, and Glasses said, My mother cleaned out the cellar this morning, and whenever she came by a bottle she said, I wonder if I remember what it was for, why she had throw it in.

And me and him started to count them, being a all different kinds and sizes especially red and brown, and I had a idear saying, Oh, hay, let's mix up some of every kind all in one bottle and maybe will be a new flavor of a grape juice or sumthing, if we can only find out what.

Which we started to do, pouring some out of each into the clenest and emptiest bottle Glasses saying, O, look at the color changing all the time, and that is one thing that proves how good it is. Let's take it around to Mr. White's drugstore and have the Mr. White will buy it off of us if we have him take the credit for it, I said.

Let's leave some of the follows taste it first so as if it makes them feel sny better, Glasses said.

Which we did, boxy. Guy all decided not to taist it after they smell it and we couldn't influence any of the rest to taist it without smelling it, first, and I said, Well it must be able to cure something or we wouldn't smell like that.

And we took it around to the drug story and asked Mr. White

Early County History

Names And Scenes of Eighty Years Ago in Canniton, Madoc, Marmora, Moira And Tweed

Trace the history of this section back eighty and more years ago and one may find many names that even today's local residents are familiar ones.

Hastings County eighty years ago was far from being an unsettled wilderness as is glimpse of old directories will show. From the Directory printed in the year 1857 by the John Lovell Company and now in the possession of Mr. Ross Thomson we find that Canniton—then spelled with only one "n"—Madoc and Rossmore numbered 900. It was described as "a village situated on the Moira River with considerable number of flouring and lumbering mills." Belleville from which it is three miles distant is 16 miles, and Madoc and Rossmore 21. Mail is received daily."

Among those living in Canniton at that time are included: William Bagley, surgeon; Amos Bridal, M.D.; James Bryce, manufacturer; Joseph Bunker, H. Bullen, boot and shoe manufacturer; John Bryce, grocer; John Cornell, post master and agent of the municipal council; Josef Camell, township councillor; Alexander Cole, reeve; Joseph Cornell, lumber merchant; Benjamin Clarke, general merchant; J. O. Farnsworth, Division court bailiff; J. J. Gonsolus, blacksmith; William Gordon, carriage and sleigh maker; Hibbard Nelson, tailor; Edward Hickey, grocer; Thomas Jones, lumber merchant; Richard Lindell, proprietor of the Moira House; David Johnson, tailor; William Naylor, shoemaker; William Powers, lumberjack; Joseph Pinkerton, lumberjack; Mrs. H. Teller, grocer; Stephen Washington, tailor; Stephen Young, Seth Washburn, bailiff; Robert White, innkeeper and Wright Leonard, gentleman.

Madoc eighty years ago was described as a flourishing village, listed as having a population of about 500, and a post office. It was described as six and one half miles away was Stirling, and three Howell, post master; Jacob Bateman, tavernkeeper; James Brightly, saloon keeper; Bruce and Caverly, blacksmiths and carriage makers; Robert Brown, merchant; Donald Campbell, bailiff; David Coons, physician and surgeon; Richard Corrigan, clerk of the municipal council; William Fox, grocer; Samuel Franklin, assessor; Charles Cream, clerk of the Division Court; William Gunn, miller; Charles Haight, Moira Reporter; M. F. Hayes, land agent for the Hastings Road; William Hogg, blacksmith; Rev. H. N. Howard, Episcopal pastor; Charles Johnson, Belleville shoe proprietor; Thomas Lingham, bailiff; Simon McKenzie, J. P.; tailor and township treasurer; C. D. O'Flynn, general store; Thomas Rapp, commissioner in Queen's bench and associate coroner; Frank Rose, physician and surgeon; Uriah Seymour, proprietor of the iron works; Rev. Alexander Sinclair, Presbyterian clergyman; Rev. Josiah Shaw, Methodist minister; A. F. Wood, post master, town councillor, general store keeper, marriage license issuer and police trustee.

Marmora eighty years ago numbered a population of about 600, according to the directory. Among the well known names of days gone by were included: John Abbot, furnace keeper; G. W. Bogart, dealer in dry goods, general groceries, produce, etc; B. G. Bowen, post master, dealer in dry goods, general groceries, etc.; W. F. Chisholm, grist mill owner; William G. Evans, bailiff of the Marmora Iron Works; Robert Harvey, master miner; Benjamin Johnson, J.P.; Benjamin Johnson, general store; Benjamin Holt, general merchant; Edward Johnson, timber keeper; William Ray, master collier; James Searritt, general store; Joseph Sloane, blacksmith; Thomas Warren carriage and sleigh maker; John Williams, forge manager.

The Village of Moira in the Township of Huntingdon, seventeen miles from Belleville, then had a population of about 150. Among the well known names were: Timothy Clark, dealer in ploughs; John Ferguson, John Forster, H. Mallen, boot and shoe manufacturer; John Bryce, grocer; John Cornell, post master and agent of the municipal council; Josef Camell, township councillor; Alexander Cole, reeve; Joseph Cornell, lumber merchant; Benjamin Clarke, general merchant; J. O. Farnsworth, Division court bailiff; J. J. Gonsolus, blacksmith; William Gordon, carriage and sleigh maker; Hibbard Nelson, tailor; Edward Hickey, grocer; Thomas Jones, lumber merchant; Richard Lindell, proprietor of the Moira House; David Johnson, tailor; William Naylor, shoemaker; William Powers, lumberjack; Joseph Pinkerton, lumberjack; Mrs. H. Teller, grocer; Stephen Washington, tailor; Stephen Young, Seth Washburn, bailiff; Robert White, innkeeper and Wright Leonard, gentleman.

Madoc eighty years ago was described as a flourishing village, listed as having a population of about 500, and a post office. It was described as six and one half miles away was Stirling, and three Howell, post master; Jacob Bateman, tavernkeeper; James Brightly, saloon keeper; Bruce and Caverly, blacksmiths and carriage makers; Robert Brown, merchant; Donald Campbell, bailiff; David Coons, physician and surgeon; Richard Corrigan, clerk of the municipal council; William Fox, grocer; Samuel Franklin, assessor; Charles Cream, clerk of the Division Court; William Gunn, miller; Charles Haight, Moira Reporter; M. Alexander Sinclair, Presbyterian clergyman; Rev. Josiah Shaw, Methodist minister; A. F. Wood, post master, town councillor, general store keeper, marriage what it was good for and if he wanted to buy it and put his own name on the label, and he smell it and even talsted it on the end of the cork, saying, It reminds me of some kind of medicine I have heard of.

That's just what it is, that's just why, me and Glasses said. And we told him how we invented it. Glasses said. We tried to get some of the other fellows to take some for a experiment, but they thurt they'd rather not.

If fancy it would be safer with me, if an offer of 3 cents tempts you, Mr. White said.

Which it did.

Good... Gardening

By DEAN MACLIDAY

Central Prison Canadian Garden

There are certain points to be observed in "hot" and "cold" garden-ing. Hotbed should be started early in March and allowed to "work" for a while before using. This procedure permits the hotbed to cool down somewhat before seed and plants are placed in it. Seeds should not be planted in a hotbed until the temperature of the soil it contains has dropped below 80 degrees. It is wise, however, to keep seeds or straw handy for covering the hotbed on very cold nights.

The best soil for use in a hotbed is one free from fertilizer and weed seeds. A compost of equal parts of clean sand, ordinary loam and fine, dry granulated peatmoss is excellent for hotbed purposes.

Once your hotbeds are in operation cold frames should be set up and covered with glass sash so the soil within the frame will warm up and dry out before being used for planting purposes. Because cold frames are more useful to the average home than hotbeds, more space should be provided for "cold" gardening. Note that all weeding may be accommodated when transplanting time arrives.

3RD SIDNEY

Third Sidney—The congregation at Aikens were privileged to hear the message of King Edward VIII on Sunday morning. Mr. Carman Grills having kindly installed his radio in the church for that purpose. The service that followed and the sermon by the Pastor, Rev. R. S. Johnson was patriotic throughout, and quite in keeping with His Majesty's message.

Mrs. A. Hinchliffe spent Wednesday of this week with Mr. and Mrs. Hazard of Smithfield. Mr. Hazard returning home with him to spend a few days with relatives in this district.

Mr. and Mrs. Murray Jeffrey visited the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rush, on Wednesday.

Mrs. Stanley Spafford spent a day this week with Mrs. Lee Grills.

Miss Marjorie Towner of Belleville spent a few days last week with Miss Edna Wheeler.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Grills spent Sunday with Mrs. Grills' sister, Mrs. Coyle of Brighton.

Miss Bertha Wooster is visiting friends in Belleville.

Santa Monica, Calif., March 5 (CP)—What with the movies and all, Hollywood's Mrs. William Morley has seen many things—even day breaks—in her time.

But, he reasoned, when 10 days and a sled suddenly go from the right side of the road to the left, and then back to the right, then to the left again, something is amiss. He stopped the team and arrested a driver charged with drunken driving of a dog sled.

Hollywood, Calif., March 6 — (CP)—Stephen Crane, 10-year-old movie star, has had a bump on his first just about her head when they offered her a job in the movies.

"Movie stars have to be thin," reasoned the youngster.

"The first of being thin. I want to be fat for awhile."

B. C. I. Rap Home Four Goals In Last Frame to Enter The Interscholastics Finals

Defeat London South 6-5 in Wide Open Exciting Game

MANY PENALTIES

Team Will Meet Either North Bay or Ottawa This Afternoon

Toronto, Ont., Mar. 7 (CP)—Four goals in the final period gave Belleville a 6-5 decision over London South here last night and a place in the finals for the Ontario Interscholastic Hockey championship. Belleville meets Ottawa Tech, who defeated North Bay 7-2.

Each team had a goal in a fast first period of thrilling play. Belleville were worried often but each was keeping his fort untouched. In the third period Belleville counted thrice the period's only London goals over the goalie in successive order. The penalties on account of the high speed with which were in a bad spot with Williams and McKenzie roosting in the sin bin for the former. Then Jack Cargall, London South defenceman, relieved the monotony by breaking up a Belleville power play at his end of the ice and skated down the whole length of the rink to score with Bill Hall perched on his back. The goals were still shortstacked at 12.07 when Belleville's defence was weakened. The visitors got the stumbling goal when Rowbotham scored from in front of the lads Bonsall's pass from the boards and beat goalie McKenzie's outstretched arm.

The teams scored a goal apiece in the hectic second period. Belleville clicked; when Logie balled Green's peanut home during a rather mixed scramble in front of goalie and Muir served penalties together and London finally scored when Bonsall's shot fell but McKenzie's pass with only the goalie to beat. Logie's goal was a thing of strength when McKenzie reached front and to one side and Bonsall's drive, which he planted high in the twine to knot the count again. Soon after that Logie and Wyndham lost McKenzie's pass with only the goalie to beat. Williams' shot was blocked by Jimmy Rhoes about Parnell's opportunity, and London South was two men short again. The jab damage followed.

Score Four In Row.

London South sacked the first goal of the last period and held for a lead at 3-2, but Belleville replied by rapping in three goals in succession. Green after the session opened Shaw scored his second goal of the game for South with a shot from the goalmouth in just in Williams' direction. The lead had been in a defensive style that did not work, for Muir tipped Morgan's pass into the corner and Logie did the rest.

London South was two short and Belleville one when Jimmy Rhoes, when Johnson stole the rubber at the London blue line and fired a clear shot to score an easy one. The visitors had a man in the penalty box at 14.27 when Muir broke out of his own defence and sailed down unopposed to net number five. Less than two minutes left Darry got by South's lone man-mark in centre ice to beat in the final goal.

Line-ups:

Belleville—Goal, Mouck; defence, Derry and Logie; centre, Reaska; wings, Muir and Johnson; goal, McKenzie, Rowbotham and Green.

London South—Goal, McKenzie; defence, Cargall and Parnell; centre, Williams; wings, Peavey and Shaw; subs, Dennis, Kimber, Norfolk and McKenzie.

Referee—Hines and Legg.

Fred Douglas Host At 5th Anniversary

Automotive service men will see the big reel films showing automobile and airplane speed events at a trades meeting Tuesday evening, sponsored by Gerags Supply Company Limited, local tires and oil distributors. The party will be held in Masonic Hall, Front street, manager of the company, announced.

FRED DOUGLAS

final two hundred service men from garages and car dealer establishments throughout Ontario. Free admission tickets which have been distributed to all garages in the district, Gerags said.

Movies of speed and skyways.

The film, "Speeding Up" was produced by Thompson-Starrett, Inc., Cleveland, automobile and airplane parts manufacturers. It traces the development of the modern car and airplane and stresses the co-operation which has existed between pilots and plane designers. The news reel views, often lasting in part of reels, were selected from the libraries of large film companies, many of the pictures never released to motion picture houses, according to Mr. Douglas.

As door prizes at the meeting, the company is distributing copies of a recently published book on auto racing, "Wild Roadsters," written by Ralph De Palma, former national champion, now employed by Thompson Products, Inc., as a sales engineer, as well as other useful gifts.

Tuesday's trade meeting marks the Garage Supply Company's fifth anniversary in the community. Aside from the race picture which also shows interesting scenes in the manufacture of automotive and airplane parts, the company's program will cover various subjects aimed at raising the standard of automobile repair work.

SIGNALLERS WIN CUP SECOND TIME

Scored Highest Number of Points For Series of Six Shoots

The 34th Battery, R.C.A. finished their series of six shoots for the Gibson trophy on the local rifle range last night, the winning the series of six weekly shoots, won in 1933 by the Signallers. CAGE TEAMS OF B. C. I. VICTORS IN TWO MATCHES

Juniors Boys Win Group Honors, While Seniors Girls Win

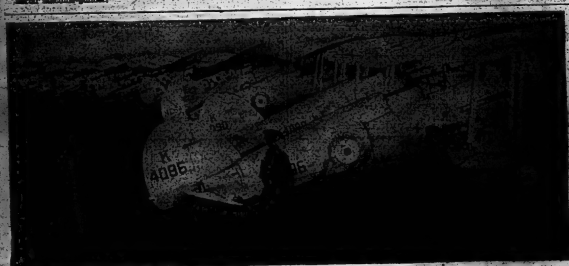
JUNIOR GIRLS LOSE

By Winning, Trenton Girls Annex Group Honors in Junior Series

The Belleville Collegiate Junior boys cage team won group honors in the O.G.S.S.A. by virtue of their 37 to 26 victory over Trenton Tuesday night here at the Belleville Collegiate gymnasium, last evening in one of three games of basketball played. In the other two games the B.C.I. V.I.S. senior girls defeated the Trenton High School girls to the tune of 39 to 28, while the B.C.I. junior girls were bowed to the Trenton junior sidemists 22 to 14.

In downing the Trenton boys, Coach Laughlin's B.C.I. juniors played in good form, and by shifting and handled the ball more speedily around the basket for the shots from the barrier to the wire, the half-time found them leading 18 to 10 to qualify the "Collegiate" Martin and Marshall led the B.C.I. marksmen with eight points each, but Wright and Hary scored six with Noakes pretty close behind, getting five. Thornton's one basket each to complete the count. It was a free throw duel for point-palmer for the visiting Trentonians with ten points, while Noakes scored a brilliant three, and Wright and Vandevalker bagged two each, while Gilbert got the only Quinte honors by the B.C.I. juniors. Belleville will meet Trenton to compete in the O.G.S.S.A. finals as Toronto next month.

The line-ups: Belleville—Martin, Wright, Noakes, Price, Kerr, Moon, Marshall, Vandevalker, Thornton and Carson. Trenton H.S.—Millman, Mason, Foster, Wright, Hary, Burns, Fraker, Galbraith and Vandewater. Referee Wally Hillson of Belleville.

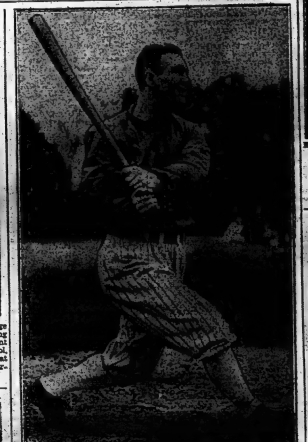


Girls Divide Games

In the two opening games of the night's triple-header the Trenton juniors met defeat at the hands of the B.C.I.V.S. junior 37 to 14, but annexed the junior flag at group league 1936 championship in so doing while the B.C.I. seniors won 39 to 28 over the Trenton senior girls. The senior game Nan Symons was the star in the line of the Belleville team, as her team's two total points, while Gerry Gerow was the star for the visitors with Gerow two. E. Scales was the big point-getter for the Trenton senior girls with 12 points to her credit. M. Kinney getting the remainder of the points. The B.C.I. defence of M. Scott and M. Chapman proved a stumbling block for the local seniors as Miss Allison's entire senior team showed too much speed for the girls. Miss Riley, Mary Schuster and Phil Wright officiated to make the two games combination.

Line-ups: — B.C.I.V.S. Seniors—39 —centre, Nan Symons, forwards, P. Tufts and S. Reddick; guards, E. Allison and C. Chapman. Subs—J. Gerow, P. Wright and H. Scott. Trenton—28—centre, Gerry Gerow; forwards, E. Scales and Miss Big point-getter for the Trenton team was Miss Gerow with her credit,

SOVIET LAUNCHES VIGOROUS CAMPAIGN TO ACHIEVE AIR SUPREMACY—Indications that Russia regards war as imminent in Europe are found in a recent interview with Stalin, and in a campaign to train at least one pilot for every 1,000 inhabitants of the Soviet Union, now being carried on. Such a program would give the Soviets a flying force of 180,000. As a photo show, Russia already is paying great attention to her air fleet. Above (LEFT) a woman pilot; (RIGHT), a Soviet fighting aeroplane; below (LEFT), a Russian parachute jumper and (RIGHT), an early machine-gunner.



BRITISH FIGHTERS LINED UP READY FOR "BOMBING RAID" ON LONDON—When 73 bombing aeroplanes raided London recently they were met by these 73 fighting aeroplanes. In the manoeuvres that followed in the skies above the British capital, Britain's drastic re-armament program totals more than one-fourth her total budget this year. In turning out thousands of new aeroplanes, like those shown above at Hornchurch, automobile factories have found it more profitable than the manufacture of motor cars.

NEW ENGLISH CIVILIAN AIR RAID SCHOOL—In addition to huge appropriations for Army, Navy and air forces, Britain is also opening up civilian air raid schools to teach the populace what to do in event of an attack. Halswell Park, former home of the Earl of Liverpool, in Bridford, Gloucestershire, is being converted into such a school at a cost of £75,000. Above is seen Instructor-Commander Heard (wearing cloak) illustrating his lecture.

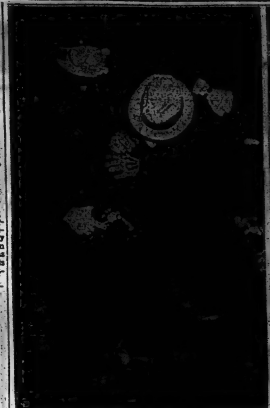
LOU BACK FOR ANOTHER SEASON OF SLUGGING—Old soldiers never die they say, but apparently baseball's iron man Lou Gehrig doesn't even fade away. Here is the star New York Yankee first baseman and slugger, up to bat for the first time in 1936 at training camp. Since he teamed up with the Yanks in 1925, Lou has played in 1,833 consecutive games, and he hasn't given any indication of hanging that habit. The former record was 1,307, now far behind the durable Gehrig's mark. He expects to take his stand at the plate on opening day without fail, just as he has for the last ten years.

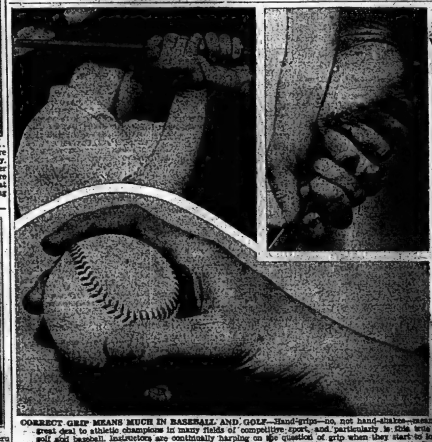
ESCAPES DEATH—Stalinist parliament was thrown into confusion when an opposition deputy fired four shots at Premier Milan Stoyadinovich. The Premier was not hit, and calmly finished his speech as the deputy was arrested.

Al Simmons



BATTERED SIMMONS — Sr. Al Simmons, whose outfit once went over .400 in baseball's Athletics and then in Chicago White Sox, seems well satisfied with life as he shrugs training camp routine with Detroit Tigers. The baseball champions signed Al's big bat to help them up and in their drive for another pennant.

KINKS REMOVED—What's this, frosting on a rookie? Well, there aren't many kinks left, anyway. That's what George Gallhamer and Lake Sewell, catchers, figure anyway as they finish this job at the Chicago White Sox training camp.



FOREIGN MINISTER — Shigeru Yoshida, former Japanese ambassador to Italy, has been named foreign minister of Japan. Yoshida fills the post held until recently by Koki Hirota. Hirota was commanded by Emperor Hirohito to form a post-mutiny government. He accepted the role of premier and the delicate task of forming a new cabinet.

VIOLENCE PLAGUES IN NEW YORK BUILDING SERVICE STRIKE—As darkness settled over New York City violence spread in the strike of the city's building workers, and these scenes illustrate two of the more violent incidents of the labor trouble. LEFT, a policeman is seen subduing a strike demonstrator on Central Park West. The striker—or sympathizer—or saboteur—hurled a brick through the door of one of the big apartment dwellings which face Central Park on this street, and the clattering glass brought the officer on the run. When the brick heaver would not halt, the cop fired into the air ending the chase, and when, after catching up with his quarry, the man showed fight, the cop went to work on him with one fist, his billy in the other hand. RIGHT, a demonstrator hurling a heavy basket through the glass door of a Park Ave. apartment house

STICKS, FISTS FLY AS SPECTATORS JOIN HOCKEY FIGHT—Climax to a fight between Hector "Toe" Blake of Montreal Canadiens and Ebbie Goodfellow of Detroit Red Wings at the latter's hockey arena came when spectators joined hockeyists in an attack on Blake as he was led off the ice. After a near riot, police managed to put the quietus on the melee, but only after sticks and fists were brought into use. The trouble all started when Blake struck Goodfellow from the rear with his stick after a private scrap, according to observers. Equal to this and other hockey fights was decision of the N.H.L. board of governors to levy an automatic fine of $100 upon any player swinging his stick in belligerent manner at another player.

CORRECT GRIP MEANS MUCH IN BASEBALL AND GOLF—Hand-grips—no, not hand-dikes—mean a great deal to athletic champions in many fields of competitive sport, and particularly in this twin of golf and baseball. Instructors are continually harping on the question of grip when they start to lower four-stroke score, so here we show how a standout champion grabs her club. It's Miss Patty Berg, 18-year-old Minneapolis girl sensation. At the left, Patty's backswing is illustrated. Note the wrist flexibility, the straight left arm, as she keeps her eye on the ball. At the right is shown overlapping finger grip which Miss Berg favors rather than the interlocking style. The small finger of the right hand overlaps the index finger of the left to give smoothness of backswing, stroke and follow through. Then below is pictured the method that Walter Johnson, Jr., uses to deliver a baseball when he wants to bend over a fast one. He is a son of the veteran hurler, Walter, Sr., and is trying out for a major league pitching career with Philadelphia Athletics. A knowledge of how to grip the ball is a prime requisite of baseball fingers in securing control and putting "stuff" on their pitches, and the former Big Train of Washington has probably groomed his son in this also.

British Foreign Secretary Tells Council British Confidence Shaken

By G. H. ANDERSON

London, Mar. 9 (AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told Parliament today any attack upon France in violation of the spirit of the Locarno Treaty would "drive Great Britain to go to the assistance of France."

At the same time, he told the House of Commons he was shocked to say there was no reason to suppose the German government action implies a threat of hostilities."

Condemnation of Hitler Press.

The Foreign Secretary declared Great Britain was willing to consider Reichsführer Hitler's proposals for new peace covenants.

He stated the British position should be clarified, declared it was clearly desirable to do this, because no one can view with the stabilizing force of clear-sighted and united British determination the defiance of Europe at this juncture."

House of Commons was packed to the doors to hear the statement the British position in this moment when Germany has violated the Locarno Treaty by invading troops into the demilitarized Rhineland and France has retaliated with the wartime garrisoning of her fortifications along the frontier.

British United Made.

Every important embassy accredited to London was represented in the diplomatic gallery.

Eden was observed as he rose to speak. He had had protracted interviews with Ambassador von Hoesch against Germany's reoccupation of the Rhineland and he had stated to the effect upon British public opinion would be deplorable.

He told the ambassador," said Eden, "that I deeply regretted he had given me no intimation about the action the German government was taking in respect to the demilitarized zone and I stated that it amounted to a unilateral repudiation of a treaty freely negotiated and freely signed.

The minister told the legislators the course of the British government "complicates and aggravates the international situation."

British Opposition.

"The abrogation of the Locarno Pact and the occupation of the demilitarized zone," declared Eden, "have produced a profound confidence in any engagement in which the government of Germany may in the future enter."

150,000 Frenchmen Stand Guard on Rhineland Front

Reservists Called Out of Nearby Villages And Poilus Fill Up French Subterranean Fortifications

Metz, France, Mar. 9 (AP)—Four French forts, swift pursuit planes of frontier incidents and a dirigible along the border today as French and German troops faced one another on the Rhineland frontier for the first time since the Great War.

The Metz, Strasbourg and Nancy headquarters of the tricolor frontier regiments were cleared of troops in the quick movement to fill the subterranean fortresses along that line of the Rhine border.

Officers said the French fortifications in some places were "within machine gun distance" of the newly arrived Hun troops on the left bank of the Rhine.

In Depth of Forts.

At least 100,000 French troops were in the underground forts of France's famous steel and concrete line of defense and in advance patrol posts.

Army officers, who said the German troops across the frontier numbered about 50,000, expressed "no fears" of frontier incidents. Some called incidents "over-dramatized."

Determined to end any flights of German "observation" planes over today a treaty-free charge in the event of a leakage.

Then came the fall accompli. As the moment of reoccupation became plain the attention in the German capital shifted to Hitler.

And this new decisive episode of the United history with a general burst of jubilation.

After that return to work and to the accompaniment of cheering, the smoke and thunder arising about Germany.

It would be safe to say Germany would follow this formula during the Rhineland occupation, if measures are carried.

Border Incident Prevented.

Every effort to avoid border incidents or to create international alarm by premature display of force was foreseen.

The British government felt it had given France and the rest of Europe a great deal in having published Hitler of Europe by its offers to conclude new pacts and re-enter the League of Nations, as set forth last Saturday with the denunciation of the Locarno Pacts.

Willhelmstrasse authorities held it was not up to Germany to make any clear explanations and Hitler's exposition on the Locarno Pact was so clear-cut that it was considered complete.

His proposals for non-aggression and air pacts were also considered concrete it was now up to others to say why they were acceptable or unacceptable.

Whether Germany would send reinforcements to the League of Nations Council session, called for Friday, was not known. Hitler's speech against the German action, was not yet known.

Watch on Rhine Consolidated; Rhineland Joyed at 'Freedom'

By MELVIN K. WHITELEATHER

Cologne, Germany, March 9.—(AP)—The watch on the Rhine, hailed by Adolf Hitler as symbolical of an equal Germany, worked today to consolidate its position in the remilitarized Rhineland.

While military airplanes soared overhead, staff settled down to the routine duties after a week-end of frenzied celebration.

Rhinelanders waited in happy anticipation a visit from General Werner von Blomberg, Minister of War, and his staff to inspect the new garrisons.

Party leaders even hoped Hitler himself might come to receive personally the Rhineland's gratitude for "the freedom he has given it."

Informed quarters, however, were inclined to believe von Blomberg and Hitler will wait until after the League of Nations Council meets in order not to make the reoccupation too ostentatious.

Between 15,000 and 20,000 German troops had moved into the frontier land by today. Eleven garrisons, according to an official announcement, were established in Dusseldorf, Cologne, Aachen, Bonn, Coblenz, Mannheim, Frankfurt, Karlsruhe, Trier, Saarbrucken and Mainz.

Secret Plan, Fait Accompli, Rejoicing, Return to Work: Steps in Hitler Technique

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

Berlin, Mar. 9 (AP)—A nation-wide celebration, with a pledge of loyalty from every regional army, hastened Adolf Hitler today against the agitation today formal action to end his new decisive episode of the United history with a general burst of jubilation.

After that return to work and to the accompaniment of cheering, the smoke and thunder arising about Germany.

It would be safe to say Germany would follow this formula during the Rhineland occupation, if measures are carried.

Hitler Technique.

As far as could be ascertained from Wilhelmstrasse sources and unofficial informants, no further surprises were to be expected from the German side at this time.

The Hitler technique, so often repeated as to be considered classic, is this:

Prepare action in every detail behind a thick veil of concealment. Perhaps play up some other special cause to absorb secrecy, as peace and

FEAR DUMPING U.S. FURNITURE BOARD IS TOLD

Manufacturers Request The Intermediate Tariff be Raised 15 Per Cent

DUMP SURPLUS CLAIM

Delegation Apprehensive One of These Periods in Offing

Ottawa, March 9—(CP)—Dumping of United States furniture into Canada in the event of a depression in the near future which Canadian manufacturers feared, James H. Ferguson, Secretary of the Furniture Association of Toronto, told the Tariff Board here today.

There were lines, he said, when conditions in the republic compelled the full production of American factories while at all times when purchasing was slack these same factories dumped their surplus in the Canadian market.

Having regard to the tariff concessions contained in the Canada-United States Reciprocity Pact, together with the payment of lowered purchasing in the United States, the Canadian manufacturers were so organized that they could meet dumping of dumping was in the offing.

The Association asked the intermediate tariff, accorded the United States under the trade agreement, be boosted from 7½ per cent to 15 percent. Since most-favored nation treatment, as enjoyed by the United States under the treaty, reduced the duty by a further 25 per cent, the Association's request would bring the tariff up from 27 per cent to 40 2-3 per cent.

NO GUN-IN-CAR YOUTHS DECLARE

Also Deny Being in Markham on February 28

Windsor, Ont., March 9.—(CP) Chief Constable John Patterson of Essex said today that the two Detroit youths questioned regarding the fatal shooting here May 28 of Edward Stonehouse at Markham, near Toronto, had admitted they had been in Markham.

The chief said the three said they passed through Toronto on the same way west from Montreal but did not go to Markham. They by-passed north of Toronto.

The youths were arrested early Sunday on charges of breaking into garages at Essex, 9 miles east of Windsor, and of unlawfully carrying a .38 calibre Luger pistol. In Detroit police said the youths when they pleaded not guilty to both charges and were remanded until March 17.

The three Montrealers said they were Ronald Mason, James Murray and Waller Johnston.

Mason faced the charge of unlawfully having a pistol in his possession, police said, but Murray replied "your honor, we never had a gun in our car."

Mason said the boys told conflicting stories about ownership of the automobile when they were driving. One claim was that it was bought from a man at Cornwall for $5.

Murray said he was born on the old July 11, 1935; Johnson said he was on last September 30 and that Mason the Magistrate he was 18, March 1, 1936.

Edward Stonehouse and his son, Edward, tried to prevent theft of an automobile on the night of June 28. The father died last Friday. The boy is still in the hospital in Toronto.

SOVIET UNION BACKS FRANCE

Range Itself at Side of Republic to Check Rhineland

Paris, March 9 (CP-Havas)—The Soviet Union today definitely ranged itself at the side of France in demanding the evacuation of the Rhineland by Germany as soon as the League of Nations Council rules the Reich has violated the Locarno Treaty, as is expected.

Soviet Ambassador Vladimir Potemkin gave this formal assurance to Foreign Minister Pierre-Etienne Flandin this morning in a conference at the Quai D'Orsay.

Moving Armies Bring League to Face Crisis

Belgium Joins France in Appeal to League of Council Against Military Occupation of Rhineland Zone

(By Joseph E. Sharkey)
(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

Geneva, March 9—(AP)—Belgium joined France in an appeal to the League of Nations Council today against Germany's violation of the Locarno Pact by military occupation of the Rhineland, bordering on both France and Belgium.

League officials said the Belgian appeal, which arrived today was along the same lines as that from France last night, calling for a council session as soon as possible to deal with the crisis so suddenly precipitated.

A council session was called for Friday and officials said Germany and Belgium as parties to the dispute would be invited to take seats about the Council table when the occasion against Germany was expected.

Armies on the move on two continents brought the League face to face with a double-barrelled crisis today, Germany ordered into the Rhineland threatening gravely the peace of the world and the existence of the league.

Secretary of late Radio Interests in the vicinity of Tweed, Madoc, Deloro and other North Hastings communities, has been engaged by the station of local broadcasts and said that the station's facilities and the quality would be better than from other more high-powered stations. The Belleville Police radio station operates on 1690 kilocycles equal to 1775 meters.

PERSON LOCATED AFTER BROADCAST

Man Informed of Illness of Mother in Desmond

The Belleville Police Department radio station CJBL proved highly efficient when the latter part of the week in matter of locating missing persons who were reported by friends and relatives. Broadcasts were made over the local police radio station with results that were highly satisfactory.

At 8.45 p. m. Sunday afternoon Chief Frank Bowen, Detective Desmond communicated with the local department in regard to the locating of Mr. R. J. Dafoe, Toronto, who had recently moved to Belleville and was residing on Bridge street. In this city he was unknown. Mr. Dafoe was urgently wanted in Desmond, Ont., owing to illness in the family of relatives, the report stated. Immediately the broadcast was made by the Detachment of the Mission, the Rev. T. E. H. Hall, pressident and secretary of the Ex-Service Men's Club of the Layton or Hands in the Apostolic Bible of Confirmation. The address delivered by the Bishop to the congregation in general was inspiring and his remarks made directed to the candidates were most impressive and inspiring. The Rev. A. L. Geen assisted in the service.

During the service Mr. Crawford Hall, son of the Rev. T. E. H. Hall and Mrs. Hall, was invested by the Bishop with a Lay Reader's Badge of the Diocese of Ontario, and seven members of the vested choir were presented with the Bishop's gift of merit. The medals were made in Belleville by Messrs. Belleville-Sargent Company and were much admired by the congregation.

In addition to the public confirmation service at the Mission, Bishop Lyons visited the home of an aged lady, a member of the Mission congregation, and administered privately to her the rite of Confirmation.

FRENCH LINE UP EUROPEAN STATES

understood in informed Polish quarters Poland gave the French Ambassador Lukasiewicz the assurance she would carry out faithfully her obligations under the French alliance treaty.

Refusing to examine Hitler's proposals for a collective security system "under the menace" of German troops on the Rhineland frontier, the Council of the League organization, called a Paris conference of the League signatories, Britain, France, Belgium and Italy, for tomorrow.

Diplomats strove for rapid formulation of a proposal for League of Nations action at the council session, called for Friday and Premier Flandin appointed to Geneva against the German move.

The French government reinforced its diplomatic campaign with a special military mission to London.

Troop-laden trucks rumbled over roads to the east, to the fortress region of armed forces in border forts.

In the cabinet, after its session yesterday at which Germany's action was declared unacceptable, the case was carried to the League and the text of communications, one to Britain was called, announced in a communique.

Premier Felix Maurin, Minister of War, reported on security measures he applied from the first moment and troop movements were ordered by the government.

"He, as well as the Ministers of Air and Navy, approved these complementary measures as the circumstances might require," it said.

Nazis to Seize Stand

Nazi leaders in Germany told the British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden's proclamation of the Rhineland zone of Germany today of the British stand in the crisis, to the Reichstag and Chancellor here tonight, now between Eden and Pierre-Etienne Flandin.

France's Foreign Secretary also arranged conference talks today with Premier Flandin, Premier Paul Van Zeeland of Belgium and Foreign Ministers Joseph Beck, Polonaise, Rumania and Yugoslavia.

Authoritative sources understood it to be contingent on using of League machinery, "bilateral" negotiations, the sources said; would indicate a move in that direction was taken.

Justification for the act was based on the argument that the Franco-Soviet pact was infinitely more pernicious to the peace of Europe than the Italo-Ethiopian conflict.

Germany told Flandin yesterday it formed no part of it, and Premier Mussolini was ready to support Premier Flandin before it the League discarded proposals for further war pending the "pacification" and the administration of present sanctions.

Seal Hitler Actions

Premier Albert Sarraut's cabinet decided to call the League to re-examine his condemnation of Italy as an Ethiopian aggressor, these sources said, in the hope economic and financial sanctions would be ended.

With the way thus cleared for full collaboration with France against Germany, officials looked for the extreme firmness displayed by France to soften Great Britain's stand, which the French feared might be directed toward attempted conciliation with Germany, rather than firm opposition.

Diplomats anticipated the general plan, which the French hoped would be the basis of discussion of the old Stresa united front of France, Britain and Italy, would be discussed by representatives of the Locarno powers gathering at their meeting here tomorrow.

The precise measures to be proposed to the powers after a French demand to the council to condemn Germany as a violator of agreements were left to the decision of the Locarno guarantors.

The French anticipated British, Belgian and Italian support in asking the League to denounce the Reich formally.

Council Session Mark.

French leaders said sanctions might be imposed upon Germany at last unprovided doubt as to whether Italy would swing into such a campaign after denouncing those already applied against Italy.

The noted foreign affairs expert, Pertinax, asserted in the Echo de Paris France would be supported at Geneva by the Little Entente, the Balkan Entente, the Soviet Union and Italy.

The most important question, this commentator said, remained—what action will Great Britain take?

PEACE BASIS DAMAGED—EDEN

This statement was greeted with cheers by the members.

"There can be no one in this House," he said, "concerned with the Foreign Secretary, who would wish to condone or excuse such a step."

Now At Security of Treaties.

"It strikes a severe blow at the principle of the whole series of treaties which underlies the whole structure of international relations."

At the same time, Eden indicated Great Britain was not prepared to consider Hitler's proposals for new peace covenants.

"We do not think that we should examine them clear-sightedly and objectively with a view to negotiation," he said, "unless they present the basis of new peace."

Hope For Amelioration.

"In the present grave condition of international affairs, His Majesty's government think it necessary that there must be missed which offers any hope of amelioration."

Premier Stanley Baldwin and Lord Halifax, the Lord Privy Seal, would represent Britain at the forthcoming meeting of the League of Nations Council at Geneva.

"In case there should be any misunderstanding about our position at present by the Locarno Pact," said Eden, "His Majesty's government think it is important that we should there take place during the period of the present crisis consideration of the new situation which has arisen, any actual attack upon which by Germany would constitute a violation of article 2 of the Treaty of Locarno. His Majesty's government, notwithstanding the German repudiation of that treaty, would regard themselves as in honor bound to come, in the manner provided by that treaty, to the assistance of the country attacked."

House Silent, Intent.

As Eden made this declaration, the House of Commons was silent, intent, tense, with every member and visitor leaned forward, straining to catch every word of the statement.

The question of Germany's repudiation of the Treaty of Locarno would go before the League of Nations, he added, and there also would take place in the interval any actual attack upon France or Belgium which would constitute violation of Article 2 of the Treaty of Locarno, and then British governments, notwithstanding the German repudiation of that treaty, would regard itself as in honor bound to come in the manner provided by that treaty to the assistance of the country attacked."

House Cheers.

As outburst of cheering greeted Eden's emphatic declaration. Every bench in the House was packed. Every diplomatic and consular chair filled the seats reserved for diplomats, ambassadors and their staffs were very overflowed. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner, sat in the gallery reserved for visitors in the front row of the Dominions' seats.

In the members' gallery sat Sir Samuel Hoare, whose unexpected whose resignation had followed the abortive Hoare-Laval Ethiopian peace formula, as Secretary of State for large paper pad.

Hope Not Abandoned.

Eden made his statement at the end of the usual question hour. Then, after a brief statement of such vital import is followed by a flood of questions, supplementary to those the parties recognized the need for discussion and consultation with the Dominions. Celement Attlee of the Labor party, who had put the original question which brought Mr. Eden's statement, asked if opportunity would be given later for debate.

Prime Minister Baldwin in view of the circumstances was non-committal.

Sir Austen Chamberlain, former Secretary, asked if the German proposals for new non-aggression pacts applied only to her eastern and western neighbors or extended to Germany's neighbors on the south and furthermore in the coming negotiations would the Foreign Secretary bear in mind the necessity of safeguarding the independence of Austria.

"I understand," Eden replied, "that the offer is to all eastern and western neighbors." On the independence of Austria he replied simply, "yes."

Secretary of Pass Words

Resulting from the preceding statement which previously had been approved by the cabinet Mr. Eden declared the history of the last few dramatic days—since Friday he had intensively studied the position, to discuss a western air pact, how the day following the Locarno powers had met and handed him a memorandum which stated that in the German view the Franco-Soviet pact created an entirely new situation which called for a political meeting of the Locarno Treaty.

The German government held for Locarno Treaty had ceased in practice to exist, that Germany consequently regarded herself for her part as free. That Germany had in this no longer valid treaty, and therefore intended to assume unrestricted sovereignty in the demilitarized Rhineland.

Hitler's Offer.

"Eden recounted details of Chancellor Hitler's accompanying peace offer, how Germany was prepared to re-enter the League of Nations. Then Eden described how astounding he deeply regretted Germany's action in regard to the demilitarized zone, his ambassador would appreciate," he continued, "that it amounted to a unilateral repudiation of a treaty freely negotiated and freely signed." Cheers and loud applause interrupted the reading of Eden's statement.

"Now I had a clear recollection," Eden proceeded, "of the statement which Chancellor Hitler made to me when I met him in Berlin on the subject of non-fortification. Therefore he had drawn a clear distinction between that treaty and the Treaty of Locarno. I was aware, I told the ambassador, of the view of the German government that the Franco-Soviet pact was incompatible with the Locarno Treaty.

Hope Not Abandoned.

"I stress the word 'incompatible' which underlies the whole structure of international relations."

At the same time, Eden indicated Great Britain was not prepared to consider Hitler's proposals for new peace covenants.

"We do not think that we should examine them clear-sightedly and objectively with a view to negotiation unless they present the basis of new peace."

Hope For Amelioration.

West Huntingdon

West Huntingdon—Spring seems to be on its way. The birds are beginning to arrive. The snow is growing less every day. The month of March will soon be past history, but will long be remembered as a month of snow and with the greatest amount of snow bringing a record for many years. In fact the people are determined to make an extinct of it, as now can no later no doubt very deep.

There will be two Sunday services to have a motto for our new King, Edward VIII on next Sunday. The boys who attended Bath Church will on Sunday School. The reception was very good.

Our Quartette is being called on the hockey team. A large number belonged to Stirling. We were very sorry to witness the game on Tuesday evening and here's hoping they will bring home the silver-ware.

On Thursday evening a large number of people gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. E. Wheeler, and presented him with a beautiful chair. Mr. Wheeler thanked them for the gift. Mr. Wheeler has been a resident of this village for many years and is highly respected by all. We wish him many years of happiness in his new home.

Rev. Harold Turner was elected minister of the congregation of this charge and in a humorous brief speech during the course of the meeting Mr. Turner thanked the following address:

West Huntingdon, March 5, 1936.
Dear Pals and Mates—

Thanks for your friendship and make gather, we ended hour in your house. We are glad to see you and welcome you to our community and our sincere wish is that health and happiness may always attend you.

It was the anticipation of your visit, when the birds of spring and early flowers are busting into bloom, may they be but symbol of the song and beauty that yet will be thrown in your own experience and in middle age, the autumn of life's journey, we fondly hope that your harvest and fruitage will abundantly bless the business in the best of the days. And last, but not least, when the sunshine and brightness of summer have become the sombre hues of autumn, may the golden sheaf of the garner of thanksgiving and an ever gracefully accompany you.

We shall always follow your movements with interest, and trust that you will find a welcome in your new home. We extend to you our best wishes for a long and happy wedded life, and ask you to accept this small token of our esteem. Signed on behalf of the community — Clayton Wright, Thos. Cheeseman.

The young couple were presented with two handsome occasional chairs also an end table.

On behalf of himself and wife Mr. Wheeler made a suitable reply. The rest of the evening was spent in a social way.

The Ladies Branch of W. I. held a meeting at the home of Mrs. Albert Hall on Thursday afternoon. This concert will commence by a grand march of Stirling Boy Scouts directed by Mr. Glen Ward.

The six piece orchestra composed of Stan. Hilton, pianist, Kenneth Hilton, violin, and C. Wes Hilton, saxophone, J. Ward, cornet, W. Hough, trombone and Stan. Hilton, clarinet rendered the largest number on the program. Following each Farnsworth gave an exhibition of boxing. Hilton and Hilton, pals, Hilton and Hough and Farnsworth gave some excellent wrestling demonstrations. A telephone game was introduced by younger boys as a variation in programme. A gramophone solo was rendered with by Samuel Kendrick, receiving the largest applause of the game. An auction sale was also conducted, when Goldie Murray proved to be the man to the highest bidder. Mr. Stanley Rollin gave a couple of piano solos. Mr. Don Hall and Mr. Ernest Armstrong demonstrated some amazing tricks. A vote of appreciation was extended to this Brownie event and Hough of Roy Hilton and Mrs. Stan. Wallard and Mrs. Chester Hilton. The National Anthem closed the meeting and lunch was served to the troop.

Mission Band

The special feature of the United Church program on Sunday morning was a report of the Bays' Conference held in Belleville. This report was given by the leaders, Miss Harold Mills, Marjorie Hammond and Thelma Merrifield. The Light Watch Tower in the business period of the Christian Endeavor was opened at Free Sec'y. Miss Pond gave the story from the study book.

Mrs. Sarah Hagerty is the guest this week of her daughter Mrs. Philip Carr.

Little Benny's Note Book

We had a written examination in history yesterday, and today in school Miss Kind said, I want the history papers last evening — and among other things I found an unusual number of Miss Kind's class, namely, Hate Hater wrote, in other words you would not have to study long shortly, and this evening the hate, with unusually good will, wrote a score of pastimes. As I remember, Hate Hater wrote: Anyway, to understanding what that means you take your hands, she said. With nobody didn't, and Miss Kitty said, Very good, but the best way to prove that you understand a thing is to give an illustration or personal example, and what do you want? she said.

Sherry Jodon waving his hand saying, A boy wanted to hurry up and get to be a man so he could eat his own meat, so he tried all anything for a week but yeast and baking powder, and he ate that all up and they had to hurry him, so what he did to hasten was just waste the whole life.

To say the least, what's next? Miss Kind said.

With Raymin Levy, who, saying, Hands go fast if eating hastens about being as slow as it tried to grow like a hydrophobia and it drinked is shot and had to go even slower.

Well, that's an example, but IW hardly call it practical. Benny Potts seems to be ready with one, Miss Kitty said.

With I, I say, saying A man was in a fauns hurry to get to his office, so he ran all his kids for a trolley car and cawt it.

But where does the water come in? Miss Kitty said, and I said, He was in such a big of a hurry he forgot all about his 6 automobiles waiting for him the outside of his house.

The afraid his brans was slower than his hands, we'll go on to next week, Miss Kitty said.

With we did.

JOHN WILFRID MACPHERSON

John Wilfrid MacPherson, lifelong resident of Sidney Township, died in the Belleville General Hospital late Saturday after an illness of short duration. He was born on the third concession of Sidney, 43 years ago, being the son of Mrs. MacPherson and the late Mr. John MacPherson and has resided in that township all his life, taking an active part in the social church and civic life of that community. He was active in church affairs, being connected with Stone United Church, acting on the various boards with great ability. He married for his first wife Miss Iva Harry, daughter of Mr. Reuel Harry, and the late Mrs. Harry and who died four years ago. His second wife was Miss Mary Fraser Ross, daughter of Rev. John A. and Mrs. Ross of Toronto. Fraternally he was a member of Masonic Lodge No. 11 A.F. and A.M. and in politics, a Liberal. Left to mourn are his mother, his wife, three daughters, Mary, Clara Belle and Ruth, one son, Jack, all at home, three sisters, Mrs. Shelby Burgess, Glenn Hall, Toronto and Hamilton, Bermuda, and Miss Kathleen MacPherson, in the city, one brother, Joseph, predeceased some years ago.

ROSLIN

Roslin—The March meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of St. Paul's Anglican church was held on Thursday evening, March 5th at the home of Mrs. Harry Sills. There were eleven ladies present. The President, Mrs. W. Clapsaddle was in charge of the meeting which opened in the usual way by Mrs. Wilson read the Scripture lesson. The Secretary, Mrs. Wm. Gillespie read the minutes of the previous meeting which were the Roll Call. After the business period all enjoyed the following programme which had been arranged by Mrs. Chauncey Sills.

"Mrs. Pickett's Mite Box" was the subject of a very interesting story of the value of Missionary giving, read by Mrs. C. Sills. Little Miss Evelyn Sills gave a recitation. Mrs. H. Sills gave a humorous reading. Mrs. C. Sills, Mrs. N. Alexander and Miss M. Sills sang. Mrs. H. Sills played their accompaniment. The closing hymn was "Jesus Loves Me". After the meeting the hostess served a dainty lunch.

Little Misses Eileen and Louise Reid are spending a few days with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. D. Hagerman of Corbyville.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen King and family who have resided for the past year on Mr. Gillespie's farm, are moving this week to their new home, formerly known as the "Beaver Farm", which is situated on No. 37 Highway about two miles south of the village.

Metropolitan Life Insurance Company Policyholders

have an interest in this Annual Report

IT may be assumed that these policyholders took out their insurance through a sense of responsibility for those in whose protection they are interested.

When they pay their premiums, there falls upon the Insurance Company a responsibility to pay current claims and to provide adequate funds for the payment of all future obligations.

The figures below show the amount of the claims paid by this Company last year. They also show how well prepared the Company is to meet its responsibilities in the future.

The number of policies and the amount of insurance in force reflect the confidence reposed in the Company by the people of Canada and the United States.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Hitch-Hike Lady"

A Picture Abounding in Laugh-Provoking and Comedy Situations.

Alison Skipworth hitch-hiking her way across the continent is in itself a laugh-provoking idea, but the very funny comedy situations which she encounters in "Hitch Hike Lady" play starting at the Capitol Theatre are almost enough to have people literally rolling in the aisles.

The new Republic photoplay concerns the adventures of an elderly English housekeeper who receives a small inheritance and sets out to join her son in California.

Enroute across the Continent she meets a confidence man, a gangster, a young leather salesman, and a society dress designer, and the five of them make up an oddly assorted party which is only bound together by the mutual determination on the part of the latter four to keep the old lady from learning that her son is actually the inmate of San Quentin prison.

Miss Skipworth in the title role, presents her usual superb performance and she is ably supported by those two inimitable comedians, Arthur Treacher and Warren Hymer. Portraying the remaining leads with distinction are Miss Clarke and Jimmy Ellison, while members of the supporting cast who must be commended for their excellent presentations include Beryl Mercer, J. Farrell Macdonald, Ward Bone, Christian Rub, Irving Bacon, and Edgar Dearing.

"Hitch Hike Lady" is probably the finest product of the fertile imagination of Wallace MacDonald, the public story editor, and has been skilfully brought to the screen under the direction of Aubrey Scotto. Gordon Mayer and Lester Cole wrote the excellent screen play.

Ladies! Don't forget to obtain your pass at Reynolds' "Business Owners" given away free, simply by attending this theatre today or Tuesday.

TABERNACLE W. A.

On Thursday afternoon, March 5 the Women's Association of Tabernacle United Church held their regular monthly meeting, the president, Mrs. R. Hall, presiding. After singing hymn, "Onward Christian Soldiers", the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison. Reports were given by the various officials and the treasurer's report was read and adopted. Rev. L. H. Pratt on Friday and Sunday School and O.S.D. Children expressed his appreciation to the ladies of W. A. for their supper and entertainment. The program taken by Group No. 1 with Mrs. Cherrie, the convener, in charge. After singing hymn 274, the Scripture lesson, psalm 98, was read by Mrs. Waldner, Mrs. Kelley led in prayer, followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison. Mrs. Frank Gregory rendered a beautiful solo entitled "Ring Always Bells." Kelley gave a humorous reading. Mrs. Fleming delighted the W. A. with a duet solo, assisted by Mrs. Duff at the organ. The meeting closed by repeating the Mizpah Benediction in unison.

COULD NOT SLEEP because of Headaches!

Now—well again and getting weight

"I used to have headaches so severe I could not sleep. I tried everything without success. I started Fruit-a-tives. In a short time I gained weight, felt fine, and have not had the old bad headaches," says Mrs. J. Scriver, 238 Earl St., Kingston, Ont.

Fruit-a-tives are habit-forming, so do they give just temporary relief. They contain extracts of APPLES, ORANGES, FIGS, PRUNES and HERBS and work naturally to cleanse and tone up the entire system. Fruit-a-tives have brought permanent relief to thousands. Try them today.

FRUIT-A-TIVES

AT THE BELLE

"Sylvia Scarlett"

Katherine Hepburn and Brian Aherne in "Man Who Broke His Word" Another "This Man".

Stepping triumphantly into the realm of high adventure and romance, Katherine Hepburn scores what is perhaps the most complete triumph of her screen career in "Sylvia Scarlett", coming to the Belle tomorrow and Wednesday, matinee daily.

Fascinating, colorful and audaciously different from conventional screen fare, this brilliantly characterized and directed RKO Radio Picture sets a new high standard in sheer entertainment. From first to last it moves vivid and dramatic, as true to life as they are strange to the screen. Its unusual scenes and exciting adventures which unfold against fresh, novel backgrounds.

Miss Hepburn puts her genius to the test of a characterization which requires her to masquerade through the major portion of it's picture as a boy. She gives a sensitive and rigidly honest impersonation which she accomplished one of the finest ever contributed to screen or stage.

Splendid support is accorded the star by Brianne Aherne, Cary Grant, Edmund Gwenn, Natalie Paley, Dennis Moore, Dennis Hoey, in colorful character roles especially worthy of note, in view of the fact that he has in the past worked in conventional romantic leads. Gwenn does an impressive cockney role.

"Man Who Broke His Word"

Mystery, romance and surprise feature "Man Who Up", Preston Foster and Margot Grahame in ballad vehicle for RKO Radio, based on James Edward Grant's novel "The Green Shadow", the picture deals with a series of strange happenings in the home of a wealthy banker, and with the efforts of Foster as the detective-hero to solve the riddle and find the guilty person.

With much of the action taking place in the trophy room and private shooting gallery of the banker's home, an unusual atmosphere of suspense is established. A romance of a modern stamp also plays an important role in the story, and serves to complicate matters when the heroine seemingly becomes the willing tool of all the characters on the screen.

Deductive methods, which are frequently employed by actual detectives but seldom are revealed in pictures, are used to determine the identity of the criminal.

Alan Mowbray, Ralph Morgan, Molly Lamont and "Big Boy" Williams head the supporting cast.

"Man Who Up" comes to the Belle with the personal guarantee of Manager Perham, who states: "Persons another "Thin Man" picture. Come prepared for an unusual thrill. You'll get it!"

Edwin C. Hill, the rambling reporter, introducing the world-wide minute wide events in the Belle theatre. It is a sparkling happy comedy, and contains all the hits of the old song hits associated with the play.

The large audience proved enthusiastic over this screen offering. Bing Crosby, the starring player, features attraction, and carried off honors with his breezy style of acting and singing. The high point of the picture vocally, is a set of parodies on "You're the Top" which he and Ethel Merman sing, and which evoke surprise and delight.

Others in the cast of players are Charlie Ruggles, Ida Lupino and Grace Bradley.

In addition to the song hits interwoven with the theme, the picture has new songs by Cole Porter and others. The direction is by Lewis Milestone and the dance routines were elaborated by Le Roy Prinz.

Riding a blistering trail for outdoor action pictures of the future to follow, nearly a score of the screen's greatest cowboy stars ride together through the pages of "Frontiersmen Range", the second feature attraction on the same program.

Harry Carey, Hoot Gibson, Guinn "Big Boy" Williams, Bob Steele and Tom Tyler are leading figures in this outdoor drama.

HEALTH and PSYCHOLOGY

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.

Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

When food is digested and absorbed into the blood vessels and the "feeder" of the intestines, it is distributed throughout the body. However, the nutritive elements do not find their way directly to the various organs and tissues which need them. This is not only because the blood vessels do not run to all minute parts but also because such nutritive elements cannot pass through the thick walls of the blood vessels.

To overcome this difficulty we have the lymphatic system. Lymph is that sort of blood which is able to pass through the finest and smallest blood vessels in the capillaries. Lymph, therefore, is a "go-between", carrying nourishment from the blood to all the tissues and waste products from the tissues back into the blood.

Lymph bathes all living cells, forming a system of distribution of its own, as does the blood. These are known as "lymph vessels". And like the veins rather than the arteries of the blood system, lymph vessels carry waste products in one direction only, that is, to the tissues. These lymph vessels do not, as in the case with the veins, unite to form larger and larger vessels. Lymph vessels of the smallest variety are the same size throughout and empty into what are known as "lymph nodes", also called "lymph glands".

Those in the neck are rather painfully familiar to everyone from the reason that, especially in childhood, they may become infected and, according, enlarged.

If an imaginary line be drawn down the middle of the body, or lengthwise said downward, it is found that the lymph nodes in the neck produce the poisonous waste products from the tooth are found in the lymph nodes under the jaw, while those from the eyebrow are found in the node, where an attempt is made to destroy the poisons. The lymph nodes of scalp may, for a similar reason enlarge one or more nodes further back.

In infections of the breast, lymph nodes under the armpits are affected. In cases of infected fingers, the lymph nodes about the elbow become swollen, and often, especially in severe cases, those in the armpit above the front of the forearm, indicating infection of the lymph and vessels from the finger to the nodes.

Many of the lymphatic vessels finally pour their lymph contents into the thoracic duct. This duct, or canal, about eighteen inches in length, lies in front of the vertebral column and empties into the combined trunks of two large veins near the left shoulder.

In this way, lymph, with its waste products, finally gets itself into the blood stream through the veins. Into the lungs, is oxygenated there, and then through the heart again and out into the general system.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

When buying shellfish (crabs, lobsters shrimp, oysters and clams) remember that freshness is extremely essential. These fish decompose rapidly and the safest rule to follow on why they do not agree with some people is: They are not agreeable as quickly as pork. Oysters, of course, are the exception.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied by Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

Shawkey

Shawkey's new 150 ton milling unit is operating with entire satisfaction following a brief testing period. The circuit is being filled up and there have been no serious troubles since it was turned over several weeks ago. By the end of March production on a basis of 100 tons daily will be the usual thing and it is expected that heads will maintained around 813.00 per ton.

The Quebec Miner understands that drifting on the 575 ft. level has started following completion of the crosscut last week. It is reported that excellent widths are indicated. Work on the main shaft should consolidate visible gold.

Canadian Malartic

At the annual general meeting a few days ago, general manager C. H. Neelands stated that an interesting development from recent data has been the finding of ore in connection with the porphyry mass. Diamond drilling from the east cut into this zone and showed a vein which has averaged about 3.00 over a width of 10 feet for the short distance drilled on to date. The general manager stated he regards this development as being very important.

Good indications of substantial further improvement this year in new building, railroad equipment, locomotives and other heavy industries appear likely.

Spectacular rise in Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company common to a new high level about $150 a share, or 1934 peak at 170 or $258, not only reflects the company's dominant position as one of the world's important producers of lead and zinc but it also lends some confirmation to the optimism held in certain quarters that some day the common stock of this company will be split. When the annual report of Consolidated Mining appears, it is altogether likely that the 1935 net will be the best the shareholders have ever received in a full year since 1929, when $18.75 a share was earned.

Noranda

Noranda shares have been relatively steady of late with the buying coming from interests who take the long-pull viewpoint. The technical position of the stock has thus been improved. Noranda seems to have difficulty breaking through the $70 resistance mark but could have been done the stock should give a very good account of itself.

A price of 50 for Noranda has not reflected the recent rise in copper prices, nor the definite upward financial shares had made. The ore reserves behind each share of stock works out to about $138.

Victoria Gold

Victoria Gold Fields Limited, Kitchener, Ont., March 9—(CP)—Starting next week children in here Sunday when Miss Myrtle M. Frail, 25, of Rosenfeld, Man., was killed. Burial was made in the Rose Hill cemetery Sunday morning. Her parents were unaware of her illness until advised she was dead.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

Toronto, March 9—(CP)—Renewed selling because of uneasiness over the threat of war in Europe undermined the entire list of stocks on Toronto Industrial Market today and losses were general this afternoon. Only Bepsi-Cola, Canada and heavy Industrials par-ticipated in the slump.

International Nickel dropped below the $8 mark to a new low of 7 1-2 and Consolidated Smelters weakened a few points. In the lignors and oils recessions of a point or a point were posted. C. P. R. and Steel A showed a half point loss. In the power group Shawinigan declined 1-2 and Montreal power lost a point.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, March 9—(CP)—In the early trading any renewal mining market today Base Metals held fairly well while the golds sold down but the big copper shares were less firm in the afternoon session. Noranda lost 3-4 and Hudson Bay at 36 1-2 was off nearly a point. Silverfields displayed moderate buoyancy.

Weakness was mainly apparent in the secondary gold group as moderate selling encountered a thin buying demand and prices drifted down to 4.13 for a loss of 28 cents and recessions of 10 to 15 cents were boarded for Heno, Conlaurum, Buffalo Ankerite, Bankfield, Pickle Read-Authier, Beattie and Pickle Crow. Oils turned heavy and recessions included 10 cents for Mid-Can Canadian and Dalhousie and a few cents for Homestead.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, March. 9—(AP)—Specialties were in demand in a wavering, war-nervous stock market today.

Wright-Aeronautical advanced 9, Case got up more than 3 and gains up to more than a point or more were shown by Douglas, Curtiss-Wright, American Sugar Refining, Great Western Sugar, Seaboard Oil, Deere, International Harvester and American Tobacco B.

Allied Chemical dropped, Johns-Manville was off and Westinghouse and Corn Products yielded about 2 each. Lesser losses were registered in Chrysler, General Motors, American Telephone, Consolidated Edison, Eastman Kodak, N. Y. Central and Northern Pacific.

The late tone was irregular. Transfers approximated 2,500,000 shares.

Picks, Shovels Thrown In Road by Strikers

Stratford, Ont., March 9—(CP)—In two sudden raids today strikers rolled construction camps, drove a party of relief workers, seized their tools and threw picks and shovels into the roadway. After the second raid the party was ordered to quit the job, while the relief strikers cheered. They returned in about two hours with complete production.

Police wielded their batons during the brief raids. Provincial officer Alex Templeton, was knocked down in the raid in which 35 to 30 relief strikers participated.

A large crowd of unemployed was on hand at the city relief office when men reported for work this morning but there was no attempt to interfere with those who reported for work.

Manager of "Met" Returns to Footlights

New York, March 9—(CP)— Maxwell Johnson will don costume and makeup next Monday night to return to the stage after 10 years on boards.

It will be but a one-night stand for the Guelph, Ont., tenor, now the enterprising general manager of the Opera House, Johnson made the announcement made today. He will sing the role of Ramfis in Verdi's Debussy's "Pelleas et Mallande," first act in the opening performance of this opera since its entry into the "Met" repertoire in 1925.

Lawyers Not Refused Privilege Says Chief

Hull, Que., March 9 (CP)—Testifying at the trial of six men for the murder of Armand Nadeau last year, Joseph Pichette, chief justice of the Quebec Provincial Detective Force, denied he induced Joseph Rochon, one of the accused to admit participating in the holdup and murder. Rochon had refused talk Joe and we'll let you off with a warning.

The Chief also denied he refused lawyers the privilege of visiting Rochon before he gave further details on the questioning of Rochon in Montreal. Rochon, the 19-year-old Nadeau was slain in a $18,000 holdup of a Bank Provincial De Canada pay-car near Hull.

Court at London To Last Five Weeks

London, Ont., March 9 (CP)—Five criminal cases, including the retrial of Girl Slayer Suspect Frank R. Zahnd kidnapping, head the long list of Criminal Assizes opening here. It was intimated five weeks would be taken to hear the list before the cases, there are nine jury civil actions and no less than 22 non-jury cases.

GRAIN

GRADE

Winnipeg, March 9—(CP)— A troubled European political situation undoubtedly was responsible for a thrilling grain exchange today and gave a fractional bulge to wheat prices.

At mid-session values were an even 1-4 higher with May at 1 1-4, July at 85 7-8 and October at 85 7-8.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, March 9—Eggs were the feature of the produce markets last week, prices showing increases occurring, with supplies insufficient for the demand, On Monday, when unsettled conditions existed were announced at the Board of Trade. It was shown that there were no fewer stocks here, 81 all, compared with 8,622 cases on the same date a year ago, while there were only 260 cases of fresh eggs in store, against 1,281 a year ago. Receipts were light, and, with the Lenten season imposing demand, a strong market resulted. Some grades of Canada were reported to have imported eggs from the United States, but none came to Montreal. At the end of the week, egg prices were holding steady at the week's advance, but the undertone had developed some nervousness, a reaction being anticipated as soon as receipts become sufficient for current needs. The week's advances in eggs were seven to eight cents per dozen. Potatoes were steady to easier in the week. Butter, cheese and poultry were steady, in dull trading.

Receipts for the week were posted at the Board of Trade on Saturday, with comparisons, as follows:

Eggs Butter Cheese

	Eggs	Butter	Cheese
Last week	3,555	277	291
Week ago	2,830	1,204	543
Year ago	1,281	1,140	1,200

On the egg market graded shipments arriving in the Lots were 17-20c for A-large and 35-36c for A-medium.

The butter market was quoted 29 1-4c to 29 1-2c per lb. for No. 1 in cartons or Lt. 1-4 lbs.

Livestock

Toronto, March 9—(CP)—Trading was slow on the cattle division at the opening of the Toronto Live-stock Market today but calves held steady. Hogs were unsettled. Sheep and lambs were steady. The cattle holdover totalled 100 head.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock branch were—Cattle: 1,540; calves, 70; sheep, 1,400; lambs 1,100.

Early cattle trading was dull with prices generally unchanged on the first sales registered. Few weighty steers sold at $4.40 to $4.50. A few choice heavy steers went for export at $6.00 to $6.50. Some butcher cows brought $3.00 to $3.50. Bulls were traded at $3.50 to $4.00. There were no early sales on butcher cattle.

Calves opened steady at $8.00 to $8.50 for choice quality vealers. Common grades sold downward to $8.

No hog prices were established during the early morning trade but indications were the market would probably open around $8.50 to $8.60 for trucks for bacons.

The sheep and lamb market weakened. Early sales were steady with good bundles bringing $6.75 and few culls at $5.75. Heavy sheep held steady at $3.00 to $3.50 according to quality.

Montreal, March 9.—(CP)—Slight upward move in prices was noted on Montreal Livestock markets today. Cattle and hogs moved forward with sheep quotations holding steady. Sole weak spot was in the calf division.

Offerings were cattle 567; calves 627; sheep 1,100; hogs 600. Light volumes had a stiffening effect on prices in the cattle section and they were 25 cents higher. Good steers sold from $5 to $5.25 with medium grades at $4.75. Common sold at $3 to $3.50 and common butchers at $3.50 to $4. Canners and cutters were $3 to $3.50.

Medium good to good quality veals went at $8.50. Some were higher than last Monday's opening. Bulk of calves were marked down 50 cents at $7.50 to $8. About 100 common and heavy calves at $6.

Lambs offered were mostly bucks and sold between $7 to $7.50.

Hog prices made a drop of 25 cts Bacons were sold for $9 —bed and watered with 87 premium on selects.

METROPOLITAN LIFE BUSINESS SHOWS GROWTH

Insurance in Force Increased —Welfare Work Benefits Policyholders

OTTAWA, March 9 — Continued progress in all branches of the company's activities is shown in the annual report of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company released today. Life insurance in force passed the twenty billion dollar mark in 1935, an all-time high, and gives indications of better conditions throughout Canada and the United States. The number of life policies in force, including 1,670,041 Group certificates, totals 4,2 2,16,1,46o. Other outstanding features of the report include: a substantial increase in assets bringing the total well over four billion dollars; the largest dividend disbursement to policyholders and their beneficiaries of the record amount of $205,251,000, which was at the rate of $4,450 a minute for each working day; the declaration of the 1936 dividends payable to policyholders totalling $85,564,361; and the continuance of the company's extensive health and welfare activities.

"The Company's business in Canada continued to grow", stated Frederick Wordsworth Hill, Vice-President of the Company, in Canada. "Over the past five years the life insurance represented by 2,637,425 policies in force in Canada has been increased by paid to Canadian policyholders and their beneficiaries during the year was $28,812,000. Approximately one hundred thousand nursing visits were made to Canadian policyholders without additional charge to their payments and health guidance of health literature were distributed in the Dominion in 1935.

Mr. Wright expressed satisfaction with the results of the Company's national advertising, featuring health messages, and the showing made by its agency staff in putting "Once Upon a Time", aimed at thrift, over to the people. He pointed out that, since 1872, when the Metropolitan commenced business in Canada, the Company has paid out and invested in the Dominion a sum exceeding by $187,500,000 the amount collected here in premiums, and that the Company's Canadian investments now total $287,833,143, an increase during the year 1935 of $13,178,775.

HARRY D. WRIGHT
Third Vice-President and Manager for Canada, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, who announces increased investments in the Dominion.

"Life insurance in Canada has a record of which we can all be proud", said Mr. Wright, "and has fulfilled its stewardship by safeguarding the funds made up of the savings of the Canadian people. It has placed millions of dollars at their disposal in the prompt settlement of obligations under its various policy contracts."

Referring to the Company's total business in Canada and the United States, Mr. Wright stated that the total gain of life insurance in force of $2,000,000,000 this year is typical in all departments and represents high points in the history of the company. The total life insurance in force is now $20,289,949,370, of which $4,000,000,000 is in Canada. The Industrial Department has 52%, or $6,829,500,380, and Group insurance accounts for 14.5%, with a total of $2,950,000,000.

Assets increased $233,094,290 in 1935 and totalled $4,256,952,611 on December 31st last. In this sum the surplus funds were $230,930,720. Another gain of $13,178,775 was made in assets is represented by larger investments in Canada. Policy loans increased only one half of 1%, which is the smallest increase in many years, and furnishes sound evidence of the return of prosperity throughout the United States.

For four fourth successive year, the Metropolitan disbursed more than half a billion dollars to its policyholders and beneficiaries, in death claims, matured endowments, cash surrender values, dividends and other payments. More than two-thirds of the total was paid to living policyholders, a striking confirmation of the saying that, in life insurance, the best is the thrift plan.

An idea of the Metropolitan's business can be conveyed by reducing some of these annual figures to a daily basis. For instance, the daily average of payments to beneficiaries and policyholders and additions to reserves was more than two-million dollars. An average of 2,239 claims were paid every day; 2,098 claims and 141 matured endowments of 18,342 life insurance policies issued and revived; and $191,000 of new life insurance issued, revived and increased.

150,000 FRENCH GUARDING FORTS

Strategists intermingled with the translators as the conference in Paris to Nots were bewildered German scientists quickly returning to the Reichswehr.

Gen. Alfred Braun, regional chief of staff, said he was only waiting orders from Paris calling additional points to beat up the thousands already in the line for fortifications.

French army officers have said by calling out the reservists whose homes are in the nearby villages the entire mobilization time could be closed within a few hours.

At the navigation of the border forts at Thionville, Gen. Braun said the 26-inch Krupp howitzers had proved "Highly satisfactory."

"We knew long ago that they" and the Diesend guns, "on the northeast—"would do this soon and this re-enforcement has been well executed."

Army officers explained the French system of forts on what dad the Reichswehr expected to occupy the demilitarized zone, civilians inhabiting the prewar barracks were told to get out and make room for new troops.

Twenty-four hour watches were stood at the Arc de Metz and Metz Nancy the first line of air defence on the German border.

Snow-Snake Champions Cousins of Longboat

Caledonia, Ont., Mar. 9 (CP)—Leonard Buck and Calvin Anderson, youthful entry of the Almond Indian Tuscarora tribe with the veteran Cayuga clan team composed of George Hill-smith and Sam Longboat, cousin of the great runner, were the international snow-snake champions today.

They won the crown at the contests on the two-year lane for hurling the week-end when Six Nations Indians gathered from all parts of Canada to tribesmen from New York State.

In the two-day series of games Tuscaroras won a total of ten points while Cayugas scored four and one tie. Cayuga one. More than 500 saw the games in a field near Ahkwesahsne Mission Sunday afternoon.

The snow trenches along which the javelin-like hardwood arrows, twenty feet long, sped were wet and heavy.

The greatest distance was made by George Silversmith who threw a "snake" 215 yards, about two-thirds the half mile record.

Labratory Receives Shipment of Parasites

Large consignments of helpful parasites are still arriving at the local Dominion Entomological Laboratory through the co-operative plan. During the latter part of the week a shipment of corn-borer parasites which were sent to Canada from Ontario and other districts during the summer months from the Province Ontario in their carefully insulated containers. "It will be quite a while yet before we are able to start any of this corn borer work," it was stated by Dr. S. Balrd, chief of the local laboratory.

Joe Jowra Fires Only Goal in Battle With Rangers

CANADIENS SWAMPED

Detroit Red Wings Drop Two Games to Maroons and Bruins

By ELMER DULMAGE

Joe Jowra, who came out of the coal-mining country of Alberta and failed utterly in a few years ago to make a National Hockey League team, is a talented shoot with the puck and a clever all-round player, one of the sports' body was suspected to see him doing so, either.

The raw-boned, raspy Jowra, a competently polished performer six years after he made his New York debut with Patrick's Rangers, fired a goal last night in Madison Square Garden that by its probability will send Americans into the playoffs for the second time in ten years.

Only goal of a furious battle between the New York teams, it may also prevent Rangers from reaching the playoffs. Eighteen thousand enthusiasts threw on as he slanted through unchallenged from the blue line in the Ranger defence late in the third period and poked a backing shot into the net. Joe's own manager, Lester Patrick, who is recovering from an illness, watched the game from the penalty box.

In his campaign under Dutton, in the spacious Ivory of Americans, the sharp-shooting Jowra only had the Richest of Boston. It just happened to require considerably longer than a big shot for him himself.

Canadiens Trounced Twice.

With a chance to keep pace with Americans for the third playoff berth in the group, Rangers' hopes were dashed twice. They were trounced 9-1 last night by Detroit Red Wings and 3-0 by Chicago Black Hawks on Thursday night. Montreal Canadiens, who were tied for fourth place behind Americans with five games remaining on their schedule.

The Canadiens went down bravely, but they lacked the defensive punch to withstand the old heavy artillery to make certain of their playoff berth at least twice in the Canadian section. Will Orde played brilliantly in goal for Detroit, getting in eight goals.

Bill Thoms scored, three and Charlie Conacher two as the Leafs mauled the tall-ends unmercifully towards the end. Joe Primeau was another star, getting a goal and two assists in the Chelsea net-work most of the way.

Against the Hawks in Chicago, Canadiens put in great stand before bowing. The dashing Cude provided excellent goaltending performance, but shots by Paul Thompson and Doc Romnes beat him in the end. The Frenchmen couldn't score on Mike Karakas, who recorded his ninth shutout of the season.

Montreal Maroons Top Pace

Montreal Maroons top pace with Toronto by whipping Detroit Red Wings 2-0 at home last night. Both goals in the fourth period. Hooper played the American group leaders, making the fast first work with Earl Robinson and Joe Lamb. Tommy Cook played a double shift along the right boards.

Ward provided assists for two first period goals, Bailey Northcot and Russ Blinco doing the shooting. Larry Aurie got one for Detroit. Bob Gracie scored for Maroons in the second and Hockey Boucher and Lionel Conacher in the third period before the Wings got organized again. Then Marty Barry rapped in a pair.

Bad luck skid was with the Red Wings last night when they took on Boston Bruins on Detroit ice. The Bruins pounded in three goals in the first period and coasted to a 3-1 victory to put them a game ahead of Rangers in the race for third place in the American group.

Cooney Weiland, Dit Clapper and Red Beattie each scored for Boston in the first period and Alex Motter and Charlie Sands tallied in the third. Detroit's feible goals were scored by Johnny Sorrell and Syd Howe.

LIZZIES GET 3 POINT LEAD OVER DEACONS

Score is 31-28 With Speed Being Predominant Features

LOCALS HANDICAPPED

Three of Their Players Absence But Available for Return Game

In a fast-moving cage tilt with speed predominating the Toronto "Lizzies" gained a three point lead over the Deacon A.C. of Belleville in the first game of the O.A.B.A. provincial juvenile semi-finals on the Belleville Collegiate gym floor on Saturday night. A capacity crowd saw these two fast-travelling juvenile teams battle at practically even terms throughout the entire contest, as first one team would have a slight advantage and then the other until the final count saw the "Lizzies" on top of the scoring 31 to 28.

At no time during the game did either quintette have a decided edge the score stood 7 to 6 in favour of the Deacons at the end of the first quarter, 16 to 11 for the Lizzies at half time and a tie at the end of the third period with the visitors out-scoring the locals 11 to eight in the last five minutes of play. The Abate-coached Lizzies played a short quick-passing game, that resulted in moving the ball down the floor for speedy goals. The Deacons carried equally as much speed in their attack but while the Belleville defence never worked more smoothly.

Kilns a Star

Led by George Kilns, who turned in a splendid game and starred throughout the contest, the Deacons set the pace for the greater period, but the absence of substitutes took its eventual toll as three of Coach Cole's star players were absent from the lineup, which crippled their efforts. McCabe, at centre, proved too lofty for the Lizzies and consistently gathered possession of the ball at strategic points. Hooper and Legg, playing the couple with Edwards' fast scoring added to the Deacons' cause in the first period. Hooper starred both ways for the locals. For the Lizzies, Bridon, Richard, Tremblaire and Minarsky played their usual steady game, their clever quick-passing leaving the locals at a loss during the final minutes of play when Belleville was penalized heavy time. The Deacons scored 13 baskets to the Lizzies' 15, but their foul shots eventually caused the downfall of the Deacons.

Cord Edwards of the Deacons led all scorers of the night as he collected nine points. Peoples got six, on three beautiful long shots, while McCabe figured in four points. Dickens and Kilns netted four points each. Tremblaire, Richardson and Kline were the big scorers for the Lizzies. On foul shots attempted the Lizzies outclassed the Deacons, the visitors only missing two free throws to nine attempted, while the Deacons only got the ball to rest for two free throws out of eight tries. Had the locals free throws been equally as successful the game would have won instead of racing a three goal deficit in the return game.

DAY BY DAY

Even if they didn't win the Ontario Intermediate Hockey championship at London, the B.C.I.V.A. pucksters made a splendid showing are to be congratulated on their advancement to the final series. Last year the "Collegians" were rubbed out by Ottawa Glebe Collegiate and this year it took the Ottawa "Tux" overtime to gain a 5-4 victory over Coach Shiels' local squad, so it looks as though the Ottawa gang have the edge on the Belleville pucksters. On the other hand, however, it must be taken into consideration that Coach Shiels had to practically build an entire new team this year and their advancement to the finals for the provincial intermediate title ought to prove there is plenty of hockey material right here in Belleville, then again the splendid showing of the "Collegians" at London in evening London Sun-Times-Advertiser, Ottawa into overtime streaks the local Senior Intermediate group considerably. We understand that the majority of Coach Shiels' charges are eligible for intermediate competition next year, so we'll live in hopes of seeing them come home champions in 1937.,

Misses three of their star players, the Deacon A. C. Juvenile "Lizzies" are in for a hard time when they meet on a local floor in years and were marked with quick passing and clever shooting was more accurate, as the final shots on the scoring sheet will show. The Lizzies' speedy guard Tremblaire, however, was the best individual player on the floor of Toronto and despite their handicap of three points, which usually means little in a basket ball game, they can still come home with the bacon, as the locals have yet to shake of Toronto next Saturday. Just to demonstrate that the boys from the Toronto sound beat the Deacons, local coach Bob Abate, of the "Lizzies" accompanied the Toronto squad to Belleville on their return trip. Bob doesn't go on the road with his teams unless he fears defeat. He accompanied the Lizzies to Belleville on their second game of his career as Edwards, Peoples and Dickens, all of whom figured in splendid efforts for the Deacons, even in defeat, Kline, Bridon and Richardson were the big winners in a well-played game that was a capacity crowd.

Apparently the information we received in Ottawa recently, relative to "Army" Armstrong being suspended by the O.H.A. for not playing overtime in the first Whitby at Belleville game here, was erroneous, as Armstrong was given the "Jordan Falls at Whitby assignment, when the Red Wings won last Friday night at home 17 to 5. On paper it looks as though the "Red Wings" can coast into another championship, as their stiffest opposition was overcome in the Nelson. If the Red Wings go on and win, and we hope they do, it will always be remembered in Belleville that the 1936 Redmen were only one goal from an O.H.A. championship. All that was needed was one more counter during that first game in Belleville and we'd have copped our first O.H.A. flag, but we didn't get it.

The draw for the play-offs in the senior series of the Bay of Quinte basket ball group finds Picton C. I. getting the bye as Albert College and St. Michael's College C. I. meet tomorrow afternoon with the return game being played at B.C.I. later in the week. Total points on the series will determine the finalists with Picton C. I. as all other local intermediate group winners have already been declared. George Laughlin's B.C.I.V.S. junior boys won the junior section and the right to enter the O.D.S.S.A. play-downs, while in the girl's groups, Trenton H. S. annexed the junior and Picton C. I. the senior girls.

The play-offs in one more K-I-Y hockey series will terminate the 1936 season locally, while the exceptions of course of the Industrial League play-offs. Although champion Rovers went well in the midget and bantam series with the Belleville bells' provincial title holders in the latter series and the Queen-Mary School Orioles' Belleville midget group. It is surprising the amount of enthusiasm shown during these K-I-Y League play-off games and the schooling these players are receiving in basket ball technique. The midget champion of the K-I-Y League is prolifically shown in the Belleville bells' provincial Intermediate Collegiate interscholastic team we have, as the team of the Belleville bells' provincial interscholastic champions received their training in the K-I-Y League. Long may it reign.

Coach Art Chis of the local Deacon cage team, who learns that Harold Hall, Russ Collins and Ronsky, all of whom were not available for Saturday night's Lizzie-Deacon game, will be on hand for the return tilt. Abate and Ronsky are in the B.C.I.V.S. hockey team while Collins is sick at home. With these three in the line-up, the Deacons have hopes of overcoming those three points in Toronto.

OVERTIME GOAL BEATS STUDENTS FOR SCHOOL TITLE

B.C.I. Puts up Real Battle Before Losing to Ottawa Tech

JOHNSTON BEST SCORER

Close Checking Style of Locals Had Winners Baffled For Time

London, Ont., Mar. 9 (CP)—Further evidence that Ottawa still excels in the production of good hockey players was on tap here, following Ottawa Technical School's 5 to 4 overtime victory over Belleville Collegiate in the finals of the Ontario Interscholastic championships Saturday.

It was the second successive year the capital has copped the championship, Ottawa Commercials winning the title in 1935.

Wally Hinsinella, a lanky of Ray Kinsella, former London professional hockey player, scored the money marker for Ottawa, after three minutes and ten seconds of overtime. Oscar Legault and Oscar Dufour engineered the play for the winning counter and gave Hinsella the pass near the goal mouth.

It was the second victory for Tech in the knockout series that opened on Friday. North Bay fell before them in the first game, while Belleville was defeating London South. In a consolation game Saturday, Bay Bay defeated London, 3 to 2.

In the championship contest, Belleville led 2 to 1 at the end of the first period, scoring two goals in less than a minute in this session, while holding a one-man advantage.

Easton, Belleville's lanky wing, was a standout for the new titleholders, scoring three goals. Legault got the fourth and Kinsella the fifth and deciding tally.

Bob Johnston was the leading sharpshooter for Belleville, scoring three of the four goals, and Gord Perry, the other defenceman, starred the Belleville counter.

Belleville's close-checking style of hockey had the Ottawa lads baffled for two periods, but Ottawa's fast skating in the part of the North Bay team the previous night was responsible for their forcing-in up the Ottawa players.

The summary of hockey played by the two secondary school teams was on the same par with amateur O.H.A. senior play for the game.

Although Johnston of Belleville gained the honor of scoring three goals, Graham Mouck, the net guardian, was also deserving of praise, as he smothered numerous attacks and at times saved the situation after his mates' defence had been baffled the defence.

This was the first time that such a tournament was held in London.

REFEREE CHASES SPECTATOR FROM CLEVELAND ARENA

Games Played in International Have Little Bearing on Standings

FOUR CONTESTS

Cleveland Will Finish in Second Place in Their Section

(By The Canadian Press)

Just 15 days away from the end of the schedule, the International Hockey League moved calmly to the playoffs today. There was little likelihood the six teams now in playoff slots would be ousted in the next two weeks.

Four week-end games failed to produce anything startling in the way of upsets though spectators at Cleveland last night got a laugh, when Referee Mickey Ion jumped over the boards and chased a spectator from the rink. Cleveland beat London Tecs 4-3.

Buffalo Bisons gained a point in their chase of Syracuse stars, leaders of the Eastern Section, by winning from Windsor Bulldogs 2-1; while Bulldogs held stars to a 3-3 tie Sunday night. Pittsburgh helped themselves a little with a 3-2 victory over Rochester Cardinals but remained in last place of the Western Section.

Cleveland's victory and Windsor's weak showing practically assured Bisons of second place behind Detroit Olympics. Bud Cook paced Cleveland to their victory, scoring two goals, with Lloyd Gross rounding off their total. Hall, Picketts and Lever bagged tallies for London.

Come From Behind

Bulldogs had to fight from behind in both their games. They got a goal from Dave Downie after Jack Shewchuk and Sammy Goldsmith had given Buffalo a 2-0 lead by the middle of the second period. They couldn't break through again in a furious third-period drive.

They fell behind back against Syracuse. In the first period and again in the second, Syracuse took a one-goal advantage only to have Bulldogs even things each time. Mickey Blake and George Parsons scored goals matched by Jimmy Arnold and Frank Steele.

Young Paul Gauthier featured a lustrous battle between Pittsburgh and Rochester by making 50 saves. The teams paired four first-period counters and fought through 47 minutes of scoreless play before Owens got his second and winning tally.

Dale Plays The Game

—BY—

Ann Forester

She picked the paper up and smoothed it out. With the little gold pencil from her vanity case a word across the back:

"This is the reason why I've gone. Do as you please about the ghastly mockery."

She placed it in one of her stationary envelopes. Scrawled Brant's name on the face and propped it on the dresser. Like the second act of cheap melodrama—Dale thought with bitter irony.

She met no one as she went downstairs, carrying the suitcase. The large sunny house might have been in an enchanted sleep.

Only Mimi saw her petite alone up the driveway, leaning over with the weight of the suitcase, Mimi, watching stealthily from an upstairs window, frightened triumph in her heart.

CHAPTER 64.

BACK ON THE TREADMILL

Mimi had banked everything on one high play and now, she was frightened.

What she had intended to accomplish, she was not quite certain. She had simply acted as instinctively as a cat darts, at another captive. Her jealous game told her that now was the time. Dale was taut—straining. The least little touch—the merest pressure and it would snap.

That Brant had caught Dale in Philip Arnes' arms was a tremendous piece of good luck to Mimi. She had been quick to take advantage of it. She had kept Brant's pleading letter from reaching Dale.

She had gone so far that she must go further. Mimi was finding it panic. You did one—then you committed two, more to cover up the first. So long as Dale and Brant were apart Mimi was safe. If only something would happen to cause a sharp break between them.....

It was then, perhaps, that the mad scheme had stolen into Mimi's head. Those letters of Brant's which, she had kept all these months.

Mimi had flown to her room. Locked the door. Taken the letters from their long hiding place.

Looking, through them hastily.. The one would do—a wild one, burst from Brant at the time of Mimi's sudden marriage to the Count Della Costa. A letter protesting against "the ghastly mockery of this marriage." A letter in which Brant spoke of their long love for each other, and tenderly of "the old scheme of things."

Suppose one dropped the second page of this letter where Brant—Dale, say—should find it.....How was she to know that it was not written yesterday? The paper was that heavy white paper which Brant always used. There was no date line to betray its age. A plan strong in its very simplicity.

What the result might be, Mimi did not stop to think. Dale would be jealous, of course. It might lead to a violent scene between her and Brant. Both had hot tempers. A separation might follow.....

A deceitful scheme. It's danger in so far Mimi. For after all, should it fail, what was she doing save looking passively over old love letters. Or—better still—she could pass it off as a joke. "I ran across these things in an old trunk—I'd forgotten I had them. Weren't we the romantic idiots! I know you'd enjoy a good laugh, Brant." Or—Dale. "Why, my dear, surely you weren't silly enough to think Brant was writing such trash to me now!"

Oh, she was sly, was Mimi! How could anyone pin the guilt on her? What was she shaking for then.... silly fool! Nonsense.

A time fraught with danger — heady with excitement. And when peering from an upstairs window she saw Dale leave, Mimi's heart nearly smothered her with excitement. She was almost afraid of such luck.....

Stealthily she slipped down the hall and into Dale's room. Yes, no question about it—she had really gone. The letter over there on the dresser. Swiftly Mimi crossed over and tore the envelope. She read the line on the back of the crumpled paper. A little hatred frown gathered between her dark brows.

The girl wasn't necessary then .....just a soft sentimental fool! Mimi took her old sweetheart, no doubt.

A long moment sunk in thought. After all.....Brant.....Why Dale marry into a circus? Mimi couldn't hold her place. And those sort of people didn't feel things as intently as their betters.

Who could have foreseen this, thought Mimi as she crumpled the old pale letter in her small white hand. Who even dared hope for such luck!

When Dale left Pinelands she had only the confused thought of getting to Honey as quickly as possible. But on the long dreary journey up to the city, things cleared in her mind. She had time to think—to plan.

Don't torture herself with bitter thoughts of Brant—There was no time for that. No time to grow weak and cold remembering the stinging touch of "the ghastly mockery of this marriage."

There was that other stupendous fact demanding her attention. Demanding that she plan.

Less than $100.00 — not enough to take her out to Honey. And somehow—now that she had time to cool down a bit, she had no right to rush in on Pa and Honey this way. Nor had she the right to be selfishly loving. No, her baby would come into the world decently and on no one. She would not go to Honey at once. She would go to work. Save money — money which would be sorely needed in that hard time to come.

The thought of Phil brushed her mind and was instantly shrugged aside. She knew that she would never see Phil's help now.

She would get work on the stage. She would join some road show touring the west. She could work for a long time yet. No one need know.

When the train reached the city Dale went into a phone booth and copied the names of several theatrical agencies into her little gold engagement book.

It was dreamlike to be walking through the unfamiliar streets at this hour. She hoped she wouldn't meet people she knew—Eleanor, for instance. But there was little danger. Most of the Kendals' set were out of the city to escape the heat.

A self consciousness, a reluctance to make a start somewhere, Dale told herself desperately.

That night she was on the train going west.

CHAPTER 65

BRANT COMES HOME

It was Nance's troubled face which first gave Brant the inkling that something was wrong. As he hurried up the broad steps of Pinelands his sister was standing on the porch. At his hail she turned and he saw her expression.

"What's the matter, Nance?" Brant asked drawing her to him for a kiss.

Nance regarded Brant for a long moment with those clear grey eyes so remarkably like his own. Then to his bewilderment she burst out vigorously: "I don't give a single damn! I liked her first! And I know that she had a perfectly mangy time with us"!

"Dale left again?" teased Brant. To his further mystification Nance's face worked. She burst into tears and ran away, nor would she return at his call.

Presently, Brant walked into the living room to find his mother and Mimi.

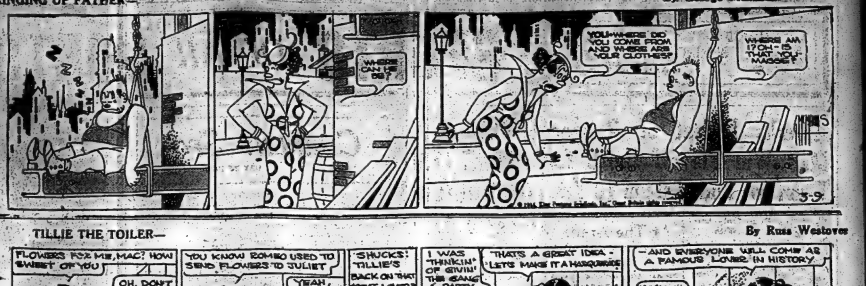
"What's got into the kid?" he asked. "She's all up in the air over something." He dropped, the two women before him looked at queer. "What is it?" Brant asked struggling between alarm and irritation. "Why all the suppressed drama?" Then his tone grew sharp. "Dale ....she's all right, isn't she?"

Brant looked in consternation as Mimi turned sharply to bury her face in the cushion of the Chesterfield while she pressed a tiny lace edged handkerchief over her mouth.

Mrs. Kendall rose, tender pity on her face.

"Brant, my poor dear boy—" her musical voice trembled. "please try not to take this too hard."

Brant's face went grey as though a handful of ashes had been rubbed over it. "She's dead—"



His mother's laugh was harsh. "Oh, I'd almost wish she had—for your sake. Oh, my dear, I can't soften the blow.....Brant, she has left you.....

"Dale.....why....

"Le say zoo' be..in Opar," Tarzan explained to Mbuvira. "He I shall punish her enemies so that she may return in safety, if she still live." "But what about your white enemies?" asked Mbuvira. "They shall not escape a," said Tarzan, "but La concerns us most."

Many miles away, La and Wayne Colt with Jadbal-ja, the golden lion, at their heels, approached a village in the jungle that was entirely inhabited by man-made beasts in the form of human beings. Although now only a few shelters were occupied by a few blacks.

"We have found it at last," said Wayne; "thanks to you." "Yes, but it is deserted," replied La. "They have all left." "No," said Colt, "not all blacks. "It is well," said La, "and now I must leave you." There was a note of regret in her voice.

"I wish that you would let me face your enemies with you," he said. She shook her head. "No, that cannot be," she replied. "Were you to help me, they would only hate you. If Jad-bal-ja and I are slain alone, three of us could accomplish no more."

she had never before known, fell on Dale when she entered the first agency office. Before, when she was supporting herself, she had been calloused to appraising glances impervious to curt rejections. Now she was speculative. Marriage and luxury had weakened her for earning her own living.

Dale heard herself stammering out her request. She knew that she had lost poise—that she was making a poor impression.

It was almost a relief to be told that the casting for the road shows had been finished over a week ago. No, they had nothing for her—indifferently.

She went out with flaming cheeks.

Down the scale Dale went, from walnut desks and Persian rugs, to the agencies which hid at the top of narrow brass edged stairs and had shabby linoleum on the floor. Pouchy gentlemen with cigar stubs pointing eyes called her sweetheart and told her they had nothing for her.

Dale was growing frightened. She stopped asking for small parts in legitimate productions. She asked for chorus work.

The pouchy gentlemen shook their heads. Shows weren't using much chorus this year; except the Follies, of course, an' just try an' get in that, ha-ha!

The old terror of the job gripped Dale. She went on under the whip of necessity. Plodding along in the heat while the day grew late. Finally exhausted she tried the last agency, trying to look arch and vivacious. Surely they would know something she said gally, trying to keep the trouble out of her voice. She'd had so much experience—chorus — vaudeville acts — dance turns — she could dance.

The particular pouchy gentleman to whom Dale was speaking glanced speculatively at her shapely legs and said he bet she could.

"Bet you what—" he chewed his cigar to a more convenient angle. "If you wanna go out west I gotta friend in Chicago. S got a night club there. Maybe he could use you. Mind you—I ain't guaranteeing nothing, but I'll give you a card."

It was not what she wanted, but it was work. She would have to LOCARNO, VERSAILLES, SCRAPS OF PAPER AS GERMANY MARCHES—Was the famous "scrap of paper" in 1914, the Versailles Treaty and the Locarno Pact have become scraps of paper, to be torn in shreds by Adolph Hitler and his Nazi cohorts. By his latest decree in which a German army of 5,000 moves into the Rhine zone previously demilitarized under Versailles, Hitler has shattered the last links in the treaty imposed on Germany after the great war. Feared for some time, the move nevertheless startled Europe into another war scare. The move was made doubly serious since, in Hitler's announcement of the order, he renounced also the Locarno Pact, Europe's most important treaty by which the major nations agreed upon mutual assistance in event of aggression. The Rhine zone now being occupied by German troops, is reported to have been secretly fortified by Germany during the past few years. In return for these moves, Hitler offers to return to the League of Nations, offers non-aggression pacts with France and Belgium. Foreign observers, see in the new move the fine hand of Benito Mussolini, Italian dictator and believe Hitler's hand was forced by the Franco-Soviet mutual assistance pact. The above layout shows Nazi troops on the march, Adolph Hitler and map of the Rhine area between Germany, France and Belgium.

KING WINTER GOES DOWN FIGHTING—King Winter is not leaving us without a battle. This unusual air view shows flood waters and ice jams actually breaking up a bridge which spans the Platte river between the towns of Valley and Wahoo. Three pieces of the bridge are just starting down the river, pushed by huge cakes of ice freed by the thaw. A pipeline, carrying illuminating gas, is shown suspended over the break. Farther along toward the main structure, the line is broken and clouds of escaping gas are visible in the picture. The pilot and photographer in the camera plane smelled the gas high above the scene.

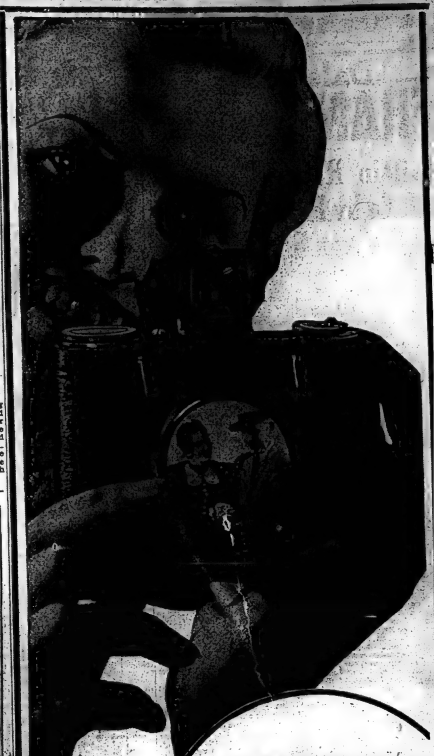
RAINS DEATH ON HELPLESS ETHIOPIANS—This unusual picture show the newest type of Italian bombing aeroplane which is now being used in Ethiopia, flying ahead of the advancing infantry forces to spread death and destruction in the wake of its exploding bombs. The unusual angle from which this picture was made, gives a clear picture of the deadly possibilities of the plane. Note the glass-enclosed nose of the fuselage, giving uninterrupted view of hundreds of miles of territory on all sides. Note the two huge bombs slung on either side of the fuselage bottom. One of these bombs probably is capable of sinking a large passenger ship or of destroying an entire town. Behind the two large bombs can be seen the racks of smaller bombs, which are also released from within the cockpit of the plane. The last bit of ingenious construction is in the form of the lowered cockpit (centre, background) from which an operator can spray the ground with a hail of machine-gun bullets as the bomber sweeps for the kill.

ALBIZU CAMPOS

NATIONALISTS ARRESTED IN PUERTO RICO CRISIS—National guard units of San Juan, P. R., were mobilized in their armories against possible emergencies following the arrest of Albizu Campos (inset), Puerto Rican Nationalist leader, on a charge of recruiting soldiers in an alleged conspiracy to overthrow American rule. Six other Nationalists were arrested by United States Marshal Draughon on similar charges. Recently there have been frequent incidents involving Nationalists and United States authorities, Nationalists seek independence.

FIRST FATALITY IN NEW YORK BUILDING SERVICE STRIKE—The body of Samuel Gallo, accidentally killed while operating an elevator in a New York apartment building is placed in a patrol wagon. Gallo, first fatality in the New York building service strike, was employed as a strikebreaker and was crushed to death his first day on the job.



COINCIDENCE SAVES YOUTH'S LIFE—How would you like to be in the predicament George Hayes (RIGHT) just got out of. George is 21, has most of his life before him, and yet was in the shadow of the electric chair for a murder he did not commit—identified as a killer by eight honest witnesses.

Last November, a chain store clerk, James Fitzpatrick was killed during a hold-up. Hayes had worked for the same concern and had been discharged a short time before the hold-up and police thought they had conclusive evidence against him because of the circumstances surrounding the case and the positive identification by the eight witnesses.

However, the other day, John Farley (LEFT), was captured during an attempted hold-up and upon his person was found the same gun which killed Fitzpatrick. Detectives, noticing Farley's resemblance to Hayes, accusation of the murder and he confessed.

The murder indictment against Hayes has been nullified and he has been technically paroled until all charges against him can be dropped legally.

Noticed the close resemblance between Farley (LEFT) and Hayes (RIGHT)? It is not hard to see how the witnesses erred.

FRANCE OFFERED GUARANTEES TO NEGOTIATE

Britain Refuses Plea Made by France to Oust German Rhine Armies

Immediate Help Request Turned Down by Eden at Paris Meeting

FRIDAY MEET AWAITED

French Can Put Million Men Along Front by Calling up Classes

By JOHN EVANS

Paris, Mar. 10 (AP)—A veritable bombshell exploded here today when Eden, British Foreign Secretary, had offered France "strong security guarantees" if she will resume negotiations with Germany.

The exact nature of the proposal was not defined.

It was stated that, for the present, it is simply an idea of which the details must be worked out.

The information that Eden's offer had been made followed differences between France and Great Britain on the method of dealing with the international emergency which has arisen through German reoccupation of troops into the Rhineland.

Great Britain accepted negotiations with Reichsfuehrer Hitler on his proposals for new pacts.

France declared against negotiations so long as the troops remained at their new positions on the French frontier.

Great Britain refused to entertain the idea troops must be removed before friendly discussions could be undertaken.

Belgium and Italy sided with France.

These developments took place rapidly in a day packed full of diplomatic and political action.

Chamberlain Arrives

Foreign Minister Flandin first broached the subject of combined action within the League of Nations to force German troops away from the Rhineland at a conference of representatives of Great Britain, Belgium and Italy.

He declared France would hesitate only if the troops were evacuated. He suggested Germany refuse that the four nations concerned join in asking the League Council to act.

Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary, turned down this suggestion.

Paris, Mar. 10 (AP)—Great Britain today refused France's request that it join with France to compel Germany's armies from the Rhineland and the French government issued a general call to mobilize the League of Nations for support in "a fight for peace."

After Pierre Etienne Flandin, his foreign minister, had called it at a conference of Locarno signatories to get Great Britain's backing, Premier Sarraut went before the Chamber of Deputies in a public effort to gain sympathy for the French cause.

He proclaimed his government's determination to defend the law and revoke decisions of the aggressor, regardless of the sacrifices necessary against might."

With the cheers from Tvon Delbos, Minister of Justice, made a similar plea to the Senate.

Premier Sarraut declared if Reichsfuehrer Hitler was justified in violating the Locarno Treaty "then we must turn resolutely toward military alliances and not a return to peace and, let us admit it frankly, he was made by the strong when they made the law."

Taking his cue from Hitler "who spoke the French people over the head of their government," Sarraut rallied "to the German people."

"I have confidence in France. She would have confidence in France signing her treaties if she had just torn up old ones. How, then, can they have confidence in France if we break negotiations that Germany sponsored?"

The Premier declared France "does not refuse negotiations that make for peace" but that "we refuse to accept treat when dominated by violence and when signatures are repudiated."

Accents On Facts.

He said France was resolved "to join all her strength to that of other members within the League and to reply to the veritable assaults on international confidence, faith in treaties, collective security and peace."

"France," he said, "is ready to deal with Germany once respect for international law has again been enforced.

"The future of European peace is at stake."

Sarraut outlined the history of the signing of the Locarno Pact and of British and French efforts to organize peace machinery during the last year but stated Hitler let it be known, "First, that he would hesitate long before signing and that he never would sign."

"Profound Impression of Horror".

The Premier declared that "profound impression of horror" was felt when Sarraut referred to "the precise and formal violations" which had received from the Great War.

European Crisis At a Glance

(By The Canadian Press)

PARIS, Mar. 10—Representatives of France, Great Britain, Belgium and Italy—signatories to the violated Locarno Pact—met to discuss Germany's occupation of the Rhineland, France urging prohibitment of the Reich, Britain seeking a new security system.

LONDON—King Edward VIII conferred with Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin and Secretary Alfred Duff Cooper as Britain assumed the role of conciliator in the crisis.

BERLIN.—Semi-official Nazi press circles indicated increased interest in a return of Germany to the League of Nations. A Foreign Office spokesman expressed satisfaction Britain was willing to consider Germany's proposals for new pacts.

GENEVA.—The League of Nations, having invited Germany to Friday's Council session on Ethiopia and Belgium protests against the Reich's treaty violations, interpreted Chancellor Hitler's inaction as making sanctions against Germany unlikely.

LONDON.—Confidence appeared of heavy artillery and other weapons making Germany's army on the Rhine more than the "symbolic" force originally indicated as Great Britain considered her gain their first inspections.

STRASBOURG.—Border redoubts, covering parish churches, heard rumors that old Imperial regiments were forming in the Reich's Rhineland Army.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Burlington, Ont., March 10 (CP) — The rural man is to be all protected by bullets, according to the Burlington Women's Institute has the way. The idea is to give the rural man a bullet proof vest with the city girl in matrimonial mind. The object of the Institute is to train a girl in such matters as how to be a thrifty housewife, use of cosmetics, design and care of clothing and social charm. Then the girl can pass on the hints through the community.

Randolph, Vt., March 10 (CP) — The town's steam roller has been idle for months on the streets and the townsfolk looked to see if their calendars were wrong. Then they saw the roller in motion.

George F. Miller, superintendent of public works, explained with misgivings the accumulation of heavy fines of $5 on some of the streets.

He had sharp legs inserted into the two sides of the steam roller.

He grinned as the heavy machine zipped the ice coating from the streets.

Buffalo, N.Y., March 10 (CP) — Archbishop Pidgeon told the Judge he was amazed his divorced wife, Mrs. Dorothy Pidgeon, had won the suit. Regularly every month, he said, he had prepared her divorce orders and set the "complete" away in a cigar box. The box was found in the bottom of the locker, complete money orders.

Annul's complaint was withdrawn.

Bradenton, Fla., March 10 (CP) — The Dizzy Dean boys had out-pitched him. Records kept by Mrs. Dizzy patiently assumed command of Pitcher-pa's activities.

"I'll be right there when and if they ever give me a call and I'll let him (the O.K. before he sets his foot on the mound," said Mrs. Dizzy.

"And furthermore, if they make him "at-ease" this season, it'll cost them a new pitcher. Somebody will have to come through with this before he's back pay before he'll sign for 1937."

Young Boy Holds Rope in Teeth, Rescued After Brother Drowns

PORT ERIE, Ont., March 10. — (CP) — George Brock, six-year-old boy from Black Rock, immediately opposite Port Erie, was drowned yesterday while playing on the ice with his nine-year-old brother, Albert. Only the vigilance of Harvey Wilkinson, Canadian National Railway Signalman, prevented a double tragedy.

Wilkinson saw Albert struggling in the Niagara River near the International Railway Bridge at Fort Erie, Ont., and crawled on a piece of loose ice and Wilkinson called the United States coastguard who threw a rope to him. He was unable to cling to the rope because his hands were paralyzed by cold, but held it between his teeth, and in this manner got ashore.

The younger brother George had disappeared into the water moments before. His body has not been recovered.

DARKNESS COVERS ARRIVAL OF GUNS OF HEAVY CALIBRE

MACHINE GUNS

Despite Guns Inhabitants Delighted Over Hitler's Actions

(By Melvin K. Whiteleather, Copyright 1936 by The Associated Press)

Cologne, Germany, March 10.—German army commanders began their first inspection of troops in the re-occupied Rhineland today as a confirmation emerged gradually that the Reich's army on the frontiers was, more than a mere assemblage of toys.

One Cologne newspaper published a photograph of a battery of heavy guns hidden in a slaughterhouse here down yard of a Cologne suburb.

Sword Arms

These guns are not, drawn through the city and the disclosure of their presence until strength to statements by foreign residents here Germany's army has more than toy arms and a stiffer defensive fight if called upon to do so.

Most of the heavy batteries were brought into the Rhineland zone, facilitating the making of Germany's army on the Rhine more than the "symbolic" force originally indicated as Great Britain considered her gain their first inspections.

STRASBOURG.—Border redoubts, covering parish churches, heard rumors that old Imperial regiments were forming in the Reich's Rhineland Army.

Eden's Speech Was Dictated By Baldwin, Says Pertinax

Paris, March 10.—(CP-Havas)— Pertinax, widely-read foreign affairs commentator, said in the Echo De Paris today Anthony Eden's speech in the British House of Commons yesterday had practically been dictated to him by Prime Minister Baldwin and other cabinet members and was not the one he had prepared. The writer also said Mr. Eden came to the conference today in Paris with strict instructions.

Meanwhile the Soviet Union and the Franco-Soviet mutual assistance treaty assumed an increasingly important place in the situation.

Soviet Ambassador Vladimir Potemkin assured Foreign Minister Flandin as soon as the League of Nations declares the Reich a violator of Locarno and France demands the Nazi army be moved out of the Rhineland, the Soviet army will back France to the limit.

Attitude of Britain Pleases German Reich

'Germany Has Made Offer: England Has Seized Her Hand and is Trying to Serve Europe,' Says German Newspaper Interest in Lost Colonies Shown

(By A. D. Steffercd)
(Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press)

Berlin, March 10.—The Third Reich's attitude toward the British Empire was officially today over Great Britain's attitude toward the German reoccupation of the Rhineland, a willingness to consider the new Treaty proposals which accompanied the action and the Locarno Pact.

The public pronouncements of Britain's Prime Minister Baldwin and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden were declared by Foreign Office spokesmen to be a cause for satisfaction after a conference of German officials first took an opportunity to study Chancellor Hitler's speech of Commons debate, last Thursday.

"The main thing is that the British Cabinet will seriously consider the German proposals," a high German official said.

"We have the understanding for the fact that the British Government is not alone master of its decisions and that the whole apparatus of the League of Nations must be set in motion. Nevertheless, a final answer can be given.

"This is why we feel although decisive in connection with the Italo-Ethiopian conflict when it was proposed frequently that the British Government was ready for a course of action, that it did not mean that the whole gamut of League "instantly" before complete conduct could result.

Lenoir's Delay

"This necessity to go hand in hand with other members of the League with the British Cabinet's attitude at present is one of reserve. The main thing is that doors have been closed and that all possibility for negotiation is left open.

"This official attitude also was reflected in a non-day "Frankfurter Zeitung" a widely circulated daily newspaper which usually reflects Nazi authoritative sources, that:

"Germany has again made an offer. Her hand has been stretched across the Rhine. England has seized this hand and is trying to serve Europe.

"Undoubtedly there is much in the British interpretation that differs from our own, but there are two things that separate us that are unchangeable. They are the economic fate of Europe."

Interest in Colonies

Semi-official Germany, reflecting "acts of startness over foreign reaction to Adolf Hitler's full restatement of the Rhineland, showed increasing interest today in the Reich's League of Nations and the Reich's war-lost colonies.

Official press statements, seemingly made with the knowledge or the approval of Joseph Goebbels, Nazi propaganda minister, left no doubt Germany's colonies or friendless isolation unthinkable.

As the Wilhelmstrasse mulled over the declarations of British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and pointed for Friday's League Council meeting, indications were at hand the Reich is ready to be wooed by Germany with the return of a colony or two as a possible dowry.

Officials, nevertheless, explained again future developments along the lines of Germany's offer to join in the somewhat defensive atmosphere two especially pertinent comments were at hand.

The Koelnische Zeitung remarked:

"More remains to be said about the colonial question. This can be said when the question of Germany's re-entry into the League of Nations is more than now and after Her Fuehrer has developed his proposals."

Return to League

The Frankfurter Zeitung said:—

"In giving notice to the world of Germany's decision to return to the League of Nations with free will the present collective system. At the same time, however, Reich is ready to add to this system a complex of workable, regional security pacts—of course pacts without military clauses—if Germany is to participate in them."

Defense for Dr. Ruxton Claims 3 Bodies Were Found, Not 2

Alleges That an Extra Eye Could Not be Fitted Into The Remains

CASE CONTINUES

Manchester, England, March 10.—(CP)—Attempts by counsel trying to get Dr. Ruxton from England's hair-trigger gallows set out his contention a jury today police found the dismembered pieces of the body of the wife of the "Devil's beer-tub" last fall.

Dr. Ruxton is accused of having killed his wife and a nursemaid. Their dismembered bodies were found in the ravine.

Sir Bernard Birkitt, defence counsel, took Prof. John Glaister, expert medical witness, through cross-examination and suggested the police realized from the start there were three persons involved.

Birkett asked if it were not a fact there was an extra eye among the 43 medical specimens of human flesh found by police into the rear of the remains. He asked if it were not a fact a hand and an arm had at one time been assigned to the wrong body.

"It was be plain," declared Birkett, "that you are dealing with three bodies."

Professor Glaister answered that he considered that would deal with that aspect of the case.

TWO MOTORBOATS BURN AT PICTON

Blaze of Unknown Origin Threatened to Sweep Row of Boathouses

Picton, Ont., March 10—(CP)—A double boathouse containing two motorboats was destroyed by fire here today. The blaze, of mysterious origin, threatened to sweep the long row of boathouses with property valued at many thousands of dollars.

The boats burned were owned by Bedford Chandler and Wilmore Richard Stickney of Buffalo. The side of another boathouse owned by Nesbitt McGibbon was burned.

FLOOD MENACE DISAPPEARING

Galt, Ont., March 10.—(CP) Until heavy rains appear there is no possibility of a flood on the Grand River, Galt says. It will be a normal level for this time of year despite recent mild weather.

NON-POLITICAL CIVIL SERVANTS AIM OF HUNTER

Should be Trained For "Career" Says Toronto Liberal

DEBATE CONTINUES

Gov't. Praised For Rebuilding Worn Out Highways

Toronto, March 10.—(CP)—A non-political, non-partisan selection of trained "career" civil servants has been suggested to the Ontario Legislature by Col. F. Frank Bundy, Liberal member for Toronto St. Patrick.

"Until we do that," he declared slightly last night in the debate on the address-in-reply, "we should begin now, our sacred democracy will continue to be the prey of the spoilsman and decay and must inevitably be displaced by the Labor Party which is now around us."

Mr. Bundy was the last of seven speakers who participated in the debate during the day and night sittings. The session was adjourned today.

Speaks on Hydro

George H. Challes (Conn., Grenville-Dundas) was first on the seven speaking list. He was followed by W. L. Miller (Lib., Algoma-Manitoulin) who dealt with conditions in Northern Ontario. William Dock, (Lab., Hamilton East) suggested a plan to end unemployment by a government commission, which would have power to borrow money to employ additional men, while Dr. George Stapells (Lib., Hamilton) spoke on hydro. Dr. C. E. Tanner, (Lib., Victoria) spoke of governmental economy.

Premier Hepburn and Attorney-General Wood(ina) voiced a claim for new dignity in the debates and C. M. Godfrey (Lib., Middlesex North) moved the year for motor licenses which now corresponds with the calendar year be changed to the April 1 to March 31 fiscal year, ending March 31, beginning on March 1 to pay their taxes at the end of the calendar year.

Did Not Need Changer

Eastern Ontario did not need new water line transportation charges, Dr. Arcy Omoleasion installed at Chats Falls to change 35-cycle hydro power into 60-cycle Eastern Ontario power, said Mr. Challies, because of the Chats Falls project the necessity of building a transmission line to make 60-cycle power available for the horse-power in Eastern Ontario.

He added the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Company did not obtain a new contract, although the Gatineau Power and Electrical Supply Companies received them.

Mr. Challies said the power contract through this government without any tender to the Gatineau Company "is a disgrace to this province."

Citizens said Mr. Miller, elected from Algoma-Manitoulin, had done more for Trade and various other positions. People thought the late Premier Ferguson, Albert Edward, he failed to see why a member of the Legislature should not be in the Cabinet.

Mr. MacKe' conservationist stated, had done more than any other man to improve the quality of Ontario livestock. He praised the government's road building and rebuilding of highways and favored the "pay-as-you-go" basis of financing.

King Edward Receives Leaders in Conference On Rhineland Difficulty

Labor M. P. Asks Government to Consider Hitler Peace Proposals

PRAYER FOR GUIDANCE

Arthur Greenwood Declares Baldwin Politically is Dead

By G. H. ANDERSON

London, Mar. 10 (AP) — Labor Party Members of Parliament today called on the British government in a House of Commons debate to accept Reichsfuehrer Hitler's proposals of peace.

A few hours earlier, King Edward had conferred the leaders of his government in conference on the critical international situation created by Germany's moving troops into the long-demilitarized Rhineland.

Prayers For Legislators.

The House of Westminster Abbey announced "in view of the developments at the moment, a service for the intercession of God's guidance for the representatives of the nation" will be held in Westminster Abbey at 5 p.m. Thursday.

The Labor member was Arthur Greenwood who declared:

"If this crisis is to end, it will be a fatal and disastrous thing for the human race.

"Time To Talk".

"We can believe there is a desire on the part of Germany to avoid war. We know there is time to talk.

"It is idle to say that Hitler's statements are insincere. This particular quarrel could be settled in a few days. A day's delay for a few days will jeopardize with us the whole future of Europe. The outstanding problems so as to recreate the effective League of Nations headed by a sound system of pooled security."

Jekyll and Hyde Struggle

He said Great Britain's position in trying to preserve peace in Europe is "barking upon a huge rearmament program and the success of Prime Minister Baldwin's speech yesterday, in which a plea was made for support for the government's rearmament program. Dr. C. E. Tanner, (Lib., Victoria East) spoke of governmental economy.

"It is a struggle between Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," declared Greenwood. "Mr. Hyde is the man who is struggling for the mastery of Great Britain."

Will Not Change

He said Great Britain's position in trying to preserve peace in Europe is "barking upon a huge rearmament program and the success of Prime Minister Baldwin's speech yesterday, in which a plea was made for support for the government's rearmament program. Dr. C. E. Tanner, (Lib., Victoria East) spoke of governmental economy.

Greenwood said it was clear Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde were locked in struggling for the mastery of Great Britain.

Maple Sugar Trade 230 Years Old

Ottawa, March 10.—(CP)—News that the sap is running in the maple trees today caused the Department of Agriculture to disclose the white man's maple-sugar industry in Canada is 230 years old this spring and that about 50,000 farmers from Western Ontario to the Atlantic seaboard share in the harvest.

70,000,000 maple trees produce sap in Eastern Canada but that only about one-third of that number is tapped. Value of last year's sugar and syrup harvest was $3,523,400, an increase in a year of $481,820. Industry was started in 1706 at Sault au Recollet, near Montreal.

FRENCH DEPOSITORS WITHDRAW MONEY IN BORDER CITIES

Strasbourg, March 10 (CP) — Frightened depositors stood in line all the banks in Metz, withdrawing their money today as the Reich's troops stood along German occupation of the Rhineland.

It was estimated $,000,000 francs were withdrawn from banks similarly large amounts were withdrawn from banks in other border cities.

NAZI AIRPLANE DRIVEN HOME

"This Time We Are Prepared" Say Simple Peasant Folk

(By Charles Foltz, Copyright, 1936, The Associated Press)

Strasbourg, March 10.—Praying women and children, stirred by reports that crack French regiments or Kaiser Wilhelm are on the march in the Rhineland, crowded the churches here and in these French frontier provinces today.

In Private homes, where memories of fighting men into the Maginot line and manned great anti-aircraft guns that ring the city, and from Belgium to Switzerland, the people prayed that their rumored return of Imperial regiments, stationed in Alsace before 1914, have been revived to add Adolf Hitler's Rhineland army.

British churches in villages such as Druesenheim, north of Strasbourg, were crowded with prayerful people. Many were still aged German, the historic Strasbourg Cathedral, and Protestant churches, where soldiers mingling with the citizens.

Many peasants gazed with fear-filled eyes toward columns of black smoke rumbling through their placid villages, contorted themselves with the blunt comment:

"This time we are prepared!"

Tension heightened overnight upon reports that a Nazi airplane had been driven by French fortress at Thionville. The plane, with French ground crew in it, he tail, roared back over the border, authorities at Metz were told.

How many new troops had joined the 100,000 already in the Maginot line remained a secret at Strasbourg barracks. But French officers said 30,000 of Nazi fighting men had entered the rearmed Rhineland Monday.

Unusual number of Nazi "green police" had been absorbed into the Reichswehr, these officers claimed, although the German government has "failed" to tell the other signers of the protocols Treaty of Locarno.

17 YEAR YOUTH SENTENCED TO DIE

Joe Abramovitz, Student of Montreal, Found Guilty

Montreal, Mar. 10 (CP) — Joe Abramovitz, 17-year-old high school student who admittedly sought easy money to finance his way through college education, was convicted today of the murder of William Haynes, Montreal gunsmith, in a holdup last January. The jury, in the case, however, recommended mercy.

There was no intimate consideration, Mr. Justice R. A. E. Greenshields sentenced the youth to be hanged, March 27.

Conviction of young Abramovitz came little more than a week after 15-year-old Louis d'Iengo was found guilty in the same court on a charge of manslaughter arising from the slaying of his stepmother with a hammer. He was charged originally with murder. His sentence will be passed at the end of the assizes.

Young Abramovitz told frankly in the witness box how he and his accomplice, William Schaefer who committed suicide after police closed in on him, had planned to stage "some stickups and get enough money to pay our way through college." He said they had chosen Haynes' shop last January a scuffle ensued and the gunsmith was killed.

Village Dealers Refuse Chandos Tp. Vouchers

Peterborough, Ont., Mar. 10 (CP) —The merchants of the village of Apsley have refused to accept any further relief vouchers from the township of Chandos on the grounds they believe the municipality has failed to pay the bills and they decline to increase their liabilities until they are assured payment has been made. There are at present 44 families on relief with dependents totalling 227. James Rosebush, relief officer, reported 90 per cent. of the applicants have had no work since the highway construction was stopped early in 1935, and that as a result with a small family has lived on five dollars a month. Mr. Rosebush, accordingly, lost its tax rolls for the past three years when the Chandos Township council refused to pay.

City and District News

BLACK DUCK SEEN

Flying only a few feet above the ice, a lone black duck winged its way down the Moira River yesterday headed in the direction of Belleville. The duck was reported by several hunters who had been out on the ice. On the straight line the duck was under the surface between the bay and the mouth of the river.

VITAL STATISTICS

The stork was busier than the Ontario Registrar in this city during the month of February, 16 in number, but by a compilation of vital statistics just presented, during the month a total of 34 births were registered as against 30 deaths. In the month of last week and 18 female. Deaths claimed 16 male and 10 female.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT FOR GOOD CROPS

"Things in the country are shaping up pretty well" commented Mr. Wm. Mitchell, Dominion district seed inspector of the local office today in reference to the present spring thaw."

"Up to the present we haven't had any heavy rains, just enough thawing and thawing and sunshine to be coming through in good shape. There's a good deal of frost in the ground and everything so far is conducive to good crops later on."

CONFERENCE CALLED OF MILITIA OFFICERS

A conference of all Infantry Brigade and Battalion Commanders in Military District No. 14 will be held at Kingston on Sunday, March 22nd, according to word received for this Military District No. 3 by Lt. Col. Gem. Ponton, D.S.O., M.C., orders that all Brigade and Battalion Commanders will be represented by a senior officer detailed in their absence. The conference will affect all units of the local Argyll Light Infantry, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and the Frontenac Regiment.

DRAINS BLOCKED BY STICKS AND DEBRIS

Complaints from residents of the east side of Charlotte Crescent regarding flooding of their property during the past day or so have been traced to blocked drains in the east-side playgrounds, by the local department of public works. Further inquiries revealed the drains filled with sticks, debris ostensibly placed there by children at play. Police have been notified.

NEWT. THOMPSON ON "Y" COUNCIL

Past President of International Given High Honor

Newton Thompson, past president of Y's Men's International, was recently appointed to the National Council of the Y.M.C.A. It was disclosed at the weekly meeting of the Y's Men's Club last night being by J. E. Shortt, secretary of the local club.

The information regarding Mr. Thompson's new appointment came previous to the installation of Mr. Thompson as the principal speaker at the evening, with the address upon the Y's Men's International and its recent developments towards the International circle. The appointment to office on the National Y.M.C.A. Council is a outstanding and signal honour, which has been given to Newton Thompson, who is an ardent and sincere worker on behalf of the Y.M.C.A.

During the evening President Dr. Jack Marshall, who is also chairman of the coming Y's Men's musical comedy, "The Circus," made a fascinating report regarding the progress of the play. President Marshall assured the club members that "The Circus" would be undoubtedly the most hilarious comedy ever presented in Belleville, with the continuance of fun and frivolity throughout. All local talent is being used.

A business meeting of the Y's Men's executive board followed the regular weekly meeting held at the Y.M.C.A. last evening.

Contemplate Chest Clinic for Children Of Pre-school Age

Whether or not it is practical to hold a chest clinic for children of the city of pre-school age, with junction with the regular Well-Baby Clinic held weekly at the City Hall by the Victorian Order of Nurses will be probed by a special committee of the Belleville and District Council at regular meeting of the Order held this evening.

The clinic has as its objective the discovery and treatment of tuberculosis of T.B. symptoms among the younger children. The committee appointed to investigate the matter is Holland, president of the local Order and Mrs. Jay Monnell, vice-president and Mr. Fred Smythe, past president.

Member Visits Increase

A consistent rise in the number of visits that are during the past month was revealed by the monthly report submitted by Miss Ethel Soular for February. During the month a total of 1,023 visits were made, 202 of which were visits to mothers and children. During January and February of this year total visits reached 1046 while during the corresponding months in 1935 the number of visits was given at 863. The increased work has resulted in extra expenditure on the part of the Order and the necessity of hiring a part time nurse for three or four half days during the past month.

Notes of appreciation for the assistance given the local Order by the Rotary, Kinsmen, Kiwanis, Y's Men and fire and police departments during the recent carnival will be read at the meeting, it was decided at a distance given the local Order by the the meeting.

Sandbags, Dynamite Ready for Break-up

Kitchener, Ont., March 10 (CP)—The Grand River began to shed the shackles of winter here today as a mild spring weather started little currents of water flowing across the ice. Still solid but deeply furrowed by the erosive action of the surface streamlets, the ice held at Bridgeport and indications were at least another day or two of warm weather would be necessary to start the spring floods on their way.

The city's engineering department has men on watch and supplies of sandbags and dynamite on hand in case the ice jams.

'I HELD AFTER STRIKE

Stratford, Ont., March 10 (CP)—Steve Lemon, appearing before Magistrate Maibins today on charges arising out of yesterday's street strike disturbance, were remanded until Friday. The request for a remand was made by the men themselves. No bail was allowed. One more was added to the list of alleged participants in yesterday's disturbance, now under arrest.

KING GIVES AUDIENCE

LONDON, March 10 (CP Cable)—King Edward today gave an audience to Prime Minister Baldwin and subsequently to Albert Sarif-Cooper, Secretary for War.

No special significance attached to the meetings, for the late King George invariably received leading Ministers whenever the House of Commons was engaged in discussions of particular importance.

IS FOUND IN BED WITH THROAT CUT

Trenton, March 10 —(Special)—Lying in a welter of blood on his bed, Lionel Conan, 42, farm hand employed by Mr. Samuel Bamford, of Consecon, was found by his employer early this morning, when called for work, with his throat cut. A safety razor blade, the instrument with which he ostensibly tried to commit suicide lay beside him on the bed.

Hastily called to the farm house, Dr. Van Luven of Consecon rendered first aid, after which a Trenton ambulance was summoned. The victim is in a serious condition owing to the loss of blood was at once taken to the Picton General Hospital where later today he was reported in a critical condition. The fact that the jugular vein was missed in the attempt to slash his throat is believed to have been responsible for his not dying at once.

Conan had apparently been contented with his work and no reason was given for the act.

BRITAIN REFUSES PLEA OF FRANCE

He said Hitler himself had declared the peaceful settlement of disputes by arbitration tervitory, returned to Germany by plebiscite, was "the most important difference between France and Germany."

Hitler's contract went on, two months later the Reichsfuehrer denounced the arms clauses of the Versailles Treaty.

The Premier declared what Hitler had done "was peaceful because it accept as long as there is justice".

During the Locarno Conference of Locarno Signatories preceding the parliamentary session, Anthony Eden, British Foreign Minister, engaged for a thorough examination of military questions and the joint and separate steps to be considered in the League of Nations.

Then and the other two conferees, Premier Paul Van Zeeland of Belgium and Joachim Baron Ribbentrop, self of Italy, heard Fiandin uphold the plainly illegal act, Mussolini's Premier, that France would refuse "to negotiate under a menace".

Withdraw Demands

The French representative demanded that the Army be withdrawn from the Rhineland before the Locarno Powers would be undertaken with Hitler.

The four conferees and their 22 advisers agreed there would be no decision until they meet at Geneva next April 13 for the League of Nations' Council session

Meanwhile the three experts will continue conferences through the remainder of the day and probably tomorrow.

In the meantime, French sources said, Fiandin hoped to persuade other League council members to back the viewpoint.

British advisers said Eden expected the project to occupy a week and two days of reflection would convince the French they should present cautiously in the demand for sanctions against Germany which followed its war.

Million Men Ready.

Gen. Louis Felix Maurin, Minister of War, presented a report to the Supreme Council night showing the more military classes were recalled to the colors they with the general troops, would form an army of 1,- 600,000 men "which could take and hold the Rhineland."

This theory was based on the premise it be done immediately before the Germans were thoroughly fortified.

The general staff was understood to contend that German army was still unprepared while the French army was at its height of form. An authoritative source said the general officers stated, if there must be further preparations to have is now rather than a year or two hence when Germany would be fully ready.

Ambassador Cerruti and his five Italian advisers did little more than listen during the conference discussions.

Italians In Predicament.

The Italian envoy was in a difficult position according to aides with France being unable to advocate the withdrawal of troops from the Rhineland while negotiations drag on the same reasoning would require Italy to withdraw troops from Ethiopia before peace talks through the League could be begun.

Official communique, after listing the delegates, said Fiandin had "made it clear that the object of the meeting was to exchange information on the present situation but no resolution will be proposed and no decision will be taken before the April council meeting."

The League government received the briefing of the French Radical-Socialist party in its stand against the German move in the Rhineland Pact.

Former Premier Herriot, leader of the party, indicated it would press for the national elections, set for the end of April, be postponed, leaving the Chamber of Deputies in emergency session as long as German troops remain in the Rhineland.

Obituary

Mrs. William Stairs-Duffin

Word of the death of death in London, England, of Mrs. William Stairs-Duffin, was received last night by her brother, C. W. Badgley, 24 Stewart Street. The cable notifying Mr. Badgley of his sister's death gave no particulars. News of the death of Mrs. Stair-Duffin will be a great shock to her many friends in Ottawa.

Mrs. Stairs-Duffin, who before her marriage was Emily Margaret Badgley, was born in Toronto on March 26, 1856, and was the eldest daughter of the late Frank Rayton Badgley, K.C., law clerk of the House of Commons, and Margaret Drummond. Her father's brother was Judge Badgley of Montreal, grandfather of Mrs. Gerald Spafford of the city of Belleville.

She came to Ottawa from Quebec with her parents when the Dominion Government moved its capital here and resided in this city until the death of her parents some eight years ago.

She was married to William Stairs-Duffin, of Halifax, in 1887. She and her husband lived in Halifax for some years, but had made up residence in London, England, where she lived until the time of her death.

Her husband predeceased her last September. Surviving her are two sons, both of whom are in London, England. The death of her husband, letters recently received by relatives and friends, from her son, Frank Duffin, indicate she was in good health. The news of her sudden death therefore came as a great shock.

Besides her brother, C. W. Badgley of this city, she leaves to mourn her loss a brother G. W. Badgley and a sister, Mrs. Frank Badgley, both of Montreal; a son, Major Chester Stairs-Duffin, M. C. and Bar, resident in London, a daughter, Mrs. Hugh Ireland, also of London and two grandchildren.

Captain Frank C. Badgley, M. C. who served with the Canadian Forces during the war, is brigade of artillery in the Great War is a nephew.

The funeral arrangements will take place from her late residence, Pelham Cottage, Regent Street, Putney, S. W. 1, and interment will be in London.

LATE MRS. MARY VANCE

Stirling, March 10 (Special)—The funeral of the late Mrs. Mary Vance took place today at her home on Edward St. on Thursday, March 5th, took place at her residence on Thursday, March 5th from the home to St. Andrew's Church, Stirling. The service was conducted by Rev. A. E. Cooper, assisted by Rev. W. J. McConnell, Rector of the church and was very largely attended.

Mrs. Vance, who passed away in her eighty-seventh year was born in Huntingdon Township, being a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Blakely and had resided in Stirling for the past sixteen years. She was a member of the Stirling Anglican Church and highly esteemed by all who knew her.

Left to mourn her passing are two sons Phillip and Charles both of Stirling, three daughters, Mrs. Chas. Polk of Portland, Ontario; Mrs. Jas. Kelly Consecon, Ontario; one brother, Mrs. Charles Blakely of Newport, and two sisters, Mrs. J. Kincaid, Madoc and Mrs. John Scott of Rawdon township.

The pallbearers were Messrs. J. R. Beisbaw; Munroy Hick; John Green, Rawdon; Dewey John Salsman and Fitzgerald. Interment was made in Stirling cemetery.

LATE GOLDIE WOODBECK

Stirling, March 10— (Special)— Death occurred early Friday morning, March 6th at the Belleville General Hospital of Goldie Woodbeck, beloved son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Woodbeck. Goldie was admitted to the Belleville hospital on Wednesday March 4th, suffering from complications following an attack of the measles and passed away Friday morning.

The funeral service took place on Sunday afternoon, March 8th from the home to St. Paul's United Church where service was conducted by Rev. E. W. Rowland, pastor. Rev. Rowland delivered a very comforting message to the sorrowing parents and friends. During the service Miss Betty Conley sang "Home Ties" by Johnson, with Mr. C. L. Chase at the organ.

Surviving besides the sorrowing parents are one sister Doris and two brothers Vernon and Clifton. The pall bearers were four little boys, Charles Lapum, Norman Murray, Mickey Armstrong and Douglas Patterson. Interment was made in the Stirling Cemetery.

LATE MRS. BESSIE DUNWOODY

After an illness of two months, Mrs. Bessie Dunwoody passed away at her home, Thursday evening, March 5th.

The late Miss Dunwoody was the eldest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Dunwoody and the late Mrs. Matilda McKibbon. She was born on Dec. 16th, 1873 on the 5th Concession of Tyendinaga, where she resided for the first 25 years. She was a member of the United Church and highly esteemed by all who knew her. Left to mourn her loss are one brother, Mrs. Wm. Wright of Shannonville, and one brother, C. W. Dunwoody on the homestead and stepmother, Mrs. Jones, also of Shannonville.

The funeral services conducted by Rev. Mr. Craig were held from her late home on Saturday from there to Napanee Riverview vault, to await interment in the Spring in Napanee Cemetery.

DR. H. A. NESBITT

Toronto, Mar. 10 (CP)—Dr. Howard Ashton Nesbitt, Toronto dentist who practised here for many years, died yesterday in Toronto Western Hospital. Dr. Nesbitt, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. R. Nesbitt, of Napanee, is survived by his wife, Mrs. Daisy Becombe Nesbitt. The funeral will be held Friday afternoon from the Wear Funeral Home, 2314 Queen Street East, at 3 p.m., with interment in Riverside Cemetery, Lindsay, Thursday.

POLICE BLOTTER

Activities dropped to a remarkably low level in and around local police circles during the past 24 hours. One lone motorist passed the call clock at the police station practically every yesterday, but was allowed to return to his home at sundown after being instructed to return in time for Friday morning's police proceedings. Sixteen tickets signed in the register at the night sergeant's desk, all being instructed to "move along" when liberated this morning.

Provincial Police today are investigating the alleged wholesale theft of tools from the city, it is believed by the O.P.P., that an organized gang is coming into Belleville, stealing valuable tools and taking them to outside points and selling them. Further investigations are pending, the Provincial Police intimated today.

Doctors to Address Red Cross Class

Red Cross Nursing Classes have been held with much success in Belleville this winter with Mrs. Hunter, Mrs. Wm. Ponton, and Mrs. Helen Trusdell instructing the young ladies attending.

The lessons given by these nurses have been conducted and the remaining lessons will be given by doctors and a dietician. These are as follows:

He is also a Director of The Trusts & Guarantee Co., Limited, and Remington Rand Limited.

After the Annual Meeting, Mr. Willis made the following statement: "After many years' association with Dominion Stores as a Director and Executive, I accepted the office of assuming the Presidency. I would like to clearly understand, however, that my appointment involves no change in the practical management of the Company, although there are certain changes in titles. Mr. W. F. Stewart, who has held the title of Vice-President in Charge of Operations for the past year, becomes Vice-President and General Manager, and Mr. J. C. Kemp, formerly Assistant to , the President, becomes Assistant General Manager, and will continue in Charge of Operations in Montreal Division. I have full confidence that under their able administration the marked improvement in operations which has occurred in the last few periods will be maintained."

As forecast in the Annual Report, Morley Smith, retiring President, has become Honorary Director of the Company and continues as a member of the Board of Directors.

VENISON APLENTY IN DAYS OF PAST SAYS D.C. HYDE, 80

Octogenarian on Birthday Talks of North Country 75 Years Ago

STORIES OF WOLVES

Seventy-five years ago stations at the front were not bothered with the first-aid problem, relates Mr. Daniel C. Hyde of 163 West Moira Street who helped to celebrate his eighty-first anniversary of his birth. When man was not busy in the northern part of Hastings County where Mr. Hyde spent his boyhood days, bruin was very much on the job. He gave him interference. And when bruin was balked, there was always the fat deer steak to be had. Mr. Hyde recalled in an interview with the Daily Ontario Intelligencer today.

On Sunday afternoon a gathering of about twenty-five of the family, together with friends, gathered at the veteran resident's home to observe in due fashion the significant anniversary.

Mr. Hyde was born in London, England, the son of Daniel Hyde and Sarah Loader. Seventy-eight years ago he came to Canada with his parents and settled in Tudor Township, North Hastings. The voyage at that time, Mr. Hyde distinctly remembers, took six weeks to complete—the most modern different mode of transportation than is in these days of rapid communication. Later Mr. Hyde moved with his parents to Madoc, Prince Edward County where the family resided for a short period. The next move was to Belleville—why where he assisted on the farm until he was almost eighteen years old. At the semblance of his approaching manhood, Mr. Hyde then moved to Belleville where he has since resided.

"In a warm flood of recollection Mr. Hyde referred to the earlier days of Hastings County when wolves roamed the section and were not infrequent. They would bay at night or two from one's door.

My father was a good shot and I still remember his bringing in the bears who used to trample down his potato and corn fields. He had a patch of oats sown, and some bears got into it. They would have been playing in it because they trampled it flat. My father heard them and went out with his gun to chase them away, or maybe get a shot at them. He called Mr. Foster and Mr. Aldridge to help him. But they didn't get a bear that night—they got a four. The second night, though the bears were back and he got one of them. That kept us going for some time.

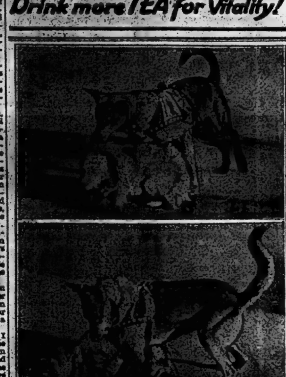
"One other bear I shot at Horseshoe Lake when we were digging potatoes. I was standing on the wagon and father managed to hit it. It was a spine shot and only crippled the animal. I was quite young at the time, but I still remember the savage ferocity of that bear. It stood up on its hind legs and was biting.

"I foaming at the mouth as it was when we tried to shoot it. I was relieved away from it. It was my job for a big box for one of the cubs' nose. The next deer we got was the last I ever shot. We caught its head in a fence and couldn't get away. Father shot it right in the hind foot and held it while I shot it."

Wolves, declared Mr. Hyde were not as savage as people believe they were in the old days. "I can't recall at this point the local resident told of the times he had met them in the woods. Generally they shun away, or rejoin their own pack when they see you.

"Often while going through the woods we met the odd wolf, but I never heard of one assaulting anybody. I've met them somewhat in pairs and at times, they have never attempted to molest me. Generally they'd run from a man. Of course I have never encountered a large sized pack in winter as I couldn't get by the shack for the snow. There was one time, though, when I met a bear in the road. It had been over to a neighbor's getting some butter or lard. We were both met a big black bear face to face. We hallooed and the bear started making for us. He ate it dropped the butter basket and ran back to the neighbor's. I guess the bear and pigeon came out with a gun. When we got back to the shack the bear was there but the bear had gone."

Mr. Hyde numbers himself among the oldest readers of the Daily and Weekly Intelligencer, a work-Ontario Intelligencer, as it is best that for the past seventy-seven years both papers have been continuous arrivals at his and his father's home. Mr. Hyde's father remembered by many of the older residents of the city was one of the first organizers of the Daily and Weekly Intelligencer, working for many years with Mr. Melanie Bowell. Mr. London was an uncle of Mr. Hyde and for many years was private secretary to the late Sherry Corby.



Mr. Hyde married Martha Finkle, a daughter of the late Ronny Finkle of the city. At the home above mentioned at his residence on West Moira Street on Sunday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Hyde of this city and Mrs. Frank Trevelyn of Plainfield, Four grandchildren, Clair, Trevelyn, Martha Trevelyn, Hilda Trevelyn and Gerald R. Hyde were also present to pay their respects.

Mr. Hyde is an inveterate checker player and manages to hold the championship of Belleville in spite of the constant and spirited games played by him regularly. He is also a member of the Y.M.C.A. Checker Club where he wins away many pleasant hours with the checkered board and his friends of the game.

A well known horseman, he has long been identified with the best of horse racing in this section, and in the changing of the times this hungry has been denied. "Anyhow", he remarks present day automobiles ain't faster and perhaps not so dependable, even though they cannot take the place of the prancing horse blizzard with all his high-spirited harness to the fast sleigh.

A CASE OF DOG EAT DOG!!—"Tag" is a hound in police dog's clothing in Pittsburgh, Pa., but his assistant dog-catcher of Pennsylvania, Pa., but his canine pals don't know it because he works a slick courtesque game. A playful-looking German police dog, "Tag" roams the streets looking for fun and frolic, with his master, the dog-catcher, stalking behind him. His lure is an innocent victim. Now for the old confidence game: That "Tag" and gambols before his victim's hand. He wags his tale and whines his beg. Sunday whine. Tch, tch, the lure works and the victim decides cuz into the shop after his pal—the cat. Quick as a flash, Chief "Tag" saddles turns and downs his victim with a flying tackle and pins him until the dog-catcher runs up and captures the poor dog. Then, as the bullion photo shows stands by and gives him the ha-ha as he is taken into custody and hauled away to the pound. Dog-owners in Pittsburgh have filed complaints against "Tag" and his master, and it is indicated that Mayor Charles E. McGrath will take official action against the "finger-dog" and his master.

Checker Tourney To be Held Here

The annual Eastern Ontario checker championship is to be held in the Belleville Y. M. C. A. on Monday, March 23rd next.

The territory from which players may come to competition in the tournament comprises the counties of Prince Edward, Hastings, Northumberland, Peterboro and Renfrew and all counties easterly to the Quebec border. Competitions will be divided into "A" and "B" classes with play beginning at 2.00 p.m. on March, 23rd.

A beautiful silver trophy has been donated for competition by Mr. H. S. Colliver M. L. A., which will be held one year. A nominal entrance fee is also charged which is used to purchase prizes and defray the expenses of the tournament.

The tournament is being held in the Belleville Y. M. C. A. and further information relative to the play may be procured from Mr. J. E. Short.

No Hope of Action For Pensions For The Blind This Session

Ottawa, March 9.—(CP)—Debate on the Canada-United States trade agreement enters its final stage today and after several weeks of argument the House of Commons will probably vote on the measure tonight.

Yesterday was the last full day of the session for Private Members' resolutions and the non-ministerial men found the House in an agreeable mood. Of six resolutions called four were adopted without a dissenting voice, one was challenged on a point of order and left standing pending a Speaker's ruling and debate on the other was adjourned without any opposition being expressed.

The resolutions adopted met with an easy passage because they called for consideration of various schemes and did not ask for immediate action.

The matters to be considered or studied are Pensions for blind persons over the age of 40, settling up a National Youth Re-establishment Commission, seasonal tariffs in the interest of market gardening and erection of a bridge over the St. Lawrence river at Three Rivers, Que.

Appeal for Youth

It was Denton Massey, (Cons. Toronto-Greenwood), leader of the world's largest Bible class, who raised the subject of youth as he made his first parliamentary speech. He said 75 was the young people, who had suffered most from the depression and unemployment and special measures should be taken to re-establish them. His resolution proposed a broad investigation and a commission.

The National Employment Commission the Government will establish soon will be broad enough to deal with the problems of youth, Labor Minister Rogers told the House Jess before the resolution was passed.

Any effective approach to the problem would involve full-time cooperation of Federal and Provincial Governments and the proposed commission would be the agency to bring about that co-operation. Under it it would be possible to appoint a committee to make the investigation Mr. Massey had in mind.

No Action This Session

Pensions for Blind had come to be an annual subject and nearly always nothing but favor. The resolution this year was proposed by Dr. Thomas Donnelly, (Lib. Wood Mountain) and although it passed unanimously Finance Minister Dunning said the Government could not hold out hope of action this session.

Dr. Donnelly's plan called for inclusion of blind persons over the age of 40 within the scope of the Old Age Pensions Act. He said there were 3,614 persons, who might be eligible for the pensions and the total cost would be $237,360 a year of which the Dominion Government's share would be $47,520.

The Bridge proposal came from Lester Dubois, (Lib. Nicolet-Yamaska), who spoke only one minute. It was adopted without more debate. It will ask the government to appoint experts to study the feasibility of the scheme and asserted benefits would accrue from connecting Three Rivers with counties on the south shore of the St. Lawrence and the highways leading to the United States.

Seasonal Tariffs

The Government is considering the question of seasonal tariffs on fruits and vegetables, Mr. Dunning told Ligori Lacombe (Lib. Laval-Two Mountains), who obtained adoption of his resolution favoring such imposts, particularly in April, May and June. Mr. Dunning also agreed with Hon. Grote Stirling, (Cons. Yale), who suggested the United States Treaty made seasonal tariffs impossible.

Percy Purdy (Cons. Qu'Appelle), presented a motion for immediate application of the provisions of the Wheat Board Act to oats, barley, rye and flax but the discussion was adjourned when W. G. Weir (Lib. MacDonald), suggested there were a number of western members not present who wished to speak.

Just before adjournment the House came to the proposal to revoke the Canada-United Kingdom Trade Agreement, standing in the name of J. F. Reid (Lib. Timiskaming). Mr. Dunning claimed the motion was out of order and Speaker Chagnon reserved his decision. Dr. Pouliot wants to revoke the agreements and substitute the British Preference Tariff rates of the 1930 Budget for those in the agreement.

POLICE COURT

Instead of the conventional Monday morning police court in Belleville the proceedings were held yesterday afternoon before Magistrate R. J. Butler, K.C.

James Dempsey, a 20 year old hostler, who resides in a shack in Thurlow Township in the vicinity of the General Hospital and who was the first person to be arrested as the result of the use of the radio broadcasting station, CJIC located in Belleville police station, pleaded guilty to a charge of window dropping.

Dempsey, Crown Attorney R. G. Donnan informed the court, was found looking into the windows of the Jones residence, adjoining the hospital, through a pair of field glasses. Upon a plea of guilty being accepted and with the assurance, that he would behave himself in the future and not molest innocent citizens, Dempsey was given a year's suspended sentence.

As a sequel to the case, however, a local juvenile appeared in a subsequent court and confessed to the theft of a pair of field glasses, the same glasses used by Dempsey in his window peeping. The local juvenile was given a three months' suspended sentence following which he stated he had taken the glasses from a Sidney Township residence upon an impulse, that over-took him, while working at that place. The youth was sent to Rockwood Asylum for observation and after a month's return home and reside under the same roof. A local resident stated he would have to go to jail as he could not pay the fine assessed after having pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication. The entire proceedings was short-lived, court being adjourned after exactly 30 minutes duration. Later His Worship journeyed to Trenton, where a police court was held at 2.00 p.m.

DEPENDENCE

New York elevators have had an easy time for the past few days as the strike hit Manhattan.

Does one really wonder what a disturbance so ordinary routine is to have a strike of elevator men?

Can one not gain a faint impression of what it is like by thinking how one is put to it to find matches and candles if the Hydro energy should be off for a short time or if the streets should be in darkness during a storm?

Truly man is the creature of custom and if the environment has a strike or other oddity the man who is accustomed to all the aids of science is at a handicap. Resource will develop in time and fortunately it is only for a brief time that there are interruptions to the routine.

Science has brought so many things to the average home, electricity is so cheap when one considers its readiness to serve in so many ways which were impossible to coal oil or the tallow of the candles. It is so easy to become a slave to the hand maid who furnishes all these inventions.

Elevator strikes of course would not bother Belleville. Unaccustomed to the elevator in one's own town, one yet is away from home would miss the elevator in the tall stores in the metropolitan cities. One may climb the stairs, but who wants to go up six or seven floors step by step and then come down the same way? It would be like climbing up the Belleville City tower stairway, but only much more difficult.

WORLD BAFFLED, HAUNTED, WEARY

It is only the odd moment that the world has been free to itself without the intruding thought of international mischief breaking out. The years following the Great War were of course marred with the memories of so many noble men and youths carried into death's endless night, but yet mankind looked upon them as sacrifices to usher in the day when war would be no more. It was a grand ideal which outlived the carnage of the battlefield for four and a third years and was carried on into those days of flush money and high-flown sentiments immediately following the world war.

But that has passed. The world has been sadly disillusioned. The soldiers did their duty and would have done more but the soldiers did not draw up the peace terms. Diplomats did that and diplomacy may make mistakes. Everyone was so delighted to have the war end that he or she would have adopted almost any peace plan for some reason evidently not thinking that the defeated might remember. Now the heaviest shock has fallen—the breaking of one of the first pillars of peace, the demilitarization clause.

Truly the world is weary and more than weary of talk of international politics and the endless game of political chess which is going on in Europe, Africa, and the Near and Far East.

Disappointed disillusioned Britain no doubt is. The old spirit that prompted wars in the past seems to have to live again. It is a different world from the world which in 1914 entered upon war, a world expectant of the explosion of a powder magazine to those in the political "know", but to the rest of the world something undreamed of. In the past few years the world has drunk deep of disillusion, and if the people enter upon another war it will be a war of despair, much worse than the tragic fifty-two months of 1914-18. There is none of the lightheartedness of mid-year 1914. It is a settled melancholy which weighs down the world, which has heard of conference upon conferences, all seemingly to little or no purpose.

Such is the unhappy condition of this worry-wrecked age, haunted with fear and dragging a shadow of debt wherever it moves. There are lack of work, relief demands, unbalanced budgets, and latterly the resumed armament race, even the most peaceful "trading part" of nations, their cherished ideals abandoned for the time being.

Fortunately British statesmen see with experience born of such trials that there is no evidence that war is likely to break out. That is the hope, the longer it can be staved off the better as there is the chance of retracing easily.

DIPLOMACY

The Italian representative in Canada has been rebuked by Premier King for meddling. The representative of Italy, said that it was a pity Canada had applied sanctions against Italy, the official taking sides. Hon. Mr. King, said if the mistaken attitude were repeated, the Government would have to ask for the recall of the man.

Why do such men interfere in the state of friendship between Italy and Canada? Canada has her government and officials for this and other purposes, and as far as the Italian minister's views are concerned, Canada has nothing to do with them.

The general public believes that diplomats ought to be bonds between nations, instead of causes of irritation. Evidently all engaged in diplomacy are not diplomats.

HAVE YOU EVER—?

Have you ever heard the rattle of a dying man's last breath?

Or seen the look of horror in the stare that faces death?

Have you ever heard a person scream and writhe in sudden pain,

And look down at a mangled arm that will not move again?

Or have you heard the moaning and smelled the stench of gin

And seen the gory, bloody gap where once an eye had been?

When your car is dying fifty have you ever felt the fear

To let? have another notch 'n do another ten?

When a paper guy's ahead of you have you ever had the thrill

Of seeing' one 'n passin' him upon a dangerous hill?

Or have you ever felt the old car scream 'n lurch 'n swerve

As you let have the limit while you took a sudden curve?

Have you ever seen the wreckage of an automobile crash

With flesh and steel made into a morbid, gruesome hash?

Have you ever seen the entrails 'n the ears 'n arms 'n head

'N had 'n shoes 'n fingers of what once had been a man?

Have you ever seen the jagged bone stick through a mangled leg

And heard the blood-smeared victim pray 'n cry 'n beg?

Have you had the keen sensation of a fast car at your youth?

'N run up to a stop sign 'n slap 'em on 'r skid?

Did you ever pass a school-yard 'n give the horn a shout?

'N drive close to a gang o' kids 'n see 'em jump 'n scram?

Did you ever take a quart o' rye 'n swallow four or five?

'N take the old bus down the road 'n show 'em how to drive?

Have you ever seen a little child all crumpled up 'n still—

Who tried to run across the street while a car came down the hill?

Have you seen men's brains on fenders? Have you seen blood in the street?

Have you seen them stare at the bloody stumps of the things that were their feet?

Have you ever heard the crash 'n scream 'n seen the glassly stare

On the face of what had been the driver 'n the rest of the man not there?

Morbid 'n gruesome 'n gory this, I'm sorry, but don't you see

This was not meant to be read by folks as tender as you 'n me.

It was meant for the thoughtless 'n careless who kill 'n maim 'n mar—

The reckless fool who is to blame—the man in the other car.

—Phil Brazill in the Tebee Messenger, Oklahoma City.

IZAAK WALTON WAS A GREAT FISHERMAN, likewise Noah, Jonah and Captain John Smith, but those gentlemen had nothing that Belleville's master Fisherman haven't got. Already are they getting out their fishing tackle and making plans for the season's sport. If there is any better sport or sportier fishing anywhere than in Hastings county that place has not been heard of yet—and the local fishermen are not going to permit fishing horeabouts to deteriorate. Following representations made to the Ontario Government through the local member, Dr. Bert Faulkner, Belleville Angler's Association has received a letter from D. P. Taylor, Deputy Minister of Fisheries, stating that the department will restock certain lakes and streams specified to the full extent of the funds at their disposal, depending entirely upon the supply of fish available for that purpose.

SPRING MEANS THAT OLD THINGS PASS AWAY AND ALL THINGS BECOME NEW. Nature will adorn the earth with a new and beautiful garb, and even change the disposition of many people so glad the hearts of the sad and putting cheer into all hearts capable of receiving the message of spring. Folks will also discard their garments of winter and adorn themselves in new clothes to suit the season and to conform with the latest styles. Fortunately Belleville stores are the most modern and up to the minute in Canada and have stocks of all the very latest in the realm of fashion, so that Belleville folks can go any place and be sure that they are arrayed in the very best and not conspicuous for wearing out of date fashions. Spring brings joy to the heart and new costumes add zest to that joy and brighten up life at least fifty per cent. Watch Belleville stores for the grandest spring openings this city has ever seen—now that the depression is definitely past history and an era of greater prosperity looms ahead.

A tourist journeying from Cairo to the Great Pyramids thought he had at last found a place where nothing at all savored of western civilization. The Arabian Nights atmosphere of ancient days made him sigh with delight.

Reaching the Pyramids, he was hoisted on to the back of a camel by a picturesque Arab.

"Tell me, my good man," he said to his guide, "what's the name of your camel?"

"Greta Garbo, sir," came back the answer.

Bank Cashier At Five . . .

Believe It Or Not
Mr. Ripley

Here's another "for the book" Mr. Ripley.

D. H. Gilbertson, Cashier of the Royal Bank of Canada at Simcoe Ontario, has just celebrated his 50th birthday.

Before his fourth he had graduated from the Simcoe High School, became a junior in the Bank and won quick promotion to Ledger-keeper. To-day with his fiftieth birthday still to come he holds a responsible position in the Bank.

This remarkable young man has the stature and physique of any normal boy of twenty, the same interests, the same knowledge of the world.

He is different from other boys only in one important respect.

He celebrates his birthday only once every four years.

He was born on February 29.

Mystery, romance and surprise is in "Here 'Tis Up", featuring Preston Foster and Margaret Callahan, one of two features now on the Belle screen.

OFFICE BUILDING STRIKE NEARS END

Though Union Agrees to Plan, Strike Leader Opposes

New York, March 9.—(AP)—The strike of service employees in more than 3,000 New York City office buildings and apartments appeared today on the verge of a settlement.

Union leaders accepted Robert H. Lagarde's six-point plan to end the walk-out at once "unconditionally" and building operators tentatively agreed to submit the proposals to employers "with other modifications and some additions."

Strike leader James J. Bambrick, however, went forward with plans for the "big push" of the strike, now in its eighth day with 25,000 workers affected.

The Realty Advisory Board, Operators' Organization, Bambrick said, accepted the proposals "unconditionally" and until then the strike continues.

The "big push", Bambrick said, would be our biggest blow of the strike."

A strike call for 16,000 workers in 2,000 buildings of the Grand Central area, hitherto barely affected, was the next point, the United President said, of the climactic drive.

Then another 1,000 buildings have been affected and more than 185 buildings whose operators had agreed to the Lagarde plan for a shop, $2 a week pay increase and shorter working hours.

Ottawa, March 9—(CP)—Opening here of the non-jury sittings of the Ontario Supreme Court today was postponed to Wednesday because of illness of Mr. Justice Nicol Jeffrey.

FIND INSECURITY 'INSUPPORTABLE'

German Statement is Made In Reply to Sarraut

Berlin, Mar. 9 (CP)—Premier Sarraut does not want to see Strasbourg threatened by German cannon, but is quite content to keep Saarbrucken, Kaiserlutz, Treves and a dozen other German cities fully exposed under the very shadow of French border guns, a semi-official foreign office statement said today.

Issued in the form of a point-by-point refutation of Premier Sarraut's speech denouncing Germany's occupation of the Rhineland, the Wilhelmstrasse rejected the French Premier's arguments and renewed the appeal for Franco-German cooperation which would leave guns and planes "no role to play" in the future.

"It is extremely regrettable that M. Sarraut let himself be carried away by passion and refused to consider Germany's constructive proposals," the statement added.

The German foreign office declared responsibility lay not with Germany, as M. Sarraut charged, but with France whose course made the insecurity of the demilitarized zone insupportable."

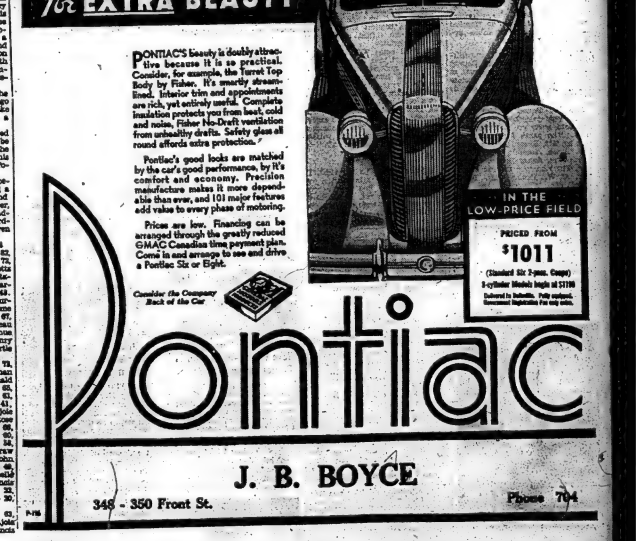
Canada would be able to send a team complete if they were held on this continent.



BORAH DOUBTS ACT MEANS WAR

Washington, March 9—(AP)—While official United States government circles maintained silence today on the European crisis, there were indications some shared the belief of Senator Borah (R., Ida.) Germany's abrogation of military restrictions "does not mean war."

Borah, former chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and now its ranking Republican member, voiced an opinion the Versailles Treaty had to end.

Borah said:

"The Versailles Treaty had to go. The claims gone had to have an end under the treaty. That has been apparent for a long time."

"Mme. 'Em Up"

Exciting Film With Novel Twist; Katharine Hepburn

Striking out along entirely new lines in the treatment of mystery stories, Preston Foster's latest vehicle, "Mme. 'Em Up," is the Belle today and Wednesday, matinee daily, proves to be a perfect triumph for RKO Radio Pictures and as well as a grand piece of screen entertainment. Margaret Callahan playing opposite him, is co-featured. This unique offering affords a brilliant illustration of the methods by which genuine detectives (not the "Hollywood" film variety) solve their problems.

Realistic is the keynote. Foster's portrayal of the hard-boiled, cafe private investigator is an exceptionally fine piece of acting.

The customary carelessness of the criminal in leaving carloads of "clues" about the premises for the detective to stumble over, is quite lacking in this story. Foster must achieve his results through logic and deduction from the established facts — a novel departure in film mystery tales.

Margaret Callahan makes a charming heroine. A host of favorites in the supporting cast handle their parts with distinction. Jim Mowbray, Ralph Morgan, "Big Boy" Williams, Molly Lamont, Alan Carroll and Florine McKinney and Clarence Muse being particularly good.

Hepburn and Brian Ahern

Entertainment for entertainment's sake is brought to the screen with Katharine Hepburn as his stellar standard bearer in RKO Radio's "Sylvia Scarlett," announced as the second feature attraction on the program.

Unique among dramas in that it is woven round no time worn theme, "Sylvia Scarlett" tells a straightforward tale of stirring romantic adventure. With no older film than to amuse and entertain, it is said to be brilliantly successful in achieving its objective.

Miss Hepburn essays the most difficult and unique characterization of her meteoric career in this frankly different production. Throughout the major part of the photoplay, she masquerades as a boy, giving the impression that the full fire of dramatic genius which has lifted her to the heights of the screen world has left her. In the later sequences she assumes her true feminine identity and the full contrast in characterization is said to afford still further evidence of her extraordinary versatility.

Brian Aherne plays the romantic lead opposite the star and Cary Grant is seen in a colorful character role. Edmund Gwenn, famed for his portrayal of Kris Kringle in the Belle Paley, beautiful scion of Russian royalty, and Dennie Moore, talented newcomer from the Broadway stage, are other members of the delightful supporting cast. Edwin C. Hill, the Rambling Reporter, introduces the Capitol World News Events. Performances start daily at 2.30, 7.10, the last complete show commencing at 8.30 p.m. "Sylvia Scarlett" starts daily at 2.40 and 9.30 p.m.; "Mme. 'Em Up" starts daily at 2.45, 7.30 and 9.50 p.m.

"Remember Last Night"

A Weird Tale With a Large Cast of Film Favorites

"Remember Last Night?", the mysterious, weird and at times humorous tale of the gay Long Island week-end, is a vivid, gripping yarn which culminated in four atrocious murders, has been booked into the Capitol Theatre starting Wednesday. The picture, based on Adam Hershouse's novel, "Hangover Murders", was directed by James Whale, the film "hit" director, and produced by Carl Laemmle, jr. Whale has a real all-star cast in this picture; Edward Arnold, fresh from his "Diamond Jim" triumph, Constance Cummings, Sally Eilers, Robert Young, Robert Armstrong, Leslie Henry, Gregory Ratoff, Reginald Denny, Monroe Owsley, Jack Mulhall, Rafaela Ottiano and Arthur Treacher.

The murders are committed during the course of the gay revels, but the morning after not one of the thirteen suspects can remember a single thing that transpired the night before. Then, after the first demon detective, aska of each one, "Remember Last Night?" and finally unravels the deep-laid plot.

"Woman Trap".

This film is excitement-packed. Thrill follows thrill in a crescendo of dangerous situations, with death from the bullets of a gang of fugitive desperadoes facing Gertrude Michael and George Murphy in their perilous romance. Following a bold-up, a shooting fray ends the life of a double-crossing member of the gang, while Gertrude Michael and Miss Karna, Akim Tamiroff, Samuel Hinds, Sidney Blackmer and Dean Jagger.

Correct Pose Makes Beauty Feel Tip-Top

Hester Dean

This star carries her Jumospun figure with grace and poise.

By HELEN FOLLETT

Today we'll look at the surly eyelashes, arrogant tresses, lily-white hands, all the lovely talks of the beauty ensemble, and settle down to a practical talk on posture. Then we will please all the ladies of leisure.

Knowing how to walk, stand and sit is half the battle. Every woman gave more thought to that subject the chopped parasol would put up a better, more soldierly appearance.

Not one woman among 500 carries her body as it should be carried. Some of them stalk along, some shuffle, some slouch, but not one should put the best foot forward, keep the chest high, back bone taut and tummy flat. Walking then proves to be a beneficial exercise which sends blood streams dashing to places lovely flushes on the cheeks. It put spirits in the eyes, too. The reason is it gives the muscles work to do and muscles like work.

A correct pose makes a girl look better and feel better. It also makes the $4.95 model look like forty dollars.

Nail polish of silver or gold is the latest fashion where beautiful ladies gather in the evening. With the new brocades, suggestive of romantic periods, these enamels are effective.

For daytime wear the correct color is a deep rose. Vivid tints are always overdone. Clear creatures are tired of them.

Semi - Finals in W.I.Competitions At Wallbridge

The Women's Institute of the District of West Hastings has undertaken a real community service prize in encouraging oratory and music by arranging competitions for the Public School of that district. So many entries were announced for the district finals, however, that two semi-final contests were held last week, the first and second being conducted at Stirling and part in the concluding test at Stirling on Friday evening.

A large attendance of parents and friends heard with interest the competition which was held in Stirling. The chairman, Mr. F. M. Nicholson, gave a brief survey of the manner in which the meeting had been opened by the singing of "The Maple Leaf."

Many interesting items took part and the judges, Miss Rachel Fox, Mrs. Kenneth Paul and Mrs. Clarence Holmes had a difficult time making their decision. The winners were in soloists' division: first, A. Gentleman of Ten"—first, Barbara Reid; second, Jean Wood; third, Barbara Pat Armstrong; fourth, Violet Appleby; Public Speaking—first, Ruth MacPherson, "My Chosen Profession"; second, Laura Sine, "Flag"; third, Pat Armstrong; Armstrong; second, Merville Campbell, both of whom spoke on "Our Flag." Singing of "O Canada" as School Chorus, first, S.S. No. 12; second, S.S. No. 2.

While the judges were out several men and women in the audience paid tribute to the work of the Women's Institute, particularly this district project, held for the first time and arousing such keen interest.

Mrs. Clarence Holmes presented the winners with cash prizes and the singing of "God Save the King" brought the meeting to a close.

JOHN STREET W. M. S.

The Women's Missionary Society of John Street United Church held their monthly meeting on Wednesday, March 4th, in the church hall. Mrs. Hill, the president, who was in charge, opened the meeting with a call to worship, using Para's exhortation to the Ephesians. Mrs. Cronk then conducted the devotional service, the theme of which was "Jesus' Last Days Disputes."

After the reports of the treasurer and the various secretaries had been read and adopted, and the routine business disposal of, Mrs. Hill and Miss Daisy Fields made a very pleasing duet.

The topic for the afternoon, "The Penetration, Commerce and Colonization of Africa" was presented by Mrs. Chambers assisted by Mrs. Pyne. Prayer by the president brought the meeting to a close.

HEALTH and PSYCHOLOGY

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.

Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

We come in contact with the world and we take it in by means of our senses. Through the primary senses we see, hear, taste, touch and smell. There are other senses as well, such as the muscle sense, by which we know the position of a body, recognize a turn of the body, but the primary senses are the ones employed in making our own all that is our environment.

If we use all our senses to the fullest possible degree, we are employing an ever-ready means of producing maximum contacts with reality. If, on the other hand, we depend almost entirely for these contacts upon sight and hearing, let us say, then we are neglecting other avenues of approach to reality, such as taste, smell and touch!

Most people depend almost alone upon their eyes and ears. In fact they do not even get the maximum amount of enjoyment out of sight and hearing that they might. How many times have you heard a person of delight that a cheerful, pleasing picture or piece of statuary can give? And how often that a part of it is to see a beautiful lamp, with the shade and base just right in color and form? Or the warm glow of proper lighting? How many appreciate the soothing or soul-stirring effects of music?

In addition to gratifying the eyes and ears, consider the comforting effects of a meal well-seasoned, or the texture of stuffs and garments that are rich and soft!

We all realize the value of beauty in our lives. We should try to use all our senses in drinking in all the beauty possible. Probably the reason we like talking pictures has a wider appeal than the old silent movies is that two senses—hearing as well as sight—are gratified, instead of one.

In fact, it would be well if every person were to study his own individual tastes and develop his own senses, finding out not only which impressions give him the most pleasure, but also in what respects such a sense may be stimulated and enhanced with a view to greater delight.

For example, there are those who like the music of simple jazz but do not realize that they would enjoy it well, if not more, more varied and involved melodies of Beethoven, Chopin or Wagner.

In short, we can educate our senses, giving them possibilities for development in every case, almost without exception. If we do that and if we employ as many senses as possible in "soaking up", as it were, the things that we experience, the experiences that daily confront us, we are sure to find more richness, richer and much more satisfying thing than we had supposed.

Then we may have the opportunity look carefully at a tree, noting its form, coloring, manner, height, the shape of the leaves, and the way the branches grow. We may listen for the sound as the wind sweeps through it. Next touch the bark and the leaves. Smell the leaves, too, and do not hesitate to taste them, if you like.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied by Bigger and Crawford by Financial Service.

Wayside

It is reported, unofficially, that production at Wayside for the first month of February will be about half of the 846,000 grows reported for January. This was due to frequent suspensions of milling operations due to extreme cold weather. It is stated that this weather is now more normal and that henceforth operations should be more normal. There was no suspension of mining operations during the last month, and a considerable tonnage of ore has been added to the previous supply.

The latest war scare in Europe has had the usual stock market effect, by a general setback. It should be remembered that in the event of a definite war, many companies stand to benefit tremendously, particularly International Nickel, the copper, the oils, steels and many others. The fact that all stocks declined in the general selling indicates that nervous overthrowing of holdings is the order on the part of investors who gave little or no consideration to the fact.

A war in Europe, with Germany as the aggressor does not appear likely for the immediate future. While Chancellor Hitler has built up the army and the air force to a formidable strength, the power of France is still too great at the present time for Germany to over-power. The fact that, opinion in England is calm on the situation indicates that a peaceful settlement will evolve, in all likelihood, from the present European tension.

Judging from the market action when the Italo-Ethiopian hostilities commenced it is safe to safely assume that once the immediate nervousness and emergency feeling of stocks is completed, the market will resume its normal course. The effects of companies in sound position, whose earnings are on the rise should be accumulated on all periods.

Europe did not like Hitler's latest, saying, France was a seller of American stocks in Wall Street, but London took little hang in the proceedings. New York broken say Europe for the time being is the most important factor otherwise. While Wall Street does not believe war is near Europe as far as present conditions are concerned, the average trader does expect it is in the immediate and consequently the American stocks respond as each threatening move is made.

Public sentiment towards Brazilian Traction has improved perceptibly of late. This is not surprising when it is considered that reports from Brazil are that the internal affairs of the country are well maintained during 1935, with unprecedented earnings by the company. Other exports gained last year and an increase occurred in imports. Cotton shipments from Brazil in the first ten months of 1935 totalled 117,000 metric tons, against 92,412 tons in the first period of 1934.

Rhineland

The Rhineland has created a grave situation in Europe is readily apparent. Authorities point out that the Rhineland is a clear violation both of the Versailles Treaty and of the Locarno Pact. It is a brusque repudiation by Hitler of his own declarations that he has no intention of jeopardizing the safeguards of peace and security, of Germany's eastern frontier.

The Locarno treaties are explicit in their guaranty or the demilitarization of the Rhineland. Under the Locarno Pact Germany came into the Rhineland France is authorized to summon the League Council and the Hague for fulfillment of commitments that Germany has violated in the event of a second holocaust. But it is clearly not the treaty machinery which can best examine matters, it is the political activities which stand between Hitler and his aims. The treaties themselves merely give expression.

Steel and Recovery

Perhaps the most interesting part of the industrial recovery has been the rise of steel production. Truly, the statement that there are many years been taken in the United States and Canada in the matter of general trade conditions. Some aspects of this season's production are not so encouraging. During most past years, activity in the steel industry has reached its high point in the Autumn season in the busy months. However, production almost invariably receding from then until the year-end. And year after year the steel production rose progressively over October during the spring months and in the early summer months. Indeed, the best showing for the period since 1929.

But the usual January recession the expanding movement across the line was resumed last month; even the production during February running higher than in January. Steel production during the more striking. In that the business gain was accomplished slowly and that the motor car industry, whose orders were mainly responsible for the activity in this season a year ago, has this year contributed relatively little.

Standard Statistics Co. Inc. They recommend maintenance of a conservative long pull attitude which, they say, is warranted by basic business trends and prospects. Further, that the sound tax legislation through Congress will not be enacted, and the stock market may be expected to fluctuate in accordance with the prevailing shifts in speculative thought. There is no reason at this time, however, to anticipate any unusually unfavorable constructive policy based upon the progress of business. Individual improvement over the near and longer term. Among the stocks favored at the present issue the following are rated "Buy": Bethlehem Steel, Columbian Carbon, Goodrich, Montgomery Ward, Packard Co., Electric, Underground Elliott-Fisher.

Barron's (The Trader)

"At the week-end the war scare brought a sharp selling wave, but not from Europe. Belief that actual war will not come for some time can be found in the strength of metals, which are the first to respond to war demands. The prevailing caution privately expressed by financial and industrial leaders is understandable, but close study of the situation reveals a basis for a recent movement by individual stocks. In this respect it would be difficult to reverse the general trend in a mass movement until the effects of hostilities actually is unmistakable."

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

Toronto, March 10.—(CP)—Trading moved relatively in narrow limits in trial market today as traders waited for developments in Ethiopian situation. Simmer down. Metal stocks including Consolidated Smelters and International Nickel, featured the early opening and the latter retained a fair part of its gain. Smelters had lost 2 points of a six-point advantage, prices generally were up this afternoon.

Liquor stocks. Ola. Brazilian Traction and Steel showed gains of minor fractions to a point. Utilities and Steel and Coal stocks registered narrow gains with trades going through at a slow pace.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, March 10.—(CP)—Base metal shares were steady to strong on Toronto Mining Market today with Hollinger the only issue showing any activity of the latest dispute between Germany and Russia. Other base favorites, Sudbury Basin, Falconbridge, Sherritt-Gordon and Wright-Hargreaves and Noranda held fairly steady after erasing an early dip. Gold shares moved in narrow swings without getting far from Monday's closing levels.

In the senior gold group Lake Shore, Teck-Hughes and Wright-Hargreaves sold off slightly and Hollinger registered some improvement. Macassa, Central, Kirkland, Sanantonio and Pickle Crow recorded additional gains.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, Mar. 10 (AP)—Farm implement, motor rail and oil issues developed strength in active trading today, gains among the favorites ranging from one to around four points.

Outstanding advances near the beginning of the session were decided shown by Case, International Harvester, Deere, Chrysler, Johns-Manville, Auburn, Seaboard Oil, Amerada, Westinghouse, American Can, Anaconda, Consolidated Smelting and Cerro de Pasco. At the same time Consolidated Edison, American Telephone and Allied Chemical lost from one to three points.

Trading in the stock firm. Transfers approximated 2,500,000 shares.

INDIANS TAKE BACK TITLE FROM M. P.

Montreal, March 10 (CP)—Vincent Dupuis, Kiberal member of Chateauguay-Huntingdon, Quebec, is not a member of the Iroquois Indian tribe any more.

Chiefs in solemn conclave at Caughnawaga Reserve withdrew the title of Chief Good Leaf.

Pro-Mayor Andrew Dellaire, President of the council, said Mr. Dupuis had accused Caughnawaga Indians of voting unkindly toward their white brethren in the reservation area, when he spoke in the House of Commons last month.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, March 10.—Prices of eggs on the local market burned easier yesterday, reversing the week's upward trend. Mild weather and prospects of heavier arrivals, as well as declines during the past week in other parts of wholesale dealers, caused concessions in prices to be made at the start of the week's trading. Declines under last week's closing levels were generally two cents per dozen. The butter market remained dull, with prices nearly nominal. Dominion stocks in store were not announced late today at Ottawa, and dealers were awaiting figures. Cheese, potatoes and poultry held steady at last week's closing levels. Monday's prices were posted at the Board of Trade as 660 cases of eggs 222 boxes of butter.

On the egg market graded shipping stock was not arriving in the city were sold at 35-36c for A-large and 33-34c for A-medium, with the latter grade generally prevailing in the later trading. Livestock

Toronto, March 10—(CP)—Trading was fairly active on the cattle division at the opening of Toronto Livestock Market today. Prices were steady while sheep were unsettled. Lambs were unsettled at the start with sheep steady.

Receipts reported by the Dominion livestock branch were cattle, 390; calves 230; hogs, 510; sheep and lambs 430.

Butcher cattle sold at $4.50 to $5. at the start. Good butchers cows brought $3.25 to $3.75 with a few tops at $3.50. Export bulls were traded at prices up to $4.00. Best stockers and feeder steers changed hands at $3.50 to $4.00.

Calves were quoted at $8.00 to $8.50 for choice quality vealers Common light grades ranged from $10.00 to $7.00.

During early morning trading hogs found no selling at all points. Indications were the price would settle around yesterday's close of $8.40 off cars and $8.65 fed.

Western lambs made up the bulk of the offerings at the start of the sales. A few medium quality sheep sold steady at $3.50 to $4.00.

Montreal, March 10—(CP)—Montreal livestock markets opened steady today with prices on the cattle and calf trade unchanged. Calves dipped slightly while volume in the sheep division was not large enough to make any change.

Receipts were: 90 cattle; 76 calves; 1057 hogs and 1 sheep and lamb. Best good steers brought up to $5.00. Fair to medium butcher cows were held up to $3.25 with common kinds around $2.50 to $2.75. Canners and Cutters ranged from $1.50 to $2.00.

Trading prices for calves was $8. a less of $1.00 for the week. Bulk of veal were sold in mixed lots at $7. to $7.75.

Fed and watered bacons bought $9.00 with selects drawing the usual $1 premium.

Butchers, heavies and lights were $8.50 and extra heavies sold down between $7.25 and $8.00.

HOGS

Toronto, March 10—(CP)—Sharp decline in hog prices was felt today at five of the reporting hog markets. Prices dropped 25 cents at Toronto, Stratford, Kitchener, Barrie, and Peterboro with other points showing no change. Four markets reported a price of $8.00 while Hull was the highest at $8.25.

Prices were:

Toronto, $8.25; London, $8.00; Hull, $8.40; Stratford, $8.00; Kitchener, $8.00; Brantford, $8.35; Barrie, $8.15; Peterboro, $8.00.

GRAIN

Winnipeg, March 10—(CP)—Sharp trading marked the day in early trading on Winnipeg grain exchange today. Openings were up a point more and prices at the mid-session period ruled 1½ higher to 1-8 cent lower. May fell 1-8 to 1-4 July at 85 and October at 85.

CUTTEN CHARGED WITH EVASION

Chicago, March 10 (AP)—An indictment charging Arthur Cutten, famous grain trader, with the "wilful attempt to defeat and evade" income taxes for 1929, according to $414,539.34, was returned by the Federal grand jury today.

The indictment also named William H. Galewood, formerly an Internal Revenue agent, charging him with "wilful aid" in Cutten's alleged tax dodging.

Cutten, self-styled "speculator" of the world, was called the nation's biggest grain trader" by Commissioner of Internal Revenue Administration, which a year ago issued an order demanding that Cutten disclose grain pits.

Yesterday the Supreme Court of the United States refused to hear the Government's appeal from a decision of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals which stayed the disbarment.

Cutten Becomes Hidden

It was disclosed Saturday that Cutten, reputed to be the richest Montreal Jew, after more than two years of investigation by Internal Revenue agents, was charged with indictments based on Cutten's income in the years 1930 and 1931 and in 1929.

The Government's charge, ignored at the time, was that grain trader's complicated market transactions concealed approximately $1,000,000 in hidden income.

Judge Woodward fixed a bond at $25,000 for Cutten and $10,000 for Galewood. He then issued bench warrants for their arrest.

Cutten was in a hospital, said by his attorneys to be "lying at death's door." Yesterday the lawyers announced he had "refused a Government offer to come to Chicago." The District Attorney here denied any offer had been made.

ALLAN CUP PLAY ACROSS CANADA AT FEVER PITCH

Some Surprises Sprung as Teams Battle For Silverware

TIGERS TAKE DUKES

By ELMER DUMAGE

Spring hockey fever raged across Canada today among the amateurs. The temperature of the annual affair, festival, especially in the Allan Cup Area, is much higher than ever, higher even than last spring when a trip to the Olympic games was the prize.

A crowd of 18,000 watched Saturday night's Allan Cup semi-final game, tonight finals last night at Montreal by defeating Toronto Dukes 3-1 and with a thundering finish. A few supporters of Noranda Copper Kings travelled by airplane to watch the Kings humbled by Sudbury Falcon 8-0 in the Northern Ontario Senior final at Copper Cliff.

Hamilton whooped it up when the Tigers, Ab Box, Syl Sylvanus Apps and Howard Mackie, conquered Toronto Dukes 3-1 and won the Ontario Hockey Association's senior eastern group. Both games were run at Brockville, last. Prince Albert staged a demonstration when Minton captured the honors in five games, by defeating Weyburn Beavers 3-1.

Another crowd jammed all across the Allan Cup front, but on this occasion the throngs were getting took place in the east. Montreal's packed forum watched one of the most thrilling struggles since Ed Vervlun rallied in the third period to smash Queens Cup hopes of Kirkland from MacGill. The winners play Montreal Royals for the league championship.

Cancelled Affair.

The biggest crowd ever to watch a hockey game in the Nickel Belt area was slimmed in the Victoria Rink Sudbury sentinel, which turned out to be a cancelled affair. Noranda, winners of the first game on home ice by 3-1, held on gamely for two periods but Sudbury Falcons found the dropped the two-game total-goal round 2-0.

With Mackie scoring three goals and Apps having a hand in three, Hamilton Tigers won the Dukes in the Allan Cup hops, winning the O.H.A. senior title in five games. Tigers won three, Dukes one and one was tied. Apps, Mackie and Sylvanus Apps' vault champion, scored eight goals in the series.

Tigers will play either Kitchener-Waterloo greenskirts or Niagara Falls in the O.H.A. senior finals. The western group contenders, tied at two wins apiece, play the deciding game of their series tonight at Kitchener.

Brockville Eagles managed with the Ottawa City League title to-night to obtain when they play the Royal Canadian Air Force in the fifth game of the final playoffs. Brockville, with a 3-1 lead, can afford to one. Last night the teams played a 3-1 tie at Ottawa. The game was abandoned because of soft ice

Weyburn Ahead When

Successors to North Battleford Beavers as Saskatchewan champions, Weyburn Maple Leafs won the final north-south series in straight games, last night Minton went into Weyburn and trounced the southern champions 3-1, to qualify for interprovincial play.

Kitchener Dynamiters won the British Columbia title for the third straight year. Vancouver Cubs decided last night to default the final series after three members of the squad team were declared ineligible.

In the junior struggle for the Memorial Cup, Calgary Rangers moved ahead of the pack by defeating Trail Tigers 6-0 in the year's first interprovincial test. The Alberta champions will carry the six-goal margin into the second of the two-game series at Calgary tomorrow night.

In Ontario, Kitchener greenskirts qualified for the O.H.A. junior "A" group round by 5-1. They will play finals by winning 5-1 from Brantford Midgets and capturing the either West Toronto or Ottawa Juniors in the final. West Toronto started off this series with a 5-3 win last night.

Pembroke Lumber Kings headed into the Ottawa District finals against University of Ottawa by defeating Brockville 9-3 last night. Pembroke won the round 13-7.

GAME CALLED OFF

Brockville, Ont., March 10 (CP)—Referee last night called off the fourth game in the final series for the championship of the Ottawa Senior Hockey League after Brockville Canadians and Ottawa's Royal Canadian Air Force battled through 19 minutes of overtime as two ice without breaking a 1-1 tie.

The game, called when it became impossible to see the puck, would score again on the sloppy ice and so declared a draw, Referee Jack McNeely said the score early in the third.

Open Meeting at "Y" to Discuss Baseball Situation

Everyone Interested in Summer Pastime Asked to Attend

Mister Citizen, are you in favour of Belleville being represented in the Central Ontario Baseball League in 1936?

Are you in favour of senior baseball being played and retained in Belleville?

If you are in favour of any one of the three above questions, by all means attend an open meeting to be held in the Y.M.C.A. tonight for the purpose of ascertaining the feelings and opinions relative to the future of baseball in this city. The meeting is purely informal, even the chairman will be selected from those present and a representative gathering from all walks of citizenry is urgently requested. The meeting is being called by the Y.M.C.A. at 8 p.m. in order to give those desiring the early part, an opportunity to voice their suggestions relative to senior baseball's salvation or baseball in Belleville.

The meeting is not being sponsored by any particular individual or group of persons, but called generally and with the idea in mind to encourage the uplift and retain the game in general, more particularly the question of senior baseball in the C.O.B.L.

Invitations have been sent to the various service clubs, merchants' association men and industrial executives, who are fervently asked to attend this meeting and lend a hand to the cause. At the present time the franchise of Belleville entering a senior team in the C.O.B.L. is highly problematic as baseball in Belleville is at a low ebb and fails in providing sufficient citizens show an equal amount of interest in the rejuvenation of the game Belleville can once again regain some last laurels on the diamond.

The future of baseball in Belleville now lies with you Mister Citizen, are you going to give the old game a fighting chance? Come this evening? If so, come early, voice your suggestions and let's all get to put the good old game of base ball back to its former standing in the line of Quinte district. Remember 7.30 p.m. at the Y.M.C.A.

KINGSTON RINK STILL WINNING

Defeats Rolph and Campbell in Games on Spectator Trophy

Hamilton, Ont., March 10 (CP)—Robert Travers, President of the Ontario Curling Association, led his Kingston rink into the second day's play of the Hamilton hospital today as the head of a brilliant list that threatened overthrow of defending champions.

Holders of the Spectator trophy, premier prize of the spiel, C. C. Lawson and his Hamilton Thistles were dethroned by H. N. Binkley and a Stratford rink in the first round play yesterday. Binkley won by 8-7 after an extra end.

Travers eased to victories, taking out H. Rolph and his Toronto Granites 10-6 before eliminating another Thistle four, skipped by G. M. Campbell, 13-10. F. N. Wilson, of London, D. J. Sarre, of Toronto, C. Gould, of Owen Sound, H. O. Hawke of Galt and Perry Hall of Kingston rounded out Travers' list and Travers into the second round.

Gould and Hawke were both forced to extra ends before they got through to the second round. Owen Sound rink provided one of the day's best features by eliminating F. N. Wilson, and a strong Thistle quartet, 13-12. Hall won easily over W. Hayhurst of Hamilton Victorias, 13-7, in his second match.

Three Galt rinks qualified for the illiminary play for the F. F. Dalley trophy, W. Yair, C. W. Knowles and Dr. Gordon Adams, Galt's only second loss in the Dalley play. F. N. Allen of London advanced in third round after losing in the Spectator competition.

Biggest Problem For N. Y. Giants Is Hurling Staff

By Paul Mickelson, Associated Press Sports Writer).

Pensacola, Fla., March 10 (AP)—The answer to New York Giants pennant chances is a succession of pitchers.

If Bill Terry can play first base regularly; if Hank Leiber and Jo Moore can effectively should a bad knee keep Terry on the sidelines; if Dolph Whitehead can hold down Dick Dancsecs while all other juvenile issues in Eastern Ontario baseball have been settled, there is a full stream at second for an entire season; if Fred Fitzsimmons can pitch again, and if Hank Leiber finally decides to remain a catcher—then can bet your rent money the Giants will be giants in the 1936 National League race.

Pitching is the biggest problem. Coach Dolph Camilli, Manager Gyrald Castleman, who between them captured 60 games last year, won last season, are certain quantities for 1936.

Carl Hubbell, seven, among them Fitzsimmons, whose arm was operated on for a chipped bone last year, are question marks.

Hubbell is definitely out. Harry Gumbert, who won 20 and lost 15 last season for Rochester in the International league comes through, together with Al Smith, winner of 10 and lost 7 and Al Wiltse, 7 and 5, for one of the finest mound staffs in the league. Wiltse, a left hander, right hander obtained from Richmond of the Piedmont League, also are expected. Terry, Fred Maberry, erstwhile umpire, is strictly a gamble but if he can regain his form like Hubbell from relief duty, he might be worth his weight in gold.

With Whitehead at second, Terry believes he has solved his infield problem. Of course, Travis Jackson and his wobbly knees is another reliable Mark Koenig can give him a real battle for the job. Dick Bartell, shortstop, Terry or Leslie at first complete the inner defense. Taking one for granted, that Leiber will sign, Terry's outfield worries are over. With Mel Ott in right, Joe Moore in left, Leiber in centre and George Davis and Jimmy Ripple, recruits from Montreal star, bringing up the reserves.

Catching is no problem with Gus Mancuso and Harry Danning on deck.

ALL STAR TEAMS

Following is the 12th of a Canadian Press series of National Hockey League all-star selections by sport writers in N.H.L. cities, A consensus will be prepared later. By Vern Orlando.

Star:

Pembroke Disposes of Brockville Juniors

Pembroke, Ont., March 10 (CP)—Facing elimination, Pembroke's little lumber kings put on a sensational scoring splurge here last night to defeat Brockville 9-3 and take the Ottawa District junior hockey championship on the round 12-7. Brockville won the first match of the two-game, goals-to-count, series 4-3.

Pembroke now meets University of Ottawa, unbeaten champions of the Ottawa Junior City League, in a two-game, goals-to-count, series for the Ottawa and district junior title and the right to enter the Memorial Cup playdowns.

The first game of this series will be played Thursday night at Pembroke with the return game here Saturday.

Glesenkewki and Brazil led Pembroke's scorers with three goals each, while Levoy, Carter and Keon also tallied. Rourke, Foland and Simon scored for Brockville.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

"Just a bad break, that's what beat us," was the comment made by Coach Shiels regarding the defeat of his B.C.I.V.S. puckchasers in the Provincial Interscholastic finals. According to the players, however, they were on the receiving end of a bad call on the part of Referee "Pick" Hines. It seems there was a pile-up in front of the B.C.I.V.S. net with two Ottawa players inside the crease, one being across goalie Mounce, with the other Ottawa player inside the Collegians' net, when a third Ottawa player dove into the pile-up and after a few seconds of pounding the puck was lodged in the Belleville net amid loud protests from the locals, but without results. The "Collegians" contend Referee Hines should have sounded his bell during the pile-up inside the Belleville goal crease, while it is alleged he waited fully one minute and until Ottawa had scored. Up in London they were agreeably surprised at the calibre of hockey played by the interscholastic puckchasers and invited them back next year. About 1,200 fans paid to see Friday night's game and left the arena high in praise of the kids' ability.

That's the best juvenile basketball team we've seen in four years" stated Coach Bob Abate of the Tyendinaga Mohawks after Saturday night's O.A.B.A. game here. "Take it from me we haven't won this game yet. We've got to go on our big floor in Toronto. I'm telling you right now we're much better advantages than they did at Belleville. We're not handicapped by the lack of competition, which naturally hinders a team's progress. I think, though, that the Deacons did remarkably well to hold Paul Fitzsimmons low and had they been a little more accurate they'd feel ahead a different score would have resulted. Any team needs two scorers to win games. Fitzsimmons is their final play-downs, and the Deacons have proved that by their two-game positive play, there only being Fitzsimmons to beat them with the Deacons while all other juvenile teams in Eastern Ontario developed scorers in Belleville will materially help the game in the senior ranks in future years, however."

Up in the Intercounty Basketball League they are real live-wires and always on the prowl for new ideas, suggestions and amendments to the O.B.A. and are favorable to that cause. Of course one cannot blame them for boosting after their recent victory over the O.B.A. in provincial-wide and takes in more than a few surrounding towns. A recent meeting they moved a motion in favor of senior basketball in the O.B.A asking for an extension to Sault Ste. Marie. They also had Guelph Collegiate, who between them captured the Ontario and Dominion championships, and Guelph Collegiate, who between them captured the Ontario and Dominion championships, and Guelph Collegiate, who between them captured the Ontario and Dominion championships, and

Dale Plays The Game

—BY—

Ann Forester

"Oh, you might have known!" came Mimi's muffled voice. "You and your things! Nothing else might look Phil Clifford—"

Brant was on still: that Mimi was afraid. She twisted her head to peer, through the scrap of lace. Her fingers jumped when she saw Brant's face. It had tightened and sharpened until it seemed a mask carved from wood. Oh, he cared! He cared tremendously! At that, fierce jealousy leaped in Mimi, stirring her on.

"You didn't you see? You might have known....she—she always carries her things!"

Brant passed his tongue over his dry lips. "Tell me about it. When did it happen?"

"Two days ago"! said his mother, sharply. Then her tone melted. "Oh, my boy, my poor boy—"

"How do you know?"

Mrs. Kendall turned expectantly toward Mimi. Mimi gulped and covered her eyes with the crumpled lace as she spoke.

"I—I noticed that she was setting queer. I sort of kept track after that last night we—we saw her, you know. Once when I was in the city I went to meet him, I'm sure. And the next day, he said, I happened to be looking out of the window and I saw her going down the driveway with Phil Clifford. And—and the fellow, Phil Clifford, was waiting in a machine and she got in and they drove away together. No letter to you or—or anything. I'm sorry, Brant, you wouldn't have known what had happened—"

The silence which fell as Mimi ceased talking was painful. The two women seemed afraid to move.

Brant turned abruptly and went upstairs.

This was the room she had had ....the fragrance of her still on the air. Through the half open door of the closet he could glimpse the silky sheen of dresses. He would never clasp that slim body again.

He could not realize it. Could not make it seem true. Oh, he should have stayed and fought it out that night! cried his heart in anguish.

Never to have Dale again. He could not be resentful. He could not hate her—yet. Was that the ultimate pride and anger.

He could not think. Only old memories flashed into his mind, as mirages taunt the dying wanderer. It was like Dale to wear her hair as she had last appeared to him, and his mind shot back instantly to the happiest time.

Dale, standing slim and defiant in the snowdrift as he had first seen her in Sandy's lunch shack. Dale, whimpering in his arms in the robe when she had been so badly sunburned....that had been the beginning of his love—such a frail hurt little thing she had been.....Dale's luminous eyes climbing up through the rainy light the day he had fought Steve Kinsey.

He had fought Steve Kinsey for her only to have her leave him for this slimy Clifford! Dear, the irony of it!

Suddenly Brant's pride was a pain and stinging. He was proud, was Brant, and this was a white lash on the raw. That Dale should deal him this cowardly blow—that she could hurt him like this!

Alone in that darkened fragrant room, Brant fought it out. Tearing memories of love and loyalty from his heart. Fighting back the pictures his imagination presented to torture him.

He came downstairs so pale, so stern that the others were frightened. No one spoke of it.

Luncheon was a painful affair. Brant scarcely spoke at all. Some of the business which had called him to Canada, Ontario, sitting opposite with swollen eyes, said nothing for a while, but in the middle of the meal, she suddenly broke and leaped to her feet.

"Oh, God! How can you sit there like this! I—it's terrible! Terrible for her, too!"

"Mance—be still!" Mimi cried with a slaying look.

Brant's eyes were blazing in her colorless face and she wheeled on Mimi as though she would slap her.

"You shut up!" she cried shrilly. "Don't you think I haven't been on to the way you pussyfooted about after her! All these months, trying to get something on her! Well—I hope you're satisfied!" Mance towered above the shorter Mimi.

"Mance!" Her mother's voice had a ring to it the girl had not heard for years. It changed her to a little girl.

She began to cry. "I don't care, I tried her! No matter what she's done—I liked her! Even if she did run away with that good-looking spiv—even if she did hurt my own brother—I still like her! And it's true—we all did act perfectly nasty!" Mance dashed her napkin to the floor and groped her way toward the door, choked with tears.

"Mance!" Brant suddenly rose and held out his arms. She flung herself at him.

"Good little Mate—" Brant's voice broke.

He's long arms about his neck, half strangling him. Smearing his face with her tears.

When Mance had toiled from the room, Mimi crept to Brant and began an appealing little hand on his arm. "You can't finish eating now, Brant, come out on the sun porch—"

Mimi's sweet husky voice was laden with sympathy, the long dark eyes turned up to Brant's face were dewy with sympathy. No one could resist Mimi. Sweet, gentle Mimi.

Watching Brant go through the French doors together, an old hope stirred in Mrs. Kendall's heart. Perhaps, after all, Mimi's foolish blunders, these two she so greatly loved might still fulfill her wish.....

CHAPTER 28.

THE JUBILEE: HARDNESS

When word went around the Jubilee Gardens that Clough was in the house, there was a visible tightening over the night club. Waiters stepped livelier. The very blond orchestra took on added vivacity and her voice gathered volume. The jaw orchestra became more purely gymnastic in its executions. The hoofer acts speeded up.

And out of the little corner office behind the cost checking stand, Madame the proprietor would appear,—a tight lipped little man, dressed with the sobriety and tidy precision of an undertaker.

From the base camp La knew the trail back to Opar; and Colt watched her depart he felt a lump rise in his throat; for the beautiful girl and the great primordial personifications of loveliness, and strength, and loveliness. With a sigh he turned into camp.

He awoke the blacks who lay sleeping through the mid-day heat. At the sight of him them were very excited, for they had been given up for dead by the strange things they had witnessed, and they felt alone and helpless without the protection of their master.

Since the killing of Bonsky they had had no master and they confessed to him that they had been considering deserting them, for they had been terrified by the strange things they had witnessed, and they felt alone and helpless without the protection of their master.

"Won't you stay at least for today?" asked Colt of La. "No, my friend," she said. "That is impossible. Jad-bal-ja and your blacks could not remain together in the same camp. You would lose your men. Goodbye, Wayne Colt. But remember I have Jad-bal-ja.

Clough paid no heed to this charitable footnote.

"Her name?" he asked, never taking his eyes from the dancer.

Trixie looked bored. "Evans." No petting Clough off.

"Bring her over after the turn."

Trixie shrugged one plump bare shoulder and left reluctantly.

Clough took his eyes from the floor and stared down into his glass, never looking up until a voice asked: "You want to see me?"

The girl he had pointed out stood beside the table. For a moment he subjected her to a long, deliberate scrutiny.

Better than ever; now he saw her close. Tantalizing combination—those deep brown eyes with the tawny hair. Nice hair, too—silky and shiny, making Trixie's bleached mop look tow. Clough had been a sailor in his submerged youth and privately he called Trixie "Straw-head."

He waved to the chair across the table and the girl slid into it. His eyes continued their examination.

Nice clear skin. A different look about her....she looked, he thought suddenly, like a lady. Even as she thought occurred to him he sneered at himself. Sure. All these cheap janes pulled that blue blood stuff. Wouldn't he look bright, falling for that gag! But it irritated him that he had thought it for the moment and there was a sneer in his voice.

"I suppose if I asked you about yourself you'd tell me that old one about your old man being mayor of the town where you lived."

A faint smile appeared in the hollow depths of the brown eyes.

"No, I don't believe I'd tell you anything."

"No!" in exaggerated surprise. Then abruptly, "Your name, Evans?"

"Yes."

"Bennie Cohen send you out to Hastens?"

"Yes."

"How long you know Cohen?"

"About ten minutes before he hired me."

Clough's eyes narrowed. "What'd you do before that?"

"Does it matter?" she asked quickly. Her wide eyes. He was seated tonight at his usual table, his head of thick grey hair conspicuous in the crowded room.

Opposite him, sat Trixie the hostess, almost fawning in her attentions, but Clough paid her scant attention. Through the cigarette smoke his eyes were following the dancing girls who were finishing a number on the floor.

"Who's the new doll?" he asked, totally indifferent in the fact that he had interrupted Trixie's vivacious chatter. He barely nodded toward a girl on the end.

Trixie looked sulky. "A new jane. Came on two days ago. Benny Cohen sent her to Hastens. I think she's rotten, myself."

Clough paid no heed to this charitable footnote.

"Her name?" he asked, never taking his eyes from the dancer.

Trixie looked bored. "Evans." No petting Clough off.

"Bring her over after the turn."

Trixie shrugged one plump bare shoulder and left reluctantly.

Clough took his eyes from the floor and stared down into his glass, never looking up until a voice asked: "You want to see me?"

The girl he had pointed out stood beside the table. For a moment he subjected her to a long, deliberate scrutiny.

Better than ever; now he saw her close. Tantalizing combination—those deep brown eyes with the tawny hair. Nice hair, too—silky and shiny, making Trixie's bleached mop look tow. Clough had been a sailor in his submerged youth and privately he called Trixie "Straw-head."

He waved to the chair across the table and the girl slid into it. His eyes continued their examination.

Nice clear skin. A different look about her....she looked, he thought suddenly, like a lady. Even as she thought occurred to him he sneered at himself. Sure. All these cheap janes pulled that blue blood stuff. Wouldn't he look bright, falling for that gag! But it irritated him that he had thought it for the moment and there was a sneer in his voice.

ROTARY HEARS STORY OF COURTS

Lawyer Bound to Defend Client to Best of Ability Club is Told

"Guilty or Not Guilty" was the topic presented to Belleville Rotarians for consideration at the regular weekly gathering in Hotel Quinte today. Whether a lawyer is justified in defending a client whom he knows to be guilty was the question propounded by the guest speaker, Chas. Simpson, K.C., President of the Law Society of Upper Canada, who addressed the Belleville club in an change for the address delivered recently before the Simpson club by H. H. Cankam, Past President of the Belleville club.

Magazine's constitution of criminal-licensed included of instructional 250 consisting of Gordon MacGregor and Douglas Davidson, Brampton, and Wm. Kernel, pleaded, two solicitors being rendered in a manner which stamped them upon upon as musicians of no mean degree.

A lawyer is in duty bound to take a case whether he believes that his client is guilty or not, according to the speaker, who based his argument upon the basic principle of British justice that holds every man innocent until proven guilty. Mr. Wilfrid Hamilton, his talk with anecdotes and stories of actual court cases, and seasoned it with a strand of humor which drew applause and chuckles galore. He declined the due process of law by which brings the accused into the prisoner's dock and the disadvantage under which the accused suffers as one under suspicion. In this connection he related the expressed attitude of a lawyers in explaining why a verdict of guilty was found in a certain case—"if the man wasn't guilty what was he doing in the prisoner's dock?" When a man is placed on trial a certain amount of suspicion is formed in the way whether he is guilty or not and it is up to his lawyer to present the facts as such, in his client's favor as possible, consistent with fairness.

Yes or No?

The badgering, blustering lawyer who insists upon the answer Yes, or No, without qualification, is disappearing from present day courts. To one lawyer who insisted that any question could be truthfully answered yes or no without qualification, a certain judge condescended with the remark: "I suppose you want to ask me to answer yes or no to this question, 'Have you stopped beating your wife?'"

It is the solemn duty of the lawyer to defend his client to the best of his ability, and the speaker asserted that Canada's courts were fair and honest, there being no advantages given rank or fortune. If an accused could not afford counsel he was assigned a lawyer to defend him by the court.

Needed a Witness

A negro on trial for murder had choice of two young lawyers to defend him, and after talking to both a few minutes he informed the court that he had selected one for counsel and the other for a witness.

A plea of "not guilty" is entered as a matter of form, not necessarily meaning that the charge is untrue but time putting the burden of proof upon the prosecution.

Taking the "Rap"

Several cases were related by Mr. Wilson where pleas of guilty had been entered when the accused could have been not guilty. One case of perjury was pleaded guilty to but the judge found that the false evidence had been given not to influence the course of justice wrongly but in a heroic spirit to shield a friend. The plea was changed and the accused was acquitted. Another case of an accused pleading guilty because he was an attempt to save a brother, the guilty one, on account of his wife and family. The unmarried brother proposed to take the "rap", but the error was discovered in time and justice meted out where it belonged.

EDODEMS TOSCANINI—Wilhelm Furtwaengler (above) international-ly-known opera and symphony conductor, has been appointed honorary musical director of the New York Philharmonic Society for the 1936-7 season. He succeeds Arturo Toscanini, who recently ended his term as conductor. Mr. Furtwaengler is a native of Berlin, and an opponent of the Nazi ban against "non-Aryan" artists.

Defiant, Powerful Germany Turns Back the Clock, Tears Up More "Scraps of Paper"

Germany, in the guise of «Saviour», has turned the clock back 21 years as goose-stepping armies are directed by Der Fuehrer to restore the "watch on the Rhine" in violation of the treaty of Versailles and the Locarno pact guaranteeing forever the demilitarization of the area between France, Belgium and Switzerland. Thus a tremendous new army, built since the advent of Nazism in Germany under the leadership of Adolf Hitler, is seen by foreign observers as taking its first step in the march to war. The In the layout shows to scan TOP, LEFT to RIGHT, General Werner von Blomberg, minister of war and head of the German army, who has been the support of the army to Hitler; German high-speed tanks ready for action; Adolf Hitler in immediate reaction to Hitler's decree declaring the Rhine area remilitarized was a similar order in France cancelling all army leaves and rushing troops to the line of border fortifications France has been building since the Great War, characteristic pose; famed German "dual-bin" bombers in recent maneuvres. The "dual-bin" is the machine gun nest that hangs under the fuselage; KELLOW German Chancellor on the march; the huge tanks corps in a demonstration of power; a six-inch battery aboard the German cruiser Koenigsberg in action. DESERT CENTURE, Gen. Pelham Von Fritsch, chief of the German general staff (illegal under Versailles) complete with cre-dentials. DESERT SILHOUETTE, General Hermann Goering, Hitler's right-hand man and head of the nation's air force.

France's Worst Fears Realized As German Army Again Camps On Her Doorstep

Once again, after 21 years of peace, France faces the prospect of war as Germany marches her armies into the forbidden territory of the Rhine, a demilitarized zone "forever" under the treaties of Versailles and Locarno, which Hitler has now torn to shreds. Stung by Germany's gigantic rearmament program, France hastened to form alliances with most European nations. Britain has announced her support of France in peace or war. Recently France signed a mutual assistance pact with Russia which Hitler declares violates the Locarno pact and gave impetus to the arming of the Rhine area. France, never for a moment trusting Germany, has built along her borders the greatest line of fortifications the world has ever seen. Deep underground she has built elaborate systems which keep out bars and there in unexpected places, ready to hurl defiance at the invader. German military experts refuse to regard them as a serious obstacle should they attack, claiming that an air force can soon overcome them. The layout shows shows TOP, LEFT TO RIGHT, a new French fighting aeroplane with guns ready and cocked for action; a part of the French navy steaming from place considerable distance; held for orders; a new German bombing aeroplane, ZEPPELIN; inset pictures of France's mechanized army and a photograph of the entrance to one of the hidden border forts upon which French army officers place considerable reliance.

3 MISSIONARIES PAY CITY VISIT

Workers in Borneo And French Indo China Deliver Sermons

The Annual Missionary Convention of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, lasting four days, came to a very successful close on Sunday evening in the local Tabernacle on Metra Street West. The Missionaries present were Rev. R. P. Irwin of French-Indo China and Rev. and Mrs. Presswood of Borneo.

On Wednesday evening, the opening night of the Convention Mr. Presswood in a most impressive manner told of his work in that far-away corner of the earth and with a number of beautifully coloured lantern slides, showed some of the triumphs of the Gospel out yonder.

Thursday evening witnessed the presence of Rev. R. P. Irwin of French Indo China, whose interesting lantern lecture on the growth of the Native Church stirred the hearts of all present.

On Friday evening Mrs. Presswood who shortly is to return with her husband to Borneo, gave a very helpful message to the boys and girls of the Sunshine Band, followed by the regular evening service, at which time, Mr. Presswood aided by lantern views told of some of the hardships and difficulties encountered in his work. His account of shooting the dangerous rapids of the Barnes Rivers was most thrilling.

Following an open session of the Sunday School on Sunday morning at which time Mr. Presswood and his wife dressed in native costumes, showed many interesting curios, Rev. R. P. Irwin in the morning service delivered to the local branch, the annual missionary message. Mr. Irwin gave a most challenging message on the theme, "He That Winneth Souls is Wise." Sunday evening witnessed the closing service of the Convention at which time, following a very uplifting song service led by the Pastor, Rev. Guy A. Stoner, Mr. Irwin spoke on the words of Jesus as recorded in Matthew 28:18, Go ye therefore and teach all nations baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world. Amen.

The speaker dwelling especially on the word, "Teaching" very clearly pointed out the great personal responsibility of every believer.

The Missionary spirit ran high throughout the Convention as was evidenced by the splendid spirit of self-sacrifice shown by the members and friends of the local church who pledged themselves to give during the present Missionary year a total of upwards of seven hundred dollars to the support of the work of the Society in over twenty-one different Mission fields.

In closing Mr. Irwin reminded those present that a total of over $45,000.00 per month is required to meet the needs of the foreign work of the Society alone, which amounts to over $150.00 per day, $6.25 per hour or a little more than $1.00 per minute, and challenged all present to have a share in the noble work.

With hearts filled with gratitude to the Lord, for making it possible to give so liberally to this worthy cause the congregation arose and sang in closing, the Doxology.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma and Glasses Magee was standing around the letter box and Puds Simkins started to go passed, saying, Come on around to the store with us, will you, fellows?

Are you going to get something decent, like Nabiths or apples? Glasses said.

Meaning his mother, and me and Glasses went with him anyways just for a change, and on the way back we started to have a contest to see with one could hop the longest on one foot like lame dusks, one of the rules being we was aloud to bump into each other to make it harder, and me and Glasses hapened to bump into Puds at the same time and he dropped the bag of salt and it spilt open and went all over the payment.

O, imagine getting all that salt in that little bag. I says to Glasses said, Hay, we all helped to spill it so we all better throw some over our left shoulder if we dont want to have bad luck.

O, that's rite, Puds said, and I said, Aw, that's ony a superstition, and Glasses said, Well that dont prove it aint true, does it?

Being a good sport, and we all threw some over our shoulders and Puds scraped all he could back in the bag and carried it hoes enter careful, saying, Come on around for me after lunich and let's take a walk out to the park.

And after lunich I whistled for Glasses and he came and I says, Puds had bad luck yes! and I said, No, have you? and he said, Yes, and you we wouldn't if we threw that salt.

And we rang Pud's front bell and his mother opened the door, saytin, Charles cant come out, he's got to learn that its possible to be a simple little errand without dropping something.

And she shut the door, me saying, How's that for bad luck for Puds, and he threw salt too, didn't he? and Glasses saying, Well, he's the ony one and that makes 2 out of 2 proof and what more do you want?

We not wanting any more, and we went around to the firehouse to look to Mr. Riley the hookes ladder driver.

SAY FRANCE MAY QUIT LEAGUE UNLESS AIDED

Britain Holds Balance; Parleys Move to London; France Talks of Quitting

Locarno' Rooms at London Is Prepared For Meeting

FRENCH ARE 'READY'

Germany Will Not be Represented at Bloc-king

With Great Britain holding the balance of power in her role of conciliator, the European crisis precipitated by Adolf Hitler's denunciation of the Locarno Pact was further intensified today by the reported possibility of France withdrawing from the League of Nations.

A high French official said his nation will ask the League unless Britain takes the command of France that Wiesbaden-Metz Rhine line be dropped from the Rhineland, demilitarized by the Locarno Pact, or else sanctions be imposed.

Closing France Sunday.

An evidence of what appeared to be a general feeling along the Quai d'Orsay was found in the following blunt, firm declaration by an authoritative spokesman:

"We know we are coming in two years anyway. We might as well have it now while we are prepared. Then we will be ready. If German troops will leave the Rhineland is for the Locarno powers to drive them out."

When Foreign Minister Pierre-Etienne Flandin goes to London tomorrow to attend a conference of the powers signatory to the Locarno Pact, he will carry this warning with him.

Flandin, informed sources said, will insist that Britain and France "do not alone in adopting Germany's position regarding the pact."

The reference to other powers was taken to mean, in diplomatic circles, Soviet Russia and the Little Entente (Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Rumania).

Solution At London?

London, Mar. 10 (AP)—Great Britain assumed the thankless role of host to the German Treaty's post-mortem today, hoping in a calm and historic atmosphere to solve the problem of a rearmed Rhineland.

The cabinet with newly-won parliamentary approval of Britain's new defence program, assembled to hear the full report of Premier Stanley, Anthony Eden and Viscount Halifax, Lord Privy Seal, on yesterday's preliminary negotiations in Paris.

There, said unofficial Paris reports, Britain balked at a French punitive action against the Nazi Reich for its military move into the Rhineland but offered the French "strong military guarantees" as a price for their acquiescence with Adolf Hitler.

JUDGE ANNOYED BY SIMILARITY OF SURNAMES

Polander Chooses Same Name as Supreme Court Justice

TAKES ACTION

Brooklyn, N.Y., March 11 (CP)—The wheels of justice in this New York borough whirred hastily today because Albert Chazorwich typed his surname distasteful. The Brooklynese secured permission in exigents court to change it to Conroy.

Per two happy months Chazorwich went through life with the name of Albert Conroy. Yesterday he received word another Albert Conroy, a Supreme Court Justice, had petitioned Justice John Mc-Conoy to vacate Justice Hallinan's decision.

Justice Conroy pointed out as Justice he signed several thousand orders a year and didn't want to go around all my life explaining that they were his and not those of another Albert Conroy."

The strange part of it is that Justice Albert Conroy is very anxious about the whole thing.

RUXTON, SOBBING, DENIES SLAYINGS

Swears He And Wife Could Not Live With or Without Each Other

Manchester, Eng., March 11 (AP)—Buck Ruxton, sobbing and dashing tears from his eyes, testified at his murder trial today the charge he killed his wife and nursemaid and then dismembered their bodies was "a deliberate and fantastic story."

The Indian-blooded medico accused of the gruesome double bed-sack murders, told a jury he and his wife were "the sort of people who couldn't live with each other and couldn't live without each other."

Ruxton's attorney said:

"It is suggested by the Crown that you killed your wife."

Ruxton's doctor burst into sobs.

"It is a deliberate and fantastic story," he said. "I swear on my life as well my the sun is rising in the west and setting in the east."

Ruxton's attorney asked:

"It is suggested also that you killed Mary Jane Rogerson."

Tih Runcombe with a capital "R," Ruxton retorted.

Ruxton asserted also the Crown charges was motivated by jealousy, admitted he had accused his wife of unfaithfulness.

"She was always thinking of men," he said.

HELIGOLAND HERO EARL BEATTY IS MOURNED BY MANY

Retired Admiral of British Fleet Succumbs to Heart Ailment

RETIRED IN JANUARY

Entered The Service at 13 And Received Surrender of German Fleet

London, March 11—(CP Cable)—The ranks of Great Britain's wartime leaders were thinned another gap today with the death of Earl Beatty, whose dashing conduct in the battle of Jutland and other engagements made him a naval hero.

Earl Beatty, who retired as Admiral of the Fleet when he reached the age limit of 65 last Jan. 17, died last night after a brief illness.

His historians acknowledged that, Admiral Beatty, second in command to Jellicoe at Jutland, never played a daring role in that tremendous engagement of the combined fleets of British and German floats. Though the result was indecisive, the Scapa Flow admiral and other Beatty admirers hold it combat the warships of Admiral von Scheer until Admiral Jellicoe could arrive on the scene captured the imagination of the country.

Earl Beatty's dashing and heroic style, Viscount Borodale, was at the bedside when his father died at the London Home for the Aged.

Hi For Some Time

Twice within recent months he had left a sick-bed to attend state funerals. He was present on May 20, Nov. 26 when the funeral of Earl Jellicoe took place.

At that time, he said: "No Jellicoes a grave. I fear that I will be the next to be summoned. I don't think the call will be very long. I'm tired, very tired."

Two months later, Jan. 20, he participated in the funeral of King George.

Anxiety regarding his condition reached a climax during February and for several days bulletins were issued. Then he appeared to be improving and had not been for the worse last week and physicians had hopes for his recovery.

Among those who attended him were Lord Horder, physician to the King, and Sir Maurice Cassidy, the heart specialist, who was called into consultation after the Feb. 14 illness of King George.

Anglican Clergyman Will Go to Jail For 1 Day Rather Than Pay $1 Fine

Tilbury, Ont., Mar. 11 (CP)—Attorney General Roebuck probably will have to settle the impasse reached in court here yesterday when Rev. T. Dobson, rector of St. Andrew's Anglican Church and Rural Dean of Kent County, was convicted of driving an automobile without a tail light.

Magistrate Arnold pleased sentence of $1 and costs fine or one day in jail.

"The Apostle Paul went to jail; the Lord Jesus went to jail and I'm willing to go to jail in a righteous cause," said Mr. Dobson, choosing jail as the alternative to paying his fine.

The magistrate refused to commit the clergyman to jail. Mr. Dobson read a letter he had written to the attorney general, in which he said that he had been rector here for nearly 20 years and during that time had not "a demerit mark in either church or state" against him.

He detailed the precautions he took to make sure his automobile was mechanically perfect and said all times he carried an extra electric bulb for such emergencies.

"This verdict," continued the letter, "will brand me as a criminal, associating with thieves, robbers, gangsters, highway racketeers, rumrunners and murderers."

"A Daniel has come to judgment," he declared after the verdict. "Come me to hell—even for 24 hours associate with the vile of creation, for association of which I have no guilty knowledge and over which I had no control."

Toronto, March 11.—(CP)—Attorney-General Roebuck said today he had no power to intervene in the case of Rev. T. Dobson, rector of St. Andrew's Anglican Church, who was assessed a fine of $1 and costs or one day in jail.

"My fine comment," said Mr. Roebuck after reading Mr. Dobson's letter appealing for consideration, "is that if he is unjustly convicted he has the right of appeal. My second is that if he is a good citizen he will accept the verdict of the court with the best grace possible.

"It is a serious matter to drive on the road without a tail light and the magistrate is charged with a serious duty in enforcing the law. It is not within the Magistrate's province to be any respecter of persons."

Baldwin Calls Cabinet To Meet in Emergency

By G. H. ANDERSON
Copyright, 1936, The Associated Press

London, March 11—Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin summoned the cabinet in emergency session for 6 p.m. today to hear a full report on the grave Paris Locarno discussions from Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Viscount Halifax, Lord Privy Seal.

The decision to call the extraordinary cabinet session in the Premier's House of Commons offices was reached at this morning's regular weekly session of the Ministers.

It will precede by only a few hours renewed efforts by Locarno signatories, transferred suddenly from Paris to London, to find a solution of the vexing problem of Nazi remilitarization of the Rhineland.

The 6 o'clock meeting will take place immediately after Eden and Viscount Halifax reach London by train from the French capital. Fog prevented their scheduled return by plane.

Belgium, Pledged to Play Part in United Action

Premier Says Hitler's Act Is 'Bound to Mortgage Value of Treaties'—Little and Balkan Ententes Back French Protest

Brussels, March 11 (AP)—Premier Paul Van Zeeland told cheering members of the Chamber of Deputies today, "Belgium is resolved to play its part in any collective action" resulting from German repudiation of the Locarno pacts.

The Belgian Premier, visibly tired and showing the strain of intensive diplomatic negotiations, reaffirmed his nation's allegiance to the mutual security treaty "until it is replaced by another accord to which all interested parties."

Adolf Hitler's denunciation of the Pact is "bound to mortgage for a long time the value of all treaties," Van Zeeland declared. Belgium, he added, is seriously affected by the Rhineland action since it is "unable to defend its frontiers without help."

No Censure Exists

The Franco-Soviet mutual military assistance pact does not concern Belgium, the Premier asserted, and therefore Germany's attempt to "put the blame on documents is unjustified" so far as it concerns his country which, "has 100 per cent right on its side."

Rebuilding his cabinet, Van Zeeland told the Chamber, depends upon the establishment and maintenance of conditions under the Pact for the common front.

"Should the Locarno powers fail to agree on the problems facing them," he said, "the worst consequences are possible for us, the whole world and our civilization."

(By Joseph H. Shaden, Associated Press Foreign Star)

Geneva, March 11 (AP)—Representatives of the nations allied in the Little and Balkan Ententes decided today to support the French protest against the remilitarization of the Rhineland.

Diplomats reported at the session were Czechoslovakia, Rumania and Yugoslavia, corresponding to Belgium and Greece and Turkey which with Rumania and Yugoslavia make up the Balkan Entente. Nicholas Titulescu, Foreign Minister of Rumania, presided at the session and was host to London tonight to attend the session of the League of Nations Council.

African Issue

Some League circles forecast a speedy exchange of views on the proposal for peace in East Africa which will be placed on the League Council session together with the Locarno situation. Italy's withdrawal from the League and the League committee of 13 plus Italy and a review of the Italo-Ethiopian war might be considered since both Ethiopia and Italy have indicated a desire to negotiate for peace.

Officers of the Swiss Army have been instructed to remain near their barracks and keep constantly in touch with their superiors.

INDIAN CHARGES GAME OVERSEER WITH ASSAULT

Wounded in Head When Arrested For Fishing Out of Season

WAS BASS FISHING

Whitby, Ont., March 11 (CP)—Robin David, 62, a blind Indian from the Scugog Island reserve, appeared in police court charged with obstructing game overseer Frank Carnegie, when he allegedly hit him custody on a charge of fishing in the Lake Scugog fish sanctuary.

The blind Indian's head was bandaged, covering wounds alleged to have been inflicted with a steel "anchor" by the game overseer during a fight between himself and the officer. The wound, the Indian told the court, required four stitches to close and the anchor was produced. Counsel for the aged Indian was his son Joseph, who, with his father is charged with a charge of carrying a gun at night.

The game officer contended both men offered resistance and struck him, and in the fight following he got a fright between himself and the officer. The wound, the Indian told the court, required four stitches to close and the anchor was produced. Counsel for the aged Indian was his son Joseph, who, with his father is charged with a charge of carrying a gun at night.

On his own behalf the Indian replied that he had taken the fish for food, three payments of his treaty money having been withheld. He contended under old treaty rights he fell into he had a right as an Indian to fish in the lake.

IRELAND DEFEATS WALES

Belfast, March 11.—(CP Cable)—Ireland defeated Wales yesterday to clinch International Soccer honors, scoring a 3-1 victory at Belfast. Ireland led at the half time 2-1. At half time Wales led 1-0 but in a second half drive the Irish boosted in two goals to ensure victory.

JACK H. BLACK DIES SUDDENLY

Leading Figure in Industrial, Financial And Mining Life

Toronto, March 11 (CP)—Toronto financial circles today mourned the death of Henry Homer Black, for years a leading figure in the industrial, financial and mining life of Canada, who died suddenly last night at the age of 61.

Head of numerous companies in the last of which Mr. Black worked his way up from a telegrapher with the Canadian Pacific Railway to become General Superintendent of Telegraphs, he was Vice President of Ontario Railway in 1904. He held that position until 1911 before returning to the railroad.

He was General Manager of the Northern Ontario Light and Power Company, and the Kenelior Life Insurance Co. He was Vice President and General Manager of the Spruce Falls Power and Paper Co., a director of the Hollinger Mine.

He held directorships in the Canadian Pacific Railway Co., Dominion Lakes Paper Company, Abitibi Power and Paper Company, Canada Northern Power Corporation, Union Gas Company of Canada, General Electric Company.

He was born in Lake Falls, Ont. Mr. Black taught school in Laurel and Frontenac counties until 1893. He took an active interest in his business connections until ill health forced him to retire two years ago.

MALE GERMANS IN DOMINION CALLED TO SERVE

Germans Naturalized as British Subjects Not Liable

THREE CLASSES

Those Born in 1914, 1915, and 1916 Called For Active Military Service

Montreal, Mar. 11 (CP)—German citizens living in Canada and Newfoundland are to be conscripted for service in the German army, it was announced today in a written statement from the office of Ludwig Kempff, Consul General for Germany in Canada.

German citizens have become naturalized British subjects are not affected by the conscription order, the statement said, "for under the Act of July 22, 1913, a German citizen, who acquires voluntarily another nationality, loses as a matter of principle his former citizenship."

The statement continues:

"In 1936 all male German Nationals in Canada and Newfoundland, who were born in 1914, 1915 and 1916 may be called upon for active military service, the class of 1916 first for the Naval Labor service.

Report By March 31.

"These three classes have to report immediately, until March 31st, 1936, to the competent German consular authorities. Those living in the Provinces of Ontario, Quebec, The Maritimes, the Yukon, the Northwest Territories and in Newfoundland have to report to the consulate general at Montreal, those living in the Province of Manitoba to the German consulate at Winnipeg, by means of a form provided for the purpose.

"The classes of 1914, 1915 and 1916 have to procure these forms from the above consular offices; applications should be accompanied by a return postage. Applications for temporary exemption have to be filed together with the report. Failure to report is punishable."

Possibility of Marriage Of King Edward Eighth Announced in Commons

Chancellor Reads Message as to Revision of Civil Lists

PROVISION FOR DUKE

King Edward States He Will Bear Part of Costs From Duchy

London, Mar. 11 (AP)—The possibility that Edward VIII, future King of England may marry was officially announced in the House of Commons in a message sign ed by the King.

The unmarried status of Edward, now 41 years old, long has been one of the outstanding topics of conversation in the British Empire and the world at large.

As Prince of Wales, he was termed "the world's most eligible bachelor."

Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, read a royal message to the assembled Commons in which Edward pointed out the necessity of revising the civil list—the amounts paid to the members of the Royal Family.

Contingency of Marriage.

The royal message stated: "His Majesty realizes that the contingency of his marriage should be taken into consideration, that, in that event, there should be a provision for Her Majesty the Queen and the children of His Majesty's family, corresponding to the provision which has been made for them by will-for as made in like circumstances by his father.

The Labor party member, William James Thorne, immediately asked a question.

"Does His Majesty give any assurance that he is going to get married?"

Tht chamberlain did not answer.

King Edward also requested the House of Commons to make full provision for the Duke of York, his presumptive to the throne, "in certain events for his family."

He said, however, he would bear part of these expenses from the Duchy of Cornwall, the rich estate which for hundreds of years has been administered for the benefit of the Prince of Wales.

The message said: "It is, however, His Majesty's intention, as was the invariable custom of the Duchy of Cornwall are vested in Himself, to make that provision for the Duke of York, and for the Princess Elizabeth, the Duke of York, and, therefore, it is necessary that provision should be made by Parliament, to provide for His Majesty's privy purse.

"There has been considerable speculation as to the disposition of the Duchy of Cornwall revenues during the minority of the Prince of Wales—a title which now is not held.

Mr. Chamberlain announced a special committee would be named next week to revise the civil list.

The King can marry without parliament's consent but, in order for the Duke of York to be crowned he must be a princess of royal or noble birth.

The King could marry a commoner if he chose, but, if he did, the children would be morganatic and their children would not be entitled to succeed to the throne.

As a matter of courtesy, King Edward requested parliament's agreement's approval before he married.

Weighted Body Dropped, Sought in 'Frisco Bay

Redwood City, Calif., Mar. 11 (AP) 58, to which District Attorney Gilbert Perrell said he confessed.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

City and District News

FOREIGN LICENCE PLATES PROMINENT

Early indications of spring and warmer weather to come, first tourists from points across the border are now beginning to appear through the city. So far Michigan, Ohio and Ohio licence plates have been noted on the machines. As yet there is no indication that Canadians will be making holiday trips this summer, during the past several months quarters in practically every country have been received at city hall, mostly from the Department of Commerce from southern points.

WELLS IN DISTRICT NOW WELL FILLED

As one indication of the condition of surface water in the rural areas of the district, word yesterday of this town from well-filled high, or with water to the surface more than ever before, in one case, in the basement of a home at the edge of the town. An actual overflowing of the well has occurred. This is in direct contrast to last, that during the past winter it became necessary to haul water for long distances in many cases.

SMALL FISH ANGLING THROUGH ICE GOOD

Combining pleasure with a little profit, anglers from the city during the past week or so have turned to the ice on the bay for a few hours of relaxation. In the vicinity of Swift's Island lately scores of fishermen have been noted patiently angling for perch and other smaller fish. Good catches are reported from this location. One fine specimen of pike was displayed on Front street, but was disposed of the fish for a good price, while pending his catch at smaller fish. So far the usual earlier run up through the ice is yet to be reported although hope which is being kept.

USE FIRE HOSE TO TAKE AWAY DEBRIS

At the request of Mayor Hill Fire Chief Ponton has granted permission to the removal of an accumulation of winter debris and the refuse the decorations from the streets, today through the use of hose from the hydrants. Early every rain and packed, dirty ice now remain on the streets through the business section.

CITY GRADER USED TO REMOVE RUTS

In an effort to remove some of the heavier ruts and packed ice on residential streets the city grader was hitted and today by the public works department. During the night six men were employed on the department at the work of clearing the ice and snow from through various parts of the city.

COUNTY ROAD WORK CONTINUED ALL WINTER

"Roads through the back country are not as deeply rutted as they are in the city," commented Mr. Stephen Pew, county road superintendent, today when asked when spring work will be needed, however, to put the roads into a safe condition. During the month of February a total of 161 men employed by the county were given work on the roads.

HARD WINTER FOR GREENHOUSE MEN

Greenhouse men of this and other districts have emerged through the hard winter with one on record, it was reported today by Mr. T. Divine, well-known florist. During the winter the extreme cold and sustained cold weather, a notionable absences of the sun was evident with a consequent coating of the glass of the greenhouses with, in the main, a heavy growth which the sun's rays could not penetrate. Only lately has this condition been remedied with the strengthening of the sun. "We have been using from half four tons of coal a week all winter to keep the temperature up to the greenhouse," it was reported by Mr. Divine.

STORM SEWERS UNABLE TO CARRY AWAY WATER

For the first time on record city storm sewers and sanitary sewers were unable to handle the volume of water flowing into them from the hundreds of catch basins scattered throughout the city. Yesterday afternoon city water tested out of one of the large man-holes at the lower end of Front Street from the water-choked basin nevertheless flooding a wide area. Elsewhere throughout the city numerous complaints of flooded cellars have been received. Stores in the downtown section, anticipating further flooding have in many cases removed some of their stock to higher locations.

FIRST TINGES OF SPRING IS NOTED

One of the first tinges of spring noted in the city is observed by Assessor Cox on the grounds of the Hastings County Jail, where the sheriff's residence is situated. During a sleep has now appeared a vivid green. First shoots of tulip bulbs are also apparent above the ground at the side of the south wall, which is now bared daily on the bright afternoon sun.

Men's Chorus, Tenor Soloist Please City's Music Lovers In Fourth Annual Recital

Work of Chorus And John Deacon on Highest Plane

ARTISTRY MARKED

Belleville Men's Chorus with their local artist Mr. John Deacon, Belleville native, now resident in New York City, gave a much talented music lovers of Belleville an evening of delightful music in the Bridge Street United Church on Tuesday night. It was the fourth annual recital by the chorus which demonstrates its growth of artistry. Mr. Deacon, so closely identified with Belleville music-lovers, got golden praise for the excellence of his offerings.

Last evening's program was well-balanced, the chorus was heard in four groups of songs and choruses, and Mr. Deacon appearing on three occasions to sing groups of songs in Italian, English, German and French. The program was not long but was sufficiently varied to preserve the rapt attention of the audience.

Musical Culture

Opening with a special arrangement the chorus under the baton of the conductor, Mr. Percy Hunter, gave an inspired rendition of the National Anthem, with Mr. Harry V. P. Hunt, director of music at Bridge Street United Church, at the console of the church organ. This combination of male voices and organ was sufficiently varied to preserve the rapt attention of the audience.

Opening with a special arrangement the chorus under the baton of the conductor, Mr. Percy Hunter, gave an inspired rendition of the National Anthem, with Mr. Harry V. P. Hunt, director of music at Bridge Street United Church, at the console of the church organ. This combination of male voices and organ was sufficiently varied to preserve the rapt attention of the audience.

Beauty of Voice

A Welsh chorale, "Laudamus" arranged by Prothero with its interesting bass provided the first Chorus with an apt vehicle for expression of the beauty of the voices. Handel's ever famous "Where'er You Walk" from Semele was rendered with that restraint and appreciation of the proper rendition of Handel's musical thought which this piece requires. The number was given a test in which the chorus fully sustained itself.

In the second group, three fine old modern songs were rendered. "Morning" by Sidney Homer, "Brown Bird Singing" by Haydn Wood and "The Rosary" by Ethelbert Nevin, the chorus demonstrating the true direction and beauty of the voices. The selection was extremely well balanced, giving the right expression and the melody was sustained while the harmony of which the chorus is built up by the parts went to round out these three numbers the beauty and charm of which will not be forgotten. These songs, familiar to everyone through years, gained by the selection took on new meaning as the Belleville chorus and the director presented them.

Melody and Harmony

"Passing By" (E. Purcell) and "The Old Minstrel" (Welsh Melody) arranged by Prothero were the first two numbers of the third group. The ever popular "Passing By" was sung with depth of feeling and the light and shade which the selection calls for. "The Old Minstrel" was one of the most impressive numbers of the evening and was found by the chorus with full volume showed up particularly well in the tenors. It was perfect and the interpretation completely satisfying. The third group, Forsyth's "Old King Cole," in a very light vein calling for close singing and the carrying of the melody, naturally was of a type in which the audience could join at last as the chorus with the lilt and fancy of the piece, so that the choruses gave the only encore of the evening when it repeated this number.

Appreciation of Chorus

"The Long Day Closes" by Sir Arthur Sullivan, and "Abide With Me", (Lyte-Monk) completed the chorus numbers, a most satisfying selection to the evening's enjoyment.

The work of the chorus was of high calibre. The chorus contains many fine soloists both bass, tenor and baritone and also many fine choir voices in the city. Working with this fine body of men, all of them keen musicians and artists, the director Mr. Percy Hunter has been able to round out a musical unit which gives Belleville a high status as a musical centre, a reputation which the citizens are proud as they are informed by their attendance in as great numbers and by their appreciation of the music rendered by Mr. Hunter was apparent in the unity of effect achieved and in the other qualities which make an outstanding chorus.

Soloist's Work

No little share of the pleasure of the evening was due to the wholesome choices which Mr. Deacon presented. His interpretation of a list of such gifts as to be able not only to sing in the languages of the Italian, French and Germans as well as in his mother tongue English, but to catch the musical and the artistic idiom of the songs in those various tongues. This was a most achievement, for while music has a universal appeal, the idioms of expression and the sentiment vary with different languages and in the mode of different peoples. But Mr. Deacon won a success in this regard. His first number was from the Italian "Ola Il Gagno" by Scarlatti which rang true. Then he took a number from Haydn, "He Never Told His Love", embalming some of the choicest lyrico-dramatic lines with ever came from the ever-inspired pen of Shakespeare in "Twelfth Night" when Orsino speaks of love of his own love. The manner in which the tenor sustained this tender number, singing with pure lyric power, and in very effective sound the Alarm" from "Judas Maccabeus" or Handel went into the dramatic and when his voice was stronger again succeeded.

Mr. Deacon's second group contained two lovely German numbers, "Resignung" by Strauss and Schu-mann's "Du bist die Ruh" demanding quite different treatment from the first group. Mr. Deacon carried the spirit of these numbers, particularly the Schubert lyric, over the audience. In the last number of this group, he sang an arrangement of Schubert's "Serenade" in a delightful dramatic vein indicating the change of mood as words. Encored he sang very effectively "Serenata" (Toselli).

Songs in English

His final bracket of songs was purely English. Oshran's "Dawn" was sung with depth of feeling, and Lehmann's "Hall the Gentle Sweetest of Trees" was delightfully sung by the tenor. Mr. Deacon's "Calling Me", favourite of all singers and audiences, was well rendered. In Olbi's "I've Kyo", Mr. Deacon translated the spirit of the Japanese love song. Hammond's "The Pipes of Gordon's Men" called for a Scottish interpretation and here the artist did well. Additional encores were "Water Boy", a favorite of Mr. Deacon's, heard here before, catching the Negro Slave Melody and sung well. "Lullaby Thing Eyes" concluded the first part of the program fell on Mr. Alec Gordon, the accompanist of both the chorus and of the soloist. Mr. Gordon upheld the fine reputation he has won as a skilful and artistic player. He succeeded in playing to that degree required, at times, when he was forced both organ and piano, but the piano in the chorus.

REQUEST MADE TO SPREAD CHEQUES

Engineer to Inspect Two Crossings in Wollaston Township

If the request of the Roads and Bridges Committee the county Hastings County Council will be allowed to spread their payment of a total of $100,000 existing on Provincial Highways in the county over a period of four years. At the meeting yesterday was instructed to write the Department asking that this request be granted.

At the meeting a letter from the Ontario Railway Board advising that the Board would send an engineer to enquire into the matter was read, regarding a previous request by the committee, that two railway crossings be eliminated in Wollaston Township by straightening the road at these points. The engineer is expected to confer with the committee within a week or so. It is the hope of the committee to have the work completed under the relief scheme whereby the government will assume twenty percent of the cost.

GARAGE SUPPLY HOST AT PARTY

Dealers and Operators Entertained at Company's Anniversary

Automobile dealers, garage and service station operators from Kingston to Port Hope to the number of 260 were guests of Fred S. Douglas, manager of Garage Supply Company, and the efficient staff, last evening at the Quinte Hotel, it being the occasion of the fifth anniversary of the company. Upon attendance and gave to the guests short addresses on their products, exemplifying some of the important features with a chalk talk. Under the auspices of the company, Pictorial motion pictures including comedies and "Speeding Up", a breezy automobile and air racing film, were shown much to the delight and instruction of those present. The film depicting the factory process of manufacture of many products sold by the Garage Supply Company was also shown and was a revelation of the high speed mechanical and accurate work.

Manager Welcomes Guests

Mr. Fred S. Douglas, who has been in charge of the Company's staff since the branch was located in this city, welcomed the guests, stating it was an extreme pleasure to have the dealers with the staff on the anniversary and hoped that the same friendly trade relations would continue for an indefinite period. He introduced Charles Bird, machinist at the Company's branch here, who instructed the garage and service men in the proper installation of many products. Mr. Bird is a most entertaining speaker and having a wide knowledge of his trade, made what would ordinarily be a dry lecture into a most instructive discourse.

The film "Speeding Up" showed the rapid advancement made in automobile and air racing and the guests were on the edge of their seats most of the time as crashes, spills, stunts flashed on the screen in an endless parade. All the famous automobile drivers of recent years were shown and the famous cars in which they created history in automobile racing. The same was true of the air picture, the stunt flying being particularly interesting. The factory picture was also a source of interest to the guests as every operation on many products was depicted and every step explained. All the pictures were given with sound effects.

At the conclusion of the pictures, Cal Wilson, conducted a drawing for valuable prizes, these being the fortunate ones were, Jack Mather, of Riggs Motor Sales; Harry Fry, of the Bell Telephone Staff of Ottawa; Norman Champlain of Tweed Motors; Robert Hipps of Warkworth and T. J. Lynch of Trudeau Motor Sales. Delicious refreshments were served at the conclusion and a hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Douglas and his staff for the enjoyable evening.

Director of Forestry Is Still Missing

Ottawa, March 11—(CP)— R. H. Finlayson, Director of Forestry in the Interior Department, and well known Ottawa's most widely-known civil servants, remained unreported this morning, two weeks after he left his home in the capital to visit the Minister of Lands and Forests, his friends and officials here, by land and air. Circulars describing him have been distributed among police departments throughout the continent.

Finlayson, deaf and in poor health for a considerable time, had been visiting his office about twice a week for several months. During that time he would and fail for three times, suffering from anaemia, but recovered himself each time and returned to his home.

Financial Condition of City Told Kiwanians by Auditor

Fred Chamberlain, Reviews Compilation of Auditor's Report

"Belleville City Council has the control of but 5 percent of the expenditures, while the debenture and interest debt of the city is about 61 percent of the expenditures", Fred Chamberlain, City Auditor, told the members of the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon at the Queen's Hotel on Tuesday. There was a large attendance and the members were given a much better insight into the management of the city's business by the interesting address, given by the City Auditor. Mr. Chamberlain is the executive of the city and was introduced by Fred Deacon and Kiwanian appreciation was expressed by Alderman Cliff Bermingham. Mr. Chamberlain also announced at the close of his address that about $20,000 would be turned over to the YMCA by the result of the Carnival recently sponsored by the service clubs of the city.

"Three new members, "Army" Armstrong, manager of Kresge's store, Wilfrid Lepore, sportsman, and the Canadian Industrial Alcohol plant at Corbyville and John Trudeau, proprietor of the Bon Ton, were accepted by the club, being introduced by Mr. Chamberlain, especially as members of the membership committee. The members were initiated by the president, Frank Clemento and presented with their buttons by the secretary, George E. Gritfin. Jos. Sikorski presented a report on the KI-XI league stating that championship would be decided in two series and that there were six more games to be played in the Juvenile and Junior sections. He also made a report of the 175 Mark show to be given in the near future.

Eddie Lagan was booster for the day and Albert Dorey, George Zakos, Chester Smith, George Lee and "Curley" Davison were the winners of beautiful pieces of silver. The committee singing was led by Harold Seldon, while Isaac Shaffner collected the several fines and Leo St. Denis acted as time keeper. The substance of Mr. Chamberlain's address was as follows—

When Kiwanian Smith asked me at 1 would appear before you and make a few remarks on the interpretation of my financial report for the City of Belleville for the year ending Dec. 31st, 1935, I rather hesitated, knowing, that you were used to hearing speakers of ability, however, he assured me that with a view to ascertaining an idea of the financial conditions of the city, I hope, therefore, you will bear with me while I read my remarks.

First of all it is satisfactorily financed each year separately. That is, all accounts are closed at the end of the year and a fresh start made for the following year. The first step in the preparation of the estimates and arrangements made for a loan from the bank until the taxes are received. In the case of the year 1935 the total expenditure to work on was $30,458,980. These estimates are compiled by ascertaining as closely as possible the anticipated sundry expenditures and added to these are requirements for school purposes and debenture interest and principal, then the sundry receipts are estimated and deducted from the total expenditures and the balance as left is required to be raised by tax rate.

Slight Deficit

The total current receipts for the year 1935 were $951,810 and the total expenditures $952,416 or in other words, the expenditures exceeded the receipts by $606. This amount will have to be added to the estimated expenditures for the year and provided for in the tax rate. The expenditures for the year can be divided into two classes, that is, those over which the council have control and those that they are called upon to meet over which they have no control. The controllable expenditures are for the maintenance of the City Hall, Police Dept, Fire Dept, Public Works Dept, salaries, office expenses, etc., etc. These amounted to approximately $87,000 or 9 per cent. Sundry grants to various sports and charitable organizations amounted to a little less than 1 per cent. In other words, the council had control of only about 10 per cent. of all expenditures.

Division of Expenditures

The uncontrollable expenditures are divided into four different groups as follows: Debenture debt and fairs, which amounts to 19 per cent. of the expenditures or 2 per cent. more than it costs to operate the City itself. The next important are Schools $250,000, Indigent Hospitalization $12,000, Mothers' Allowances $13,000 and Old Age Pensions $6,000. These latter two are increasing from year to year and it is difficult to figure the requirements for these items when preparing the estimates.

Health and Sanitation absorbs a little over 1 per cent. Salaries of Person and Property, which is composed of Police Commission, Fire Dept. and Street Lighting etc., accounts for about 11 per cent. The Debenture Debt and Interest is the heaviest of all and amounts to $1 per week of all expenditure. Of the total debt $1 per cent. is for City improvements and Utilities and 20 per cent. for schools. The civic improvements consists of sidewalks, sewers, street improvements, parks etc. and the Utilities the Water Works and Gas Plants. During the year all debentures were paid off on the Belleville Power Electric system and that utility is now owned outright by the City which together with the water works are now sold as utilities as both show substantial earnings from year to year.

Debenture Debt $8,136,000

The Debenture debt of the City at the end of the year was $8,136,000. This is divided into two classes, Sinking Fund and Serial. The Sinking fund debt amounted to $1,145,000 and the Serial $6,991,000 and this debt is set aside each year from the taxes and placed in the Sinking fund account on a 3 per cent. earning basis to meet the maturity. These funds are re-invested in other securities, some of which pay as high as 7 per cent. and the Auditor and Secretary-Treasurer have carefully watched the investments, the City's sinking fund has gradually been growing from year to year so that by the end of the year 1935 the sinking fund was in a healthy fund account a surplus of $134,000 over and above the debt. This amount will have to be added to the estimated expenditures for this year and provided for in the tax rate. SENTENCED TO DIE—Found guilty of the murder of Mrs. Rose Alexandrowitch, Alexandrowitch, 17-year-old Montreal youth, was sentenced to hang on May 16. Large Sinking Fund

The Serial Debentures are a more satisfactory form of Municipal Debt and are now taking the place of sinking fund debentures. This debt amounts to $1,991,000 and is reduced each year by paying off a certain number of principal and interest each year. It is hoped to establish the total debt of the City at the end of the year 1936 at $8,136,000, and in the sinking fund reserve $963,936, leaving a net debt of $7,342,000. The population of the City is now set at 14,611 persons, therefore the net assessed debt amounts to $13.56 which at the present time is rather high, but in the future not to increase the capital expenditures of the City for the next six years, Belleville will be in a very prominent position, as, during that time $618,-000 of sinking fund debt will have been retired, and this, with the reduction of serial debentures will reach well over a million dollars in debt reductions.

Tax Arrears

In the past Belleville has compared favorably with other municipalities in this respect, having collected about 98 per cent. of all taxes. However, I regret to state that each year of late has shown an increase in property going into tax sale, most of this consists of unimproved and run down property, which is no asset to the City. I would like at this point to direct from my report and offer a suggestion which has occurred to me and which I would like to pass on for your consideration.

This is in regard to the property, that is passing into the hands of the City, as before stated some of this is in a dilapidated condition. Could not a Commission of some kind be appointed, entirely apart from the City. This Commission be given power to tear down those old buildings and use what material could be salvaged and build small dwellings, consisting say of kitchen, sitting room, two bedrooms and bath, so that they could be rented for a small sum of ten to twelve dollars per month, thereby making the proposition self supporting. The rentals would be low and taxes and light. The money required for this purpose would be raised by a small debenture issue, backed by the city. The Commission would collect rents, pay taxes and principal and keep a strict supervision over the buildings and tenants. This would be a first step in Belleville towards the abolition of slums and at the same time make this property an asset to the city instead of a liability and provide work for skilled and unskilled labor.

Responsible Position

It may be interesting for you to know that during the year there passed through the hands of the City Treasurer in cash and negotiable securities the $1,740,446 of which he is the custodian is rather a responsible position.

In conclusion I may say, that Belleville is considered one of the soundest municipalities in the Province of Ontario by all bond and financial institutions and by careful administration, and by that I mean economy in expenditures without interfering with efficiency, she will continue to be in a position of not only trying times right on the top of the heap. The financial report is all complete as the present time with the exception of the Hydro and Water Works which we are waiting for the 12th power bill and when this is received the report will be ready for distribution.

Trusting I have not taken up too much of your time and that I have been able to give you some idea of the City's condition, I thank you.

MOTHER AND 4 CHILDREN BURN

Heroic Woman Rescues Three of Brood Before Succumbing

PERTH, Ont., March 10.—(CP) —Dr. A. W. Dwyre, District Coroner, will hold an inquest tomorrow night into deaths of a woman and four children resulting from a fire yesterday near Poland, 25 miles north of here.

Dr. Dwyre conducted a preliminary investigation of the fire that destroyed the log home of Newton McInnes, barring to death his wife and three children and causing the death of a fourth child from exposure and shock.

The dead are—Mrs. McInnes, 36; Mervyn, 4; Garfield, four; Floyd, two; Corinne, two months.

The blaze said they broke out early yesterday morning, when he awakened finding smoke and the hot kitchen stove a can of coal oil, which had been left on the baby's high chair.

Flames spread so fast, he was forced to gain the second floor, where his wife and children were asleep. His wife awoke, however, and dropped from a window three of the children, Arthur, nine, Velma, seven, and the baby, dead. Death as above apparently were overcome by smoke.

McInnes caught the children safely but the baby died within a few hours.

Help arrived belatedly from the home of Andrew Easton, brother-in-law of Mrs. McInnes, who ran half-a-mile across the field and met the frantic father carrying two of the children.

Hours later neighbors sought the bodies of the victims, finding them in a box one foot square and about a foot deep.

Financial Condition of City Told Kiwanians by Auditor

Fred Chamberlain, Reviews Compilation of Auditor's Report.

"Belleville City Council has the control of but ten percent of the expenditures, while the debenture and interest debt of the city is about 61 percent of the expenditure", Fred Chamberlain, City Auditor, told the members of the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon at the Queen's Hotel on Tuesday. There was a large attendance and the members were given a most interesting insight into the management of the city's business by the Belleville auditor, given by the City Auditor and Chamberlain is a native of the city and was introduced by Fred Deacon and Kiwanian appreciation was expressed by Alderman Cliff Bungay. Mr. Chamberlain also announced in the close of his address that about $239.00 would be turned over to the Y.M.C.A. the result of the Kiwanis charity sponsored by the service clubs of the city.

Three new members, "Army" Armstrong, of Bickle's Drug Store, Winfield Lapsley, superintendent of the Canadian Salt Co., and school plant at Belleville and John Trudeau, proprietor of Trudeau Saloon, were inducted into the club, being introduced by Eddie Logan, organizer and chairman of membership committee. The members were initiated by the president, Frank Donnelson and presented with their emblems by the secretary, George H. Griffith. Joe Sheridan presided at a report on the Ki-T league stating that championship golf matches were in two series and that there were six more games to be played in the Juvenile and Junior sections. He also asked support of the T's Men's show to be held in the Victory Arena.

Eddie Logan was booster for the day and Albert Boynton, George Zalva, Charles Smith, George Lee and "Davey" Davison were the winners of boostership for the week. The community singing was led by Harold Sedgwick while Jessie Hardy collected the several fines and Leo R. Riggs presided at the piano. The absence of Mr. Allin Sills-Allin's address was the

When Kiwanian Smith asked me if I would appear before you and make a few remarks on the contents of my financial report for the City of Belleville for the year ending Dec. 31st, 1935, I rather hesitated, knowing, that you were used to hearing speakers talking, but when he assured me it was with a view to securing an idea of the financial conditions of the city, I hope, therefore, you will bear with me while I read some statistics.

First of all a municipality is induced each year, generally speaking, to all accounts are closed as the end of the year and a financial report made for the following year. The first step is the preparation of the estimates, which commences months for a loan from the bank until the taxes are received. In the case of the year 1935 the total assessment to work on was $15,005,895. These estimates are compiled by ascertaining as closely as possible the anticipated sundry revenues and added to these are requirements for school purposes and debenture interest and principal, then the sundry receipts are estimated and deducted from the total expenditures and the balance as net is required to be raised by tax rate.

Slight Deficit

The total current receipts for the year 1935 were $681,619 and the total expenditures $681,414 or in other words, the expenditures exceeded the receipts by $205. This amount will have to on added to the estimated expenditures for this year and provided for in the tax rate. The expenditures for the year can be divided into two classes, that is, those over which the council have control and those that they are called upon to meet over which they have no control. The controllable expenditures are for the maintenance of the City generally, and consist of Public Works, Health, Protection, Parks, etc., etc. These amounted to approximately $97,000 or 14 per cent. Sundry grants to various sports and charitable organizations amounted to a little less than 1 per cent. In other words, the council had control of only about 10 per cent. of expenditures.

Uncontrollable Expenditures

The uncontrollable expenditures are divided into four different groups as follows—Charity and Welfare, which amounted to 17 per cent. of the expenditures or 2 per cent. more than it costs to operate the City Hall. The more important of the items being Relief $50,000, Hospitalization $12,000, Mothers' Allowance $13,000 and Old Age pensions $22,000. The latter two are increasing from year to year and will continue to require the expenditure for these items when property the estimates.

Health and Sanitation absorbs a little over 1 per cent. Protection 10 per cent and Parks amounted to 1 per cent of Police Commission. Five per cent. of the expenditures are accounts, by about 11 per cent. The Debenture Debt is the largest in the expenditure of all and amounts to 61 per cent. of all expenditures. Of the total debt 21 per cent. is for local improvements and Utilities and 30 per cent. for other works. The city improvements consists of sidewalks, sewers, street pavings, bridges, etc., and the Utilities the Water Works and the Plants. During the past year debentures were paid off on the Belleville Hydro electric system and that utility is now carried entirely by the City which together with the water works are now showing a profit to the city, after substantial earnings from year to year.

Debenture Debt $9,134,000

The Debenture debt of the City at the end of the year was $9,134,000. This is divided into two classes, Sinking Fund and Serial. The Sinking fund debt amounted to $7,154,000 and the regular amount is provided each year from the taxes and placed in the Sinking fund account and is invested with earning bank to meet the maturity. These funds are invested in either securities, some of which pay as high as 5 per cent. and due to careful and prudent investments, the City's sinking fund has gradually been growing from year to year so that by the end of the year just closed, 1935, the Sinking Fund account a surplus of $134,000 over the requirements. Some of these securities are not in as healthy a condition as Belleville would have preferred but the property of their debentures, and unfortunately, we have in our sinking fund investments some of these municipalities bonds, and to avoid having to sell at a loss we have to let them run to meet the payment of our own debentures. Serial debt, $1,980,000, a sum of $64,000 has been set up as a reserve to meet the yearly maturities and you all hope that at some later date adjustments will have been made in the Provincial Municipal various municipalities that they will be able to meet their promise. In returning to the sinking fund investments, I would like to say that care must be taken in making these investments as to the maturity dates, that is, if Belleville has a block of debentures falling due, say April 1st, 1936, you must have your investments so made that you will have the correct amount maturing at or near, that date to have funds on hand to meet your own obligations.

Large Sinking Fund

The Serial Debentures are a more satisfactory form of Municipal Debt and are now taking the place of sinking fund debentures. This debt amounts to $1,961,000 and is reduced each year by paying off a certain amount of principal and interest. As before stated, the total debt of the City at the end of the year was $9,134,000, we have in the sinking fund reserves $981,936, leaving a net debt of $8,342,000.* The population of the City in 1926 was 14,614 persons. Therefore, the total per capita debt amounted to $12.56 which at the present time is rather high, but if care is taken not to increase the capital expenditure of the City for the next six years, Belleville will be in a very promising position, as during that time the $11,-000 of sinking fund debt will have been retired, and with the reduction of serial debentures, will reach well over a million dollars in debt reductions.

The Collections

In the past Belleville has compared favorably with other municipalities in this respect, having collected about 98 per cent. of all taxes. However, I regret to state that each year of late has shown an increase in property going into tax sale, most of this consists of unimproved and run down property and is no asset to the City. I would like at this point to divert from my report and offer a suggestion which has occurred to me and which I would like to pass on for your consideration.

This is in regard to the property, that is gradually going into tax sale, the City. As before stated some of this is in a dilapidated condition. Could not a Commission of some kind be appointed to take apart this property and sell the material from the City. This Commission be given power to tear down these old buildings and that such material could be salvaged and build small dwellings, garages, or for a public dining room, two bedrooms and bath, as this would be useful to rent for a small sum of ten to twelve dollars per month, thereby making the proposition self-sustaining. The assessment would be low and taxes light. The land required for this undertaking could be raised by a small assessment of 1/2 per cent on the city. The Commission would collect rents, pay taxes, interest and principal and keep a public supervision over the buildings and tenants. This method, I think, would be Belleville towards the abolition of slums and in the course time make this property an asset to the city rather than a liability and provide work for skilled and unskilled labor. Treasurer in Reasonable Position

It may be interesting for you to know, that during the year there were 2,000 cheques issued on the City Treasurer in cash and negotiable securities $1,750,946 of which to be the cashier's credit in a reasonable position.

In concluding, I may say, that Belleville is considered one of the most favorable municipalities in the province of Ontario by all bond and financial institutions and by careful administration of the affairs and economy in expenditures without interfering with the efficiency will continue to be so and come out of these hard times better on the face of the heap. The financial report is all complete at the present time with the auditors and is in Toronto Electric on which we are waiting for the 1935 audited statement when this is received the report will be ready for publication.

Trusting I have not taken up too much of your time and that I have been able to give you a report of the City's condition, I thank you.

Merchants and Parking

THE RETAIL MERCHANTS' ASSOCIATION OF CANADA
BELLEVILLE BRANCH

March 10,1936

Editor, The Ontario Intelligencer,
Belleville, Ont.

To our Much Valued Friends, Our Customers from the surrounding localities:—

On behalf of the retail merchants of our city, the writer would appreciate the privilege of replying to "Farmer's Wife" who wrote in Monday's edition of The Daily Ontario Intelligencer regarding the new parking by-law that has been put into force in our city.

We would first like to make it clear that the Retail Merchants of Belleville, as a group, are opposed to the present parking by-law. It was passed and put into force by the city council, in spite of years of protest on the part of the merchants, whose only ambition is to make it convenient and a pleasure for our customers to shop in Belleville.

The executive of the Belleville Retail Merchants' Association has a committee working on a survey of the whole matter of Parking in Belleville and this committee will appear before the city council with constructive suggestions which we hope will overcome the present difficulty.

In the meantime we trust that our friends from the surrounding localities will avail themselves of the parking facilities that have been provided for their convenience and that they will continue to make Belleville their shopping centre.

Signed on behalf of the Belleville Retail Merchants' Association,

H. C. Woodley
President.

DAVID ROSEN IS NOW SUSPENDED

Recommendation For Move Sent In by Toronto Association

Hamilton, March 10—(CP)—Upon the recommendation of Toronto Amateur Baseball Association, David Rosen of Toronto has been placed under suspension by the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association. This action was taken at a meeting of the sub-committee here.

Owing to the O.B.A.A. not being in possession of full knowledge how baseball leagues or clubs are conducted at present in England or European countries no permits will be granted to O.B.A.A. players to participate in those countries. Players who participate in the above countries on their return to Canada will have to appear before the O.B.A.A. executive before playing certificates are granted them.

Geraldi of Toronto and Mickiewicz of Stratford were granted permission to try out with Toronto and Montreal professional clubs.

The annual meeting of the O.B.A.A. will be held in the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, Saturday April 4.

GRAND CENTRAL AREA AFFECTED

900 Additional Building Workers Join in The Strike

New York, Mar. 10 (AP)—Under the opening salvo or building worker "big push", W. D. Rawlins, executive secretary of the Realty Advisory Board on Labor Relations, said today his group "is ready to accept any reasonable agreement which will work to eliminate abuses and sub-standard conditions in the industry."

Rawlins declared "the union is no longer fighting for the most but for power to crush the city."

Two hours after the 1st was declared off following 19 days of fruitless arbitration, the union announced its strike had affected about 900 additional buildings in the vital Grand Central area.

Seven thousand men, union leader James J. Dambrick estimated, walked out during the two hours.

Dambrick said the figure of total buildings affected at 4,200 which was far in excess of police estimates.

Dunning Upholds 5 P.C. Wage-cut in Civil Service Salaries

Ottawa, March 10 (CP)—Provision for continuation of the five per cent cut in civil service salaries is made in a resolution placed on the order paper of the House of Commons.

Finance Minister Dunning has given notice he will ask the House to declare it expedient to bring in a measure to authorize a reduction of five per cent from the amount of certain salaries or other compensations or indemnities payable by the government of Canada during the fiscal year ending March 31, 1937.

Police Will Examine Luger Pistol Taken

Windsor, Ont., March 10 (CP)—The automatic pistol found in the motor car in which three Montreal boys were arrested at Essex Sunday will be taken to Toronto tomorrow by Inspector Phil Walker, district head of the Provincial Police, and will be subjected to ballistics tests to determine if it was used to kill Edward Stonebouse, Markham garage owner, and wound his son.

Dr. H. R. Fyfe, Ontario Government ballico-legal expert, will make the tests on the .38 calibre Luger pistol. It was stated here today.

BELIEVE 3 YOUTHS WERE NOT INVOLVED

Toronto, March 10 (CP)—Provincial Police, it was understood today, are convinced three youths arrested Sunday at Essex, near Windsor, were not concerned in the shooting of Edward Stonebouse and his son, Jerome, at Markham, Feb. 29.

Edward Stonebouse died from his wounds and the son is still in hospital. They were shot down when they tried to prevent theft of an auto at their garage, 70 miles from Toronto.

FRUIT-A-TIVES ONLY THING THAT RELIEVED CHRONIC CONSTIPATION AND STOMACH TROUBLE

Mrs. Morley Mitchell, Picton, Ont., says: "Constipation and stomach troubles bothered me for a long time. No matter what I tried I did not get relief until I started taking Fruit-a-tives. After two or three doses I felt much better and now I am entirely free from trouble for the first time."

Fruit-a-tives are the result of 15 years research by a famous Canadian physician. Nowhere else can the juice of APPLES, ORANGES, FIGS, PRUNES and HERBS, Safe—do we contain harsh purgatives. Amazing Results—Fruit-a-tives give more than temporary relief. They help to restore the entire system, bring lasting health.

British Press Supports Eden

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, March 10—(CP Cable)—Today's press opinion throughout Britain runs entirely in support of the attitude of the government towards Germany's abrupt denunciation of Locarno and occupation of the demilitarized Rhineland as revealed by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden yesterday.

The Times reiterates the present state of affairs affords opportunity for rebuilding the Locarno security arrangements.

"Nobody in England condones or excuses the sudden and deliberate blow Germany has struck at the sanctity of treaties," says the Times, echoing the Foreign Secretary's words. "There are circumstances in the situation, as is clear from Mr. Eden's careful narrative, which explain the offense particularly objectionable. But most of us are convinced also that as Eden put it, no opportunity must be missed in the present grave condition of international affairs, which offers any hope of amelioration."

Guardian's Attitude

The Manchester Guardian remarks the French even more than other countries which signed Locarno cannot but be indignant and dismayed at the brazen destruction of the inequality clauses which Germany had freely accepted and which in fact had contributed greatly to general peace.

"But is it not clear," the Guardian asks, "that the time has come when this inequality must end? Has been a source of endless friction and resentment should be brought to a formal and legal end? There will be no peace until it is. If the powers were formally to intimate they had no longer any desire to limit or postpone Germany's legal equality and that they would consider her latest actions on that foundation, there is no good reason why the aligold not be voluntarily rescind her violent gesture."

The Daily Herald thinks Mr. Eden said as much as could be expected at such a moment. So far from slamming the door to Germany's proposals "he left it very wide open." There could indeed be no more foolish policy than such a situation than to refuse either from righteous indignation or sheer bad temper to discuss the proposals or put forward conditions which would in fact prevent their discussion.

"There seems no escape from the conclusion that we must in our own interests try to make new agreements, even though we have doubts of the good faith of the other party. Such procedure after all is quite normal, ordinary business."

The Daily Express says if any British government "tried to get us to put the German back out of the Rhineland by force, that government would be brushed out in an hour.

"Leave the French and Germans to keep their watch on the Rhine," the Express adds. "Our watch should be on the Tyne where better days are coming."

The Daily Mail says "this is no time for rash moves or hurried counsels. Eden's statement that HM. Government would be examined clear slightly and objectively will be generally welcomed. Now that Germany has thrown the hand in general European settlement could be brought nearer."

BEER IN TINS UNDER BAN HERE

Test Shipment of Pabst Beer Placed on Liquor Store Shelves

Toronto, March 10—(CP)—Liquor Commissioner Odette disclosed today the Ontario Liquor Board had received a test order of bottled beer from the Pabst Company of Milwaukee. It will be placed on the shelves of the Liquor Board stores like all foreign beers but will not be sold in brewers' warehouses.

At the same time, Mr. Odette said he planned to question the Pabst Company on the report they planned the construction of a $2,000,000 brewery in Toronto.

"Canned beer—beer in tins— is definitely barred in Ontario", said Mr. Odette. "The reason is that Ontario brewers have a heavy investment in bottles and the Board being an Ontario institution feels that Canadian industry has some rights. Therefore at present the canned beer is barred."

The first order is designed to test the demand for Pabst beer, said Mr. Odette. He added it was only fair to give American beer a chance in Ontario since Ontario beer is sold in the United States.

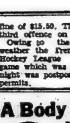
Trenton and District

Trenton, March 10.—(Special)—Murray Velletta 20 of Toronto, appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C., at Court yesterday, charged with stealing one Plymouth sedan, the property of D. Fraser, Librarian, on the night of March 3rd. He pleaded guilty of the charge and received the sentence of one year in Guelph Reformatory. Velletta was convicted in 1931 and 1933 on minor charges. R. C. Donnan, K.C., acted for the Crown.

Fred Kassitz 20, of Montreal, who was apprehended on March 8th by C.N.R. police, appeared before the Magistrate charged with stealing one overcoat and for trespassing on railway property. He pleaded guilty of both charges and received the penalty of, not less than six months or more than one year in Guelph Reformatory, on the first charge and on the second charge, one months to run concurrent with the first sentence. He had a previous conviction for shop-lifting in Winnipeg, in which when he was arrested there gave the name of Russell Marin.



The fifteen year old boy who was remanded last week, till today for sentence received a suspended sentence of one year added to his two years suspended sentence which he was dealt out nine months ago.

A Project worker appeared and was found guilty of drunkenness. He was fined ten dollars and given till March 31st to pay. On default of payment he will be given fifteen days in Belleville jail.

A local man charged with drunkenness, pleaded guilty and paid the fine of $15.50. This is this man's third offence on this charge.

Owing to the change in the weather the Trenton and District Hockey League final playdown game which was scheduled for tonight was postponed till weather permits.

MOTHER AND 4 CHILDREN BURN

Heroic Woman Rescues Three of Brood Before Succumbing

PERTH, Ont., March 10.—(CP)—Dr. A. W. Dwyre, District Coroner, will hold an inquest tomorrow night into deaths of a woman and four children resulting from a fire yesterday near Poland, 28 miles north of here.

Dr. Dwyre conducted a preliminary investigation of the fire that destroyed the log home of Archie McInnes, burning to death his wife and three children and causing the death of a fourth child from exposure and shock.

The dead are—Mrs. McInnes, 36; Meryle, six; Garfield, four; Floyd, two; Corinne, two months.

McInnes said the fire broke out early yesterday morning, when he accidentally knocked over the hot kitchen stove a can of coal oil, which had been left on the baby's high chair.

Flames spread so fast he was unable to gain the second floor, where his wife and children were asleep. His wife awoke, however, and dropped from a window three of the children, Arthur, nine, Velma, seven, and the baby. She and the others apparently were overcome by smoke.

McInnes caught the children safely but the baby died, within a few hours.

Help arrived belatedly from the home of Andrew Yeates, brother-in-law of Mrs. McInnes, who ran half a mile across the field and met the frantic father carrying two of the children.

Hours later neighbors sought the bodies of the victims, finding them burned so fiercely all were placed in a box one foot square and about a foot deep.

Personals

SHANNONVILLE W.M.S.

The regular monthly meeting of the W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. ed Church and at the home of Mrs. Stanley Macdonald on Thursday afternoon March fifth with thirty-one ladies in attendance.

Mrs. Arthur Bleeker, group leader, opened the meeting with a hymn and read the Scripture Lesson, Prayer. Miss Ida Robertson read the Scripture lesson from the fifteenth chapter of Ephesians. The devotional leaflet was read by Mrs. Robertson who also led in prayer. The leaflet was then called by the secretary Mrs. Macdonald responding by repeating a Bible verse containing the word "love". Mrs. Arthur Bleeker gave an appropriate reading on the same subject.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary and adopted. Mrs. (Rev.) Clark read a letter from the Anglican Church Guild. A letter regarding the Presbyterial to be held in Napanee on March 26th and 26th was read by Mrs. Stanley Macdonald. Mrs. Bleeker was appointed delegate and Mrs. D. P. Bleeker the alternate. Mrs. Hazel A letter of thanks from Mrs. Lena Lester was read by Mrs. F. Dorland. Thanks for cards of sympathy were signed by Mrs. A. Orval Stradley, Mrs. Arthur Bleeker, Mrs. Saul McFadzean and Mrs. Charles Stradley.

The Watch Tower was then taken Mrs. Florence Terry reporting for West Shannonville. Knight and the temperance reading. Mrs. C. Liddle, press secretary, gave a splendid reading of the Mission Band. Mrs. (Rev.) Clark president, thank you Mrs. Liddle. Next meeting to be held at the World Peace. Mrs. W. J. Elsie gave an interesting study Book on Africa. The roll was called by the secretary and the offering lifted. Tower Fund $1.50. After the devotional period the meeting was closed by the benediction. Lunch was served by the hostesses and a social hour spent. A very pleasant social time enjoyed by all.

MOUNTAIN VIEW W.M.S.

The monthly meeting of the Mountain View Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Ross Kester, Wednesday, Mar. 4th with a large attendance.

The meeting opened with the Ode followed by the Lord's Prayer. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. The business was then dealt with, roll call ordered paid. The roll call of "Irish Jokes" was well responded to.

Mrs. T. Nightingale gave a paper on "Tradition and how it is raised at Ormond Lake" which was very instructive. Mrs. L. Wallbridge gave a paper on "A Canadian Girl" postponed in the making of cellophane and Doris Milleker and Mary Bristol and Mary Hamilton gave a story, papers on other Canadian Industries. Miss Mary Hamilton made a few remarks on fund as treasurer for cancer. Community singing "The Wild Irish Rose" and "Mother Machree". Mrs. Arthur Parliament gave a reading "When a Woman Worries".

The meeting closed by singing "God Save The King". A delicious lunch was served which brought an enjoyable afternoon to a close.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Women Trap"

"Murder on a Honeymoon"

Interesting Two-Feature Bill With Mystery Drama.

The weird and mysterious drama of killings in the "hot" Love bird and social set, "Remember Last Night?" starring Edward Arnold, Constance Cummings, Sally Eilers, Robert Young and featuring Robert Armstrong, Reginald Denny, Grace Ray Hazlett and a host of other famous players is now showing at the Capitol Theatre. The production, a Universal special was produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr. and directed by James Whale, the noted director of "Frankenstein", "The Invisible Man", and other thrillers.

The story opens with a gay gorgeously party made up of the wealthy couple and a bachelor. The party breaks up as it usually does and nobody is quite sure what happened until the following morning when one of the members of the party was found murdered in bed with a knife protruding from his chest. At this point on, the story moves rapidly, with the introduction of a typist, played by Gustav van Seyffertitz, Edward Arnold as the sob detective, Edward Brophy, as his assistant, and a dozen other noted players who are all suspects. Every one tried to find out what had happened the night before and proved a group of unexpected killers from the shadow, to blame a way to free himself and clear his name.

"Woman Trap"

"Woman Trap" bristles with adventure, teems with action, bursts with thrills that will keep you all on the edge of your seat.

Trent Harris, the sportsman of pace and a wealth of attractions. Alphabetical motorboats, and canoes, and horse (rather the brisk pace which starts with a spine-chilling strike and never lets up until the climax in the desert, when the speedboats, who have been racing with an amazing success, fall into a ridiculous tie.

Gertrude Michael lends flash and fire to the role of the thrill-seeking girl who gets the front-page headlines and Sidney Blackmer and Stanley Ridges the reporter who gets the girl. Irving Pichel directed and Joseph Moncure March the novel on which the picture is based.

"Rainbow"

Mill Pond — Lovely Rosalind Cash in Story of Love and Intrigue.

Spies will be with us so long as nations hold any animosity toward each other. Therefore, spy dramas are always timely — and Monte Carlo's Grand Opera House is the scene of the most gripping drama based on this subject in Mr. Wilkie Powell's new starring film, "Secret Servant", coming to the Belle Tuesday and Friday, matinee daily.

A Gripping Plot

"Secret Servant" is the story of America's famous spy-catching bureau during the world war, with the science of the cryptographer playing the principal role.

Every scene is to us this time as an entirely different detective from the other roles in the past, and he has portrayed so far. As a result of discovering the spy-activities of business at Washington he finds himself enmeshed in many complications, one of which with beautiful young enemy agents as well as with the Secretary of the Navy.

Star's Nursing Sketches

Rosalind Russell seen at the Belle in "Rainbow" and in "It Had to Happen" and rapidly ascending to stardom, made a name as Joel, the secretary's daughter, Minnie Barnes, in "Rainbow". Miss Russell made a name for the latter vehicles; vaudeville and repertoire; proved adept with stage manager; Minnie's fresh fruit, (straw berries, cherries, Angels).

210 FRONT ST. BELLEVILLE

Stirling and District

Stirling.—On the afternoon of the March 6th about fifty members of the St. Paul's Women's Association were the guests at the home of Rev. and Mrs. E. W. Rowland. Mrs. Cecil Macklin president of the organization was in charge of the business part of the meeting when favorable reports were read by the secretaries of the various depts.

The very interesting program which had been arranged by the committee in charge was centred about the works of the great British writer Rudyard Kipling, whose death was mourned by the entire nation a few weeks ago. The special speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. H. C. Martin who gave a very fine portrayal of this great man's life from his birth through his long years of hard toil to the pinnacle of success which was finally his. Early in life this unusual character laid the foundations of his writing career by serving his apprenticeship in a newspaper plant where he followed the profession of journalism for a number of years before his unusual talent was appreciated by the reading public of the world. The address revealed an intense study on the part of the speaker into the characteristics of the figures around which the stories program was build. Three of his famous poems were read by Mrs. E. W. Rowland and Mrs. R. O. Lawlor in keeping with the rest of the program the hymns used at the meeting were all the works of Rudyard Kipling. It was a most instructive gathering and those who had an active part in it are to be congratulated for the fine way in which the numbers were chosen so that one led into the other as if to complete a picture.

At the conclusion of the program several of the ladies assisted the hostess in serving a dainty luncheon.

Women's Institute Meeting

The regular meeting of the Stirling branch of the Ontario Women's Institute was held on Friday afternoon March 6th at the home of Mrs. Thomas Cranston. The meeting was under the direction of Mrs. L. Munro, 2nd vice-president, who occupied the chair. The meeting was opened with the Institute Ode followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison. The roll call revealed an attendance of 26 members. The secretary's report of the previous meeting was read by Mrs. R. H. Williams. The convener of the sewing committee also gave a very favorable report of the activities of that branch of the organization. The committees to direct the work in connection with the forthcoming banquet of the Stirling Community Welfare Club, were appointed.

Mrs. Flora Wenoti gave a very interesting topic on current events which dealt with many topics of the day and given in a very capable manner. The address of the afternoon was given by Mr. C. R. Saxtedo who spoke in a most instructive fashion on the theme "Legislation". The speaker set forth in a very clear way many of the advantages of the Federal Farm Loan Act. The address carried a great deal of constructive information and the members were grateful to Mr. Saxtedo for his generosity. A vocal duet by Misses Irene Bronson and Helen Jeffrey, was the final musical number on the program which was brought to a close with the National Anthem. Several of the ladies then assisted the hostess in serving a dainty lunch.

Past Tests in St. John's Ambulance

The final results of tests given some time ago in First Aid under the direction of the St. John's Ambulance Corps were received by those in Stirling who tried the examinations some months ago in Picton. The group representing Stirling made an excellent showing with six out of the seven who tried gaining a pass. Those who passed the test are as follows: George Alexander, George Duffin, Reg. Mafleson, Morgan Rowland, James Ward and Thomas Ward.

Celebrate 50th Wedding Anniversary

Mr. F. T. Ward recently received an invitation through the mail to attend the Golden Wedding Anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Archie McGee of Clarmont, South Dakota. Mr. Archie McGee, who is a brother-in-law of Mr. Ward, is a native of Stirling, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McGee, pioneers of the district. Mrs. McGee is also a former citizen of Stirling being former Miss Mary Anne Bell. The couple were married in Stirling on March 10th, fifty years ago the ceremony taking place in the residence now occupied by Mrs. Mae Nolan. The happy couple left Stirling many years ago to take up residence in Dakota where they have resided ever since. Both are reported to be enjoying good health and planning on a very happy occasion when they reach the fiftieth year of wedded bliss. Mr. Ward who was present when the ceremony was performed in 1886 regrets that his business obligation at the present time will not permit him to attend this happy affair and knows will be unable to make the trip. He immediately sent forth his congratulations and good wishes to the honoured couple, wishing them many more years of real happiness.

Read Impaired by Recent Thaws

The golden days of the last few days have been anything but kindly to the ice roads throughout the district. Buried deep beneath heavy blanket of snow they became an icy mass of deep cut ruts when the mild weather sets in, they are passable but difficult for driving.

Personals

Mr. Allan McKelvie of the Trenton High School teaching staff, spent the week-end at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. McKelvie.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Mosby of Marmora visited friends in Stirling and district on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Collis and Aletha, of East Toronto, visited friends in Stirling on Saturday while enroute to Montreal where they will spend a few days visiting at the home of the former's brother Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Collins.

Mr. John Munro of Queen's University, Kingston spent the week-end at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Munro.

The pupils of the local high school are busily engaged in rehearsals for the two short plays which they will present at the Commencement Exercises to be held in the near future. The work is being carried on under the capable direction of Mr. G. L. Cluse, who has directed the theatrical performances given by the pupils for the past few years. Plenty of real talent in this particular group of pupils has been displayed in past years and the public of the district are impatiently waiting their presentation for this year.

The very active boys in the village are being given a chance through the co-operation of the rink officials and the kindness of Mr. Wells, principal of the public schools, James Street, to develop their ability in Canada's national pastime, hockey, as the use of the rink is available to the members of the local clubs for hockey matches which have been arranged for both players and spectators. This is no doubt the first step to hockey fame for some of these boys who although still up the cradle roll give a small display of what the boys a little older there in the public school team who visited Madoc on Wednesday night as a part of their tour of the various high schools, have. They suffered a defeat at the hands of the boys of the northern village, but even that is a part of the training. The boys are learning to play hockey and in a few years will be candidates for the High School team and the town team and after that no one can tell where they will go. At any rate the boys are getting the chance they need and they are responsible for the kids are to be credited with great foresight.

Many of the local skaters are enjoying the thrill out of skating on Rawdon Creek these days. Although Stirling possesses a fine arena there isn't quite enough space to satisfy these boys who skate for a mile or so down the creek which has been well flooded with the recent thaws.

Misses Lois Wilkinson and Doris Pennington of Toronto, visited friends in Stirling on Friday afternoon.

During the Lenten weeks an interesting series of illustrated talks are being given in the St. John's Anglican Church by Rev. A. S. McConnell particularly fitting to the Easter season the pictures which are excellent reproductions of the works of world famous artists depicting the closing days of our Lord's ministry among men. Are shown weekly on Wednesday night of each week. They prove to be an interesting scriptural study through the eye, with the added interest of comments made by Mr. McConnell, who is particularly gifted in conducting this sort of lecture.

The hockey game which was scheduled to take place on Saturday afternoon between the local High School team and a picked junior team from Deseronto has been postponed indefinitely, because of road conditions.

HITLER MADE THIS HIS EXCUSE.—When Vladimir Potemkin, Soviet ambassador to France, affixed his signature to the document in front of him, he galvanized Germany into action, resulting in the moving of an army into the Rhine area in violation of the Locarno Pact and the Versailles Treaty. Hitler, in giving the order, stated that when France and Soviet Russia signed an agreement pledging mutual assistance in event of invasion from Europe, she was the first to break the Locarno Pact. France claims the treaty was signed under the covenant of the League of Nations. Potemkin is here seen about to sign the famous document.

SPECTACULAR BROOKLYN "7-7" FIRE.—Spectacular aerial view of the blazing iron foundry, lumber yard and three garages on the Brooklyn waterfront, Greenpoint section, Brooklyn, N.Y. Five alarms were turned in, comprising the rare "7-7" alarm in which every piece of fire apparatus in the borough stands by for duty. Blaze, which has accompanied the flames in a storage warehouse. Fire loss was estimated at $100,000.

STATEMENT GIVEN POLICE ALLOWED

Four of Such Statements to be Accepted by The Court

Hull, Que., March 10 (CP)—Justice Lucien Cannon today ruled a statement allegedly given police in Montreal by Aubrey Rochon was eligible as evidence in the trial of Rochon and five others for the holdup slaying of young Armand Nadeau, Hull bank clerk, last December 4.

Rochon's statement, alleged to detailing his part in the $16,810 holdup of a Banque Provinciale Du Canada money car and subsequent slaying of Nadeau, was the fourth to be accepted as evidence.

Statements from Paul Laflam, Jean O. Beausoleil and George Chenier, three accused from Hull, were accepted last week. Rochon is alleged to have been the contact man between gangsters in Montreal and the Hull youths.

MRS. JOHN SCOTT TORONTO, DIES

Wife of Managing Editor of The Toronto Mail And Empire

Toronto, March 10 (CP)—Mrs. John Scott, wife of the Managing Director of the Toronto Mail and Empire, died today at 3.30 a.m. after a brief illness.

Mrs. Scott was born in Saint John, N.B., and met Mr. Scott when both were employed on the Saint John Gazette. They were married 33 years ago.

For 25 years they lived in Montreal, where Mrs. Scott took an active interest in women's club work. In 1927 they moved to Toronto when Mr. Scott resigned as Managing Editor of the Montreal Gazette to accept his present position with the Mail and Empire.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Scott is survived by a son, John, of the staff of The Canadian Press, and two young grand daughters.

MacKenzie Red Lake

Underground results at McKenzie Red Lake continue to be most encouraging from month to month. In new drifting on new ground has been disclosed on all three levels. New issues of ore were exposed both in the main drift and in the west vein structure, the total length of which is amounting to 50 feet. The mine is going ahead with sinking and raising on No. 2 level with two new levels to be established. This gold property is located in the Red Lake district of Ontario, and is equipped with a 150 ton electrically operated mill which started a year ago. The grade of ore treated has averaged $18 per ton. Development work and capacity is considering to increase the daily tonnage during the current year to 60 tons,

Hotpoint Range

During our Third Anniversary Celebration—March 12th. and 13th. we are giving FREE to every purchaser of a Hotpoint Hi-Speed Range, a 52-piece Dinner Set. Here's a real opportunity to modernize your cooking equipment and at the same time secure a valuable gift.

Once you have cooked electrically on a Hotpoint Range with its magic Hi-Speed Calrod coils, you'll never be satisfied with any other method. For Calrod elements, an exclusive Hotpoint feature, "cook as fast as food will cook." They are economical . . . easy to clean . . . and practically indestructible.

Hotpoint Hi-Speed electric ranges have many features, specially designed to save time, food, effort and money. All of the heat released by the Hotpoint Calrod elements is concentrated on the cooking. The Thrift Cooker saves on current costs, too, because it steams, stews, bakes, boils, or cooks entire meals on one element. And the Automatic Oven Temperature Control saves electricity. These and other advantages make Hotpoint the lowest cost electric cookery. Choose from the wide variety of models on display in our store.

Greatest Exhibit of Cheese In Canada Staged Here

Central Ontario Cheesemakers Meet in Belleville in December

What is expected to be the largest cheese exhibit ever held in Canada will be staged in Belleville on December 2nd and 3rd of this year, it is confidently predicted by Mr. F. H. Dungeon, secretary of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association, under whose auspices the exhibit will be held, it was revealed by him today in an interview with the Daily Ontario Intelligencer. The exhibit will be held in conjunction with the annual meeting of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association.

During the past several weeks Mr. Dodgeon, assisted by Mr. J. C. Irwin, Dominion dairy grader of this district and the executive committee of the Association have been hard at work on the preliminary arrangements of the event. To date, it is reported, every cheesemaker in the district is ready to make entries to assist the move, and has already made substantial cash donations to help put the project over.

The exhibition, declared Mr. Dodgeon, will be thrown open to the entire Provinces of Ontario, subject to the proper rules and regulations and the securing of past cheese, the product of the past season and the 1935 make, by cheesemakers in the province. In Central Ontario alone, drawn from at least fifty per cent of the factories in each dairy instructor's group will be placed in competition.

"We are organizing this monster exhibition this year, because we realize the immediate future presents to us an unrivaled opportunity to successfully push the sale of our cheese in the markets of the United Kingdom because of the tremendous decrease in the manufacture of cheese in Australia and New Zealand, our two chief competitors. The shortage in high grade, keen cheese will not only be supplied by our finest Canadian cheese, brand this golden opportunity to enlarge our trade, which we are resolved by means of this exhibition to bring to the attention of every person directly or indirectly interested in the cheese making industry of the Provinces in order that it may not be lost to us; also that the quality of our cheese may be improved and enhanced to meet the demands that have confidently expect will be made upon us in the near future," declared Mr. Dodgeon.

"Our product, because of its good quality, already enjoys an excellent reputation in Great Britain, but even the quality is susceptible of still improvement. As far as Canadian cheese is concerned, we look today constantly if not yearly, for every several drawback when dealing with the British market," pointed out the secretary when pleaded his case from the reports of Mr. Jos. Burgess, Chief of the Division of Dairy Produce, Ottawa, and Dr. Grisdale, Deputy Minister of Agriculture and Investigator for the Ontario Cheese Farmers' Association.

Mr. Campbell recently returned from a visit to the Old Country where they were engaged in an investigation of the Canadian product and type of cheese required to fill the market demands over there.

Full descriptive particulars, together with numerous photographs of the exhibition to be held in Belleville will be sent all the leading cheese importers in Great Britain and the United States, so that the entire affair will constitute a gigantic advertisement of our product such as has not been approached in magnitude in Canada since the year that large cheese weighing eleven tons was made at Ingersoll under the supervision of Dr. A. Baldwin and Mr. O. O. Fuller, shipped over to England and placed on exhibition at Stratford, declared Mr. Dodgeon. Furthermore, it was pointed out by him, the exhibit will undoubtedly act as a powerful stimulant and source of encouragement to our own cheesemakers.

To stage this event will require a considerable amount of money. The prize list alone will be in excess of $1,000.00. But we cannot hope to carry out this gigantic undertaking without generous assistance from public spirited individuals and organizations who have realized the importance of the project, added Mr. Dodgeon in making his appeal by circular letter to banks and other organizations.

Arrangements are being made at the conclusion of the exhibition here to have the same exhibits forwarded and placed on exhibition in one of the large cities of the United Kingdom, it was stated.

JUDGMENT RESERVED

Toronto, March 13 (CP)—The Ontario Court of Appeal reserved judgment today after an appeal of Isaac Osborn, Kingston motor-driver, against a judgment of Mr. Justice Kingstone awarding Mrs. Elizabeth McAdoo, Pittsburg Township, $800. Mrs. Jessie Bracken, Wolfe Island, $700, and George Hatch, Pittsburg Township, farmer, $670.

The action arose out of an accident which occurred on the evening of September 7, 1935, in the vicinity of Gardiner, about five miles east of Kingston.

JUSTICE LAMONT OF OTTAWA, DIES

Supreme Court Judge Has Had Heart Trouble For Some Time

OTTAWA, March 13.—(CP)—Mr. Justice John Henderson Lamont, of the Supreme Court of Canada died here today. He was 70 years old.

Mr. Lamont had been suffering from heart trouble for some time. His widow and one daughter, Miss Katherine Lamont, head of the History Department of Bishop Strachan Ladies' College, at Toronto, survive.

He was born on a farm near Corning's Mills, Dufferin County, Ontario, Nov. 11, 1865.

A lawyer in the old Northwest Territories, the Supreme Court Justice was a member of Parliament for Prince Albert in 1904 and the first Attorney-General of Saskatchewan when that Province was formed in 1905.

He represented the Prairie Province in the Supreme Court of Canada here since 1927.

QUEENSBORO

Queensborough—The Queensboro W. A. met at the home of Mrs. John Alexander Jr. on Thursday afternoon March 5th with a goodly number of members and visitors present. A very pleasant afternoon was spent. The meeting was in charge of the Vice-president, Mrs. Chas. Thrasher.

Mrs. Owen Surrils of Madoc Township spent the week-end with her mother, Mrs. M. Barrs.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gerrow and family spent Monday with relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Holmes of Rednigton were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. John Lyon.

Mr. Ernest Tanner who has been seriously ill is improving.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Keene, Rednigton, spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. C. McMurray.

Sharpe—West

A pretty wedding took place in Oakwood United Church parsonage on Thursday, Feb. 27 when Elizabeth Frances West of Toronto became the bride of Nelson Delyea Sharpe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sharp of Queensboro. Rev. A. E. Marshall officiated. The bride was becomingly attired in royal blue crepe with hat and accessories to match. She carried a bouquet of sweet heart roses and was attended by Miss Barbara Bowles.

Mr. Lee Lemon of Toronto acted as groomsman.

Mr. and Mrs. Sharpe will reside near Queensboro. Mrs. Sharpe is a daughter of Mr. Charlie West of Queensboro.

The members of the W.A. of the Queensboro United Church spent a very pleasant and profitable day at the home of Mrs. John W. Moore on Tuesday. Seventeen ladies were present and during the day two quilts were quilted. Dinner was served by the ladies and the afternoon tea.

Mr. John Gibson of Belleville is visiting at the home of Mr. Fred Rollins.

Mrs. Yard of Cornwall spent the past few weeks with her sister Mrs. Jas. Rousehorn.

Mrs. Orra Morris of Hasmarda was the guest of Mrs James Love on Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Clover returned on Thursday after spending several days in Ottawa.

Mrs. A. Thompson has been spending the past two weeks with her grand-daughter, Mrs. John W Moore.

On Saturday evening, March 7th there was an interesting and exciting game of hockey played on the rink here. The contest was between the married men and the single men of Queensboro. The score resulted in 3-1 in favor of the married men. This will no doubt close the season of hockey matches as the ice will be breaking up.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Holmes and family of Consecon were visitors of Mrs. Geo. Holmes on Sunday.

Mrs. Y. Meiry, Miss Helen Henry and Miss Hazel Genereaux were guests of relatives here Sunday.

SIDNEY CROSSING

Sidney Crossing—Mr. and Mrs. Roy Pickle entertained a number of friends to tea on Tuesday evening.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Colin Bonisteel on the birth of a daughter.

Miss Edith Bogle has returned home, after visiting relatives in Frankford for the past two weeks.

All who knew Mr. Jack Mosher-son, of the fourth concession will be sorry to learn of his death at the General Hospital on Saturday. A pall of gloom has been cast over this neighborhood, as Mr. Mosher-son was born here and lived all his boyhood days. Much sympathy is extended to Mrs. McPherson and family.

Mr. Jack Ketcheson, spent the past week in Toronto.

Americans ... Defeat Leafs With Last Period Flurry

RED WINGS TAKEN

Maroons Held to Tie by N. Y. Rangers in Montreal

(By Elmer Dolinsky)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Dividend hunters rose higher and higher this season the National Hockey League frontier, but if you looked closely at the barometer you would discover that New York Americans and the courageous Boston Bruins, stripped over the top. They were tied so, to speak, for a place in the playoff setup.

Meeting negotiations left and right in the two-team scrimmage and Bruins have much to do with the turbulent state of the N.H.L.'s playoff picture. It was Bruins, the defensive end, Neither of these, it had occurred, is a wandering. They are Yankees.

Americans' victories clinched a place in the playoffs last night at New York by defeating Toronto Maple Leafs 3-2 with a dramatic third-period assault led by little Hobby Wasson, who sometimes one of the latest investments made this season by Manager Red Dutton.

The shadowy left wing from New York—free-points ahead of Montreal Canadiens, and Boston in the Canadian section. Since the weary Frenchmen have been playing better points at the rate of less than three in each five games, the American triumph practically assures them of new five more games to play and Americans four.

Reds Stage Red Wings

Tackling the strongest defence system in hockey, Boston recorded a 1-0 overtime victory over Detroit Red Wings to keep their mathematical chance New York Rangers to three points behind the Canadian section leaders. The Bruins, who only had to tie to gain the playoffs, had to go into overtime at Montreal by Maroons' ones. The net result of this three-cornered struggle this:

Montreal and Leafs were tied for the Canadian section lead, while Toronto holding the upper hand because they have played one game less.

Detroit, a sure thing only a week ago to win the American title, can win only one point in its last two games against Chicago Black Hawks—and fading fast.

1—And the gallant New York Rangers, every big gun spitted, secured certain to be left out in the cold on playoff night for the first time. The Rangers have scored only one goal in their last three games.

Scores In Overtime

Boston scored its second win over Detroit in three nights when Paul Runge tapped a goal in overtime during a gangling assault. Babe Siebert, Percy O'Neil and Bill Cowley lined a hand in getting the puck to Runge in front of the Detroit net page for the winning drive.

Goaltender Lorne Chabot and Dave Kerr were good for the two shutouts at Montreal, where Rangers and Maroons played without scoring. Lorne Chabot, who reared last December, that arthritis has crooked fingers, took his first shutout as a league pro in nearly three months.

But the goaling held all the score in the hard-hitting contests which produced 58 penalties, totalling 116 minutes and a death-blow to the former Detroit league.

Charlie Conacher whipped in two goals for the Leafs in New York, his 18th and 19th of the season, to top all scorers in the League. But Toronto failed to hold a 2-1 lead in the third period. Wasson and Art Wiseman slipped the puck ahead to Tommy Anderson for the tying counter and Bill Brown more than two minutes of Wasson skated in alone for the winner.

HOCKEY'S BIG SEVEN

(By The Canadian Press)

Charlie Conacher and Bill Thomson continued to way into the big seven circle of select National Hockey League point-hunters last night, but Syd Howe, Detroit's new centre, and Baldy Northcott of Maroons for last place with 21 points.

Other frontrunners who played last night, included Sweeney Schriner and Art Wiseman of Americans and Hooley Smith of Maroons failed to score a point.

TEAMS STILL TIED AFTER SIX GAMES

Niagara Falls And Kitchener Play 70 Minutes to 1-1 Draw

Kitchener, Ont., March 11 (CP)—The Kitchener-Niagara Falls playoff for the championship of the Western Section of the Senior Ontario Hockey Association was tied today, more than two weeks after the teams started the playoff.

They played through 70 minutes of hockey last night to a 1-1 tie that left the standing at two wins, two losses and two ties for each team. They'll meet in the seventh game on Niagara ice.

Goalie Mowers of the Niagara team was the outstanding star. Kitchener had the edge in play in all but the second period and Mowers was equal to everything they threw at him after a first-period goal.

The Greenshirts and Canucks played clean, fast hockey throughout. Referee Bruce Paul called only nine penalties with Falls drawing five of them. Advantage in power did not mean much as both teams put up tight defences, when on.

Kitchener were ahead 1-0 after the first period. Ty Arbour got the goal from Hunts, who picked up Kowalski's rebound and slammed the puck past Mowers. Allen got it back seven minutes later and completed the scoring for the clash.

BISONS CLOSE TO SYRACUSE STARS

Just One Point Out of First Place in Their Section

(By The Canadian Press)

The thundering Bisons of Buffalo eased themselves behind Syracuse Stars today, just one point out of first place in the Western Section of the International Hockey League's playoff possibilities. Bisons would take over from Stars in the league lead on the schedule.

Goals were scarce in two of the three games played last night. Buffalo made impressive whipping Detroit Olympics 3-0 and Rochester Cardinals defeated Windsor Bulldogs by the same score. At Pittsburgh, Shamrocks got a 5-4 decision over Cleveland.

Olympics, leaders of the Western Section, ran up against a steady defence and brilliant Alec Wood in the Buffalo goal. Bisons got the first break when Barton midway through the first period and George Wasser scored from Bill Bingham's assist for the second.

Detroit tried mainly in the scoreless third period and even when they had the advantage of penalties twice, they couldn't break through.

A goal from Rookie Jean Bourcier with only one second over the period gave Pittsburgh in a contending position behind Windsor for their third placed berth in the Western Section. Falcons had tied the score with three minutes to play when Ralph Rennie and Harold Whitley combined to give Cardinals a 2-0 lead in the first period. Bullogs never got more hind and Bob Robertson was forced to the goal-tending to keep Rochester's total just low.

Stratford and Hamilton To Meet for Trophy

Hamilton, Ont., March 11 (CP)—A Stratford rink, skipped by M. W. Binkley, will match skips today with Fred Pheriton and his Hamilton Thistle quartet for the Specialties trophy, greatest evil of the Hamilton bonspiel.

Binkley and Charleton marched to the finals with two victories apiece yesterday. Binkley scored 10-3 victories over Dr. S. T. Wills of Orangeville in the semi-finals and Pheriton eliminated Perry Hall and his Thistle four 11-5.

Hall went down, to defeat after winning two earlier matches. He was 8-5 over R. G. H. Travers of Kingston and one from Dr. T. A. Berry of the Hamilton Thistles. F. C. Wilson, last London threat for the prize, went out to Charlton in the third round, 11-6. Wilson earlier won from D. J. Barns of Owen Sound, 8-4.

N. H. L. STARS

(By The Canadian Press)

Eddie Wiseman, Americans, who participated in two-third period and overtime play gave Americans a 3-2 win over Toronto Maple Leafs here last night, Tuesday, who scored his 18th and 19th goals of the season against Americans's Goalie Chabot in the goal-scoring race.

Dave Kerr, Rangers, and Lorne Chabot, Maroons, who made the Maple Leafs-Americans game a non-event affair by their fine puck-stopping.

Hooley Smith, Maroons, who drove in the only goal of the Boston-Detroit hour, nine minutes.

CHEVALIER RIDER WILL TRY AGAIN IN NATIONAL—G. E. PRICE, McDONALD SCORE ALL GOALS

Brockville Magsdomas Capture Ottawa Loop Title

Ottawa, March 11.—(CP)—Brockville Magsdomas defeated Royal Canadian Air Force 4-1 here last night and captured the Ottawa Senior City league championship. The Magsdomas meeting Brockville's third win of the series, the Airmen taking one with one tie game played. Magsdomas will meet Smith's Falls Mic-Macs here Thursday in the first of two total-goal-to-decide for the Ottawa and District title.

The sailors proved far too powerful for the flyers and only the brilliant work of goalie Louis St. Denis saved the latter from a worse beating.

Brockville opened the scoring late in the first period, while R.C.A.F. played a man short after D'Arcy Coulson was razed off for thumping Gordon Lowery. Verdel Price connecting. Mike McMahon's pass-out from behind the net. The home team evened the count in the second frame, when Don Hileman and Louis Lecompte crashed through, the former scoring.

Price scored again early in the third session after Bill Sherry carried the puck from his defence.McMahon also figuring on the play Red McDonald's two goals in the latter part of the period sewed up the game.

ALL STAR TEAMS

Following is the 18th of a Canadian Press series of National Hockey League all-star selections by sports writers in N.H.L. cities. A consensus will be prepared later. (By Howard Kane, Boston Transcript:

European War Only Thing to Stop the Games

(By Alan Gould)

Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, March 11.—(AP)—It will take another European war to stop the remainder of the 1936 Olympic program, slated for the first two weeks of August in Berlin.

That's what prevented the games the last time they were awarded to the German capital. The Great War, however broke out in 1914 and by the time 1916 rolled around no one was giving the Olympic situation much thought.

It wasn't until the 6th Olympiad after the conflict ended, that Germany was permitted to take into the International athletic fold. The Teutons returned to action at Amsterdam in 1928, made an excellent all-round showing and promptly pushed their bid for the 1936 games.

The "Jinx," so far as Germany is concerned, still holds, even if the record-breaking entry answers the roll call at Berlin. Hopping reaching from the Hitler Government's policies on racial and religion issues have not helped foster International athletic good will. Current anti-Semitic ranting abroad hasn't helped the situation.

The United States Amateur Athletic Union barely squeezed through a vote of confidence in its Olympic program. The British A.A.U. has been luke-warm in its attitude toward the games. French athletic authorities freely admit that it is a political issue, now have passed on to the government the question of tricolor participation.

Olympic financing is at stake in all three countries. America's participation in the winter sports was financed on a cash-or-carry-over plan. The goal of $300,000 or more, needed to send complete Olympic States teams to the summer events, won't be reached without a terrific struggle.

Minneapolis, March 10 (CP)—Window washer Jack Maloney fell from the third floor of a loop building when his safety belt broke. He dusted himself off, got his old ice skates out of the cupboard, demanded a new belt, went back to work.

DIZZY DEAN . . . VERGIL DAVIS

ANOTHER BUDDING FEUD IN THE CARDINAL CAMP—Threat of Virgil Davis, 200-pound catcher of St. Louis Cardinals, to "knock Dizzy Dean's block off" the minute the pitcher walks into the clubhouse at the Cards' spring training base at Bradenton, Fla., has sent the "Gas House Gang" into quite a steam-up. The fear-rocking threat, listed in the Post between the two, arose following Dizzy's statement that he "would never pitch another ball to Davis."

CURRENT SPORT

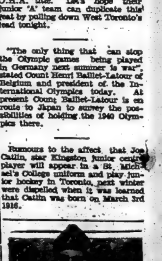
DAY BY DAY

Although a few interested business men gave many of their time and suggestions, the future of senior baseball in Belleville today lies in the hands of the fans in general and more particularly the business and industrial heads of this city. Out of last night's meeting at the "Y" a committee was chosen to ascertain exactly how the public feel and whether or not Belleville is ready to sponsor a senior team or drop O.B.J.L. baseball once and for all.

These present last night were unanimously in favor of carrying on and backing a senior team but whether or not material is available for 1936, but they did not feel equal to the task of financing such a team to a standard. A subsequent meeting will be held at the Y.M.C.A. on Thursday night when a committee to handle the matter will present their reports and the question of O.B.J.L. baseball in Belleville will be decided for 1936. Thursday night's meeting is an open affair and the public are asked to be there or senior ball lies in the attendance

Rain or shine, water-covered or dry ice, the finals in the local Industrial Hockey League will get under way on Friday night at the Arena with a double-header when the Belleville-Sargent meets the Y's Men's Club and St. Andrews clash with the Bakers. Manager Jack Wilson, who has very ably headed this new loop all season, was unable to state whether these games will be played before Sarah mature or home and home with goals to count. Going to the lateness in the season, however, perhaps the Industrialists will have to be satisfied with the shortest possible series of play-downs, which would mean the two winners of Friday night's game will subsequently clash on the ice for the championship and the league title. The local hockey season has got, and the way this past season for something greater in years to come in the matter of industrial hockey in Belleville. Naturally the play-offs in the Industrial League will flow down the current hockey curtain in Belleville in 1936, so hockey-mad fans should avail themselves of taking in the games, whether it be water pole or ice hockey.

Local checker players should start next polishing up on their game for the final ten days as the annual Eastern Ontario Checker tournament is scheduled to be played off in the local Y.M.C.A. on March 23rd. The territory covered by the eastern territory extends from Peterboro and Northumberland right through to the Quebec boundary, so there will be competition in this tournament has been going on since 1932 and final games attracted a large gallery.



A recent press dispatch from Brantford, Pa., highly lauds the work of Herb Mitchell, coach of the Hembey B'ars', United States amateur champion hockey team for 1936. Mitchell, it will be remembered, played for Belleville in that memorial O. H. A. game in 1918, later migrating to Hamilton and then turning professional before coaching the Windsor Bulldogs and subsequently the Hembey B'ars'. Incidentally it was just 20 years ago last night when Bert never to be forgotten game was played in memory of Belleville lost many different angles have been argued over that series, but there is one fact, that cannot be controverted, however, and that is the fact, that Referee Cecil Hambly, who officiated at both games and nearly caused a riot right here in Belleville during the first tilt, never referred another O.H.A. game after his appearance in Bank Boat 20 years ago last night. Why? Well, your guess is as good as ours. It was a deadly affair.

Over in Trenton Harry Meeres, sport commissioner de luxe of the Courier-Advocate and his hockey henchmen, are checking over the various appearances of Kent Partridge and Ernie Kipp at the Federal Airport in the event of any Belleville sin Highway No. 2. Kipp and Partridge were officially moved down from the Camp Borden Airport to complete their training and have repeatedly let fly at the best goaltenders in the north country Kipp having also played for the Toronto City Sea Gulls and is said to be an excellent professional prospect. Naturally Mr. Meeres and his backers will expect Kipp and Partridge to turn in for a Trenton uniform next winter, but doubtlessly the R. C. A. F. boys will first be rather play in a O.H.A. game or two and then in the village band-box arena in Trenton.

Congratulations Oshawa "Generals" 1936 Intermediate O.H.A. champions in the 'A' series. The Generals who appeared in Belleville once this season and made a splendid showing, but were forced in check fairly well by the Redmen, only to be in the Oshawa's first O.H.A. title. Let's hope their junior A team can duplicate their feat by rolling down West Toronto's lead tonight.

"The only thing that can stop the Olympic games being played in Germany next summer is war," stated Count Henri Baillet-Latour of Belgium and president of the International Olympic today. At present Count Baillet-Latour is en route to Japan to survey the possibilities of holding the 1940 Olympics there.

Rumours to the affect that Joe Cailin, star Kingston junior center player will appear in a 56, Michael's College uniform next play hockey in Toronto, next winter will shortly be cleared when it is learned that Cailin was born on March 3rd 1916.

Frankford and District

Frankford, March 11—The first game of the finals in the Frankford district hockey league playoffs was played before a great crowd of enthusiastic fans at the Frankford arena on Thursday evening, March 5th.

Walkerige and Frankford were the contesting teams. The game was fast with clean play and both Frankford emerged the victors with a score of 3-0. A return game will be played on Tuesday evening, March 10th.

All three goals were scored in the first period within the space of three minutes. After five minutes of play Edward Laurence scored on a pass from Finnigan at the Walkerige blue line, going in close for a shot on Seeley which slipped in on the opposite corner of the net. Patrick scored next on a pass from Finnigan and the third goal was scored by Laurence from the faceoff.

Lineups:

Walkerige: Goal Seeley; defence H. Middleton and Kingston; centre, Chisholm; wings Miller and Woods.

Frankford: Goal Lohnes; defence G. O'Malley and M. Hourd; centre Finnigan; wings, E. Patrick and E. Laurence; subs, Johnson, Dafoe, H. Montgomery, T. Laurence and Loney.

Referee: Bernard Yorke.

On Friday evening, February 27, a large number of friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Lott to spend a social evening before their departure for their new home in Prince Edward county.

Mr. Clas. Wickens acting as chairman called the meeting to order. The address was read by Mrs. Ross Wickens and the presentation of a purse of money was made by Don Terry.

Mr. and Mrs. Lott thanked all for their kindness and invited them to visit them in their new home. After a pleasant evening was spent, lunch was served by the ladies. Following is the address:

Frankford, Ont. Feb. 27, 1936.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Lott, Edwin and Alvin:

The news of your intended departure from our community has created a feeling of profound regret, and therefore we, your neighbors and friends have assembled ourselves on you leave, to spend a social evening together.

During the years you have lived in this neighborhood, you have endeared yourselves to all who had the privilege of knowing you. By your cordiality and spirit of cheerfulness you have always radiated happiness.

We have truly appreciated your friendship through the past years, and have always welcomed any occasion that would cement these ties.

"He who has a thousand friends, has not a friend to spare."

Edwin and Alvin we indeed hope you will like your new school and chums, and sincerely trust through God's grace you will both grow in the noble type of manhood befitting fast to the good and virtuous.

As a token of our love, esteem and appreciation, we ask you to kindly accept this gift, a purse in the hope that in time to come it will furnish you of your many friends at the 9th of Murray. We heartily join in wishing you all good health, happiness and success in years to come.

"The miles of distance lay between us,

They cannot break true friendship's bond;

From memory haunts they cannot wean us,

Our love will e'er be true and fond."

Signed on behalf of your many friends: John R. Wickens and Dot Terry.

On Friday afternoon last, Geo. Spencer piloted a plane from the Sir Guy's airport in Kingston to Frankford making a perfect landing on the frozen surface of the Trent River above the emergency dam. On the return trip, carrying a passenger Mr. Don Phasey, National Grocers representative, the flight was made around by Picton arriving at Kingston before five o'clock.

Mr. Spencer has his commercial pilots flying license and handles a plane in a skilful manner.

Friday, March 6th being the anniversary of her seventy-fourth birthday Mrs. Stillman Herrington entertained a number of friends at a birthday supper.

The table was prettily arranged with a centre of yellow roses and tall yellow candles.

Mrs. Herrington is enjoying the best of health and was the recipient of many gifts and good wishes from her host of friends.

Crown the first harbingers of Spring were seen flying around the outskirts of the village on Wednesday, March 4th.

Mrs. Irene Boyle and Mr. H. G. Rose of Belleville were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Madill.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cooper and family of Bloomfield were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Leavitt on Sunday.

On Thursday evening in Toronto Miss Dorothy Smith, R.N., and Mr. Sid Hendricks were united in marriage by Rev. Mr. Hills. Mr. and Mrs. Hendricks is an old Frankford boy being the second son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Hendricks. The happy couple will reside in Toronto where the groom is employed.

Mrs. Arthur Ferguson has returned home after visiting relatives in Brooklyn.

Mr. J. F. Finnigan of Frankford was elected president of the Quinte Skating Club of Belleville for 1936 and 1937 at the annual meeting and election of officers. The retiring president Stanley Wilbur in his remarks paid high encomiums to both Elmer and Hubert Finnigan for their splendid performances at the different ice carnivals while attended with the club this winter, also expressing his delight in handing over the office to Mr. Finnigan. Stanley felt that the club members had chosen wisely in selecting their new leader

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself with a satisfied expression and ma said, Pop William, every time I think of you at the concert last nite sitting there fast asleep during the whole entire wonderful 8rd movement of that marvelous simphony, I declare I feel more and more ashamed of you.

But yes gosh, I stayed awake during the first 2 movements, pop said. There's no test of finical endurance where a man can win every time, and if he could it would take all the sport out of it, he said, and ma said, The 3rd movement was the most bewtiful of all. I wish I could discribe it to you but I haven't sufficient powers of discription. I'll read you what it says about it in the program, and then maybe you'll realize what you missed and then maybe you'll stay awake the next time, she said.

And she got the program out of her desk where she keeps all her programs, saying, Here it is. William, just listen, you'll be sorry.

And she started to read it, saying, The 3rd Movement, the 3rd movement carries to an almost unbelievable apex the golden promises of the first contrapuntal profoundities of movements one and 2. Woodwinds and brasses combine to suggest the delirious arrival of the godlike powers of Siegfried, thereby deploying of the percussion instruments. Here is an unforgettable impression of the rout of the satyrs, ending in a mastery crescendo that leaves the entire hall stunned, hall swooning. Then follows the cradle of the Rhine, a wild serie of violins and bass viols weaving in and out of an ethereal cascade of clarinets and muted flutes, interrupted by the hotly passion piccolo solo in A minor and followed by the unutterably nostalgic march of the kettle drums.

O, ma, he's asleep now, I said. Morning pop.

Which he was.

NO DEFENCE IN BANNISTER CASE

Former Husband of Woman Denies Ever Being in Pacific Junction

Dorchester, N.B., March 10.—(CP)—The Crown rested its case today against Arthur Bannister, young lumberjack, charged with the slaying of a settler and his wife in an alleged murder-hitchup plot.

It was intimated the defence would let the case go to the jury without producing any witnesses. Opposite testimony given by a group of neighbours and experts, who identified the charred corpse of Phillip Lake and declared the bullet found in his skull could have come from a rifle thrown away by the accused.

Last Crown witness was Marshall Ring, diminutive painter, former husband of the portly woman, who perished with Lake and one of their children in the backwoods blaze last January 5. Ring, married the second time a week or so ago, presented a pathetic appearance as he denied ever having been to Pacific Junction, where the bodies of Lake, Mrs. Ring and their 21-months-old son, Jack, were found near the ruins of their fire-razed cabin.

PLAINFIELD

Plainfield, March 11—A very successful mother and daughter banquet was staged on Friday evening by the members of the "Willing Workers" class of the United Church Sunday School, at the home of Mrs. Harry McCamley. Including the members of the class, their mothers and the invited guests there were thirty-three sat down to supper.

The tables were artistically arranged in colors of mauve and yellow and decorated with daffodils and yellow candles. Those who assisted with the waiting were Misses Phyllis Hall, Helen Hall, Margaret Carlton and Irene Murphy. Miss Murphy played the roll of toastmistress.

The toast to the King was proposed by Miss Helen Carlton and this response given by singing the National Anthem. Miss Olive Hall moved the toast to the mothers, a reply being given by Mrs. J. F. Everson. The toast to the class was given by Mrs. Harry McCamley and the response by Miss Margaret Carlton.

After having partaken freely of the sumptuous repast the company repaired to the spacious double parlour where the following programme was presided over by the minister the Rev. J. F. Everson.

The opening number was a hymn, this was followed by prayer by Mr. Everson, Phyllis Hall rendered a solo after which the minister gave a talk on "The Influence of a Young Woman's life" pointing out how great are the opportunities of young people in their later years. This was followed with music by Mrs. Kenneth Hall and Mrs. Francis Grant; a song, Miss Hallie Hodgen; a reading, Mrs. John Gow; a solo Mrs. Hall; music by Miss H. Hall and Mrs. Kenneth Hall; a solo, Mrs. Arthur Hall; a reading, Mrs. Ernest Hall; a solo by the mothers present; a reading Mrs. Eric Denyes. The program closed with singing of hymn.

A vote of thanks to Mrs. McCreary for her hospitality and to all who had helped in making such a delightful evening possible was moved by Mrs. Kenneth Hall and seconded by Miss Phyllis Hall, the singing of Auld Lang Syne brought to a very enjoyable evening to a close.

COLOGNE IN HEART OF RHINE AREA—In the public square in front of the Cologne cathedral, Nazi troops gave their first open demonstration in answer to Reichsfuehrer Hitler's order for reoccupation of the Rhineland. After waiting all night on border of the demilitarized zone, troops moved swiftly into the district in the early morning hours and in mid-afternoon paraded in the square before the cathedral in the city of Cologne on the banks of the Rhine for the first time since 1918.

Fire Destroys Old Storage Building

Hamilton, Ont., March 11.—(CP)—With the Honey Dream fire department battling to suppress the flames, fire destroyed the reformation and storage building of the R. D. Smith Company at Winona, here, last night in one of the most spectacular blazes in the district in some years. The company, worth $50,000, suffered heavy loss in the blaze as the whole story of the building was used as the storage for the cast. Four Lewis machine guns, many automatic rifles, uniforms and equipment were up in smoke.

CASTS DECIDING VOTE

WINDSOR, Ont., March 11—(CP)—Mayor George Percival cast the deciding affirmative vote when the city council was deadlocked on the 1936 assessment by-law at last night's meeting. The by-law sets the mill rate at 45 mills. The mill rate is 46 mills. Alderman August Mailloux led the block objecting to the passage, stating he opposed the way the assessment was reached, "I don't think there was enough discussion over the whole area," he said.

6 RAILROADERS KILLED

LONDON, March 11—(CP Havas)—Sixty-five persons, including 6 railroading tracks near Preston, recently escaped death when they were surprised today by the fast Blackpool-Preston express which killed five men in the derailment and scramble off the tracks in time.

Fined For Breaking Quarantine

Guelph, Ont., March 11—(CP)—Pleading guilty to a charge of breaking quarantine while suffering from German measles, Frank Jost, student of the Ontario Agricultural College, who lives here was fined $25 without costs today. Jost was alleged to have told Dr. H. Orton, medical officer of health, to have left his boarding house two days before the eight-day quarantine expired. Jost said that he walked on the street but had not approached nor spoken to anyone.

Moscow, March 11 (AP)—F. F. Ostpoff, director of the Reichcraft Institute for the study of brains, reported today there is no scientific basis for the theory voiced by Germany in the delicate situation arising from the German Rhineland coup.

Two days later—on Saturday—the League of Nations Council in solemn session transferred from London to Paris will consider London, probably in the picture gallery of St. James' Palace, scene of history making events in the past.

World Satisfied.

The sudden decisions that made London again the nerve-centre of Europe's troubles and left political circles bewildered but from every side expressions of satisfaction were manifest.

While there was little actual optimism as to the practical result of the Locarno discussions, commentators argued the British Isles would provide a cooler, steadier atmosphere for their development.

Winston Churchill, frequent antagonists of the new Germany, pointed out "several millions of Germans, who were unemployed found employment in munitions manufacture or in the armed forces." On the other hand, he said, "the whole structure is supported by borrowed money and the financial situation has become such that it cannot go on indefinitely."

He added:

"It cannot go on, but where can it stop? . . . If they go on, there is bankruptcy. If they stop, there is tremendous unemployment."

Sees "Mitigation".

But David Lloyd George, the wartime prime minister declared Germany, despite "reckless and brash" and a treaty-breaker, "could call in effective aid which the world never provided some mitigation of her fault." France, he urged, "increased her armaments year after year and "is not in a position to complain."

Semi-direct assurance that Reichs Chancellor Hitler would commit no overt act in the Rhineland and would be nothing more to alter the "existing situation" came in an interview with Der Fuehrer, obtained by G. Ward Price of the Mirror and published by the London Daily Mail.

Hitler also was quoted as saying he had fixed no time limit for the proposals for a new system of friendly alliances which he made to Europe's powers last Saturday.

Germany Not Represented.

Berlin, Mar 11 (AP)—A German Foreign Office spokesman announced today the League of Nations Council session in the Locarno crisis would open Saturday without a Reich representative, under present conditions, even though the scene of action was shifted from Geneva to tranquil London.

The Reich insists upon a formal invitation by the League Council to the session, the spokesman said, even if the British government, as host to the Saturday's meeting, should invite a German representative or intimate diplomatically Germany's presence was desired.

Rumors current in the capital that Joachim von Ribbentrop, Adolf Hitler's special diplomatic representative, was already en route to London for the meeting were discounted in official quarters.

BRITAIN HOLDS BALANCE POWER

"Learned" Room At London.

Gleaners tore the dust-sheets from furniture in the French room at famed Locarno room in preparation for tomorrow's meeting of trusty powers—Britain, France, Belgium, Italy. There, where the new pact of non came steadily into being in 1925, Britain again will act as "honest broker" between France and Germany in the delicate situation arising from the German Rhineland coup.

Two days later—on Saturday—the League of Nations Council in solemn session transferred from London to Paris will consider London, probably in the picture gallery of St. James' Palace, scene of history making events in the past.

TRAIN STRIKES SAWING MACHINE

Two Other Minor Accidents Reported But No Injuries Result

Three motor accidents were reported in Belleville and the immediate vicinity late yesterday, no personal injuries being sustained, however.

Late yesterday afternoon a large delivery truck, driven by Geo. B. Baillie, 164 Lingham, Belleville, was forced into the ditch on highway No. 2, two miles east of Shannonville. The sides of the transport became loosened, allowing the contents of the truck to be strewn about the highway blockading traffic for some time. The cargo consisted of canned goods.

Traffic Officer Sam Ravlie investigated the accident and was informed by Mr. Baillie, that a motor car, travelling easterly, had forced him to the north shoulder of the highway, where his transport skidded into the ice towards the deep ditch, causing the cargo to shift, breaking the sides of the truck. The transport did not turn over, however. The identity of the motorist proceeding easterly was not obtained, authorities later disclosed.

About 5.30 p.m. a trailer, upon which a wood sawing machine was being transported, skidded on the C.N.R. railway crossing on the Canniffton Rd. directly in the path of an oncoming passenger train. The wood cutting machine was struck by the train and knocked off the tracks, the trailer being wrecked.

The sawing outfit was being hauled by its owner, Mr. Jas. A. Wood, 3rd, 14 Jones St., when the collision between the motor car in which Mr. Woodend was driving and the trailer, became locerned, and the trailer stalled on the railway tracks as the evening passenger, driven passenger train approached from the west. Engineer Mitchard fortunately saw the stalled sawing machine in time to apply his brakes and retard the speed of the train to the minimum when the impact occurred. Although Mr. Woodend contended, that the wig-wag at this point was not in operation, Provincial Officer Leonard Plain-clothes Officer Leard, who investigated, said that the train whistle and bell were both sounding. The train was in charge of Conductor W. Bird.

As he stopped his automobile on Dufferin Ave. to allow the Hanson car bus to pass, the bus driver, Mr. Jay Pat and sideswiped Mr. T. G. Hatbay's automobile yesterday afternoon. The damage was slight, however and the matter of settlement amicably arrived at, between the parties concerned, upon the arrival of P. C. Arnold, who investigated.

Other activities in and around local police circles were quite although Chief Potter are making enquiries regarding a "hit and run" driver. Only seven transients appeared at the police station for a night's lodging last night.

JUNIOR FARMERS COMPETE IN SEED JUDGING CONTEST

William Geen Wins Medal And Trophy For Championship

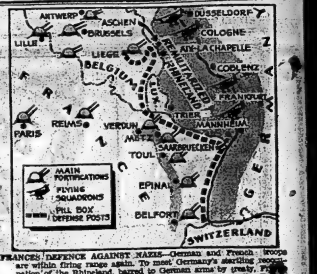
Stirling—The first Junior Farmers' seed judging contest to be held in Hastings County was held in the town hall of Madoc village on Monday, March 9th, when a number of members of the junior farmers, from all parts of the county, were present to take part and all classes were keenly contested by a group of selected young farmers who went into the contest in the spirit of determination to make a good showing. The boys were really serious about their work and from the results achieved by many who were judging for the first time, it is evident that the interest stimulation of members of the junior farmers' clubs will soon possess a group of really efficient judges of seeds.

This competition, which has as its object the stimulation of interest in the value of seed classification, was under the direction of Mr. Joseph Wilson of Stirling, Agricultural representative for the County of Hastings assisted by Mr. F. J. Webster of Picton, Agricultural representative for Prince Edward County; Mr. Wm. Michael of the Dominion Seed Branch and Mr. James G. Shearer B.S.A., principal of Kemptville Agricultural School.

The judging began at 10 a.m. and contestants were called upon to exercise their judging ability in the different classes, the naming and classifying of fifteen weeds and fifteen weed seeds was also a part of the competition.

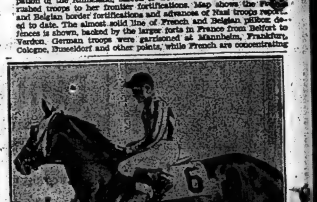
At noon a dinner was served, to those taking part, in the main dining room of Ritzy's Hotel with Mr. Joseph Wilson acting as chairman introducing several prominent after dinner speakers. Mr. Campbell of Wellington, Reeve of Madoc village, welcomed the visitors to the community and to those who were visiting Madoc for the first time, he expressed the wish that their first impression would be of a character, that they would soon make their second visit. Mr. Hill, secretary of the Madoc Rally, also addressed the gathering speaking of the rapid progress made by that organization during the past few years.

Mr. Shearer, guest speaker, gave a splendid address in which he stressed the need of studying agriculture along scientific lines and recognizing it as one of the country's greatest professions. He hoped that those taking part in the judging competition would appreciate of acquiring ability in seed judging which was the basis for one of the most important crops in this county.



Mr. Shearer outlined the work being done at the Kemptville Agricultural School, which is the only one of its kind in the province and which is conveniently situated for the farmers in Eastern Ontario and where special courses are offered to those interested with a fine modern equipment and accommodation.

During the afternoon the seed judging was carried on which was the final classes to be judged. The competition was made possible through the kind co-operation of the following gentlemen who were the judges of the prizes offered Mr. Hooker Ferguson, M.P., Mr. W. C. West, Warden of Hastings County; Mr. Campbell Wallbridge, Reeve of Madoc Village; Mr. Walter Whytock, Madoc; Mr. McNabb of the Dominion Seed Branch; Mr. O. E. Bishop of Belleville and Mr. James W. Haggerty, Treasurer of Hastings County.



Following is the list of winners of the contest—

The Championship Trophy donated by Mr. J. W. Haggerty, County Treasurer for annual competition and awarded to the contestant with the highest aggregate score in all classes was won by William Geen, who also won the gold medal donated by Mr. Hooker Ferguson, M.P., for the highest standing in small seed, weeds and pedigree. The next honour was taken by his brother Everett Geen, who won the silver medal donated by County Warden William C. West for the highest standing in oats and barley. First prize in oats went to J. Welch and second was Dean Shaw. First in Barley was Leonard Collins, second Ivan Sarles; in Red Clover—1st Kenneth Mimmby, Alfalfa, 1st Cecil Jones; Potatoes, Allan Ketcheson; Weeds and Weed seeds, 1st Francis Taylor. The five contestants with the highest aggregate scores which are eligible to compete in the inter County Seed Judging competition to be held at the Quinte District Seed Fair in Picton on March 19th are as follows—Stanley Geen, Robert Gadsby, Burton Holland, Donald Post, and Wallace Pigeon.

With the exception of the Championship Trophy only one prize was awarded to any individual contestant.

FRANCE'S DEFENCE AGAINST NAZIS—German and French troops are within firing range again. To meet Germany's startling occupation of the Rhineland, barred to German arms by treaty, France rushed troops to her frontier fortifications. Map shows the French and Belgian border fortifications and advances of Nazi troops reported to date. The almost solid line of French and Belgian pillbox defense is shown, backed by the larger forts in France from Belfort to Verdun. German troops were garrisoned at Mannheim, Frankfurt, Cologne, Dusseldorf and other points, while French are concentrating EQUALS RECORD WINNING FLORIDA DERBY—Since he equalled the great Discovery's record for races and an eight in winning the $30,000 Florida Derby, Brevity, little bay colt, shown above, has taken complete control of the favored list for the next Kentucky Derby. The Widener colt, which does everything in the briefest possible time, is being mooted as another Man o' War. Carrying only three pounds less than Discovery's when that racer ran the mark as a four-year-old, Brevity made a show of his field to win in a gallop. He is a three-year-old with a bar sinister on his shield, being by Chance Shot or Sickle out of Ormonda.

HOW THEY RUN INTERFERENCE IN WATER POLO MATCHES—This is neither an attempted murder by strangling or drowning, or a wrestling as one that has somehow drifted into the swimming pool but a demonstration of an "interference play" in water polo. The locale is the New York City College pool and Bill Bachman is giving the lesson, with his team-mate George Darby as the victim. Water polo is said to be one of the most strenuous sport known. This may be all right, but it looks simple to a struggle hold to me.

ability during times of grave national crisis. He entered the navy at 13 and rose with almost unprecedented rapidity in his service. When war broke out in 1914 Beatty was only 43. He was vice-admiral in command of the first battle squadron.

The terrific engagements of Heligoland and the Dogger Bank gave him wide prominence and Jutland added to his lustre. At the end of 1916 he became commander in chief of the grand fleet and two years later climaxed his career by receiving the surrender of the German fleet at Scapa Flow.

He was created a Viscount and an Earl and went to the Admiralty where he was First Sea Lord until 1917.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been announced.

Berlin, March 11—(AP)—Admiral Erich Raeder, chief of the German Admiralty, instructed Captain von Wasmer, naval attache in London, to present the German navy's condolences to the British Admiralty today over the death of Earl Beatty.

"HIT AND RUN" DRIVER SOUGHT AFTER ACCIDENT

Morgan, 51 Carrollton Road, who was sitting in a car nearby the scene. He gave the alarm after he heard a man moaning and also told the police, that he had seen the car go by but could not give a description of the same.

An English Setter, owned by Tom Pappas, night manager of the London Lunch, also gave the alarm at his home on William Street. The dog was outside and when the accident happened the dog rushed to the man's side and stayed about whining and whimpering. A member of the household who went out to call the dog in, realizing something had happened, went to the scene, but by this time the police had been notified. The dog for some hours after shivered and whined in the house and it was not until Mr. Pappas went to the home from his place of business could the dog be quieted.

Marmora and District

Marmora—The death occurred on Sunday at 8.00 a.m. of Agnes Farrell Sheridan, beloved wife of James Sheridan after an illness of six weeks. The deceased who was fifty six years of age had been in ill health for the past two years but had bravely managed to care for her family until forced to relinquish her duties to her younger daughters. She was always cheerful and a good neighbour. A devout member of the Roman Catholic Church, she took an active part in church affairs and was a member of the Sacred Heart League and the Altar Society.

The deceased was born in Marmora village, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Farrell. After moving to Madoc she received her education, and took up school teaching as a profession and taught in Shannick and Malone. Later she married James Sheridan and had resided in Fuller before moving to a farm in Marmora township about eight miles north of the village. For the past number of years they have been living on a farm four miles north of Marmora.

Besides her husband, nine children are left to mourn her loss. They are William and Stanis of Boffalo, Clement and Francis at home, Mrs. W. Jones, of Peterborough, Rose in Peterboro and Mary, Agnes, 16 and Theresa 15, also at home. Also surviving are one brother, Wm. Farrell of Madoc and one sister, Mrs. Cummings of Rochester, N.Y.

The funeral was held from her late residence at 8.30 a.m. on Tuesday morning and proceeded to the Sacred Heart Church for Requiem High Mass sung by Rev. J. J. Keeley. Interment was made in the Sacred Heart Cemetery. The pallbearers were John Connors, P. Dillon, Dan Callaher, Chas. Bailey, Jos. Shannon and Dan Shannon.

The monthly meeting of the Catholic Women's League was held in the Separate School on Friday evening with a very good attendance present. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. F. Pegoe and opened with prayer by Rev. J. J. Keeley. The members then sang a hymn and Mrs. A. V. Foley read the minutes of the last meeting. The program for the evening opened with a paper on "King Edward VIII" by Mrs. E. Shannon, followed by a reading by Mr. Joseph Foley. Mrs. D. O'Connor, Current Events were read by Miss A. V. Foley and Rev. Father Keeley gave a very interesting talk, choosing as his topic "Religion in Ethiopia". The members then enjoyed a game of euchre in which the men participated. This was the opening game in a tournament which is to continue for several weeks for the members of the League. The prize winners were as follows: Mrs. J. O'Neil, ladies' first; Mrs. E. Shannon, ladies' second; Mr. E. Shannon, gentlemen's first, Mr. Jas. Brady, gentlemen's second.

OUTER MONGOLIA, THE SHRINE OF EUROPE, THE ETHIOPIA OF AFRICA—With the world tottering at the brink of war, three main trouble centres are being fearfully watched by the people of all nations. In Europe it is the Rhine; in Africa, Ethiopia; in Asia, Mongolia, where the Soviet and Mongolian troops prepare themselves for expected invasion by Japan. Minor border skirmishes serve to add fuel to the flames as Japan continues her occupation of Inner Mongolia, and claims for Manchukuoan territory also claimed by the Soviet republic of Outer Mongolia. The layout above shows scenes from what soon may become a Russo-Japanese battlefield. UPPER RIGHT, a camel train and map of the trouble area. LEFT, a Mongolian desert beauty wearing 30 pounds of gold adornment on her head. BELOW, LEFT, a young shepherd and his flock. Sheep tending is one of Mongolia's main pursuits. RIGHT, fierce-looking Mongolian army officers. The army was trained under direction of Soviet generals.

Dale Plays The Game

—BY—
Ann Forester

"You heard me." Clough said it in the cold and ominous tone which usually made the questioned eager to talk.

The girl looked across at him. Smiled.

Clough suddenly found his anger evaporated. Something in the kid's smile that got one. Didn't know whether it made him want to laugh or cry.

"Drink your drink, that's a good girl." Clough nodded amiably to the small glass before him. Obediently she lifted it to her lips. When she put it down, Clough noted, with private approval that it was quite as full. He didn't like janes that were lushes. The more he talked to this girl the better he liked her—not hard boiled, but deep. Couldn't tell her the way you could most of these babes.

He said abruptly: "You know you're a rotten dancer!"

Dale's eyes were full of trouble. Puzzling in her glance.

"I'm rusty," she agreed nervously. "But I'll get in the swing of it again. I've been—I did legitimate parts for a year or so and I'm out of practice. I just think things go very quickly—"

Clough, satisfied. The kid was afraid of her job.

"I said you were a rotten dancer. But you're a good looker. No need to worry, Baby."

A queer little tremor passed over Dale's lips. Brant had called her Baby! And in what a different tone .....Sharply-tender was she..... dead to her.

Clough kept Dale at his table until it was time for her to change costume for the next turn. When she had gone Hashens drifted up, the politician spoke abruptly.

"Good looker you had took, Clough."

Hashens lifted meat black brows. "Like her? She can't sing."

"Don't have to with that face."

Hashens did some quick thinking. If Clough liked the new girl, her job was safe. He even considered pointing her in Trinde's direction—but—that wouldn't do. This Evans kid could never get the suckers in the way Trinde could.

When Dale went back to the dressing room she found a bunch of comment before her. The girl who shared her makeup shelf eyed her curiously.

"Migawd—" she said to the room at large, "did you see Lady Godiva bilt one of the big cheese? Speed to you, kid——" she turned to Dale, "there isn't a dame here wouldn't give her ear—ears not being worn much this year, anyway—to get Clough interested in her like that! I suppose you'll be rizing us all soon."

Dale felt herself turning scarlet under her makeup. "He only asked me where I worked before."

The other girl looked lofty. "Don't pull the coy stuff on me, lover; it makes me sick to my stomach. Go ahead—grab Clough. Make the old lightwad pay through the nose. But lookout that Trixie doesn't decorate your skin with a carving knife."

Just as Dale remembered—the courseman, the greet of it..... Glaring light bulbs—the air full of powder and sweet scent. The world-wise patter of the back stage dressing rooms. After the sedate surroundings of the Kendall house it struck Dale on the raw. A wave of homesickness went over her for the quiet comfort of the blue and silver room. For Brant..... She turned away quickly and slapped a powder puff at her face.

The never ending night. The final turn..... Going out through the empty cafe where the waiters were piling chairs on the tables. Cool, cold night of dawn stars. In the street and the raw smell of it was in the air when Dale went out, burrowing down into her coat collar.

CHAPTER 61.
ANGEL FACE

Dale went slowly over to the car and looked up, her eyes large and dark in her pale face.

"You want to see me, Mr. Clough?"

Clough jerked his head toward the seat beside him. "Get in. We'll get breakfast somewhere."

Dale shook her head. "Thank you, no. I had a sandwich before I left."

Clough's face darkened. There wasn't another girl at the Jubilee who wouldn't have jumped at the chance. And this chilly little dame acting high hat. He wanted to tell her to go to the devil. Who did she think she was, anyway? Instead, to his own surprise, he heard himself saying roughly: "Come on, Angel Face. Be yourself. Nobody's going to eat you."

Dale calculated quickly. By eating a hearty breakfast she could go without dinner. Every nickle saved was an important item. She said slowly: "I'll go. But don't blame me if you're sorry you asked me."

A dream—to be riding like this through the nearly empty streets in the white dawn. Far down in Dale's eyes was a dazed look. The changes had been so abrupt. Why—just a week ago she had been at Pinelands, Pinelands..... at this hour it would be still wrapped in slumber, the fragrance of the pines stealing in the windows. The big sate house—the sleek, sure people within..... Brant—sister. His rumpled hair—making him look oddly boyish. One brown arm flung restlessly above his head..... You don't think of Brant now! What a fool to be breaking her heart over the man who loved Mimi.....

That thought gave Dale the courage to thrust Brant out of her mind. She became defiantly vivacious, her whimsicalities startling Clough to hearty laughter.

Over the table of a private booth they became acquainted. Clough could be useful, Dale saw, studying him through her lashes. Her job depended upon him..... and she must have steps in order to save for the hard fines to come.

Dawn—sitting here at this hour flattering in the slow stain across the table. Sophisticated and simple, Clough was oddly limited and strangely broad. His small political power was as the breath of life in his nostrils. Dale gathered, and she played upon that string. Beggars can't be choosers..... she must think of the future.

But when Clough, intoxicated by her sweetness and her nearness, reached over to pull her to his side, Dale fought him, silently and frantically.

Panting and frightened she wedged herself into the narrow space between the table and the wall where he could not reach her and looked at him with imploring eyes.

"Please don't do that. You know—I warned you. I told you you'd be sorry if you asked me."

Clough was breathing heavily, head lowered, bull like, watching Dale with small bright eyes.

"I suppose you want me to swallow a lot of hooey about this sweet and pure stuff. You—dancing down at the Jubilee and still being a platter saint, eh?"

Clough stopped in surprise. Dale's eyes had filled with tears and over her face had crept a crimson tide—a hot blush such as Clough had not seen for years. Fascinated, his eyes followed it down to the low neckline of her dress. He heard a chair out of his way and grabbed her.

An old memory had stirred in Clough. Slim and fragant—Dale was something he had been hungry for all these years..... tantalizingly different from other women he had known. Like an ideal he had carried buried far out of sight in his mind, slim and blonde—he'd always like slim blondes. When he'd gone to see he'd torn out magazine pictures of slim blonde women and pinned them about his bunk. Dale was the embodiment of an old ideal. Not that he put it that way himself. He only knew that her face had called to him keenly across the dance floor. He only knew that the sight of her—the feel of her was madness now.

Crushing Dale's hair between his big hands. Holding her face rigid, like a helpless upturned flower while he pressed his mouth hard on her own.

Then a stinging blow across Clough's eyes, staggering him, filling the room with a flash of pain. A wrench—she was gone—the booth simply, the curtain in the doorway still swaying.

Dale had run half a block from the cafe before she collected herself. The street were flooded with broad white light and they were beginning to fill with early workers. Curious glances brought the girl to herself. She slowed her steps as she proceeded at a walk, the fresh air cooling her flaming cheeks.

At first anger and the thrill escape buoyed her up with its destimulant. Then a cold clammy sweat over her.

THRONE SPEECH DEBATE CARRIED BY GOV'T 67-18

Public Accounts Committee Called After Demand by Mr. Henry

DEFENDS PURCHASE

Agricultural Minister Says Bull Asset to Breeding Industry

Toronto, March 11.—(CP)—With the lengthy Throne Speech debate finally concluded, Ontario legislative members prepared for a light agenda today, before presentation tomorrow of Premier Hepburn's second budget.

The government was victorious at 11 in the address in reply to the Throne Speech last night when a division was taken following the wind-up speeches of Opposition Leader George S. Henry and Agriculture Minister Marshall.

Actual division took place on an amendment by William Duckworth (Cons., Toronto Davenport) who deplored the absence from the Throne Speech of constructive measures to alleviate unemployment. The same vote was taken for the main motion.

Meanwhile plans were laid for calling the Public Accounts Committee, which investigates all matters pertaining to government finance, on March 19. Calling of the committee followed a demand from Mr. Henry after remarks by Premier Hepburn and Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Northern Development.

Prior to Mr. Henry making the formal demand during his speech yesterday, the Premier said the committee would also delve into several charges by the former Conservative administration.

Mr. Henry, who started his speech late yesterday, occupied the greater part of the night sitting with a discussion of Ontario finances. He warned the government the Province faced a power famine and said Ad. Acres—General Electric official in his recent Hydro address to a Toronto luncheon in Toronto. The Minister said he was prepared to take the committee and show the cost of Northern work was less than when the former government held office although wages now were higher.

When the committee was called, said the Premier, "we'll go back far enough into our predecessors' record.

"Better call it forthwith", returned Mr. Henry.

"Make a request", invited the Premier.

"I make it now," Mr. Henry said. "I hope you call them tomorrow and get established."

"I make it now," Mr. Henry said. "I hope you call them tomorrow and get established."

Stupid Criticism!

The farmer Premier said, he would be proud "no matter how long or short I live" of his economy. Interest is lowered. The Ambassador canyon power development from private hands. He criticized the contract of A. C. Saght of Toronto, commission consists of the power the present government ordered into the deal, and said he "failed in his responsibility and suppressed evidence and was paid for it."

Challenging the government to correct the figures from hearsay to fact, he said a saving of $6,000,000 would be achieved if this was done.

Purchase of a valuable bull at the Perth, Scotland, auction sale was defended by Mr. Marshall. It had been attacked by A. H. Acres (Cons., Wentworth) and The Minister accused Mr. Acres of failing to act on a petition of certain Carleton County townships for tuberculosis testing of cattle.

Gift of the $625 to the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph was described by the Minister as one of the finest individual gifts on the continent. It would not cost the Province anything since the animal was purchased by a syndicate of business men.

Mr. Marshall announced he would invite the Legislature Agricultural Committee to visit the college.

Committee to Sit

Mr. Henry's demand for calling the Public Accounts Committee arose from his charge "one of the most scandalous types of specifications for contracts" had been set up by Mr. Heenan. The Forestry Minister said he was prepared to take the committee and show the cost of Northern work was less than when the former government held office although wages now were higher.

When the committee was called, said the Premier, "we'll go back far enough into our predecessors' record.

"Better call it forthwith", returned Mr. Henry.

W. HUNTINGDON DEFEATS BETHEL IN LOOP FINALS

On Wet And Heavy Ice Teams Battle Desperately For Victory

SCORE IS 3-1

Joe Wilson Presents Trophy At Conclusion of Contest

Stirling, March 11.—(Special) — The curtain fell on the activities of the Centre Hockey for the 1935-36 season, when the fast skating West Huntingdon team defeated the plucky green shirts of Bethel in a sudden death game before a record crowd at the Stirling rink on Tuesday night. These teams had completed their home and home series and were tied on the round 2-2. The sudden death game was one of surprising speed for the condition of the ice for the last game of the season. There was little to choose between the two teams but West Huntingdon had better luck around the nets and when the final bell went were on the big end of a three to one score. There were four teams entered in the League, Glen Ross, Bethel, Roseboro and West Huntingdon, and the fine display of real hockey given by all teams has earned them a large and enthusiastic following. A significant coincident of the last two years activities within the League, is that the winners of the championship both years have been coached by Cooley Adams of Stirling. Last year he was the mentor of the League winning Glen Ross Crew, and this year he hooked up at the first of the season, with West Huntingdon, who also took the silverware. There may be a lot of luck in picking the winners but it is generally believed that (Nicky Adams) knew his hockey. He also occupies a place on the bench for the Stirling Intermediate team, along with Bill Whitby and this team starts its play-off series with Madoc on Friday night.

The Game

West Huntingdon started from the face-off with a different style than that which they adopted in their last game, with no goals on the puff, they went in there to get them early and with their aggressive tactics are far superior to their defensive plays. In the first few seconds of play they tried Dickey in the Bethel nets with four or five hot ones, before Bethel could get set. Bethel were close on two of the return plays but failed to beat Gaskin, who played a bang-up game for Huntingdon. After about eight minutes of play West Huntingdon got the first goal on a nice three man rush, Rodgers to Kirby, to Moir, who was right in front to bat it in. Nearly four hundred fans evinced their approval in lusty cheers.

Stimes went right through from the face-off but Gaskin outsight it on the pads. Rodgers and Moir went extremely well on the soft ice and when the period ended all players were engaged in a lively shooting. There were no penalties in the first period.

Second Period

Bethel really got organized in the early stages of the second frame and after three minutes Lepinette clicked to tie up and West Huntingdon had to turn it on again. They was fairly even with plenty of changes of players, after eleven minutes had McGowan, made it 2-1 for West Huntingdon. This he scored on a nice pass from Wright. Shortly after this goal was scored Wright and Culhane were given penalties for mixing it, and play began to get a little ruffled. Moir brought groans from the Bethel crowd when he went right through and with no one to beat but the Goalie, lost control of the rubber, when it looked like a sure goal. West Huntingdon began to cease a bit and Bethel for the last half of the period missed a lot of chances as they hovered about the West Huntingdon nets like so many bees. The players were ready for their well earned rest as the bell went to end the period two-one for West Huntingdon.

Last Period

With nothing to lose Bethel sent every man up with the opening of the last period and each time Huntingdon broke away, it was dangerous. Rodgers broke away with no one to stop him and he passed back to a counter, but Dickey came out of his nets to make a great save. On the return play Lepinette had three shots on Sarles with his teams all on there to help him. West Huntingdon began to shoot it down the ice to relieve the pressure. Miller and Kirby sent five minute penalties for roughing it and Bethel turned on more steam to score, got clear and this time he didn't fool. He skated around Culhane, who was alone on defence, and beat Dickey to make it three to one. Satisfied with their substantial lead, West Huntingdon coasted along and only occasionally forced the play. George McGowan made two or three brilliant rushes. Bethel gave all they had and the strain was too much for some of the fiery boys in black and Referee Ross Burt was hard on penalties thick and fast. At one time only Kirby and Wright were left on but the Bethel crew were over anxious and failed to score. The last few minutes of the game was played on water covered ice with the players all way from head to foot and still trying in spite of their weariness. After the struggle the players rezalned on the ice as Mr. Joseph Wilson, President of the League, presented Judd McGowan, captain of the West Huntingdon team with the Joe Wilson Trophy symbolic of the League Championship. The entire team of West Huntingdon will journey to Trenton on Saturday to watch some other teams play for a change after turning in a real season's work themselves.

Line-ups:—

FOUR THOUSAND ROSES MARK THIRD BIRTHDAY

Four thousand, two hundred roses came to Belleville Thursday, the largest number ever given ever to come east of Toronto. The roses were for the ladies of Belleville and vicinity and the occasion was the third anniversary of the opening of the Bowra Electric and Hardware business in Belleville. Last year four thousand roses were given out to the ladies who honored the second anniversary by attendance and then there was not enough, as this year the number has been increased by four thousand two hundred in order to make good the Bowra slogan "There's a rose for you."

While this marks the third anniversary in Belleville the Bowra firm is not a mere fledgling having been in business for upwards of seventeen years and occupying a high place among the business firms of Canada.

The Bowra Electric and Hardware store specializes in shelf hardware, radios, electric refrigerators, electric stoves, electric washing machines, etc. also fine china and linware. It couples a fine, large, bright and attractive store, with a large staff of courteous experts in the various lines of goods handled. During the next two days the third anniversary will be celebrated and visitors will be welcomed and shown every courtesy and attention, while lady visitors will each receive a rose.

Congratulations to the Bowra Electric and Hardware and many happy returns.

THE ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER
DAILY ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER is published every afternoon (Sunday and holidays excepted) by The Ontario Intelligencer Building Trust Limited.

WORLD IS NOW CURIOUS

The royal message from His Majesty King Edward Eighth read in the British House of Commons yesterday by the Chancellor of the Exchequer in which reference was made to the need for revision of the civil list of the British royal family as ordered the Commons to bear "in mind the contingency of his marriage," so that in that event there should be provision for Her Majesty the Queen, and the members of His Majesty's family, corresponding to the provisions which the Commons has been willing to make in like circumstances in the past," naturally roused the keenest interest and the question which a Labor M.P. asked—whether there was any assurance from the King that he would marry was one which while millions would not ask it as the M.P. did yet it becomes a question which will provide from now on the greatest of interest.

Whether His Majesty has had matrimony for some time under contemplation or not, it is no doubt a matter of business to have brought up the question of the civil list of the royal family as the situation has changed materially with the death of His Majesty King George, that His Majesty King Edward being a bachelor, there is no prince of Wales and yet provision has to be made for his brother, His Royal Highness the Duke of York, in the event he succeeds to the throne and in certain events for his family and also for the Queen. The King has promised to bear a portion of the expenses of the Duke of York, from the revenue of the Duchy of Cornwall, which is used for the Prince of Wales but as there is no Duchy of York, in part for the Duke of York and for the King's own private purse.

The world which has followed the romance of Prince Wales as the world's most eligible bachelor, will continue to take a deep concern in any rumors of matrimonial relations and an abiding interest in the plans or lack of plans of the sovereign in regard to the marriage state.

34 PER CENT DIE TOO EARLY

Every year thousands of Canadians die of diseases which can be prevented, says a "Health Conservation" bulletin of the Health League of Canada, which asks the question why are not these diseases prevented? The answer is "we the rank and file of humanity have not kept step with our medical scientists. Our doctors are fifty years ahead of us. They have discovered ways and means of giving us immunity to several diseases, but we have not yet learned to demand this immunity. Man is the creature of habit. During centuries he acquired the habit of regarding disease as unavoidable. And today the average man —even the average statesman—retains that medieval attitude. Leaders of the people must come forward to save the thousands of Canadian lives that are lost, every year, through diseases which could be prevented. A nation-wide organized effort were made to prevent this loss. Some splendid work is being done by health departments in various parts of Canada. The following facts and figures will show that their work must be united in a great, national offensive against the common enemy —disease—which is silently and undramatically claiming our lives and our money. Canadians have shown how they can fight against a human foe. Disease is in our midst—far more dangerous enemy. In organizing to fight it, we have everything to gain and nothing to lose. But we must develop in the minds of our citizens a sense of individual responsibility, if national "health-mindedness" is to be achieved."

The Health Conservation claims that it would appear that one person out of three dies ahead of his time of disease which might be prevented. Prof. Winslow of Yale University, states that 29 per cent of all deaths in the United States registration area are postponable."

The pamphlet claims "an analysis of Canadian statistics would indicate that the average is higher—that 34 per cent of all deaths are postponable." "

Then is offered the following statement—"Similarly, Canadian statistics deafing with sickness indicate that over half of all disabling illness could be prevented. From two to three per cent of the people or 180,000 Canadians are always sick. Of these about 91 per cent to 97 per cent are ill enough to be disabled. So that between 1.82 per cent and 2.88 per cent, or say 2 per cent to be conservative, is always too sick to work. 180,000 persons ill unnecessarily form an expensive load for the people to carry.

For further details it is said that 54,000 adult males are continually ill, meaning a loss of sixteen million, two hundred thousand working days. Six females for twenty males is a fair average of employment in industry, and the female population loses 4,900,000 days, in industry a total loss for males and females of 21,000,000 days of which at least fifty per cent is preventable. This means that 10,500,000 days are lost through illness which can be prevented.

It is estimated in Canada that the annual loss from sickness totals $78,127,186 in institution of hospitals, doctors. Mothers' Allowance costs are higher because so many husbands die from or are killed by preventable diseases.

The League is at work to set up rural must be bought."

The booklet urges men and women to give the most wonderful machine in the world, "the flesh and blood machine" chance as they do with their cars. There is but one solution, according to the League —periodic health examination. To induce people to adopt this is the task.

A united front against disease is necessary for disease strikes from coast to coast and demands the best attention of Dominion and Provincial Governments.

RURAL DAWN

Sweeter sings the flicker, oh, safer walks the hare,
In comfort swims the shiner, and all gently runs the toad;
The shepherd's purse and trillium are grave companions where
A patriarchal alder greets a rabbit on his road.

Gentler leans the bluewood, oh, louder sings the thrush,
Unfearing trails the pine mouse, and all peaceful swims the trout;
At peace the grass-eyed weasel leaves his little world of brush
To sniff through royal hornbeam with a twitching thimble snout.

And gentler stirs the heartworld, oh, Compassion rules the muscles of travail and terror made;
O brothers of the temple, if the day dawn not again,
Write this: His day of parting held an hour unafraid.

—Bert Cooksley.

NOW THE CITY FATHERS HAVE RISEN IN RIGHTEOUS WRATH and decreed by proclamation under the Seal of the Sovereign Corporation of the City of Belleville that citizens who fail to clear the snow and ice from the sidewalks in front of their properties by Wednesday noon will have the same done for them by corporation employees and the expense of removing the slush charged against the property. Gosh! all hemlock! after we've slipped and skidded all winter over the ice and snow maintaining equilibrium only with the aid of both fenders, we're to get a break at last. EXTEMPORANEOUS SPEECHES MAY HIT THE BULLSEYE sometimes but more from good luck than otherwise, for the speech that makes a real and lasting impression is the one that blossoms from careful preparation. Here's a story more or less apropos.

There was a conference of ministers in a certain town. One lion-headed minister had sat quietly through it for a number of days until, toward the end, he was suddenly and unexpectedly called upon for a talk. He rose, thoughtfully and almost stumbled. Hugh fumbled for his words. Finally his thoughts took form, his words fell into the rhythm of a marching column, and his impassioned oratory beat down upon the upturned faces of his audience, until as he rose to his peroration and reached his climax, the whole sedate Conference broke into spontaneous applause that shook the room. He had delivered the master oration of the Conference. When finally the applause subsided, a cocky young D. D. strolled up to him.

That was a masterly address you delivered, without preparation," he said. "How long did it take you to prepare it?"

The older man looked gently for some time at the younger one before he answered, and then:

"Sixty years, young man, he said —"Sixty years."

PREACHERS DON'T ALWAYS KNOW WHETHER their sermons register or not, but one well known clergyman of many years pulpit experience recently had a striking example of the effect of his sermon preached in another town. He preached morning and evening on Sunday and on Monday morning early entered a place of business. There was a woman scrubbing the floor and she looked up at the preached, smiled, and said: "We liked your sermons very much yesterday." And the thought came to him that from the ground had come a message, an admonition to preach down, instead of up — in other words take the high-hat from the sermons and make them as that even the little

HOUSE APPROVES TRADE AGREEMENT

Premier King Concludes Debate on Important Legislation

Ottawa, March 11—(CP)—With the Canada-United States trade agreement approved in principle by an overwhelming majority vote the House of Commons turns today to consideration of tariff changes long mirred in the past.

Ending debate which extended more than three weeks, the House voted in reality the treaty last night and 175 members, Liberals, Social Crediters, adherents of the C.C.F. and Reconstructionist parties and Independents voted for the treaty. Only Conservatives opposed it and they opposed without exception by the number of 38, one Conservative member being absent.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King brought the debate to a close with a brief speech in which he replied to some of the Conservative arguments against the pact. He said the government considered the interests of consumers as well as producers while the Conservatives seemed to consider only the interests of producers.

Reduction in the Canadian tariff would benefit Canada as well as the United States. They would result in lowering the cost of production and the cost of living. The people of Canada, said Mr. King, were more interested in knowing how the members of parliament stood on the question than in further debate. Never before had an important agreement been supported so generally in the House and criticized so ineffectively.

No Details Given

The debate had proved one thing, the Prime Minister said, and that was that under no circumstances would a Conservative government have made any agreement with the United States. At the same time he claimed Conservative Leader Bennett was incorrect, when he stated he could have made the same agreement as the one before the House or a similar one.

On this point, Mr. King said he was precluded from disclosing details of the negotiations which led either by the Bennett Government or his own but he asserted there was evidence Mr. Bennett could not have obtained an agreement anything like the one before the House.

The Bill proposed by Oscar Boisvenger (Lib. Chicoutimi) in connection with the civil service was blocked out during Private Members' hour. It would remove the civil service outside Ottawa from the control of the Civil Service Commission, restrict the preference accorded ex-service men to veterans of the Canadian army and give labourers the power to appoint technical and professional staff necessary. A similar power reposed in the Civil Service Commission.

Canadian Tourists Will Be Benefited by Bill

Ottawa, March 11.—(CP)— The Government will, it is expected, bring into legislation providing for exemption of goods purchased by Canadian tourists in the United States up to $100, in the Budget is introduced.

When the Canada-United States agreement was negotiated Canada gave an undertaking that such exemption would be made, and the government stated legislation would be introduced to that effect. There is no definite time for its introduction has been announced, it is expected with the annual statement by the Finance Minister, when that is made.

Approval of the agreement by the House of Commons yesterday did not affect the $100 exemption. It was not part of the agreement, but special legislation will be required to make it effective.

The Lady who lost her looks

She could no longer deceive even herself. Now, she faced her mirror in that moment of sharp heartache that comes to many women . . . to some, years earlier than to others! She was getting old. Old! When she had every right to be young. But wrinkles had crept over her complexion. Eyes had lost their sparkle. Even her smile was tired—as tired as she felt!

Many a man wonders and many a woman worries, as youth and freshness fade, almost overnight, it seems. Frequently, common constipation plays its part,

When common constipation is to blame, it may cause headaches, sallow skins, unsightly pimples.

It may cut down your vigor, take the sparkle out of your personality. It is usually caused by meals that lack sufficient "bulk" to promote regular habits.

Kellogg's All-Bran brings your system an abundance of mild, effective "bulk."

Within the body, this "bulk" absorbs moisture, forms a soft mass, gently exercises and cleanses the system. Scientific experiments have proved that All-Bran is a gentle laxative food. Also that its "bulk" is often more effective than the "bulk" in fruits and vegetables.

Two tablespoonfuls daily, served with milk or cream, are usually sufficient. Stubborn cases may require All-Bran oftener. Isn't it better to enjoy this natural food instead of taking pills and drugs?

Serve Kellogg's All-Bran as a cereal, or cook into delicious muffins, waffles, etc. In addition to its "bulk," All-Bran provides vitamin B and contains iron.

Kellogg's All-Bran is not a "cure-all" —but it does correct common constipation. It is guaranteed by the Kellogg Company. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma and ma was downtown shopping and ma and some lady met each other on the street, the lady saying, Pawleen Johns, as I live and breathe, and ma saying, Jennie Harker, well of all the blue moons.

Being a lady with little eyes and a pointy nose, and the lady with a corpulunce I'm not Fanny Harker now, and ma said, Neither am I, naturally.

Meaning they was both married, and the lady said, What a meeting, just imagine.

Just imagine, ma said. This is Benny Bondy, this lady and I haven't seen each other since we were in high school together, she said.

Not seeming anything ester wonderful to me, and the lady said, Isn't it just too perfeck to bump into each other like this? and ma said, It's marvellous, and the lady said, I knew you the instant I set eyes on you, which you'll admit was pretty good on my part, because you used to be such a slim girl and now look at the darn thing, hee hee.

O come, I haven't changed so radically as all that, tell them you always wore a grate one for getting things wrong ma said. Do you remember your French exaner in Professor Reiter the history teacher when he asked you who were the Vikings? You told him they were half men and half horses. You were thinking of the whats their names, naturally, but it was so typical of you. That's why we was you the most naive girl in the class. We were going to use a more fowcawed word but we finely compromised on naive, hee hee. Well this is quite an experience, you never know what's going to happen when you leave the house, ma said and the lady said, Isn't it the truth?

And they told each other where they lived without inviting each other there.

Belleville Veteran Has 32 Operations

Toronto, March 11 (CP)—Discharged from Christie Street Hospital today after his 32nd amputation operation, William H. Smith, Belleville Great War veteran, returned to a Kingston hospital with the knowledge his stay there is hopeless.

Serving with the 38th Battalion, Smith was hit at Cambrai two days before the armistice was signed. He returned to Canada and his left leg was amputated below the knee. The trouble recurred, another section was amputated, a third and fourth and in the past 18 years he underwent a succession of 32 operations.

"They talk of war again in Europe," Smith said as he left Military Hospital. "I pity any boy in uniform today. They should look at fellows like me and realize what it means.

"I'm going back to the hospital at Kingston but I guess there isn't much hope. I never really gave up hope until today when they told me they could do nothing. Perhaps I can get out in the country for a while. It might help, but I don't know."

SABOTAGE REPORTED BY NAVY

LONDON, March 11.—(AP)—Lord Stanley, financial secretary of the Admiralty, disclosed another case of suspected sabotage in the British navy to the House of Commons today.

The latest case, he said, occurred in a private dockyard carrying out Admiralty work.

IN MEMORIAM

HARRIS—In loving memory of William John Harris, who departed this life March 12th, 1934.

Lay a bud or flower there,
Nothing saved to be worth while,
All we have left, dear Cassie,
Is memories of the days gone by.
God alone can heal the heartache,
He has made the wound sigh,
But oh, the saddest part of all
Is the lonely days gone by.
But we will meet you, Daddy,
In the glorious happy morn,
And never say goodbye.
Always remembered by and Florence.

GUILTY OF INTIMIDATING

Stratford, Ont., March 12—(CP)—Lionel Chalmers, one of 25 men arrested Monday in connection with relief strike disturbances, was convicted police magistrate Mathieu of a charge of intimidating workmen. He was remanded a week for sentence. Seven men appeared before the magistrate, charged with intimidation. Stone and William Chalmers intimated they were willing to have their trials proceed at Chalmers case will go on this afternoon.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

Apparently we are closer to a baseball season before the players actually cannot produced baseball players except in the coming out of baseball players in Ontario, and we have to import practically a whole team from the United States. The C.O.B.L., which is our opposition, has been in existence for the past years past Belleville produced her quota of ball players, and good players they were, but they don't believe there are a few local boys waiting for a chance to get into the league. Another reason, of course, we really don't need them, we have a team in a local baseball team for 1936 and we would have to be fitted for parts, but there is no need of talking of it when the registration of ball players.

If the younger ball players in the community are not given a chance to step into the shoes of the men in the senior ranks of the C.O.B.L., what is the use of sponsoring junior and juvenile baseball? We would have to disband our theory we refer the fans to the 1921 edition of the Galt Terriers, which was the senior O.H.A. baseball. We know from personal information that the Galt executive was faced with the same problem, that confronts Belleville to-day. What did the Galt means do best put up the barriers against the Galt Terriers? Why, they ever veterans ball players there are in the town and fill in the rest with promising juniors, who had never played a game of senior ball before. The result was the Galt Terriers with a "house key" team became champions of Ontario by defeating the Toronto Finals.

It's just as a veteran ball fan remarked to us, "Belleville has had importing players for the past few years in hockey and baseball alike and it's about time we had a team of our own." Walking our streets than were playing here now. Give our boys something to shoot at, a chance and you'll be surprised at the outcome, he predicted. They are going through practically the same situation that in Peterboro' and Belleville are considering placing a baseball team on the field. Down in Kingston there is a split in the ranks of the Frontenacs, the big baseball city, so much so that think they are the only ones with baseball players in the Limestone City. The baseball is charged with intimidation. Stone and William Chalmers intimated they were willing to have their trials proceed at Chalmers case will go on this afternoon.

Tonight at the Y.M.C.A. one last effort is being put forth to organize a senior city basketball team in Belleville. An opening meeting has been called and all interested are asked to attend. Some basketball boards are urged to be on hand to help "drive" the enthusiasm in the matter. There are a few basketball players who have been under the impression that the responsibility of starting the ball rolling towards the resurrection of a Belleville ball team, and they require the support of many others as it will be a long and laborious grind up-grade. It is hoped that good results will be forthcoming and all will get a shoulder behind the wheel and push baseball over the top again. There is no doubt but what "The ball cannot grind with wheels, that has grease."

Of course what we would like to see in the city take steps to procure the services of a coach for a few days at least to help in forming the proper coach was noted he could then take charge of the team during hockey, baseball and possibly football and it is safe to say that his salary would eventually be returned by the city's coffers through the medium of extra fares. There is no one known, that brings trade and prosperity to a community, which boasts of a good hockey or baseball team as Belleville and other towns of the city, who attends hockey or baseball games in Belleville are generally accompanied by groups of chants which would give those in the senior ranks of the Belleville Intermediate Hockey Team a chance to show what they could do. Belleville is sadly in need of a coach for their many sports, and among the athletes, who, generally speaking, have to shuffle for themselves, there is considerable amateur knowledge they gain the proper coaching. We do not mean to cast reflections in any particular direction, but firmly believe that a coach for the athletes would prove most profitable.

Pete Reschi's Albert College senior champions were first lined by Ray Day of Quinte Intermediate playoffs. They meet the winner of the series between the St. Michael's eximiete 35 to 31 in a world struggle in the Albert gym. Coach Reschi has drafted Schrieber for the "Irish" were the latter scoring 16 points in the game is slated to be played in the Collegiate gym at 8 o'clock with which time, the "yellow-jackets" will have the advantage of four points.

FRANKFORD IN FLOOD THROE

Furniture And Sawn Wood Floats Down The Streets

Frankford, Mar. 12 (Special) — With the entire main street under three feet of water, this village to-day is experiencing its worst flood in many years as the ice in Cold's Creek jammed last night causing a flood here. All business houses and stores were flooded in the afternoon while wood piles were washed away as the stove wood floated madly down the streets. With the waters rising rapidly at noon anxious residents were moving their furniture to safe quarters in the second stories of their buildings in the centre of the village.

Two washouts were reported on the C.N.R. right-of-way one mile south of here at 11 a.m. causing a delay in railway as the service was dispensed with. Trent street here is under three feet of water and worked frantically all night to endeavor relieving the flood pressure, but apparently without avail.

Considerable damage was reported by merchants as their goods and merchandise was damaged by water. Reports here also stated that the ice in the vicinity thereof on Peterboro' failed to make connections with the ice which caused the worst flood that has visited this part of the country in many years.

UNPRECEDENT FLOW OF WATER

(By The Canadian Press)

Ontario rivers flowing into Lakes Ontario and Erie flooded their banks today as early spring rains softened heavy ice and loosened thick snow. Heavy damage was caused, particularly at Belleville and Port Hope.

Railway bridges were washed out, railway lines covered and the roadbeds made unsafe and business sections flooded at Port Hope on Lake Ontario, and Belleville, on the bay of Quinte at the mouth of the Moira River.

Damage at Belleville was estimated at $50,000 as houses and wharves along the river were carried away and part of the business section was under water. Streets feet deep in some sections there, the water forced the wall off a large garage and swept away a footbridge.

Blasting was started at Belleville to relieve pressure as the railway bridge. The plant of The Ontario Intelligencer was flooded and part of the paper will be printed in Kingston today.

Worst in Years

Port Hope, at the mouth of the Ganaraska River, experienced the worst flood in years. Many stores and homes were flooded and business generally was hampered by the plant of the Nicholson File Company was under four feet of water and four streets near the junction of the river and Lake Ontario were impassable.

The Grand River, which usually rises a heavy cascade fall, went over during the night but is still within its banks and the belief is the worst is over.

Kitchener, Brantford and Galt dence on account of the flood). On reported the crest was past while Saturday, March 14th. Service in control. Near Brantford the water the funeral at 2 p.m. Interment at was sufficient to sweep away the Belleville cemetery. rooted ice. The bend above Galt there is a blockade but if sufficient water is let out there may be enough pressure to prevent flooding.

At Kitchener, three miles from Kitchener, ice cakes are still scurrying downstream. At Preston, between Kitchener and Preston, the water level is about five feet higher than normal but damage to property is expected.

A Canadian National Railways locomotive was derailed between Hapkance and Strathadam when it skidded on a washout near the Napanee River. No one was injured and none of the passengers left the train.

Heavy rains washed out the Canadian National line in Brighton, near Cobourg, and traffic was routed over the C.N.R. lines from just east of Brighton to Oshawa.

The Speed River, touching Galt, failed to go out although there is several inches of water running over the low bridge which has broken from the banks of several points. There is no indication of a jam and the situation is not dangerous.

The Grand River caused some damage as it poured whole fast water smashed over the river boundaries and inundated abutting lands and the Preston flats, Backyards of Fountain Street in Preston were completely covered.

YOUTHS PLUNGE INTO FLOOD WATER

To demonstrate the depth of the water on Front Street this morning, two youths, clad only in swimming suits, and with light shoes calmly poised on the edge of the New Ontario Hotel and then plunged into the water. The youths walked a few yards and down the street from the hotel. This probably has been calculated on Front St. before.

This Theatre will be closed ALL DAY THURSDAY, MARCH 12 to Repair Damages caused by the flood

CAPITOL THEATRE

FLOODS

Before noon the water had risen until the entire city hall was surrounded and the market square presented a lake-like appearance and the waters of the raging Moira racing madly down Front street. Large trucks were pressed into service and employees from downtown stores as the water rose to a two-inch level on the main floors of all business houses on Front street.

The water was running freely out of the Queen's Hotel main doorway while service stations and garages south of the city hall reported that the waters were over the gas pumps and buildings were wrecked badly by the large cakes of ice. The Capitol Theatre was flooded to a level of the main floor and the entire lower part of Front street in a torrent never previously equalled. The lower fire hall was flooded to a depth of about four feet while the upper end of Victoria Park presented a turbulent scene of madly racing waters.

Police and fire department are dispersed with regular activities to assist in the rescue work throughout the city, especially in the west side of the river and the lower end of Front Street.

Efforts to relieve the pressure of the flood were made at various intervals as C.N.R. officials have used dynamite all morning to endeavour opening the ice to move out, but without success as the waters continue rising to the turbine floors.

In several districts throughout the flooded sections, row boats were used to rescue residents who were marooned in their homes and to ascertain names at noon.

Sympathy was expressed today at the west end of the lower canal bridge in an attempt to shift three of the heavier ice cakes which clogged the lower end of Coleman Street. Along Coleman Street the flood assumed its heaviest proportions flooding the home of the Lock Look Company's plant. Ice cakes were piled high on the verandahs of some of the homes.

Patients and staff of the Belleville General Hospital were not affected by the flood today it was reported. No damage to the hospital was caused by officials of the local pumping station.

RAWDON CREEK FLOODS STIRLING

Worst Spring Freshet in Memory Floods Streets, Houses

Stirling, March 13 (Special)—Stirling today is experiencing the heaviest flood in the memory of the oldest resident. Rawdon Creek, which empties into Rawdon bay, is raging furiously as the result of last night's heavy rain and melting ice and snow through the district has overflowed its banks and many are marooned in their homes. Boats are plying through the central part of the village flooding business premises and residences. In some instances it has been necessary to remove the residents to get to and fro in the village. The water was estimated to be at its highest in the lower parts of the stores on Main Street.

SHANNONVILLE ESCAPES FLOODING

Shannonville was one of the few centres of this district which escaped damage by the flood. According to statements residents of the Salmon River is running high, but up to noon today had not overflowed its banks or created any damage to residents. Ice conditions are still open and no blockage on the highways is reported. So far no washouts have occurred.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McWilliams were hosts at a jolly birthday party on Friday evening, the occasion being the natal day of Mrs. McWilliams, mother, Mrs. Jacob Wannamaker. Thirty guests were present. A delicious supper at 8 o'clock brightened by spring flowers and centred by a lovely birthday cake. Progressive euchre was the evening's diversion with Mr. John Vesterveit winning the first prize, James Lowe-Brown a second and Winfield Harrison the consolation prize. Ladies' first prize was won by Mrs. Lyle Robinson, with Mrs. Arnold Wannamaker second. Music during the evening was furnished by Mr. Arnold Wannamaker and Mrs. Jacob Wannamaker. The guest of honour was presented with potted ferns and a potted rosebush; Mrs. Tim Rowson and Mrs. Alva Miller assisted in hooking after the guests and in most enjoyable evening was spent.

Mrs. Wesley Van Blaicom was the guest speaker at the March meeting of the Home and School Club, held in the Lecture Room on Thursday afternoon, March 5th. She spoke on "Child Welfare" emphasizing the debt we owe to children, who add so much to the happiness of the world by their purity and charm, the witchery of their play, their sheer delightfulness, and their influence of life. Taking the motto of the Children's Aid Society "Every child shall at least five an endurable life", she pointed out examples of what children have had through cruelty, neglect and sometimes from indifference, telling of one child with its own card county by ten C.A.S. where some of the area wards of the county. Her address was given in most interesting manner and was much enjoyed. Mrs. Rowson and Mrs. Sharp voiced the appreciation of the club for the fine address. With the President, Mrs. E. Ward in the chair, Founder's Day was observed by the singing of prayer, by the reading of the Home and School Creed by Mrs. Cook, and the "Code of ethics for Parents" by Mrs. Wallace. Following routine reports a piano solo by Miss Doris Knapp, was enjoyed and a duet by the Newman sisters, accompanied by their mother.

Mrs. Floyd Huff, of Brockville, who came to Picton to be with her nephew, Bernard Power, who is a patient in P.E.O. hospital, was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. Power, Bridge St. for a few days, returning to her home on Friday.

Mrs. Douglas Wark returned to Picton, on Monday after a two months' visit with her sister in Buffalo, N.Y.

The little six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Minaker, Wellington Road, who has been a patient in P.E. Co. hospital, returned to his home on Sunday, but his condition causes grave anxiety to family and friends.

Sergeant-Major James Mercer has been confined to his home for the past two weeks with illness but is now somewhat improved.

Mr. Bernard Cole has been employed by the C.N.R. Express Co., as driver of the truck from Picton to Belleville, and Mrs. Cole has been transferred from Picton to Belleville.

Mr. Emmerson Lott who has been ill since the fall is still confined to the house.

Farmers are optimistic about the prospect of a big run of sap this spring and several of them are this week making preparations for tapping their trees in the near future.

Several farmers in the neighborhood attended the sale of farm stock and implements held at the home of Mr. Asa Lloyd on Wednesday.

James Gilbert Laits, son of Gilbert Laits and Margaret O'Donnell, is today receiving congratulations from his many friends it being the occasion of his eighty-fourth birthday. He is enjoying good health and also does considerable gardening for a man his years. He was born at Laits on March 12th 1852, and has lived all his life in the district with the exception of a short time spent with friends in Florida and Toronto.

He recalls many interesting incidents in connection with the pioneer life of both Plainfield and Laits. In the days when thousands of logs were brought from the north by river drivers and floated down the Moira many of them being sawn in the two big mills operated at the above two places. The number of men were employed in the mills and sometimes as many hundred men would be encamped here for a period of time. He relates with thrills the thrill of crossing the river standing on a large rail and paddling his way over with the help of his gun as he returned from the chase.

One of his most adventurous experiences was in spearing a big muskinonge which drew him into some four feet of water and carried the boat back and forth down stream, finally with the aid of the fish spear which he had plunged into the side of the fish's head he managed to bring it to land. The fish when weighed tipped the flour mill scales at forty-nine and one half pounds. Many years afterwards when Mrs. K. Thompson, daughter of Mrs. Brintnell and her mother were visiting in North Dakota they attended a church meeting where a prize was given for the most thrilling true story told by any person present. Mrs. Tree told her uncle's fish story and captured the prize.

Mr. Laits has two sisters, Mrs. John C. Brintnell, Miami, Florida, who on Feb. 19th celebrated her eighty-ninth birthday and Mrs. Edward Mitchell, North Dakota, a younger sister. Norman Laits, Detroit, Mich., is one of his sons and Alfred Wright, 44 Millicent Street, Toronto, a daughter.

Mrs. Blake McMullen has returned home after several weeks visiting friends in Northumberland and other places.

Mrs. S. Whaley spent a few days at the home of her brother, Mr. O. H. Sloss.

THE ROYAL BANK OF CANADA

Stirling and District

Stirling, March 12—The weekly meeting of St. Paul's Young People's Union was held in the church parlours on Monday evening under the direction of the missionary department led by Mrs. Lindsay Brown, leader of the white division.

The opening exercises and devotional period was conducted by the president Miss Mary Hulin who opened the meeting with a short song service followed by prayer by Rev. R. W. Rowland. The scripture lesson which was taken from the 119th Psalm was read responsively. Mr. Lloyd Rowland was then placed in charge of the remaining portion of the program. The first number was an instrumental number by Mr. Maurice Bell "Afterglow" accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Rowland. The main feature of the evening was a debate resolved "That Home Missions offer a greater challenge to the United Church in Canada than foreign missions." The affirmative side of the question was very ably defended by Miss Mary Hulin and Mrs. Ashforth, Mr. J. Hulin and Mr. Fred Elgie brought out many impressive points in favor of the foreign side of the question. The very efficient staff of judges which included Miss Friday of the High School, Mrs. G. A. Wells and Dr. C. F. Wall had a task in selecting the winners but finally rendered the decision in the affirmative side. Mr. H. Lovebond officiated as timekeeper. The final number on the program was an interesting Negro contest directed by Mrs. Rowland in which the Khaki division gained first honours. This was a program of unusual interest and the entire membership of the society are grateful to all those who took part to make it possible and also to the committee in charge. The attendance recording system revealed a large increase in the number of members present.

St. Andrew's Guild Meeting

The regular weekly meeting of St. Andrew's Guilde was held in the Sunday school rooms on Monday evening with an unusually large attendance. The program for the evening was under the direction of the literary department with Miss Aleitha Spry 2nd. vice president in charge.

Mr. Duncan Montgomery acted as chairman for the evening and opened the meeting with a brief song service followed by prayer. Mrs. Dorothy Montgomery read the scripture lesson taken from the Psalms.

The next number was a very entertaining recitation by Shirley Montgomery entitled "Measles." Miss Dena Spry secretary then gave a detailed report of the last meeting. During the business part of the meeting the decision was reached that members of the organization be responsible for the entire program for the last Monday evening in March and the ladies to supply the refreshments.

At the conclusion of the business part of the meeting, Miss Jean Doyle gave as a reading, the famous poem of Riley' Goest Honestly" and said that it couldn't be done."

Miss Aleitha Hulin gave a brief address on the life and character of G. Mathieson writer of many splendid hymns. The most popular of all his works is the hymn "O Love that will not let me go" of which has been set to fine music by Dr. Peace and which was composed in the short space of time of three minutes in the year 1882. Miss Aleitha Hulin sang a hymn as a solo at the conclusion of the talk accompanied at the piano by Miss Mae Johnson. Mrs. Duncan then gave a brief talk dealing with the famous hymn "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say", which was written by Horatius Bonar, a famous Scottish the author and Presbyterian minister. Mrs. Horatius Bonar who wrote many of the now favorite hymns, during his lifetime.

This fine old hymn was also given as a solo by Mr. Arthur Dodson and Christian Farmer spoke briefly on the fine old missionary hymn "Rescue the Perishing." Old story written by C. Hanley who lived from 1834 to 1911, during which time he wrote this and many other famous hymns of the same type. The audience joined in the singing of this hymn which brought to a close this interesting meeting. After the benediction Miss Aleitha Spry directed an interesting "Old saying bonanza."

MOUNTAIN VIEW

Mountain View, March 13—Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Cronkwright and Mr. Cowley spent an evening recently with Mr. and Mrs. Percy Alkerd of Trenton.

Miss Mary Hamilton Reg. N. returned home last week after spending a few days with her brother, Mr. William Hamilton and family of Napanee.

Mr. F. J. Weagant of Picton was a recent caller of Mr. H. J. Parliament.

The Mountain View Y.P.U. held their social evening on Tuesday with the M.B.Y.S. Y.P.U. as their guests. The Devotional period was opened by the tune of hymn No. 196 followed by prayer by Mr. Walter Hamilton. The scripture lesson was read by Mr. Gordon Langstaffe. The president then welcomed the M.B.Y.S. which numbered over thirty-five. The closing hymn was No. 194. The meeting was then turned over to the M.B.Y.S. The President Mr. Albert Reed took charge of the programme. Mr. Cromwell lead their scripture on which the theme of the programme was based. Interesting readings were given by Miss Taylor, Miss Maxwell, Miss Reed and Mrs. Claude Maxwell. Miss Ina Bowen gave a piano solo. Mr. Albert Reed gave an appropriate Leap Year reading. Misses Bruce Wilson and Clair McPaul gave an instrumental on the Guitar and violin. Mr. Garland Wilson sang "Shine on Me Lamp Lighting time in the Valley." Mr. Reed on behalf of the M.B.Y.S. thanked the Mountain View Y.P.U. for the very entertaining evening. Mr. Walter Hamilton then asked for a few minutes in which to make a presentation for a member who was leaving the club. Miss Joyce Keeble past secretary of the M.B.Y.S. was asked to come forward and the following address was read by the president:

Dear Joyce:

We the Mountain View Young People's Society are assembled here tonight and as you know we have met this occasion pass without showing some appreciation for the cheerful whole hearted service you have always so willingly rendered us.

We ask you to accept this lamp and as its beam shed their radiance upon you, may it also remind you of the Mountain View Y.P.S.

Signed on behalf of the Y.P.S. of Mountain View Church: President: Walter Hamilton; Secretary Miss Beatrice Vanwart.

Miss Olive Vanwart presented the lamp with a few humble lines. Joyce very suitably replied thanking the Y.P.S. for the present and asking them to come and see her. All joined in singing "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow."

The rest of the evening was spent in games and contests. Miss Bristol put on the contest, parts of which were conducted by Mr. Albert Reed. Community singing was then enjoyed using some of the old favourites. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess and a social good time enjoyed by all.

Correspondent.

PLAINFIELD W. I.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Simmons entertained the members of the W. I. and their husband; Thursday evening, March 5th. The president, Mrs. Ward Outwater, was in the meeting, opening with the Institute Ode and the Lord's Prayer, after which a number of Irish songs were sung. The roll call was answered by Favorite Irish Quotations. The minutes were read and business discussed. Contests included a paper on "Advertising" by Mrs. F. Hodgen. Piano Instrumental by Jean Cow; Reading, "The Befooled Card Player" by Mrs. H. Harrison; Reading by Jack Monks, "The Little Old Church of My Dreams"; Reading by Miss Waddell, "My Alliance with Faithful" by Harry Harrison; Songs by Jean Mills and Walter and Howard Elliot. After singing "God Save the King" a substantial lunch was served.

Dale Plays The Game

—BY—

Ann Forester

Goodnight, job! Dale thought resignedly. Clough would fix that. Fix it coo, so she would have trouble getting work; at another bank. And there was so little time left to earn money. Store work—office work—she was inexperienced in either. How could she support herself and still save or find herself the thing which had only her to look for aid? Why hadn't she been more tactful, more helpful, more human into consideration?

But the beauty of his hands on her body had been sacrilege. His lips—after Brantt! If Brantt had been there he would have nearly killed Clough—as he'd almost killed Steve Kenny! Then, like a bitter spring bubbling in her heart—as Brantt didn't care. Brantt wanted only Mimi!

Heartless creature over her like a shadow, leering her cold. Don't think of Brantt! Here—she was home—

Dale had taken a room in a cheap theatrical hotel. Never mind how she lived, but as that the account at the bank would swell.

The room was a dismal affair, built on an alley with only one window which looked directly into the window of the room opposite it. Though Dale drew the shade to shut out the brightening light, she could not shut out the voices of the men and women in the other room who quarreled loudly and bitterly.

Dale groaned and pulled the pillow over her head. Her body, in the short hours of dawn, seemed to be school by the excitement throbbing through it. Sleep would not let her relax. Memories came through her mind—— Brantt's face—Brantt's voice—Brantt's blue-gray smoke. The moody dreaming mood and the quickening, strong, Brantt's brown face—steady eyes—teeth flashing in their white smile. She moaned and rolled over.

Head and light and the harrowing roar of the city below. "Oh, please, dear God, let me sleep" said the girl aloud. White faced Dale she looked in the mirror at 9 and thumped the pillow.

Then it was night. It was time to go to the Jubilee Gardens.

"What for?" Dale asked herself resentfully as she watched the hall light fall through the transom only to be replaced by sun going there to be fired..... Clough would see to that. Oh, well.... She dragged herself from bed.

At hot night. The cafe crowded—dining. Dale's eyes roved the room, looking for which she danced with or Brant on the dance floor. Clough's empty table caught her attention. Then Dale's heart leaped—his grey head towering above the crowd. Clough came in!

CHAPTER IX.
THE BRACELET

Against her will Dale felt her eyes drawn over to Clough's gaze. The chorus were filing off the floor after a turn. Clough made a hasty interception motion toward the chair opposite him and after a moment's hesitation, Dale approached.

Clough had done much curious thinking during the day. Many women had captured his fancy—pale faced, flashily dressed, factory girls in his youth when he had worked as a stevedore on the docks—the painted dames of a select world—bold eyed, full lipped girls of the stage—but Dale Forester was one of the strange crook world.....

Something different, however, about this new girl who had taken his fancy. He sensed the refinement of her. And it did not realize how much the trace of misery about her wheeled his interest.

As Dale came up Clough nodded to the chair, "Sit down, Angel Face. Never expected to find you here, nice and friendly like this, did you?" His small, shrewd eyes were watching her closely.

"No," said Dale simply.

"Thought I'd get your job, didn't you?"

"No."

"I should have. That was a peach of a crack you gave me today."

"You frightened me," Dale explained.

He studied her for a long moment. "It's been years," said Clough slowly, "since I've seen a girl blush the way you did today. It kind of got me. You know why I call you Angel Face?" he asked abruptly. Dale knew. That sort of thing happened every day. Honey Boy Kenny, Mimi Brantt, Brantt and Pa were old. What would become of her friendless little one? Dead, official, should God have it..... She must get money somehow. Right now, before Clough left.

That bracelet Clough showed her must be worth at least $300.00.....

Dale was the last one in the dining room. She smiled over at Clough.

CHAPTER X.
A Confession

Clough took Dale home. He slipped the diamond bracelet on her wrist. He gave her dollar bills to buy her lips for a "manicure"—and shut the door behind her.

Clough wondered why he bothered with this chilly, little dancer. He considered dropping Dale and like an ideal, she remained unmarried. She came when he seemed sweet, aloof, cool..... In reality she was feverishly, wildly, furiously in love with the insatiable greed of mother love. She must have a child to love and hold in the future. Then, should she die, that small and helpless Dale would be dependent on Clough. He was certain her child would be a girl. Dale's eyes were grey and her hair was dark desire. A girl would seem nearer to her. A boy would remind her of her self. A boy need a father more than a girl did?.....

Brant's child would be unknown to him. So she must get a small sum for its education. Something murderous leaped in Dale's heart at the thought of Mimi or Mrs. Kendall raising Brant's child. They hated her—they would hate the child.....

Quickly, Dale schemed to make that wall of protection grow. A promise of hate that she had met Clough. Had it not been for him, she would have her job at the Jubilee Gardens. She could not dance so well as the other girls. Life in the dressing rooms became entrenched warfare. The others resented the favoritism. At one time this would have hurt Dale—have stung her. Now she closed eyes and ears to the scenes of strife. They didn't count. Nothing counted save that small, growing sum in the bank.

The peculiar arrangement between the couple existed through its very peculiarity. Clough got the girl he wanted, merely for admiration. He chuckled as Dale drove home with him one morning.

"Imagine me—adopting a girl home like this an' shaking hands goodbye at the door like any sappy high school sheik!"

Dale ruled Clough's coarser nature by her delicate daintiness. Something servile in him responded to her high handed methods.

It became Clough's custom to wait for Dale, either in his own car or a taxi, to drive her home in the dawn. Sadness disliked her, but so long as she had Clough's fancy he was afraid of her. The girl knew eyes, Clough's his nose was called enough. "I've had you on my mind all day—Oh, at first, I could hardly wait to get you—of course, but afterwards I got to thinking—and I couldn't get you out of my mind. I got you that way."

Without taking his gaze from Dale's face Clough breathed into his pocket and fished out something twisted carelessly in tissue paper.

It lured it and Dale's breath and Dale unrolled it. She gasped. Sterling bracelet of platinum links studded with small diamonds, delicate, yet strong. Which in some mysterious way had come to Clough's hands.

"Like it, Kid?"

Dale's slender fingers played with it. Her lashes swept upward and Clough could not read the expression in her eyes. She tossed it back across the table.

"It's pretty."

"It's yours."

Dale shook her head. "No."

Clough gripped the glittering thing and held it out to her.

"You're a funny kid. I'm damned if I know why I bother with you."

Clough stayed the rest of the night hunched over the table, nodding curtly, now and then, to acquaintances. Speaking briefly to Hadens. His eyes went to the dance floor only when Dale went on with the rest of the chorus.

The dressing room was electric with curiosity. Not a girl present who wouldn't have stood in Dale's French slippers.

"And she isn't giving Clough a bumbler!" said the little red head who shared Dale's dressing shelf. "Something funny about that, too. You ought to see her undercloths! They must have cost a house an' lot! She had a wardrobe packed before, if you ask me!"

Indifferent to the whispering Dale followed her own bitter thoughts. Which was the dream—the night life she had been in or the life with Brant which had ended in the night? Dale thought she had been so sudden that she had not grasped it yet. A sudden turn, like the sharp climax of a melodrama and the entire pattern of her life had changed. Mrs. Kendall and Brant were dead..... Dale found herself beginning to tremble, her throat was dry.

Here—stop it! Crying over a man who had been a murderer! Was that what girl that's what you did today. It kind of got me. You know why I call you Angel Face?" he asked abruptly. Dale knew. That sort of thing happened every day. Honey Boy Kenny, Mimi Brantt, Brantt and Pa were old. What would become of her friendless little one? Dead, official, should God have it..... FRONT STREET, BELLEVILLE

EATON GROCETERIA

Tweed and District

Tweed, March 11.— (Special)— Facing a three goal deficit in their first game of the season, Tweed defeated Madoc on Friday evening the local intermediate hockey team convincingly but unavailingly at the Arena on Monday night and were forced to be low to a second defeat by a score of 2 to 1 to give visitors the round by a score of 4 to 2 and the right to meet Stirling for the championship of the township of Hungerford.

The largest crowd of the season turned out for the attraction and the turnstiles clicked merrily as the fans from miles around gathered. Following of nearly a hundred fans who journeyed from Madoc on the first time in several years there was a line-up at the entrance and a double line of spectators, nearly 600 in number, around the boards. Whatever else may be omitted it must be confessed that a Madoc-Tweed game lacks thrills. The ice was in good condition early in the game, but as the game progressed became sticky and good hockey was out of the question.

Lead at Intermission

The locals presented a re-vamped line-up owing to the absence of Buck Leal, stalwart defenseman, who is still suffering from the shoulder injury sustained in Belleville. Changes was taken from the "kid-line" and thrust into the breach. The youngster tried hard, but his defense mate cannot be made out of a forward overnight. He inadvertently permitted Madoc their second tally as he kicked the puck into his own net when trying to get it out of "Boyey" Alexander's reach. It would be unfair to say Boyey was in anyway to blame as the goal was out of position at the time.

Madoc did not make the mistake of playing a defensive game until late in the game, but tried to add to their margin. Their best efforts were unavailing as the local goalkeeper Stanley Leal, Murray and Shangus back-checked like fiends. Alex Grier got a penalty for cross-check to be followed by Zimmerman and Leal for mixing things up. Madoc ragged the puck successfully till the sides were at full strength. Bowyer got the puck near the penalty box as he stepped on the ice and lifted a fooler at Tweed goal. To the consternation of local fans and the jubilation of the visitors it lodged in the twine for the softest goal of the season. Smith rushed Maguire in a scoring position and got the gate. Whytock and Thurston around the ice as the referee and watched the proceedings from a seat behind the timekeeper. During absence Madoc got their second counter as noted.

Gaps Plowed Up

The game was slowed up considerably with officials due largely to adverse ice conditions. The locals in spite of a five-goal deficit seemed inadvertently panicked. Many of their second tally as he kicked the puck into his own net when trying to get it out of "Boyey" Alexander's reach. It would be unfair to say Boyey was in anyway to blame as the goal was out of position at the time.

Visibility Poor

During the final frame a heavy fall of smoke hung over the ice making visibility poor. Maguire, Meaney, and Alex Grier penalized this frame but the scoring was ended for the night. Sticky ice prevented good hockey. Madoc seemed content with their safe margin of four goals and devoted most of the last ten minutes in lofting the puck into the air from the centre of local fans.

Burch, of Trenton, kept the game well in hand, by handling out penalties for everything permitted from 2 to 5 mins.

The line-up:—

Madoc—Goal, Nickle. West and Whytock, defence, Keller, centre; Zimmerman, Bowyer and Alex. Grier, wings.

Ross, A. Ross, Smith, Embury, subs.

Tweed—Goal, Thompson; Tweedie and Leal, defence; Shangus, Meaney, centre; Shangus and Maguire, wings. W. Leal, Embury, Ellis, subs.

FLOOD SITUATION EASES SLIGHTLY: C. P. R. SECTION HAND LOSES LIFE

Flood Waters in City Recede as Temperature Takes Sudden Dip Today

Water Still Flowing on Front Street And Highway Blocked

ICE CAKES REMOVED

Those Rescued Are Not Yet Able to Return to Homes

Belleville's worst flood in a generation or more passed today as temperatures hovering in the zero mark forced the relentless spring Thursday morning, to flood from sixty to seventy per cent of the business and residential section of the city, stayed the hands of thousands of the natural forces there was the threat of increased hardship for those who willing to stay in their inundated homes, hoarded in the capital happiness before small fires or electric heaters and walked flood developments.

Many Rescued

A gale afternoon and evening snowfall of several inches in depth carrying a cold of coldness, chilled the flow of the waters that, during they way into the river in the immediate of Belleville, and for a time at least, it appeared that further and higher levels would be some time down to completely the Front street business section. This view proved correct as the waters ascended during the night and in approximately the area bounded from the lower bridge northward. South of Belleville Bridge the water was lower but the drop was not so marked. Many business places and homes had been evacuated, except for water from the river to Front street, Victoria avenue, Bridge street, Pinnacle street, Bleecker avenue, Hill street, Collins Bay road, Bridge street and Bridge street west, Dundas street.

In few if any of the places were there any signs of return to normalcy or to any of the steps to be taken cannot be foretold. Ice which blocked some of the parks and on Front Street roadway and sidewalk in large three foot ice cakes were scorched on the

In the event of severe weather there is the danger of a number of unable citizens in the flooded area, on account of the inundation of heating or entire lack of heating in apartments, stores and homes.

Water Flows Down

A sudden drop in the temperature during the night would have been considerably relieved the flood situation in the city generally, conditions would be far from being satisfactory. There is considerable water running from above on the Front street west of the top of the four corners, while the Provincial Highway entering Belleville Bridge to the foot of Murray's Hill is still blocked for traffic. Many cars also remain stationary on the main highway, while water is on the lower end of Dresser street still rapidly rising to a depth of three to four feet. Wharves Park is still inundated.

Although Firemen and Police worked practically 24 hours without rest, they were again on the job this morning picking up the pieces of goods and aiding those in need of help. Only emergency calls were made, removing the large cakes of ice, and they were assisted by the Public Utilities Commission.

Officers assisted in directing the traffic, when part of West Bridge street was flooded and the water covering their patrols on the Provincial Highway. Officers rowed boats outside the city and who were unable to make deliveries on the streets were able to reach them by the city and a milk shortage, that was feared has been relieved. Bakers were also able to supply their customers and with the exception of certain supplies available, the seriousness of the situation was relieved.

Police Busy

The Metra River is clear of ice from Lester's Dam to the Belleville Vulcanizing Company but beyond this dam the ice is still there. Ice is still holding in solid, ice with no chance of it breaking up or going over the dam for some time. Dynamiting is being continued under the supervision of the O.P.R. below the railway bridge with the hope that a channel will be opened from the river into the Bay of Quinte. The ice is not moving slightly in the river nearly up to the upper bridge.

Those rescued from dwellings and carried to warmth and drier homes are unable to return to their homes, logged dwellings today as the water has not receded to any extent. Mrs. Cora Bleecker, 70 Bridge street west, Wilson, who was rescued from dwelling, is in stilled condition with pneumonia developed today. Mrs. Wilson suffering from a heart condition, is confined to hospital authorities to be a little better today, while Mrs. Richardson, 62 Bridge street west is

SWOLLEN FLOODS HASTEN TO SEA

Millions of Dollars of Damage is Done in U. S. Areas

New York, March 13 (AP)—The icy crests of unprecedented swollen streams pressed down toward the sea today, leaving at least seven persons dead, endangering thousands and causing millions of dollars damage in eastern United States.

The flood situation by States and areas of peak danger:

Pennsylvania—In the vicinity of Wilkes-Barre, the Susquehanna River drove 250 families from their homes and 1,000 others were posted for evacuation. Evacuation of nearby Kingston was under way.

New Jersey—Thousands of homes in the Delaware and Raritan Canal River valley were threatened by rising waters while the toll of dead in the state apparently had survived its worst flood menace.

New York—Victims of debacles already, Watkins Glen, Montour Falls and Elmira, Chemung county.

Connecticut—The swirling Housatonic river tore three bridges away. Fifteen railroad washouts were reported.

Massachusetts—The Calumet dam across the Hackstone River at Uxbridge gave way, causing great damage. Hundreds were homeless in their homes by high waters at Southbridge.

New Hampshire — Forty persons were driven from a village near Portsmouth without food near Plymouth; 20 passengers and 13 crewmen of a Boston and Maine train were rescued in boats when the train was marooned by washouts.

Maine—Scores of families fled their homes in the floods of the Saco River at Biddeford were closed; three hospitals were without lights or heat.

FUEL AND FOOD PROBLEM LOOMS IN FLOOD AREA

Police Are Called to Protect Property From Salvagers

With fire flooded out in the stricken area relief rescues and workers in and around the Front end of Murray's Hill were faced with the problem of providing heat for the thousands residents at the lower end of Coleman and James Streets, while the question of providing food supplies also confronted the firemen, who carried on continuously and were assisted by citizens in boats.

Considerable damage to property was reported in the wake of the flood as houses were damaged by the ice floes and automobiles in the garage and automobile were carried down James Street during the night by the rushing torrent, the vehicle abruptly stopping against a large tree on the corner of James and James Streets where it was still lodged today.

Police were called to protect property that had floated down Front Street to Victoria Park an attempt tried to recover a large quantity of automobile accessories that were carried away from local garages in the path of the flood.

'FRIENDS OF PEACE' WILL STAND TOGETHER'

Moscow, Mar. 13 (AP)—France's ratification of the Franco-Soviet mutual assistance pact was hailed as an official Soviet spokesman today called the first warning to German cadets rallied to the support of European peace instead of standing together.

TRAFFIC IS RESUMED

Damage to the bridge at Anson, east of Campbellford, which tied up traffic on the Belleville-Peterboro road the yesterday has been repaired and traffic is again over the bridge, which is shaked at the C.N.R. depot today.

DYNAMITE HELPER

Artificial Respiration is Doctor's Surgery Fails to Revive Man

Belleville's worst flood in history took its toll with a life at the height of the raging torrents about 4.30 p.m. last night. Although the evidence was the entire proceedings, a local citizen did see Archie Irwin, 52 year old Sharbot Lake C.P.R. employee, lose his balance and fall into the turbulent waters of the Moira River at a point where the flood waters are rushing under the C.P.R. tracks the C.P.R. bay bridge crossing culvert.

Mr. Irwin was employed by the C.P.R. and was in Belleville in connection in relieving the flood by dynamiting the ice in the bay below the C.P.R. railway bridge yesterday afternoon. Accompanied Mr. Irwin and other railway workmen was Frank Smith, the driver of the bay bridge crossing to relieve the pressure of the ice jamb, which was in danger of releasing a large cake of ice Mr. Irwin lost his balance and fell into the flood waters and disappeared.

James Kolozsi, a local lad, who was passing at the time, Mr. Kolozsi immediately dived in after Mr. Irwin but was unable to find him. Mr. Irwin and other railway workmen rushed to the C.P.R. culvert in tents of her family, Mr. Clendinning, by a boat, were saved by the Quinte Rescue Patrol, consisting of Sidney Tuttle and Lloyd Wilson, out of danger. Robert Ralph, last night, who was also rescued from the flood water was reported saved and unharmed this Thursday afternoon.

FLOOD WATERS IN BELLEVILLE

Thursday's Rescues

A near fatality occurred during the height of yesterday's flood, when William Pooples, 70 years old, fell overboard from Front Street in the turbulent flood waters. Mr. Pooples was rescued unharmed by a group of residents in the Capitol Lunch room, when he lost his balance on the icy pavement and slipped into the water that were surging down from Front Street into the Queen's Hotel. Unable to regain his balance Mr. Pooples was in danger of his life as he was swept in the general direction of the harbour and was unable to stand himself until he reached a point at the upper end of Victoria Park, where he held on one of the piers of the G.T.R. bridge until assistance came.

Fireman and police hurried to the scene in the city ambulance and after securing a row boat, Fireman Frank Frost and two citizens managed to row to the assistance of the helpless man, who was unable to get into the boat owing to the raging waters. Eventually Mr. Pooples was brought to shore as he had to the rear of the boat.

Rescue on Streets

Hundreds of citizens thronged the downtown area armed with cameras to take pictures of the record wood flood. Amateur cameramen were seen perched in lofty positions at strategic points where the flood promised the best shot picture.

As late as 1.30 p.m. on Thursday rescue parties were seen in boats paddling about the streets, removing stranded residents from their homes. Many were seen to climb on the roof of a house on Coleman Street and wait there for a boat to take those where he received first aid and warmth. Names and addresses of stranded residents at the police station at an early hour today as workmen still had the west side of Front St. stranded residents or provide them with food.

Boats Are Rescued

Commercial travellers who parked their automobiles on the rear of hotels on the east side of Front St. on Wednesday night, received a severe jolt when the flood waters forced their automobiles were submerged and their samples spoiled. On the flood peak with a vengeance early Thursday, giving business houses little or no chance to save their merchandise and stock.

Members of the local fire and police departments laboured tirelessly in row boats to rescue scores of stranded families in the vicinity of Coleman and Sandford Streets, the majority of whom were forced to the upper stories of their homes and some were without food for the greater part of Thursday. Rescue work at first was handicapped through the lack of adequate boats to assist the sudden rush of water, but once order was restored by local authorities however, the rescue parties of firemen, police and citizens were quickly relief and carried the stranded residents to safety.

Need Power Boats

Owing to the fact that merchants on Front Street were unprepared for the sudden rush of waters, it was estimated that the loss sustained by local business houses would run into many thousands of dollars. Only on Wednesday did the business merchants commence the task of storing of stock in highthy quarters, but when the flood broke, it completely spoiled with the result that the entire cellar stocks of food stuffs, clothing and other lines of merchandise was destroyed. The water in the worst flood in the history of Belleville.

Immediately upon receiving word that the footbridge had been swept away, city officials are reported to have been calculating upon the possibility of a new bridge.

All along the river bank on the west side of the Metro Joint' verandahs, small buildings and sheds were torn from the moorings and drifted completely down the river. Furniture was seen floating down Coleman Street after having been washed from verandahs along the street.

Trains of Cars Left on Bridge

For a large portion of Thursday afternoon a portion of Main coal cars were left on the Canadian Pacific Bridge at the river mouth, Late in the afternoon these were also moved. Meanwhile all afternoon the occasional booming of the dynamite failed of the river mouth south of the bridge.

Individually upon receipt of information from the highway department that roads east and west of Belleville were impassable yesterday, commercial travellers, who had been stranded in the city, accepted their lot and remained in local hotels.

Business Disrupted

Business on Front Street was largely at a standstill as merchants worked feverishly to protect whatever stock remained undamaged on the premises. Many of the basement floor, Monday traffic was suspended on all directions as roads and highways were washed out and impassable.

With the presence of an aeroplane hovering overhead at noon and the sound of repeated blasts of dynamite which was set off to relieve the flood pressure, yesterday's excitement at times brought back the old war days as far as sounds were concerned.

height of the flood. Residents in the vicinity of the corner of Bridge Street, Sandford and Coleman streets refused to leave their homes as the water rushed through the lower floors. Rescue parties in boats tried in vain to persuade many of the unfortunate residents to leave their homes but owing to the fright, they refused to vacate their water-filled rooms. Those who were prevailed upon to leave their flooded homes included upon taking along the family pets. In one home a woman refused to leave until her two cats and canary had been rescued. Mr. Ralph to find the cats proved trying; however, as they were hiding frightfully in the upper parts of the home.

In the vicinity of Brock Street a woman became hysterical and it was necessary to carry her from the premises. As the flooded waters continually rose to dangerous heights. The entire first floors in some of the homes of that district were completely submerged as the water rose to a height of three feet in the downstairs front rooms of many homes in the lower end of Murney Ward.

Another Peril Feared

Cats, dogs and other small animals and chickens were seen floating helplessly down the streets on Murney Ward south of Bridge Street, especially all day yesterday. It was useless to try and save them as rescue workers skilled.

Hats off to the fire and police departments, they laboured long and strenuously trying to assist the marooned residents in the flooded areas. In boats, on foot and in every conceivable manner these rescue workers, assisted by hundreds of citizens, worked among the helpless all Wednesday night and Thursday. Even the darkened hours last night in Belleville's worst flood in years, when the howling alleys at the Y.M.C.A. were submerged under the turbulent waters.

Although the Ontario Intelligencer of yesterday, that was published in Kingston, did not arrive in the city until nearly 2.30 p.m. the entire output was sold out in a little over one hour.

Owing to interferences. In Hydro poles all street lights on Front street and the downtown area were out last night, due to broken wires and damaged transformers. The main business section of the town was in darkness. The only light was in total, except for the Front Street store and the corner of Cliff and Highway were washed out and impassable.

With the presence of an aeroplane hovering overhead at noon and the sound of repeated blasts of dynamite which was set off to relieve the flood pressure, yesterday's excitement at times brought back the old war days as far as sounds were concerned.

upon which to rest."

Firemen, police and Provincial police continued rescue work in Murney West this morning when residential and relief was needed in homes below Bridge Street, where the flood still was in progress at noon, although the waters had receded considerably since the flood point was considered past. Assisting the firemen and local police yesterday were Inspector Frank Chartrand and his entire staff of Provincial Police, who worked all day rescuing boats in the flooded area.

Fortunately no major accidents were reported by the two Motorcycle Police Constables Earl Reeve and Bert Delaney. The traffic officers reported that traffic was slowed down considerably on the highways early yesterday, but had regained normally today as the waters receded.

IMPLEMENT PRICE SUSPENSION SOUGHT

Ottawa, March 13 (CP)—Two reports on agricultural implements committee were presented to the commons today, the first begging an investigation on prices of farm implements. One report asked authority to obtain counsel, auditors and technical experts to assist in the inquiry into the prices.

Price lists of Canadian manufacturers of farm implements this year showed a considerable increase over the prices a year ago. This class was approximately the same time as duties were reduced to 3 1-3 per cent by the Canada-United States trade agreement. It was said this stepping up of prices the committee earlier today made preparations to investigate.

The second committee report expressed the opinion the price increase should not be put into effect until such time as the inquiry had been completed. The report was the cause of sharp debate in the meeting of the committee.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

New York, March 13 (CP) — Bald County Judge John J. Fitzgerald, of Brooklyn:

"What a dumb jury!" You had better submit his case and then you come back with this verdict. Get out of this courtroom. I'll direct that you be taken to a sticken from the Bar."

The jury which had just acquitted Mack McLeod, negro, who had wanted to marry girls, by robbing a radio store but was prevented by the assistant district attorney from doing that plan.

He offered no defence and patrolman Edward Trees testified he saw McLeod break a window, enter the store and come out with a radio set.

Spokane, Wash., March 13 (CP) —If Friday the thirteenth excites H. H. Stevens today it'll have to sneak up on him at home. Afraid of the jinx a year ago, Stevens says he lost three fingers. And that misfortune's anniversary came when him break a leg and lose his automobile by fire. So today he planned to keep indoors.

Columbus, O., March 13 (CP)— The grandstand was credited today with saving the lives of innumerable rabbits during the night. The grandstand was found dead in his bachelor apartment here yesterday. Native of Cohers, Ont., Farrand is believed to have died following a heart attack.

Vancouver, March 13 (CP) —A bald eagle left here yesterday for South Africa. It was a gift from friends of Captain Lage for Dadia. There legit, and it seemed likely the eagle also will be used for sending matches in factories in India.

Silver Lookout, March 12 (CP) —Russel Bentley of Kenora is in hospital here as result of an accident which he says always does near here yesterday. Bentley was returning to Silver Lookout from the Red Lake district with Art Schade, pilot, when the accident occurred. Details were lacking.

London, March 12 (CP)— Cupid's messenger for peaceful is the latest title of General Manager E. C. Bradshaw of the Public Utilities Commission. Scenes Pathetic, Humorous homes were flooded and for whose safety and comfort they were most anxious. Early in the morning it was reported that the basements of some of the sufferers by telephone and that the telephone connections were interfered with by the flood and this means of communication with friends was available.

Little Business Done

In the above way it was possible to do business very little buying took place and the merchants allowed all those members of the various times to see the flood, retaining only a sufficient number on duty to take care of any business that might happen to call. In fact the stores, stationery stores and other places where canners, films are kept in stock, quite a business was transacted with persons desiring refills for their cameras in order to take views of the flood. Referring to flood pictures, Mr. Charles Wright, photographer was very interesting pictures of old time floods and judging from the photos of other days compared equally with the flood of last week, finally induced it to radiate some warmth.

Walk in To Take

To relieve the depressing influence of the effects of the flood there were some amusing happenings, one of which was the sight of Mr. John Hall, whose furniture store business is situated on the floor below the Bank Room, emerging from that store in company with Mr. Stewart Bank, staff of the Bowen, both having their feet encased in small tin tubs and Mr. Cook carrying a bucket under in his hand. The water at that time was flowing through the Bowen Store in considerable quantity. Many persons slipped when attempting to enter into along the flooded portion on Bridge Street and wet feet resulted. One young lady failed to step over the water and sat abruptly thereby much to her dismay and justified feelings of indignation.

Many strangers were on the streets yesterday having been held up owing to the flood and the uncertainty of the condition of the highway further west.

The staff of the Dominion Bank carried on as long as possible in their office counting the coin and finally through the kind invitation of Mr. E. V. Illey, manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Mr. E. O. Sailor, the manager and his staff took up an abiding section in the Bank of Commerce office. The Dominion staff returned to their own office today.

Although Sight-Seers

Although a holiday had not been declared by the Chairman of the Board of Education, large numbers of Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School boys and girls were absent from their classes. Many of them were at the bridges and other points of interest. Many of the boys were busy collecting news. The publication is under the supervision of Miss Saunders and Mr. Mickiejohn who have recently become members of the High School staff. The editor is Miss Irene Vanderwater who intends to make it a bigger and better paper this year. Her assistant is Miss Nina Moore. Several new features are being introduced, covering school literature, sports, dramatics, book reviews and notices, class memorandum. Jokes are taked from incidents which really happened throughout the year. "The Spotlight" of the Magazine is called, is popular with the young younger and older sets as well as the students. Articles written by the staff concerning world interest, give light on the attitude of young Canada during the present era. Members to take part in the publication are: Boys—Editor-in-Chief, Irene Vanderwater (), Florence A. Salisbury, I. Sweet, K. Mann and R. Campbell. Assistants (Reporters): Girls—I. Vanderwater (Editor); E. Moore, (Assistant Editor); J. McKibben, M. Funnell, E. Taylor, M. Kenny, M. Sutcliffe, L. Baker, S. Weaver, M. Smithers, I. Vanderwater, E. Hunter, H. Weeks, F. Wallace, M. Northworthy, and M. Mantle. Miss Ramsay (Supervisor).

Annual Church Supper

The annual Presbyterian Church Spring Supper was held in the Sunday School room of the church last night. Many attended and enjoyed the affair immensely. The supper was served by ladies under the able supervision of their president, Mrs. R. Gray, and convenors.

Should not the weather change the mercury mark of the thermometer within one week, it is believed that the Belleville and Bath teams across the Oaks will finish their playoffs for the Courier Advocate Cup at Kingston. Both teams agree on the financial ends.

Mrs. S. Foote, 82 Foster Ave., held a miscellaneous shower on Wednesday afternoon in honor of Mrs. J. Carter (nee Lena Pickell), whose engagement to Miss Carter has been announced recently. The bride was presented with a large number of useful gifts and thanked her friends in a charming manner.

POLICE COURT

Friday the 13th, with its superstitious omen of bad luck took its toll in the police court, when cases were held before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., when two local residents were charged with assault. Would not pay the costs and sentence the jury.

Frank Hamden, better known locally as "Uncle Frank" singer of many a musical party, was charged under the L.C.A.

"I guess I'll have to take the rap," said Uncle Frank good-naturedly.

"Well, take along your banjo so you can entertain the boys for another next ten days," added Mr. Doman.

In the second assault case which passed John McEwen, also of Belleville, was given ten days from the date of his arrest on Tuesday last. He pleaded guilty to intoxication also.

Behind closed doors and in camera a domestic case followed the police court proceedings. Counsel toured to reconcile the parties and instructed them to get together if possible. The matter was enlarged until further reports of progress could be made.

Residents Become Panicky

were six inches of water on the lower floors. The C.P.R. subway on Sydney Street was filled with a foot of water bowed underneath it. An aged woman living on Water Street, had to be carried out of her home on the shoulders of neighbours as one foot and a half of water flooded the premises. A C.N.R. accommodation man made his way into Trenton from Cobourg on Monday and now a part of the Railroad bed had been washed out. On Monday afternoon the pumper, worked all night in order that the citizens' calls would not fill up the 24 hour limit. The water run-ning down the hill made like a little river in a spring freshet.

Mrs. Emma Ryde in her eighty-ninth year, an aged and popular citizen, passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Parr, Sydney Street, Monday morning at six a.m. The deceased had resided in this locality for seventeen years and prior to her coming here lived at Wellman's Corners. She was born in the district of Cobourne, Ont., in 1848, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Ryde. She was a band predeceased her twenty years. Previous to her marriage she was an active member of Grace United Church and held offices in the Ladies' Association and the "Busy as a Much" Bible Class. Mrs. Ryde leaves to mourn her loss one daughter Mrs. Clayton Parr, and one son, Webster Hyde, both of Trenton. She leaves also a granddaughter and four great grandchildren. The funeral took place from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Clayton Parr, on Sydney Street, at 2.30 p.m. Friday, Rev. George B. Campbell, minister of Grace United Church, officiated. Interment was made in Mount Evergreen cemetery. Pall-bearers were, Cecil Hogle, Roy Hogle, Gerald Parr, William Parr and Stanley Thorpe and Joseph Searles.

Members of King Street United Church, who took part in the play, "Mary Made Some Marmalade" offered their services to the Hoffern Street Public School, Home and School Club last night. The play was enjoyed by all present and many who saw it before, turned out again.

Spotlight Being Published

By May the first, the School year book ought to be out. These are the latest reports from the hard-working editor, who with her staff is busy collecting news. The publication is under the supervision of Miss Saunders and Mr. Mickiejohn who have recently become members of the High School staff. The editor is Miss Irene Vanderwater who intends to make it a bigger and better paper this year. Her assistant is Miss Nina Moore. Obituary

ALBERT WHEELER

Many old residents in Belleville and a large number of old Bellevillebors scattered throughout the world, will learn with sincere regret of the death of Albert Wheeler which occurred early this Friday morning at 14 Highland Avenue where he made his home. He had been in failing health for some time.

The late Albert Wheeler, familiarly known as "Al" to his many friends and acquaintances was in his 84th year and was born in Macqueda County, Michigan. It is said he believed when a young man and practically all his life was passed in this city. He took to be a dictionary and marine engineer and was highly competent in his work. For a considerable period he filled the position of engineer in charge of the heating plant at the Separator.

As an entertainer "Al" Wheeler excelled being an expert clog dancer and a clever, highly amusing monologist. In the performances of the Belleville Amateur Minstrels of thirty and forty years ago he took an active part and was a great favorite with any audience he appeared before. His acquaintanceship was wide and his friends many in number. In the days now past, the late years he had been in ill health and lived a quiet life, many of his old friends having passed on before him.

He was a member with Holborn Street United Church and fraternally he was a member of the Loyal Order of Moose, No. 1106.

Surviving him are one daughter, Mrs. Vera Wheeler of New York City; two sons, Donald Wheeler of Toronto and Carl Wheeler of Belleville.

The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this paper.

REV. DAVID GUNTER

Carleton, Mar. 12.—The death of Rev. David Gunter on Monday removed a citizen who was much respected and esteemed. He had been in failing health for some time but became worse in the past few weeks. He was in his 67th year. The funeral service was held at the United Church, the following officiating: part: Rev. M. L. Hinton, Rev. Bennett, Rev. Mr. Smithson, Rev. Mr. Gregory of Frankford, Rev. John Potter of Frankford. He is survived by his wife, formerly Nora Turk; three sons and two daughters, Mrs. Ed. Hartman of Colborne, Mrs. McMurray of Gunter, and Leona at home; also one brother. Interment was made in Castleton Cemetery.

TEN MILLION INCOME REVENUE IS EXPECTED

Toronto March 13—Although only $6,000,000 was collected in the Province of Ontario in the Wednesday afternoon in honor of Mrs. J. Carter (nee Lena Pickell), whose engagement to Miss Carter has been announced recently. The bride was presented with a large number of useful gifts and thanked her friends in a charming manner.

first year's operation of the new provincial income tax, it is anticipated that the actually anticipates between $10,000,000 and $12,000,000 in revenue this year.

"The Government is playing safe in its estimates," the reporter was authoritatively informed last night. "It has intentionally underestimated the revenue."

CANON PIERCY, 82 WILL RETIRE SHORTLY

Sturgeon Falls, Ont., March 13—Canon Charles Piercy, 82 year old Anglican cleric whose biography is in the current issue of Who's Who in Canadian faith, in Northern Ontario and who has been rector of Sturgeon Falls and Mary Magdaline here for 27 years, announced today he would retire shortly from the active clerical period.

Canon Piercy has spent 48 of his 82 years spreading the gospel in the north.

During his ministry he has held at Schreiber, Burks Falls, Sault St. Marie, St. Joseph's Island and Sturgeon Falls.

BUILDING STRIKE GOES ON

New York, March 13.—(AP)—Mounting hope for an immediate settlement of the rippling city-wide building strike were blasted today when labor leaders who presented an ultimatum to employers after a night-long parley which adjourned with the end of the walkout apparently in sight.

MAGEDOMAS WIN FIRST GAME 3-2

Defeat Smith's Falls But Surprised at Strength of Losing Team

Ottawa, March 13 (CP)—Brockville Magedomas, champions of Central league champions, defeated Smith's Falls Mic-Mac, champions of district three, 3-2 in a closely contested hockey match here last night and captured the first game of the Canadian and district senior crown. The second game will be played tonight. Goals to count is scheduled for Smith's Falls ice facilities. The Smiths Falls team somewhat of a surprise as the Saliors defeated Mic-Macs 12-4 several months ago in an exhibition game.

After a scoreless opening session when play was fairly even, Mic-Macs broke Brockville one up early in the second after taking Bill Sherry's pass and circling the net to flip in an easy one. Smith's Falls ran into trouble in this period when Goalie Lloyd Gilmour was ruled off for tripping Vip Coleman. Hermie Boulton, forward player held the fort, however, and the Magedomas could not capitalize on this opportunity.

Smith's Falls evened the count midway through the second period while Brockville was playing a man short. Bud Wing scored, assisted by Fred Chamberlain and Bill Doyle. Gordon Lowery broke the deadlock less than a minute afterwards, however, when he walked through to score unassisted.

Mic-Macs tied the score again early in the third period but Magedomas tallied again for Brockville on a double assist and it proved the winning point.

Dr. Ethel Noble has arrived in the city and has taken up residence at 79 Pendry Street. 2813-23

Lt.-Col. and Mrs. A. E. Geen entertained the executive of the Women's Canadian Club in honour of Commander C. Johnson on Wednesday evening following the Club's Annual Meeting at Church Hall.

The tea planted by the Rockgate Club of Holloway Street United Church at the home of Mrs. A. C. Campbell on Thursday afternoon, was postponed as the rain came and the whole was carried in the flood tree, with especially heavy damage to the household premises.

With exceptions to delight the eyes of any Irishman, the Shamrock Tea at the home of Mrs. J. W. Lyon, 282 George Street, was a very enjoyable function on Thursday afternoon, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of the Emmanuel Church. Mrs. George Marshall was president of the assembly and the hostess in receiving the guests who were invited to the tea, room by Mrs. E. Rowsome. The rooms were gay with streamers of green and white, the Irish colours, and pots of shamrock were everywhere was emerald green, of course. Mrs. Lyon, in the splendour of charming with its beauty, lace cloth, tall green tapers and a basket of shamrock had reflected in a mirror centrepiece and pots of shamrock on each corner of the table. Tea was poured by Mrs. J. Reid. Those who served were Mrs. J. H. Cope, Mrs. W. Barlow, Mrs. Ernest St. T. Hallam and Mrs. P. Pomeroy. Mrs. Lyon was assisted by popular home cooking table and Mrs. F. Gymer was treasurer of the successful tea.

Weddings

GRAHAM—LLOYD

Toronto, March 7.—The marriage took place on Thursday afternoon in the chapel of Deer Park United Church of Winifred Ellen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick M. Lloyd, of Beach Hill, to Mr. Robert Bruce Graham, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Graham of Belleville. Rev. Dr. Richardson officiated and Mr. Ronald A. McEachern played the wedding music. The chancel was banked with Calla and Madonna lilies, white gladioli and palms.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father and attended by Miss J. Church Rogers as matron of honor, Lieut.-Col. R. J. R. Graham, brother of the groom, was best man, and the ushers, Messrs. David and John Lloyd, brothers of the bride, Jackson Rogers and George Graham, brother of the groom.

The beautiful bride was gowned in white Sirced lace over bridal satin and her tulle veil fell in soft folds from a matching lace cap, and she carried an all-white bouquet of gardenias and lily of the valley, with streamers of white orchids. The matron of honor was wearing a graceful gown of the palest turquoise chiffon with matching tulle picture hat and she carry rose flower trimming, and she carried a bouquet of red Briarcliff roses tied with silver.

Mrs. Lloyd, mother of the bride, was a delightful figure in her wedding hat, and carried a frilled colonial bouquet of pink Briarcliff roses, pink and white freesia.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Bickle, Glen Elm, where the rooms were beautifully decorated with gay spring flowers and roses. Mrs. J. Mck. Stevenson, Mrs. Harris, and Mrs. David Lloyd, grandmothers of the bride, were present. Each had received a basket of pink roses of orchids.

On Saturday Mr. and Mrs. Graham are sailing for Jamaica, going away, the bride wore a smart rose-back beige suit with tailor fur collar and navy-blue accessories. On their return they will live in Belleville. Guests were present from Vancouver, Montreal, Guelph, Barrie, Hamilton, Belleville and Aurora.

PROPERTY DAMAGE IN GRAND FLOOD

Kitchener, Ont., March 13 (CP)—Total property damage resulting from the Grand River flood was reported from West Montrose when tons of driftwood, bearing ice cakes down from the northern reaches of the river smashing cottages, carrying away riverside buildings and smashing against the back doors of several dwellings in the village and shore.

Three families marooned by a backflow raised by an ice jam today, when the water inundated the river flats, found themselves completely surrounded by swirling, ice-choked water later when the water receded to the river 10 feet above its normal level.

Good Manners
By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Wedding Anniversary

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Will you please help me to settle an argument? I was invited to my friend's home for dinner and the invitation read "from 6 to 8." This friend when I arrived. I understood to be her and when I left shortly after, she didn't say, "Glad to have met you." But I think she should have said it. My friend didn't think it was necessary for me to say it, but I did. The hostess is supposed to be well educated. Who is right about this, my friend or I?

2. Will you please give me a simple invitation for a twenty-fifth wedding anniversary to be held in a hotel in the evening? I want to receive from 6 o'clock until seven, and then at seven have dinner.

L.

1. Your friend is right in this case. There is no rule of etiquette that requires that we say "Good bye, I have met you." We make this pleasant comment if we wish to, and if we forget it, then it was a pleasant but not important omission. It is enough for the person who is leaving to bow or courtesy and say "Thank you."

2. You do not tell me whether this anniversary party is to be formal. If it is to be informal, the invitation would be by word of mouth or something like this:

Dear Mary,

Tom and I are asking some friends to be with us to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of our marriage on Tuesday, the tenth of April, and we are most eager to have you and George with us for this occasion. We are having dinner at Six-Eighty, in the Rose Room, and we would like to greet our guests between six and seven, and dine at seven. Do make us happy by saying that you will be with us.

Dearest love from Tom and me to you both.

Affectionately,

If you wish to send your invitation in the formal touch, you might write or have engraved, in silver letters on white, on a large white card, this form of invitation:

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Williams request the pleasure of your company at the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage on Tuesday, the tenth of April at six o'clock in the Rose Room of the Main Hotel.

Dessert Luncheon

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What is a dessert luncheon?

C.

When a hostess invites her guests to come to "dessert and coffee" or to "dessert," the sometimes referred to as a "dessert luncheon," is a very delightful and popular way of entertaining is quite delightful. Often guests are invited to "dessert and coffee" after dinner. It's a sensible custom for people who live in flats or bungalows and who do not feel that they can afford to give a dinner, but still would like to have some friends come in for supper or some other form of entertainment. It is pleasant to have the guests come for delicious dessert accompanied or followed by coffee.

Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on Good Manners submitted by readers.

Advice to the Lovelorn
By Beatrice Fairfax

Mom offers regard the Compliment Girl as Not Being Worthy of the Consideration

Sometimes those happy or miserable men—whichever way you look at it—who have been called the world's Great Lovers have left annotations regarding their successes and failures with women.

As human documents, these notations are particularly interesting to the young, even those not so young, who blunder along from one unsatisfactory affair to another.

That gifted Frenchman of letters, Stendhal, under the name of Stendhal, but whose family name was Beyle, and who was at once a real in love as in literature, has left a few words and a note which bear out the saying that young ladies who pursue their quarry too ruthlessly.

Stendhal had been having an affair with the Countess Curial, a vivacious youngster, not yet 18, who gave Henri a lock of her hair and Henri built on the stairway. His comments were:

"Unfortunately, it is always more intriguing to the masculine mind to have to penetrate a little reserve, and capture a heart that is none too willing. Great loves thrive only on great difficulties, accidents of people, partial successes, and long-awaited joys.

So the fascinating Stendhal grew weary of her; her easy conquest of Count Adele, and turned his attention to women who presented greater difficulties to him in the carrying love. In short, with him it was the game, as well as the girl that he found so intriguing.

Alas I say now, and he doesn't have to say it, Stendhal either, is bored to death by a "mesh of consciences" or by one who is afraid to wrote me about a "yes-girl" who laughed before the point in the joke was developed, who agreed in advance to everything he suggested of it, and did not put up resistance about her than a wet string.

Stendhal, in fact, had been engaged in his "rush of concessions" when Countess Curial's head commenced—they were all nice people, and he was bored to tears at the thought of marrying a girl utterly bereft of any personality of her own. He wished to get out of it with decency, and wrote me ten typewritten words to the effect that troubles with a girl in whom he had lost all interest, because she was too good.

"It was like a toboggan slide," he said, "and one could not stop. I felt myself bodily toboggoning."

Not being so Stendhal, the little Adele never suspected how grievously she bored Monsieur Henri. It seems to have been the interesting caution of that day for young ladies to keep their friends while they were having their hair dressed. Be that as it may, and Count Henri jots down some of his reactions while regarding Adele being dolled up.

"It's extremely interesting for a man who has studied the theory of faces and who has himself done a little research into the significance of feature movements to watch the manner of a pretty woman at her dressing table, then she does not realize that she is being observed. "It is the highest moment of art; the girl is completely herself. You can read her through and through. I did so; and in her face I saw only a deadened soul, a complete absence of any soft emotion and sensitivity."

It might be well for young ladies, especially needless to say, in public, to take these reflections of Stendhal into consideration.

$8,900 To Maintain Tuberculosis Branch At Belleville, Ont.

Toronto, March 15 (CP)—Estimates for cancer control shown in the Department of Health allotments, when the budget was tabled in the legislature today, showed a decrease of about $52,000 for the year 1930-31.

Provision is made for salary increases of $4,000 and the amount set aside for service and expenses for the operation of the radium emanation plant and for the purchase of radium are cut from $61,000 to $6,500.

The new estimate for maternal and child hygiene and public health nursing is reduced from $47,000 to $40,525. Provision is made for increasing the grant to the tuberculosis prevention branch $80,125 in the current estimates against $28,200 last year. A grant of $2,000 is set aside for the Victorian Order of Nurses.

New grant of $9,000 is allotted for provincial aid to the Hospital among the Ontario institutes is for radio therapy. Kingston General Hospital will again receive $9,000 and Toronto General Hospital $45,000.

Dale Plays The Game

—BY—

Ann Forester

One morning, instead of turning back toward the shabby hotel, the car swung into a district of pretension and apartment houses.

Seeing the bright leap in Dale's eyes, Clough spoke earnestly: "What do you say, Angel—you'll have your own car when you've always had it. I just want you to see something."

"Something," was an apartment conspicuously if somewhat garishly furnished, in a flashy neighborhood.

Dale's troubled eyes went to Clough.

"Don't you like it?" Clough asked. His look of his overcoat and flung it across a chair.

"Of course I like it. But I shouldn't take it."

"Why not, Angel?"

"I can't afford it."

"I can."

"That's why I can't."

"Come going to let down the bars, eh?"

Dale turned away with a tired gesture.

The man suddenly crossed to her, put his hand on her shoulder. "Look, girl, I could make a swell girl out of you. If you'd only let me....."

"Look here, I'm going to act square with you. You take this. Don't worry about me."

"Afraid?" Dale's voice was a whisper.

The man's voice was irritated. "I told you I was going to act square! Ain't that good enough to kiss at a quick wall an' expect it to go over like kind. You're going to find out how good I can be when I like a lady."

Clough stood looking at Dale until she raised solemn brown eyes to his face. "Is it a go?" he asked.

"I guess so," she answered faintly.

Her mind worked like a shuttle. The price of her honor had been decided to that sum in the bank each week! If she could only keep Clough at arm's length.....

Clough made a sudden movement toward Dale—stood. "I think better of it and left with an abrupt gesture.

"I'll be there tonight."

He locked the door and walked slowly back into the apartment. Then, she crumpled in a chair and the lay with her head bowed on her outstretched arms.

She wrote to Honey saying that she was in Chicago on business, and said nothing of Bobby, nor did she infer that he was with her. She knew Honey that she would come out to visit in the early spring.

The spring..... and in it Bobby. Then there was the other side of the head.

The apartment meant that Dale was more of Clough. He took it as his right that he should come in when he brought her home from the cafe. He liked to sit in a big chair, chewing the inevitable cigar, while his eyes drank her in. The long sensitive mask Dale nervously attempted to cover them with grew sensation. Oddly enough Clough did not seem to care whether Dale talked or not. It seemed enough for him to know that she was there.

Now and then Dale felt panic steal over her at the great alien forces of the man. If he should ever "get on" so that she could not handle him.....

But so far, Clough seemed content. A breakfast now said then—a certain blue or two with dinner, could not help it. Well, she was willing to give these things for the safety of the life growing next to the heart. Shut her teeth—trample her pride—forget that disgusting memories of Brant. After all, she was doing nothing actually wrong. The world, of course, would misjudge her, but what the world didn't know didn't matter. Would the world help her child if she should die?

Dale allowed Clough to get the impression that she was the recently divorced daughter of a college professor. He regarded her incredulously, but could not help being easier to hold in this place.

He turned on one day, holding her prisoner by his gaze. "Maybe you think I haven't much principle. You had to fight me what I've got. But I like you because you're so different from me. Lovely child. What you'll be you know I could break you and you don't give a damn—"

Dale's heart pounded at the fire in Clough's words. He was so strong. Those hairy blunt hands..... pale big him in check was like playing with a baby.

Dale laughed him off—at his seriousness. She was sweet and aloof and she would not let him kiss her when he left.

But after he had gone, Dale walked the floor hands clasped and dropped. How long could she keep it up! The last few days had brought a new fearlessness to her. She felt heavy—tired. How could she keep it from the vanity Brant. Wanted to feel his arms about her. To hear him say: "Never mind, Baby, it's all right now. I'll....."

Dale walked the floor and beat her hands. "Oh!" she said softly, "Oh—"

CHAPTER 78.
DIVORCE

Brant sat in his office staring out over the city. Great leaden clouds were massing in the sky, settling down on the grey city. Lacing his office windows with wet streaks. He could never see in a rainstorm without his mind going back to that stormy day in the desert. Again he felt the little shack shaking in the fierce grip of the gale. Saw the rain coming in sheets. And the last taste of blood was in his mouth where Steve Kennedy had had cut his lip. Dale's eyes looking up into his through the stormy light..... the dawn of love in her eyes.....

Misery shook through him. His fierce pride was in the background for the instant; he was wholly given up to the need of her. Dale—his wife—his comrade. She had been all that once. But he couldn't keep her, why go on all the way 'round again—he asked himself, wincing from the agony of his own thoughts. After all—she had never really loved him. If she had loved him she could never have left with Pfil Carson.

Where was she now—this minute? Was she not smiling blearily on her? Oh, the agony of not knowing whether she were safe or not.

The door opening, startled him.

Mimi stood before Brant smiling, beautiful despite the wild day. As she came in the fragrance from her furs permeated the room.

"It's such a dreadful day, I've come to drive you home, Brant," she said sweetly. "How gloomy it is in here. Why haven't you turned the lights on?"

Still—thinking over a deal," Brant evaded as he touched the switch of the lamp on his desk. Mimi seemed to shrivel into radiance with the room. Dark and glowing, like a perfect rose, she was, the eyes filled with lucid light—as frail as perfect, as the crisp curls pinned to her head.

The presence of Mimi—lovely and friendly, helped the tired Brant's misery of Dale.....

Mimi drew Brant home; her small white hands skillfully pulling the big car through the churning traffic. Waves of tired peace fell on Brant, sliding relaxed into this in the cozy intimacy of the car, watching the rain washing down windows. It was going to be a rainy Christmas..... Christmas, already! Dale had left him in July. Like a grey desert the months stretched behind him. Work—driving work had been his salvation. He had filled every minute of the day with it, leaving no empty corner for stark misery to creep in.

Luckily, conditions had favored Brant. Affairs had been in a critical shape, demanding his unflagging attention. His nerves were whipped by the excitement of the stock market. Even at times he had been strung to lost moments when his pride rallied to bear up his spirit. Moments of hideous misery, when he felt he knew only the need of Dale.

How completely she had slipped—passed from his life! One day her clothes had suddenly vanished, from the room in the town house. The blue and silver room was shut up. Brant thought Brant with a sinking heart, as though Dale were dead.

His driver now told him that Brant had totally forgotten her and a flash of temper appeared in her eyes. Could they have suspected he could have killed him in cold blood as he was thinking of that other! She had got rid of her, Mimi had, got rid of her actually, but the wistful presence was still about the place. Her chair in the big sitting room ached for her. The long mirrors in the hall seemed to hold the vision of a slim figure in the misty depths.

A subtle change, to them all, had come since Dale had gone. Mrs. Kendall more remote. And for Mimi herself—this burning sweet of helplessness in her heart, driving her mad! She had shoved Dale out of the nest, had Mimi. Pushed her over into oblivion—yet the other had not gone. Dale, who had mattered so little while she was here, mattered tremendously now.

Raging, inwardly, Mimi drove home through the cold, wet night. Only when the car stopped before the entrance, did Brant recall himself. He turned to the girl with an apologetic air.

"Forgive me for being such a grouch tonight, Mimi. I'm pretty tired—"

Mimi could have slapped him. Instead she tilted her small sweet face to his, she reached up and patted his cheek. "Poor dear," she said gently, "I understand."

She watched when Brant sat alone in the library—reading the paper, his mother sought him. She touched with a trace of sad dignity the expression in his eyes.

"Yes."

Mrs. Kendall forced herself to go on. "You have made no move toward—toward getting a divorce."

Brant looked at her keenly sharply at the white hurt of his face. "Ah—dearest boy! Don't take it like that! Surely you can see there's nothing else to do!"

Brant rose and carefully tapped the ash from his cigar. His back was toward her. "Yes....." he said after a moment, "there is nothing else to do."

"Well,....." don't you think you should—should take some steps—or whatever it is they call it. Surely it will have to be done sometime. You have your own life to lead. She has disgraced herself as your wife. And some day—" Mrs. Kendall looked startingly up at her son. "You may find that you want your freedom. You may wish to marry again."

An old name of his childhood—Brant's mother never called him that unless she felt very close to him. Brant smiled across at her. With the lamp-light falling on the silver waves of her hair, it was very, she seemed some powdered old aristocrat stepped out of more courtly days.

"What's on the mind of the dowager empress, tonight? I see she will set to be very serious about something. What do I have to do—fire the cook? A new car? Or is it some dashe you're trying to rope me in, and you know I won't want to go?"

"More than that, my dear. Much more serious—" Mrs. Kendall hesitated. One of the few times Brant had ever seen his mother at a loss. Then, a little breathlessly, "Brant, it's all of six months since Dale left."

Brant's face became set. He looked at the glowing end of his cigar so that his mother could not read

As they gathered around him, Tarzan pointed into the distance. "Ta!" he said. "And Numa!" said Muviro. "It is strange, Bwana, that he does not charge." "He will not charge," said Tarzan. "Why, I do not know; but I know he will not because it is Jad-bal-Ja."

Across the plain of Opar, toward the ruined city, walked Ja, and the lion. Behind them, at the summit of the escarpment, a man halted, looking out across the plain, and saw them in the distance. Behind him a hundred black warriors swarmed up the rocky cliff.

The keen ears of Jad-bal-Ja caught the first noise from the rear. He halted and turned. His great head, with its short mane forward, the skin of his face wrinkled. Then he voiced a low growl, and Ja stopped—and turned back to discover the cause of his displeasure.

As her eyes noted the approaching column, her heart sank. Even Jad-bal-Ja could not protect her against so many. And she realized that she was afraid of Clough's rage; afraid of his power when his patience snapped. Dale knew each day was a day gained. While Clough had paid for their things, that balance in the bank was growing—the wall of protection for her child.

Long hours Dale lay in bed, eyes closed while her thoughts churned bitterly on. Frightened by her pallor, by the violent storms of weariness drawn under eyes, Clough wanted to send up a doctor.

Dale combated the suggestion furiously. A doctor, she knew, would guess the truth immediately. Playing for time—playing for money, Dale gained a week from day to day. A word would spoil it. Clough fancied the romantic role she had assigned to him, because of its novelty. Bossed, knowing she had deliberately used him, he would be terrible.

TARZAN THE INVINCIBLE (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

Tactfully, she dropped the subject. Made a couple of impersonal remarks and left the room.

A few minutes later Brant was striding through the lonely streets, hat pulled down, coat collar turned up, impervious to the steady downpour.

Divorce..... a nasty word. He'd never thought much about it. It wasn't a thing which could ever touch him..... When it happened to one of his friends, he just took it for granted. But—Dale, no longer his wife..... Of course she wasn't really. Her own act had ended that. She'd left him for another man. Had to definitely end it like this!

The streets were shiny black satin. Headlights of passing cars were reflected in the wet asphalt like golden chains. Then, going by, made a queer accordion.

The outer layer of Brant's mind was the note of these things. But within, he was stunned. He could, not think consecutively. As always, the thought of Dale coalesced up broke a time of reckoning. One can't lead a tiger on a leash forever, she was afraid of Clough's rage; afraid of his power when his patience snapped. Dale knew each day was a day gained. Hopelessly Unprepared for Swirling Waters in Homes

Flood Victims, However, Were All-Reached From Homes

Interest in boating revived with the flood conditions here in West Belleville Thursday as flood victims saw their only hope of rescue in the craft, that plied Coleman, James, Stock and Mary Streets, from two a.m. on Thursday when the first convulsive notice of the waters in the Moira River warned of the inevitable. Not all Allanburg were residents, who were familiar with the usual groupings of an overflow failed to take the warning seriously and the first they knew the waters had knocked down by a passing automobile, in front of the Grand Hotel yesterday afternoon. Mr. Moir was immediately rushed to the Belleville General Hospital, but upon subsequent medical examination was not injured as bad as at first anticipated.

Mr. Moir had just previously purchased from the Quinte Hotel, where he was registered as a guest, and was about to cross Bridge St. when he stepped into the path of an automobile driven by a personal friend, Mr. Gordon McGaffin, 28 Weller St. Toronto. Mr. Weller was proceeding at as slow a pace as possible and assisted the injured man from the stricken area. By-ten o'clock it was no longer possible to navigate a boat up James Street to West Bridge Street. A decree was passed that Bridge street and a gate was opened in the fence about the Yeomens' property to enable boats to navigate the waters or cars.

The scene had its humour and its pathos. Some unprepared people revelled in the unexpected adventure and others were worried the whole thing a little bit sadly as they thought of the untold damage that the flood had occurred to their homes. The Police Ambulance was called to transport two patients, a child and an elderly man, from the boats to the hospital.

Deaths Recorded

The most determined exodus occurred about ten o'clock when ice broke through again. A car parked on James Street backyard, was swept down stream to anchor at the intersection of Brock Street. Shoredoors, shutters, pieces of timber, firewood and wedges of ice, floated down the flood waters and formed heavily against the homes in pasture lands Tuesday were trimmed. At this point many women developed hysteria and a hurried exit was necessitated in their being taken "ashore" without delay. Only one minor casualty was reported during the day and that was when an overzealous rescuer, in his haste for landing in navigating his boat, toppled over and broke his left collar bone. He was able to rescue himself, however.

Thoughtful Aids

The sympathy of the community was evidenced in the many thoughtful deeds that brought the day. The hospitality of countless homes was offered those endangered by the flood. Meeting with this was available to all, and the younger members of the area did their work in carrying supplies to those needing them. Pets were not forgotten and those, who had to leave them behind, will be rescued without them. The flood did not appear to have done much damage, and for hours during the early morning grey heeded in dismal contrast of their fate, adding to the general confusion of strident voices, the engines, drone, motor cars horns and the swish of cars.

The heavy rain changed to a slight hailstorm and then a soft snowfall in the form of beetle's and to the otherwise dreary scene as trees and shrubbery were etched in white against the dark waters which reflected now and then the lights of a street lamp or reflection of a window. By nightfall the waters had receded a bit and those who "stayed in" did so with little fear of a return of tide.

HORSES BRING HIGHER PRICES

Farm Horses Sell at Best in Eight Years

Calgary, March 13—Dobbin is staging a comeback. Farm horses, which reached a low market value during the depression years, now are commanding high prices with United States and Canada buyers keen bidders at rural Alberta sales.

Some United States buyers have paid as high as $200 for heavy weight teams, and prices, generally, are considered "very good."

At the Lacombe sales this week 306 horses brought $30,819, an average of $100.71 per head, it was said. Last year the Lacombe average was $60. The highest price was paid by A. Picov, of Audley, Ontario, whose agent purchased a team for $400. Stewart Brothers of Montreal paid $340 for a team.

Grey Eyes, never in keen demand by Western Canadian buyers, are an attraction for United States purchasing agents. Grey are reported to be able to stand intense heat and are sought for the Southern States.

NO NEW REPRIEVE FOR HAUPTMANN

Governor Hoffman Says He Has No Intention of Changing Her Stay

Trenton, N.J., March 13—(AP)—Governor Harold G. Hoffman announced today—the last day on which he can legally reprieve Bruno Richard Hauptmann—he has no intention now of again staying execution, but for the week of March 30, Thursday his private secretary, Miss S. Conklin, the Governor said his statement of January 17, in which he said there would be no further reprieve, still stands and "I have not believed any chance".

"I have no intention at the present time," he said, "of granting another reprieve."

Hauptmann's counsel clung to the idea he can obtain a further reprieve if the Governor will question Dr. John F. (Jafsie) Condon.

RED LETTERS ON 1937 MARKERS

Ontario Department of Highways will mark the year of the coronation ceremonies in King Edward VIII by having red license plates for motor cars, it was stated at Queen's Park yesterday. It is anticipated that the ceremonies will be held in 1937.

Another change in the plates is planned. Only one letter will be used, and it will be placed after the first digit, or after the second, or in various positions on the plate. No special numbers will be granted by the department.

BELLEVILLE GIVEN $20,174 REBATE

Thirteenth Power Bill May Mean Cut in Rates

Rebate of $20,174 from the Ontario Hydro Commission to the Belleville Commission as a result of last year's operations is expected.

It is expected that his will mean a further reduction in the hydro power rates. The local commission will decide on the question of next summer rebates.

Toronto, March 13—Rebates totalling $241,363 will be made by the Ontario Hydro Commission to local commissions and utilities in all but one of the 46 municipalities of the Eastern Ontario System as a result of the surplus resulting from the 1935 operations in the system, it was announced last night by T. Stewart Lyons, chairman of the commission.

In addition, the cost adjustment completed yesterday at Richmond, totalling $2,867 to the rural power districts of the same system.

Total revenue from urban municipalities, rural districts and commercial customers in the system last year was $2,182,800, of which $1,986,695 came from municipalities, and $681,619 from rural districts. Cost of service was $2,903,704, of which $1,757,987 was paid by the municipalities and $488,535 in respect to rural areas. An additional charge of $51 levied on the municipality of Richmond increased the total surplus by that amount.

Allocation of Credits

The allocation of credits to the various municipalities reveals the largest rebate going to Oshawa, which is credited with $41,000, compared with $27,994 for Ottawa and $29,054 for Peterboro. The distribution is as follows:

Alexandria $1,806; Apple Hill $263; Athens $670; Bath $285; Belleville $20,174; Bloomfield $619; Bowmanville $19,783; Brighton $1,096; Brockville $11,227; Cardinal $1,241; Carleton Place $3,949; Chesterville $1,515; Colborne $1,650; Deseronto $802; Deseronto $284; Finch $665; Hastings $538; Havelock $468; Kemptville $1,852.

Lakefield $792; Lanark $528; Lansdowne $638; Lindsay $13,536; Madoc $851; Marmora $805; Martintown $150; Merrickville $812; Morrisburg $1,900; Norwood $405; Oshawa 41,021; Ottawa $27,994; Perth $5,366; Peterboro $29,056; Picton $3,115; Port Hope $6,535; Prescott $3,929; Russell $970; Smith's Falls $6,582; Stirling $1,220; Trenton $13,951; Tweed $1,097; Warkworth $506; Wellington $1,025; Westport $679; Whitby $20,013; Williamsburg $1,439; Winchester $1,956.

Livestock

Toronto, March 13.—(CP)—With the exception of sheep and lambs, which advanced 15 to 25 cents, price changes on the Toronto Live Stock Market this week were slight. Calves were unchanged. Hogs lost a little over last week's gain, closing with a truck hog about 15. Sheep and lambs were unchanged.

A cattle run of 4,100 head was cleaned up by the end of the session. Exporters shipped 172 cattle for Great Britain and 1,000 to the United States. Three loads of calves also were also shipped to the southern market.

Medium to good weighty steers brought from $6.50 to $7.50, small lots of choice heavies for export at $8.00 to $8.50; handyweight butchers, 1,050 to 1,150 lbs., $7.50 to $8.25; $4.00 to $6.75 for the majority with $7.00 to $7.25 for a few. Fed heifers $6.50 to $6.75 for choice with medi-ums downwards to $4.75. Best cows $5.50 to $6.00 and a few choice at $5.50. Canners and cutters $1.75 to $3.00.

Good quality butcher bulls sold at $3.75 to $4.00 with bolognas bringing from $3.25 to $3.50; small lots of stockers $3.50 to $4.25; milkers and springers $55 to $105 for tops with quality falling downwards to $30; Canadian cattle sold for $6.00 to $6.50 with United States $6.80 to $7.75 a hundredweight.

Calf receipts were 1,900 head which were cleaned up with prices steady. Good and choice quality vealers $7.50 to $8.50 with common lights $5.00 and culls at some rough heavies $3.00 to $4.00.

A light supply of around 3,500 head of hogs opened lower by 15 to 25 cents off-trucks. Closing prices were a shade lower at $1.38 to $1.40 for bacons; car hogs down 25 at $3.00 f.o.b. for bacons and $2.75 for others; sows at $2.50 and stags at $3.00 to $3.50 a hundredweight.

Western lambs of which 1,200 head were received, were up to the best on the 2,000 sheep and lambs. Unchanged prices of $8.75 to $9.00 for heavy and handy lambs were received. Some good Ontario fehd lots brought up to $8.50 and $8.00 for heavies also steady at $4.50 to $5.50 for good light ewes with culls at $1.50 to $3.00 a hundredweight.

TORONTO MINES (THURSDAY)

Toronto, March 12.—(CP)—Toronto Mining Market was unsettled today by spotty selling, apparently as a result of nervousness over war possibilities, and lower prices ruled generally. Secondary golds especially suffered from the scarcity of buying orders and prices in some cases were off 10 to 30 cents.

Pickle Crow and Macassa weakened 30 cents each. Falconbridge fell 15 and smaller recessions were posted for Sylvanite, Perron, Hasaga, Central Patricia and Premier.

Gold Belt, Base Metals and Preferences were firm to strong. Off 20 cents, Sudbury basin, off 20 and Vermilion fifted issues.

Trading-leagrams sold below 26, off nearly a point and Wallace Osmoon at 39 1-3 was down a point. International Petroleum held strong with the oil listings on the New York Board but British American and Imperial weakened 3-4 a point each. Brazilian at 15 7-8 had a set-back of 3-4.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALISTS (Thursday)

Toronto, March 12 (CP)—Toronto Industrial Market today turned around noon, unsettled by war fears and successive drives on the New York Board. Model sold off to 68 from one of 1 1-3 and recessions of fractions up to a point ran through Textile oils, Papers and Other listed issues.

Utilities-leagrams sold below 26, off nearly a point and Wallace Osmoon at 39 1-3 was down a point. International Petroleum held strong with the oil listings on the New York Board but British American and Imperial weakened 3-4 a point each. Brazilian at 15 7-8 had a set-back of 3-4.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, MARCH 14, 1936

RECLAMATION BEGUN IN INUNDATED AREA
COOLER WEATHER REDUCES FLOOD MENACE

Many Homes Deserted, Few Remain Inhabited In Inundated Section

Continuance of Cold Weather Seen as Protection

WATER UP 4 INCHES

West Belleville Rises to Emergency Despite Hardships

Wedged in the river high over the backs from the C.P.R. bridge to the rear of the Frull Machinery plant the vast field of ice send down on Thursday morning's flood-tide, seeming solidly established. Little change has taken place in the level of the water in the flooded district since Friday morning, though the weather has continued severe and become colder. Indications point to continuance of the cold over the week-end, which though causing intensification of hardship and suffering, should prevent complications by further flooding.

Damage Will Run High

The flood loss is largely collectural as yet, Gosses at the total run into many thousands to private individuals and corporations in stocks of goods, damage to property and trade. Conservative observers believe the loss will be beyond one hundred thousand dollars, and others go so far as to place the damage at a quarter of a million dollars.

Reclamation work has been started in the vicinity of soaked motors and other machinery from under the waters. The solid basements have been scenes of great activity as hundreds of householders establishments have sought to pump out the basements and start the work of cleaning up. The water starts to operate once in the brush of flood waters, and the task is largely hampered by the water level is the end which has been accomplished is only a small part of what has to be done.

Small scraps of men have been slowly clearing the ice from the Front Street side of the bridge. On West Bridge street there is considerable way to be done in the breaking up of the huge ice cakes, which however are still deep in water.

Dynamiting Continues

Streets in the flooded section on the west side will be closed to traffic for some time on account of the vast tonnage of ice which blocks them. Thousands of tons of ice block Coleman Street and the water still flows deep between the stores and residences down towards the car bridge.

The boom or the dynamite blast continued to be heard intermittently from the west end of the city.

The body of Archie Irvin, C.P.R. dynamiter, whose life was lost as a result of exposure after he fell into the icy water after long hours of work on Thursday evening has been shipped to Shelburne for burial.

Kind-hearted citizens even if they are themselves hard-pressed under present economic conditions do not hesitate to offer food, help and shelter with those who are refugees from the affected section of the city. Some put hold on in their "numbers" homes and wait for the recession of the water.

Students Rescue Car

A large automobile belonging to the Thompson Furniture Co. was partially submerged in an alley at the rear of the firm's business premises. All efforts to pull the car out proved futile until ropes were secured and a crew of Sidney Albert College students took hold and speedily yanked the automobile out of the mud and water of the alley on to the higher ground of Front Street, thereby saving an investment of $1,500.00 from deterioration.

Right in the path of the flood waters was the Capitol Theatre which was quickly filled with water up to the nine level and with several feet of water rushing about the entrance. The furnace fires quickly surrendered to the advent of the water and from the first it was evident that the theatre would be closed for the duration. No show could be given, and patrons could not even use the entrance except in boats, so there was no public Manager Maynard could do but mark time until the water receded.

Hydro Manager Busy

Manager O. B. Jones of the Belleville Hydro Commission, was perhaps the busiest man in the city right from the beginning of the ice shove, fighting the pioneer of keeping electric power and lighting service in operation,—no light task, for every branch of water supply is necessarily. Great praise is due Manager Jones, the Hydro Commissioners and the entire staff, city and district.

River Situation

The Moira River is clear of ice from below the upper bridge in Belleville to Canniffon dam. Back of Canniffon as far as Corbyville for a mile is an unbroken field of ice. Back of Corbyville dam for three miles to Fairfield's bridge is "the dead water".

The ice from Fairfield's bridge to Foxboro has moved into this dead water and is unlikely to move further.

"It will be unusual if there is sufficient water to drive that field of ice over Corbyville dam," stated Mr. William Reynolds, local authority, who has a long experience with river conditions.

Mr. Reynolds quoted the fact that since 1922 when the new dam was put in at Canniffon, the ice north of the dam has never come down, but melted back of Canniffon.

He believes that with a continuance of cold weather, the danger of further flood may be conceded as past. But if there should be a really warm spell, the water which would send down a large quantity of water into the river north of Canniffon, there might be further trouble, driving the ice out of the dead over Corbyville dam and force out the Canniffon-Corbyville ice on its way down to Belleville.

PLAYED POLITICS SAYS COL. KIDD

Kingston Member Says Coroners Political Appointments

Toronto, March 14.—(CP)—Sharp criticism of the amendment to the Coroners' Act and the Emblemers' and Funeral Directors' Act, both before the house as a result of the Legislature at Toronto on Friday, provincial Secretary Harry Nixon led the government in the absence of Premier Hepburn.

The Coroners' Act " Amendment providing for appointment of a chief Coroner by Cabinet was criticized by Col. Kidd for putting politics into the hands of Attorney-General Roebuck, who appointed coroners.

"In my own district, with a stroke of your pen last year you struck off the list of coroners all the men in the country," said Col. Kidd. "You have given Mr. Roebuck the power of life and you can't deny it".

Premier Hepburn promised to appointed a coroner before July, 1934, who wasn't a member of a Conservative association, Col. Roebuck said. "The great bulk of the coroners appointed by the government of which my friend was a member are still in office."

Legislation like that in the Embalmers' and Funeral Directors' bill providing licensing funeral directors "opened the door" to the possibility of other professional groups for similar privileges, said Wilfrid Leighington (Cons., Toronto St. David).

Provincial Secretary Harry Nixon commented in the objection that the Bill set up control of the profession by members of the profession.

"I would like to express the same view," Mr. Roebuck stated. "Unfortunately the door was opened and it is getting wider and wider."

FASCIST LEADER HELD IN MADRID

Supporters of Leftist Government in Bad Plight

By ALEXANDER H. UHL

Madrid, Mar. 14 (AP)—Spain's young Leftist government today arrested Jose Antonio Primo de Rivera, son of the late dictator, in a new crackdown on the Fascist Falange and Monarchists accused of fomenting recurrent disorders.

Primo de Rivera, whose father, General Miguel Primo de Rivera, once ruled Spain with an iron hand, was charged with implication in yesterday's disturbances. He is the leader of the Fascist Falangists.

Dozens of other Rightists were arrested accused of hitching up the disorders which have plagued Spain since last month's general election.

Members of the government declared the Republican Left responsible for the events of yesterday, climaxed by one more death and the burning of religious buildings in Madrid.

HANGING CALLED BARBARIC RELIC BY DR. BLAIR, M.P.

Lethal Gas Method of Execution Will be Studied

VIEW OF HANGMAN

Opposition of Sheriffs' Association to Present Method Noted

Ottawa, March 14 (CP)—Canada's hangman would prefer to see capital punishments administered by some method more humane than hanging. The Ontario Sheriffs' Association unanimously agrees "that the method of inflicting the death penalty in use in Canada is a relic of medieval days and should cease in humanitarian civilization calls for the substitution of a more humane method."

Dr. J. E. Blair, Liberal member of Parliament for North Wellington and sponsor of a bill which, if enacted, will abolish hanging as a form of capital punishment, has received letters from Hangman Arthur Ellis and Sheriff Lawrence of Hamilton, both condemning the present manner of administering capital punishment.

Ellis "would deem it an honor to be able to abolish any other responsible party in the attainment of this humane object through the coming of the world is made up today or decisions rendered too hurriedly where a change would help so much to alleviate the suffering in the last hours of some unfortunate who have to pay their greatest price, their life, for their fault act." He gives evidence in his letter to writing of his own experience: "Perhaps there is no person in the world who knows this strain better than I do in my twelve years hanging." Dr. Blair, in the House of Commons, declared:

BANK OWNERSHIP TO BE DEBATED

House to Create Commission on Unemployment And Relief

Ottawa, March 14 (CP)—Creation of a National Commission on unemployment and relief, amendment to the Railway Act, changes in radio broadcasting policy and amendments to the Bank Acts are matters, that will arouse widespread debate in the House of Commons.

Proposed changes in the ownership of the Bank of Canada may not prove highly controversial, unless Social Credit takes the floor. Methods to be adopted in effecting the control, no indication has been given of the government's plans.

Liberal members stated this progressive step in the last parliament to type public ownership of banking, and Conservative speeches Conservative leader Bennett, although opposed this present system on private ownership with a wide measure of government control but, said he would not oppose a change to public ownership if it were proved such change would be beneficial.

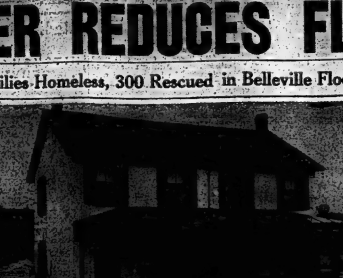
Work of the committee on the Elections and Franchise Acts is expected to occupy little attention, criticism of the present system from members of the press and political opinion.

Say General Staff Opposes Hitler Plan

London, March 14.—(CP-Havas)—An unconfirmed report from German general staff was opposing Chancellor Hitler in his Rhineland policy reached the stock exchange Friday. Trading in German bonds ceased in London.

The situation on the market was unsettled because lack of news and general uncertainty that German troops were moving and withdrawn from the Rhineland yesterday.

34.85 MILL RATE IN TORONTO



Toronto, Mar. 14 (CP)—Board of Control today brought before City Council a 34.85 mill tax rate, the highest in the city's history and .70 higher than last year's rate.

Public school supporters will pay the 24.85 rate while separate school supporters will pay 39.35, 4½ mills more.

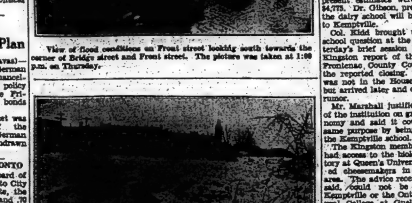
Families Homeless, 300 Rescued in Belleville Floods

One man is reported dead, scores injured, nearly 300 families left homeless and more than 300 rescued as the raging Moira River near Belleville continues through the eastern end of the city. Thousands of dollars' damage to property is reported in the worst flood in the city's history. Water and ice last deep as eight feet, endangering the lives of hundreds of residents marooned by the turbulent waters. Many parts of the city and surrounding territory. Similar scenes are being witnessed in Port Hope. The picture above shows, TOP, a house marooned by flood waters which have risen over the Canada floor; CENTRE, cars and trucks marooned by washed out roads near Belleville; BELOW, a woman being rescued by firemen who have performed heroic service. Reinforcement is expected for several days.

Monument To The Inventor of Gas Mask

Baltimore, March 14 (AP)—On a gray granite shaft, in an epitaph the late Rear-William A. Crawford-Fries "wrote" to be put, he repeated his claims as "the Father of the Pan-American Union" and inventor of the "gas mask." He was born in 1865 at Owen Sound, Ontario.

The interests of the Canadian chemical inventor were revealed in the will, filed yesterday in Orphans' Court here for probate.



The Protestant Episcopal ministers who once lived here asked that the shaft, topped by a bronze bust, be placed in the grave in the family lot yard of St. Mary's Church at Emmorton, in Harford County, Maryland, where he once was pastor.

LOW TEMPERATURE HOLDING FLOOD WATER IN CHECK

Tremendous Toll of Lives And Property in Eastern Canada

5 CHILDREN DROWN

Baby Torn Away From Mother's Arms by Swirling Water

Lower temperatures today aided in keeping in check flood waters that, causing land and snow slides, took a tremendous toll of lives and property in eastern Canada during the past 24 hours. Engineers believed a touch of cold would prevent further and serious breaks of water and aid nature in breaking the stranglehold of ice sections rivers and creeks.

Quebec provinces suffered greatly with 11 lives claimed by angry waters that tore through little wooden homes in the districts of Moise northeast of Quebec City. One life was lost in Ontario and one in Nova Scotia.

The situation in Ontario eased after thousands of dollars damage had the flood situation in the Maritime Provinces remained serious. Damages in the Annapolis district of Nova Scotia was estimated at $500,000 at least. Railway traffic in that province was halted completely on the Dominion Atlantic and delayed on the Canadian National.

Nine Drown In Quebec.

Quebec's death list was climaxed by drowning of five children of Ernest Brulaur, their home at La Martine was swept from its foundation and smashed into pieces. Mrs. Brulaur had a baby born from the waters by the swirling flood. Her husband was dragged from a snow bank when an outstretched arm rescued his presence. Five of their ten children were saved but the others, ranging from six months to eight years, were drowned.

Two more lives were lost when the home of Henri Ducios at Ste. Thérèse de Blainville, drowned when the homes, like the others, were torn and broken by the flood waters.

Archie Irwin died at Belleville, Ont., from exposure after falling into the swollen Moira River and Henry Mosher, 19, of Windsor, N. S., was drowned when he was swept from a weakened ice of the Kennetcook River. At first believed dead, Joseph Ferguson, 60, of a section band of the Ste. Agathe-des-Monts branch of the Canadian National Railways, was found by a section crew at Calcedonia, near Hamilton, experiencing difficulty in keeping his head above the surface of the swirling waters. Four feet of water swept the floors of the Ferguson home and there were minor floods in other places in Hamilton, Brantford, Dundas and Napanee.

Although the death list in Quebec was confined to the north of the St. Lawrence River the flood damage in the south was also severe.

Students of University of Bishops' College at Lennoxville were cut off by a flow of water from the Massawippi and St. Francis. They had to row to the shore, yesterday to attend classes. A bridge there was in danger of collapsing, making it the only means that carry water to the town.

Automobiles Submerged

Five automobiles were almost completely submerged on main Sherbrooke-Stanstead highway, the Canadian National Railways and Canada Steamship lines at Farnham were in danger of collapsing, making it the only means that carry water to the town.

Railway schedules throughout the stricken areas in four provinces were disrupted today by washouts, washed out bridges and delays frequent.

Rain and high winds caught the Maritime Provinces clearing away snow and ice to fill rivers for capacity. Railway beds were washed away in a number of points and highways were flooded in Halifax and the south of Nova Scotia was completely cut off.
